M. D. XXXIX.

TO THE MOST NOBLE, MOST MYGHTYE, AND MOST redoubted pryncke kynge HENRY the VIII. kynge of Englande and of Fraunce, defensour of the fayth, lorde of Ireland, and in erth supreme heed immediatly vnder Chryst of the churche of England, his humble seruaunt RYCHARD TAVERNER desireth all Joye, felycitie, and longe lyfe.

NOw hyghly all England is bounde to your incomparable maiestie for the infinite and manifolde benefites receyued at your most gracious handes from tyme to time without ceasing, euē from the begynnyng of your most noble raigne: truly no mortal tonge is hable with wordes sufficiently to expresse, or with secret thoughtes of hert worthely to contriue: Certes, it far passeth bothe the skiender capacitie of my wyt, and also ỹ rude infancy of my tong to do either thone or thother: yea another Cicero or Demosthenes wer not ynough hereunto. Wherfore omittinge or rather leauinge to some other the iust Encomye and commendation of your graces most ample dedes, worthy of eternall memorie, yet this one thing I dare full well affirme, that amonges all your maiesties deseruinges vpon the christen religion (then which surely nothing can be greater) your highnes neuer did thing more acceptable vnto god, more profitable to ỹ auauncemēt of true christiantie, more displeasaūt to the enemies of the same, & also to your graces enemies then when your maiestie lycenced and wylled the moost sacred Byble conteynyng the vnspotted and lyuely worde of God to be in the Englysh tong set forth to your hyghnes subiectes.

To the setting forth wherof (most gracious & moost redoubted soueraigne lorde) lyke as certeyn men haue neither vndiligētly nor yet vnlearnedly trauelled: So agayn it cannot be denied, but ỹ some faultes haue escaped their hades. Neither speke I this to depraue or maligne their industrie & paynes take in this behalf: no rather I think them worthy of no litle praise & thankes for the same, considering what great vtilitie & profit hath redounded to your graces hole realme by the publyshyng and setting forth therof, although it were not fynished to the ful absolucion and perfection of the same. For assuredly it is a worke of so great difficultie. I meane so absolutely to translate the hole bible that it be faultlesse, that I feare it can scarce be doone of one or two persons, but rather requyreth bothe a deper conferrynge of many lerned wittes togyther, and also a iuster tyme and longer leysure.

Wherfore the premisses wel cōsidered, for almoch as ỹ printers herof were very desirous to haue this most sacred volume of the bible come forth as faultlesse & emendatly, as the shortnes of time for the recognising of ỹ same wold require, they desired me your most hūble seruāt for default of a better lerned, diligētly to ouerloke & peruse the hole copy: and in case I shold fynd any notable default ỹ neded correctiō, to amēd the same, according to ỹ true exēplars Whiche thynge according to my talent I haue gladly done.

These therfore my simple trauvaciōs & labours, to who might I better dedicate, thē vnto your most excellēt & noble maiestie, ỹ only authour & grounde nexte God of this so high a benefite vnto youre graces people, I meane that the holy scripture is communicate vnto the same.

But now though many faultes peraūce be yet left behind vncalligat, either for lacke of lerning sufficiēt to so great an enterprise, for default of leasure. I trust your maiestie & all other ỹ shal rede the same, will pardon me, consyderynge (as I haue alredy declared) how harde & difficult a thinge it is, so to set forth this worke, as shal be in al pointes faultles & without reprehension.

And thus I cōmit your most gracious & excellēt maiestie to ỹ tuicio of ỹ highest. to whose be al honour, glory, & prayse, worlde without ende. AMEN.

These thynges ensuynge are ioyned w^t this present volume of the bible.

Christ unto the people. Johñ. v.
Serche the scriptures: for they are they that testifye of me.

Paul to Timothy, ii. Tim. iii.
All scripture gyuen by inspiracion of God is profitable to teache, to improue, to amend and to instruct in ryghtuousnesse, that the mã of God maye be perfecte and prepared to al good workes.

The same to the Rom. xv.
What thynges so euer are wrytten, are wrytten for our lernynge: that we thorowe pacience and comfort of y^e scriptures, might haue hope.

Salomon Prou. xxx.
All the worde of God, is pure and cleane it is a shyld unto them that put their trust in it. Put nothinge unto his wordes, lest he reproue the, and thou be found a lyar.

Moses to the people. Deu. xii.
Ye shall not doo euerye man what semeth hym good in his owne eyes: But what soeuer I commaunde you, that take hede ye doo, and put nought therunto, neither take ought therefrom.

The Lord unto Josua. Jos. I.
Let not the boke of this lawe departe oute of thy mouth: But recorde therin daye and nyghte, that thou mayste be circumspecte to doo accordynge to all that is wrytten therin. For then shalte thou make thy waye prosperous, and then shalte thou haue understandynge. Turne therefrom neyther to the ryght hande, ne to the lefte: that thou mayst haue understandynge in all that thou takest in hande.

The same to the people. Exo. xiii.
And thou shalte shewe thy sonne at that tyme, saying: This is done because of that whiche the Lorde dyd unto me when I came oute of Egypte. Therfore it shall be a signe unto the upon thy hande, and a remembraunce bytwene thyne eyes, that the Lordes lawe maye be in thy mouthe. For with a stronge hande the Lorde brought the oute of Egypte.

Moses Deut. xxxi.
Se that thou rede this lawe before all Israel in theyr eares. Gather the people togyther: both e men, women and chyldren, and the straungers that are in the cities: that they maye heare, lerne, and feare the Lorde youre God, to kepe all the wordes of this lawe.

THE CONTENTES OF ALL THE HOLY SCRIPTVRE aswell of the olde testament as of the newe.

Deut. vi. i. Tymothe. ii. Gen. xvii. Exod. xv. Gene. i. Psa. x. Exod. iii. Jerem. ix. Roma. ix. Esa. liiii. Piere. x. — God.

Fyrst the holy Wrytinges of the Bible teach us, that there is one God, almyghtye, that hath neither begynnynge ne endynge: which of his owne goodnes dyd create all thynges: of whome all thinges procede, & withoute whom is nothyng: which is ryghtous and mercyfull, and which worketh al thynges in all after his wyl: of whom it may not be demaunded wherfore he doth this or that.

Gene. i. Sapi. ii. Roma. v. Ephe. ii. — Creacion of man.

Then that this very God did create Adam the first man after his owne Image and lykenes, and dyd ordeyne and appoynte hym Lorde of all creatures in erth. Which Adam by the enuy of the deuill, disobeyinge the commaundement of his maker, did first sinne, and brought sin into this worlde, such and so greate, that we which be spronge of him after the flesshe, are subdued unto sinne, deathe, and dannacion, broughte under the yoke and tyranny of the deuyll.

Gene. iii. xii. xvi. xxviii. Ohre. ii. — Chryst promysed.

And further, y^t Chryst Jesus his son was promised of God the father, to be a sauoyre to this Adam, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Dauid, and the other fathers: whiche shulde delyuer them frome their synnes and tyrannye of the deuyll, wherunto they were all subiect by Adam.

Exodi. xix. xx. Rom. iii. Gala. iii. i. Cori. i. — Law.

And that in the meane seasõ whyle the fathers loked for saluacion and delyueraunce promysed, because mans nature is such, that he not onely can not, but also wyl not confesse hym selfe to be a synner, and specyally such a synner as hath nede of the sauinge health promysed, the lawe was giuen throughe whiche men myghte knowe sinne, and that they are sinners when they se they do none of the thinges that the law commaundeth, with so glad and wyllynge a minde as God requireth: but rather agaynste their wyl les, without affection, and as though they were constrayned with the feare of that hell which the lawe threatneth sayinge: Cursed be he that mayntayneth not all the wordes of this lawe to kepe them. And that this lawe was gyuen to thintente that synne and the malyce of mens hert beinge therby the better knowen, men shuld the more feruentl thyrst the commynge of Christe, whiche shulde redeme them from their synnes.

Luke. ii. Galathi. iiii. Eph. i. Roma. v. Tit. iii. — Chryste the sauyour cometh.

Last of all: We are taughte, that that Chryste whiche was promysed and shadowed in the olde testament, is sent of the father, at suche tyme as he had determyned with hym selfe, at suche tyme (I saye) as all wyckednesse floryshed. And that he was sẽt not for any mans good workes (for they all were synners) but to thintente he wolde make good his promise and shewe the aboundant riches of his grace, whiche he had promysed.

John. i. Esaye. liii. i. Jo. ii. Luc. i. Rom. v. Joh. iii. x. vi. — The lambe the sacrifice.

In the newe testament therfore it is moste euidently declared, that Jesus Chryst the true lambe and hooste, is come to reconcyle us to the father, payinge on the crosse the punysshmente due to oure synnes: and to delyuer us from the bondage of the deuyll (unto whom we serued through sinne) and to make us the sonnes of God, sith he hath gyuẽ us the true pear — Pear.

Fayth. and tranquilitie of conscience, that we no longer do feare the paynes of hell: which feare is put away by the fayth, that the father giueth, vs drawyng vs vnto his sonne. For that faith is the gyft of God wherby we beleue ỹ Christe is come in to this worlde to saue sinners: which is of so greate pith that they whiche haue it, desyre to performe al the dutyes of loue to al men, after the example of Chryst. For fayth ones receyued, God gyueth his holye ghost, wherwith he tokeneth and marcketh all that beleue: which is the pledge and earnest that we shall surelye possesse euerlastyng lyfe, and that gyueth witnes vnto oure spirite, and grafteth this faith in vs, that we be the sonnes of God powrynge therwith the loue in to oure hertes which Paul describeth and setteth out to the Corinthians. By that faith and confydence in Christe whiche by loue is myghty in operacion, and that sheweth it selfe thorow the workes of loue sterynge men therto, by that (I say) we are iustyfyed: that is, by that fayth, Chrystes father (whiche is become oures also thorowe that Christ our brother) counteth vs for ryghtous & for his sonnes: imputing not our sinnes vnto vs thorowe his grace.

The holye ghost. i. Tim. i. ii. Cor. i. & v. Ephe. i. Roma. viii. i. Cor. xii. Gala. v. ii. Cor. v. Loue. Iustyce.

To conclude, he came that we being clensed from our synnes, & sanctifyed vnto God the father: that is, halowed vnto the vse of the father to exercyse good workes forsaking the workes of the fleshly shuld frely serue him in righteousnes and holynesse al our life long thorow good workes which God hath ordeyned that we shuld walke in them declaring our selues therby to be surely called vnto this grace: which workes whosoeuer hath not, declareth ỹ he hath not fayth in Chryst. Tit. ii. Luc. i. Ephe. ii. Ser. i. Workes.

The last iudgement. ❧ This is that Chryst Jesus Whiche after he hath kylled the man of synne with the breath of his mouth, shal syt in his maiesty and iudge al men, geuing vnto euery one the workes of his body, accordinge to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad. And that shal say vnto them that shal be on his right hande. Come ye blessed children of my father, inherete ye the kyngdome prepared for you from the begynning of the world: And vnto the that shall be on his lefte hande. Depart from me ye cursted, into euerlastynge fyre: which is prepared for the deuyll and his aungels. Then shall the ende come and he shall delyuer vp the kyngdome to God the father. ii. Thess. ii. ii. Cor. v. Math. xxv. i Corinth. xv

Lyke euerlastynge. ❧ To thintent We shulde knowe this by the goodnes of God worckynge by his holy spirite, are the holy writinges of the Byble gyuen vs: That we shulde knowe (I saye) and beleue that there is one God, and Jesus Chryste whome he hath sent: and that in beleuyng we shuld haue euerlasting lyfe thorow his name. ii. Pet. i. John. xix. John. xx.

❧ An other foundacion then this can no man lay. And S. Paul desyreth that he be holde a cursted which preacheth any other faith & saluacion, then only by Jesus Chryst: though it were an angel of heuen. For of him, and thorow him, & for him, are al thinges: to whom, with the father and the holy ghoste, be honour and glory for euer more. AMEN. i. Cor. iii. Gala. i. Roma. xi.

CAPITVLO. I.

A In the begynnynge * created God heuen & erth. The erth was voyde and emptye/ and darknes was upon the depe,and the spirite of God was borne upõ the waters. And God sayd: let there be lyght:and there was lyght. And God sawe the lyght that it was good: & dyuyded the lyght from the darknesse/ & called the lyght the day/and the darknesse the nyght: and ye euening & morning was made one daye.

God also sayd: let there be a fyrmament betwene the waters/ & let it dyuyde the waters a sonder. Then God made the fyrmament/ and parted the waters whiche were under the fyrmament, from the waters aboue the fyrmament: And so it was doon. And god called the fyrmament Heauen: And the euenynge and mornyng was made the seconde daye.

And God sayd: * the waters under heauen be gathered togyther in one place,that the dry lande maye appere: And so it was doon. And God called the drye lande the erthe / and the gatherynges togyther of waters called he the see. And God sawe that it was good.

And God sayd:let the erth bring forth grene grasse and that bereth seed/and frutefull trees beryng frute euery one in his kynde / hauynge
B theyr seed in them selues upon the erth:And it was doon. And the erth brought forth herbe & grasse that bare seed euery one in his kynde / and trees beryng frute/ and hauyng theyr seed in them selues / euery one in his kynde: And God sawe that it was good: and the euenyng and mornynge was made the thyrde daye.

Than sayd God: * be there lyghtes in the fyrmamente of heauen / to dyuyde daye from nyght that they maye be for sygnes / seasons / dayes/and yeares, And * let them be lyghtes in the fyrmament of heauen, to shyne upon the erthe: And so it was doon. And God made * two greate lyghtes: A greater lyghte to rule the daye/ & a lesse lyght to rule the nyght: and made sterres also: And God set them in the fyrmament of heauen to shine upon the erth/and rule the daye and the nyght: and to dyuyde the lyghte from darknesse: And God sawe that it was good: and the euenynge and mornynge was made the fourth daye.

And God sayd: * let ye waters brynge forth creatures that moue and haue life, and foules for to flee ouer the erthe under the fyrmament
C of heauen. And God created greate whales and all maner of creatures that lyue and moue which ye waters brought forth in their kindes/ & all maner of fethered foules in theyr kyndes: And God sawe that it was good: and blessed them sayenge: Encreace and multyplye & fyll the waters of the sees: and let the foules multyplye upon the erthe. And the euenynge and mornynge was made the fyfth daye.

And God sayd: let the erthe brynge forthe lyuynge creatures in theyr kyndes: catell and wormes & beastes of the erth in theyr kyndes/ and so it was. And God made the beastes of the erthe in theyr kyndes / and catell in theyr kyndes/and all maner wormes of the erthe in their kyndes/ and god sawe that it was good.

And God sayd: let us make man to our symplytude and after our lykenesse: and let hym haue rule ouer the fysh of the see, and ouer the foules of the ayre / and ouer cattell and ouer all the erthe / and ouer all wormes that crepe on the erthe. And God created man after his lykenesse/after the lykenesse of God created he hym: male and female created he them. D

And God blessed them, and sayd: Growe and multyplye, and fyll the erthe / and subdue it/ and haue domynyon ouer the fysshes of the see/and foules of the ayre/ and ouer al the beastes that moue on the erth.

And God sayd: Se, I haue gyuen you all herbes that beare seed upon the erthe / and all maner trees that haue fruyte in them & beare seed: to be meate for you and for all beastes of the erth/and unto all foules of the ayre/& unto all that moue on the erthe, and wherin is lyfe/ that they maye haue all maner herbes & grasse for to eate/and so it was done.And * God behelde all that he had made / and lo, they were excedynge good: and the euenynge and mornynge was made the sixt daye.

Eden signifieth pleasures

And there sprange a ryuer out of Eden to water the garden, and thence deuyded it selfe/ and grewe in to foure pryncypall waters. The name of the one is ✱ Phison/ he it is that compasseth all the lande of Heuyla / where golde groweth. And the golde of that countrey is precious/ there is founde Bdellion/ & a stone called Onix. The name of the secōde ryuer is Gihon, whiche compasseth all the lande of Inde. C And the name of the thyrde ryuer is Tigris/ whiche ronneth on the East syde of the Assyryans. And the fourth ryuer is Euphrates.

And the Lorde God toke Adam, and put hym in the garden of pleasure, to dresse it and to kepe it. And the Lorde God commaunded Adam sayinge: Of all the trees of the garden eate: But of the tree of knowlege of good and bad eate thou not: For the same day thou eatest of it, thou shalte dye the dethe.

And the Lorde God sayd: It is not good that man be alone/ I wyl make hym an helpe to beare hym companye. And after the Lorde God hadde made of the erth all maner beestes of the felde/ and all maner foules of the ayre, he brought them vnto Adam to se what he wolde D call them. And as Adam called all maner lyuynge beestes, so are theyr names. And Adam gaue names vnto all maner cattell / and vnto the foules of the ayre/ & vnto all maner beestes of the felde. But there was no help founde vnto Adam to beare hym company.

Then the Lorde God cast a slomber on Adam/ and he slepte. And he toke out one of his rybbes/ and in stede therof, he filled vp the place with fleshe. And the Lorde God made of the rybbe which he toke out of Adam ✱ a woman and broughte her vnto Adam. Then sayd Adam: This is nowe a bone of my bones / and flesh of my fleshe. This shal be called woman: bycause she was takē of man. ✱ For this cause shall mā leue father and mother, and cleue vnto his wyfe/ and they shall be one fleshe. ✱1. Paral. 1. a

THese be the generacions of the sonnes of Noe: of Sem, Cham, and Japheth, whyche begate them chyldren after the floude.

The sonnes of Japheth were: Gomyr. Magog, Madai, Jauan, Tubali, Mosech and Thyras. And the sonnes of Gomyr were: Ascenas Riphat and Togarma. And the sonnes of Jauan were: Elysa, Thartis, Cithim and Dodanim. Of these came the Iles of the gentyls in their countreys, euery man in his speche, kynred and nacyon.

The sonnes of Cham were: Chus, Mistraim, Phut and Canaan. The sonnes of Chus were Seba, Heupla, Sabta, Rayma & Sabtema. And the sonnes of Rayma were Sheba and Dedan. ✱Chus also begat Nemrod whiche began to be myghty in the earth. He was a myghtye hunter in the syght of the Lorde. Wherof came the prouerbe: he is as Nemrod that myghty hunter in the syght of the Lorde. And the begynnynge of his kyngdome was ✱ Babel, Erech, Achad and Chalne in the lande of Synear: Out of that lande came Assur, and buylded Ninyue, and the stretes of the cyte, & Calah, and Resen betwene ✱ Ninyue & Calah. That is a great cyte. And Mizrim begate Ludim, Enamim, Leabim, Naphtuhiim, Pathrusim and Casluhim: from whence came the Philystins, and the Capthorynes.

Canaan also begat Sidon his eldest sonne & Heth, Jebusi, Emori, Gergosi, Hym, Arki, Sini, Aruadi, Zemari and Hamathi. And afterwarde sprange the kynreds of the Cananytes. And the coostes of the Cananytes were frō Sydon tyll thou come to Gerara and to Asa, and tyll thou come to Sodoma, Gomorra, Adama, Zeboim, euē vnto Lasa. These were the chyldren of Cham in their kynredes, tonges, landes and nacions.

And Sem the father of al the chyldren of Eber, and the eldest brother of Japheth begate chyldren also. And his sonnes were Elam, Assur, Arphachsad, Lud and Aram. And the chyldren of Aram were: Uz, Hul, Gether & Mas. And ✱ Arphachsad begat Sala, and Sala begat Eber. And Eber begat two sonnes. CAPI. XXIII.

A

SAra was an hundred and.xxvij. yere olde (for so longe lyued she) and than dyed in a heade cytie called Hebron in the lande of Canaan. Then Abraham came to morne and bewayle Sara. And when Abraham stode vp frome the funeralles, he talked with the sonnes of Heth, sayenge: I am a straunger and a foryner amonges you, geue me a possession to burye in with you, that I maye bury my dead out of my syght.And the children of Heth answered Abraham sayeng vnto hym: Heare vs Lorde, thou art a prince of God amonge vs. In the chefest of our sepulchres bury thy dead: None of vs shall forbyd the his sepulchre,that thou shuldest not bury thy dead therin. Abraham stode vp, and reuerentely thanked the people of the lande the children of Heth. And sayde vnto them: If it be youre myndes that I shall buey my deade out of my syght, heare me and speake for me to Ephron the sonne of Zoar: and let hym geue me the double caue whiche he hathe in the ende of his felde, for so moche money as it is worth, let hym geue it me in the presence of you, for a possessiō to burye in. For Ephron dwelled amonge the children of Heth.

Then Ephron the Hethyte answered Abraham in the audience of the children of Heth, and of all that went in at the gates of his cytie, sayenge: Not so my Lorde, but heare me: The felde geue I the, and the caue that therin is geue I the also: and euen in the presence of the sonnes of my people geue I it the to burye thy deed in. Then Abraham bowed hym selfe before the people of the lande, and spake vnto Ephron in the audience of the people of the countreye, sayeng: I praye the heare me, I will geue syluer for the felde, take it of me, and so wyll I bury my deed there. Ephron answered Abraham, sayeng: My lorde herken vnto me. The lande is worth. iiij. C. sycles of syluer: but what is that betwene the and me? burye thy deed. And Abraham harkened vnto Ephron, and payde hym the syluer whiche he had sayde in the audience of the sonnes of Heth, that is to wyt. iiij. C. syluer sycles of currant money amonge marchauntes. Thus was Ephrons felde wherin the double caue is before Mamre: aswell the felde as the caue that is therin, and all the trees of the felde whiche growe in all the borders rounde about, made sure vnto Abraham for a possession, in the syght of the children of Heth, and of all that wēt in at the gates of the cytie. And then Abraham buryed Sara his wyfe in the double caue of the felde that lyeth before Mamre, otherwyse called Ebron in the lande of Canaan. And so bothe the felde & the caue that is therin, was made Abrahams sure possession to bury in, of the sonnes of Heth.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A Braham was olde and stryken in age, & the Lorde had blessed him in all thinges. And he sayde vnto his eldeste seruaunte of his house whiche had the rule ouer all that he had: ❧ Put thy hande vnder my thye that I maye make the sweare by the Lord that is God of heauen and God of the earth, ✠ thou shalt not take a wyfe vnto my sonne, of the daughters of the Cananites, amonge which I dwell. But thou shalte go vnto my countrey and to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne Isaac.

Then sayde the seruaunte vnto him: what yf the womā will not agree to come with me vnto this lande, shall I bringe thy sonne agayne vnto the lande whiche thou camest out of? And Abraham sayde vnto him: beware of that, that thou bringe not my sonne thyther. The Lorde God of heauen which toke me frō my fathers house and from the lande where I was borne, & which spake vnto me and sware vnto me sayenge: vnto thy * seed will I geue this lande, he shall sende his angell before the that thou maiste take a wyfe vnto my sonne from thence. Neuertheles yf the womā will not agree to come with the then shalt thou be without daunger of this oothe. But aboue al thinge bringe not my sonne thyther agayne. And the seruaunt put his hande vnder the thye of Abraham and sware to hym concernynge ✠ matter. And the seruaunte toke .x. camels of his masters and departed, and had all maner goodes of his master with him, and rode vp & went to Mesopotamia, vnto the cytie of Nahor. And made his camels to lye downe without the cytie by a wels syde at euen: aboute the tyme that women come to drawe water, and he sayde.

Lorde God of my master Abraham, send me good spede this daye / and shewe mercy vnto my master Abraham. Lo I stonde here by the well and the doughters of the men of this cytie will come out to drawe water: Nowe the damsell to whome I saye, bowe downe thy pytcher, & let me drynke. If she saye: Drinke, and I wyll geue thy camels drynke also, that same is she that thou hast ordeyned for thy seruaunt Isaac: yea and therby shall I knowe that thou hast shewed mercy on my master. And it came to passe or euer he had lefte speakynge, that Rebecca came out, the daughter of Bethuel, sonne to Milca the wyfe of Nahor Abrahams brother, and her pytcher vpon her thoulder: The damsell was very fayre to loke vpon, a mayde and vnknowen of man. And she went downe to the well, & fylled hyr pytcher and came vp agayne. Then the seruāt ran vnto her and sayd: let me sup a litle water of thy pitcher. And she sayd: drinke Syr.

And she hasted and late downe her pytcher vpon her arme and gaue him drinke. And whē she had geuen hym drynke, she sayde: I wyll drawe water for thy camels also, vntyll they haue dronke ynoughe. And she poured out hir pitcher into the troughe hastely, and ranne agayne vnto the well, to fet water: and drewe for all his camels. And the felowe wondred at her. But helde his peace, to wete whether the Lorde hadde made his iourney prosperous or not. And as the camels had left drinkinge/ he toke a golden eare ryng of halfe a sycle weight and two bracelettes for hir handes, of .x. sycles wepght of golde, & sayd vnto her: Whose doughter arte thou? tell me: is there rowme in thy fathers house for vs to lodge in? And she sayde vnto hym: I am the doughter of Bethuel the sonne of Milca / whiche she bare vnto Nahor: and sayde moreouer vnto hym: we haue litter and prouonder ynoughe, and also rowme to lodge in.

And the man bowed hym self, and worshipped the Lorde/ and sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of my master Abraham whiche ceaseth not to deale mercyfully & truely with my master, and hathe brought me the waye to my masters brothers house. And the damsell ran and tolde vnto theym of her mothers house these thinges. And Rebecca had a brother called Laban.

And

And Laban ran out vnto the man, to the well: for as soone as he had seue the eareryngs and the bracelettes vpon his systers handes, and herde the wordes of Rebecca his syster, sayenge: thus sayd the man vnto me, the he went oute vnto the man. And lo, he stode yet with the camels by the well syde. And Laban sayde come in thou blessed of the Lorde. Wherfore stondeste thou without? I haue dressed vp the house, and made rowme for the camels. And the man came into the house and he vnbrydled the camels: & brought lytter and prouonder for the camels, & water to wash his fete & their fete that were with him, and there was meate set before him to eate. But he sayde: I will not eate, tyll I haue sayd my message. And he sayd: say on. And he sayd: I am Abrahams seruant, and the Lorde hath blessed my master oute of measure, so that he is become great, and hathe geuen hym shepe, oxen, syluer & golde, menseruauntes, mayde seruauntes, camels and asses. And Sara my masters wyfe bare him a sonne, when she was olde: to whom hath he gyuen all that he hath. And my master made me sweare sayenge: thou shalt not seke a wyfe to my sonne amonge the doughters of the Cananytes in whose lande I dwell, But shalt go to my fathers house and to my kynred, and there take a wyfe vnto my sonne. And I sayde vnto my master: what yf the wyfe will not folow me? And he said vnto me: The Lorde before whome I walke, wyll sende his angel with the, & prospere thy iourney that thou shalt take a wyfe for my sonne, of my kynred and of my fathers house. But if (when thou comest vnto my kynred) they wil not geue the one, then shalt thou here no perell of myne othe.

And I came this daye vnto the well & sayd: O Lorde, the God of my master Abraham, yf it be so that thou makest my iourney which I go, prosperous: beholde I stonde by this well of water, and when a virgyn cometh forth to drawe water, and I saye to her: geue me a lytle water of thy pytcher to drynke, & she saye agayne to me: drynke thou, and I wyll also drawe water for thy camels: that same is the wyfe whome the Lorde hath prepared for my masters sonne.

And afore I had made an ende of speakynge in myne harte: beholde Rebecca came forth, & her pytcher on her shulder, & she went downe to the well and drewe. And I sayde vnto her: geue me drynke. And she made haste, and toke downe her pytcher frome her shulders, & sayde: drynke, and I wil geue thy camels drynke also. And I dranke, & she gaue my camels drinke also. And I asked her sayenge: whose doughter arte thou? she answered: the doughter of Bethuel Nahors sonne, whome Milca bare vnto him. And I put the eare rynges vpō her face and the bracelettes vpon her handes. And I bowed my selfe, and worshypped the Lorde, and blessed the Lorde God of my master Abraham whiche had brought me the ryght waye, to take my masters brothers daughter vnto his sonne. Now therfore yf ye wyl deale mercyfully and truly with my master, tell me: yf not tell me also: that I maye turne me to the right hande or to the left.

Then answered Laban and Bethuel, sayenge: The thinge is proceed of the Lorde, we can not therfore saye vnto the, eyther good or bad: beholde Rebecca before thy face, take her and go, and let her be thy masters sonnes wyfe, as the Lorde hath appointed. And whē Abrahams seruaunt herde their wordes, he bowed hym to the Lorde, flat vpon the earthe. And the seruaunt toke forth iewels of syluer & iewels of golde and rayment, and gaue them to Rebecca: but vnto her brother and to her mother he gaue spyces. And then they ate and dranke, both he & the men that were w̄ him, & tayred all nyght and rose vp in the morninge.

And he sayde: let me departe vnto my master. But her brother and her mother sayd: let the damsell abyde with vs a whyle, at the lest x. dayes, and then go thy wayes. And he sayd vnto them: hynder me not, for the Lorde hath prospered my iourney. Sende me awaye that I maye go to my master. And they sayde: let vs call the damsell, and wytte what she saith to the matter. So they called forth Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: wilte thou go with this man? And she sayde: yea.

So they let Rebecca their syster goo with her norse and Abrahams seruaunt, & the men that were with him. And they blessed Rebecca, and sayde vnto her: Thou arte oure syster growe into thousande thousandes, & thy seed possesse the gates of their enemyes. And Rebecca arose and her damsels, and sat them vp vpon the camels, and wente their waye after the man. And the seruaunt toke Rebecca, and went his waye.

And Isaac was compynge frome the well of the ✠ lyvynge and seynge, for he dwelt in the south countreye, and was gone out to walke in his meditations about the euen tyde. And he lyft vp his eyes and loked, and beholde the camels were compynge. And the seruant sayd: it is my master. Then she toke her mantell, and put it about her. And the seruaunt tolde Isaac all ✠ he had done. Then Isaac brought her into his mother Saras tente, and toke Rebecca, & she became his wyfe, and he loued her: and so was Isaac comforted ouer his mother.

CAPI. XXVII.

A And it came to passe that Isaac waxed olde and his eyes were dymme, so that he coulde not see. Then called he Esau his eldest sonne and sayde to hym: my sonne. And he aunswered him, here Sir. And he sayd: beholde, I am olde, and knowe not the daye of my deathe: now therfore take thy artillery, thy quyuer and thy bowe, and get the to the feldes, and kyll me some venyson, and dresse me meate suche as I loue, and brynge it me, & let me eate that my soule maye blesse the afore I dye. And Rebecca herde when Isaac spake to Esau his sonne. And as soone as Esau was gone to the felde to hunt venyson, & to bringe it, she spake vnto Jacob her sonne, sayenge: Beholde I haue herde thy father talkynge wͭ Esau thy brother and sayenge: bringe me venyson and dresse me meate, that I maye eate & blesse the before the Lorde, er I dye. Nowe B therfore my sonne heare my voyce in yͭ whiche I commaunde the: get the to the flocke, and brynge me thence two good kyddes, & I will make meate of them for thy father, such as he loueth. And thou shalt brynge it to thy father and he shall eate, & blesse the before his death.

Than sayde Jacob to Rebecca his mother: beholde Esau my brother is rough, and I am smoothe. My father shall peraduenture fele me, and I shall seme vnto hym as thoughe I went aboute to begyle hym, & so shall he bring a curse vpon me, for a blessynge: and his mother sayde vnto hym: Vpon me be thy curse my sonne, onely heare my voyce, and go and fetche me them. And Jacob went and fet thẽ/ and brought them to his mother. And his mo- C ther made meate of them, accordyng as his father loued. And she went and fet goodly rayment that was her eldest sonne Esaus, which she had in the house with her, & put them vpõ Jacob her yongest sonne, and she put the skynnes vpon his handes & vpõ the smooth of his necke. And she put the meate & bred which she had made, in the hande of her sonne Jacob.

And he went in to his father, sayenge: my father? And he answered: here am I: who art thou my sonne? And Jacob sayd vnto his father: I am Esau thy eldest sonne, I haue done as thou baddest me: aryse, syt vp, and eate of my venyson, that thy soule maye blesse me. But Isaac sayde vnto his sonne: how cometh it that thou haste founde it so quyckely, my sonne? He aunswered: The Lorde thy God brought it to my hande. Then sayd Isaac vnto Jacob: come nere, and let me fele the, my sonne, whether thou be my sonne Esau or not Then went Jacob to Isaac his father, and he D felt hym and sayd: the voyce is Jacobs voyce, but the handes are the handes of Esau. And he knewe hym not, because his handes were roughe as his brother Esaus handes: and so he blessed hym.

Gene.xli.iii.c.& Deut.xxiii.a.

And he asked hym: arte thou my sonne Esau? And he sayd: I am. Then sayd he: bring forthe and let me eate of my sonnes venyson, that my soule maye blesse the. And he brought hym, and he ate. He brought hym wyne also, and he dranke. And his father Isaac sayd vnto hym: come nere and kysse me my sonne. And he went vnto hym & kyssed hym. And he smelled the sauoure of his rayment, and ✱ blessed hym, and sayde: See, the smell of my sonne is as the smell of a felde whiche the Lorde hath blessed. God geue the of the dewe of heauen, and of the fatnesse of the earthe, and plentye of corne and wyne. People be thy seruauntes, and nacyõs bowe vnto the. Be lorde ouer thy brethren, and thy mothers childrẽ stoupe vnto the. Cursed be he that curseth the, & blessed be he that blesseth the.

As sone as Isaac had made an ende of blessynge, Jacob was scace gone oute frome the presence of Isaac his father: but Esau his brother was come from huntynge, and had made also meate, and brought it unto his father, & sayde unto hym: Aryse my father and eate of thy sonnes venyson, that thy soule may blesse me. Then his father Isaac sayde unto hym: who arte thou? he answered: I am thy eldest sonne Esau. And Isaac was astonyed oute of measure, and sayde: Where is he then that hath hunted venyson and brought it me, and I haue eaten of all before thou camest, & haue blessed hym, and he shall be blessed styll. Whē Esau herde the wordes of his father, he cryed out greatly and bytterly aboue measure, and sayde to his father: blesse me also my father. And he sayde: thy brother came with subtyltie, and hath taken awaye thy blessynge. Thē sayde he: He maye well be called Jacob, for he hathe undermyned me nowe two tymes, fyrste he toke awaye my herytage: and se/ F nowe hath he taken awaye my blessynge also. And he sayde: hast thou kept neuer a blessynge for me?

Isaac answered and sayde unto Esau: beholde I haue made hym thy lorde, and all his mothers chyldren haue I made his seruauntes. Moreouer, with corne and wyne haue I stablysshed hym, what can I do unto the now my sonne? And Esau sayde unto his father: haste thou but that one blessynge my father? blesse me also my father: so lyfted up Esau his voyce and * wepte. Than Isaac his father answered and sayd unto hym: beholde thy dwellyng place shall haue of the fatnesse of the earthe, & of the dewe of heauen from aboue. And with thy swerde shalt thou lyue, and shalte be thy brothers seruaunt. But the tyme wyll come, when thou shalt get the maystrye, and lowse his yocke frome thy necke.

* Hebre.xii.c
Jacob is also blessed of his father.

And Esau * hated Jacob, because of the blessynge with whiche his father blessed hym, and sayde in his harte: The dayes of my fathers sorowe are at hande, for I wyll sley my G brother Jacob. And these wordes of Esau her eldest sonne were tolde to Rebecca. And she sent and called Jacob her yongest sonne, and sayde unto hym: beholde thy brother Esau threatneth to kyll the: nowe therfore my sonne heare my voyce, make the redy, and flee to Laban my brother at Haran: and tarye with hym a whyle tyll thy brothers fearsnesse be aswaged, and tyll thy brothers wrathe turne awaye frome the, and he forget that whiche thou haste done to hym. Then wyll I sende and fet the awaye frome thence. Why shulde I lose you bothe in one daye? And Rebecca spake to Isaac: I am werye of my lyfe, for feare of the doughters of Heth. If Jacob take a wyfe of the doughters of Heth, suche one as these are, or of the doughters of the lande, what lust shuld I haue to lyue.

¶ Jacob is sent into Mesopotamia / to Laban for a wyfe. Esau maryeth an Ismaelyte. Jacob dreameth a dreame. Christ is promysed. Jacob maketh a vowe.

CAPI. XXVIII.

A Then Isaac called Jacob his sonne, and blessed hym / and charged hym, sayeng/ se thou take not a wyfe of the doughters of Canaan, but aryse and get the to Mesopotamia to the house of Bethuel thy mothers father: and there take the a wyfe of the doughters of Laban thy uncle. And God almyghty blesse the, increase the, and multiplye the that thou mayste be a nombre of people, & geue the the blessynge of Abraham: bothe to the and to thy seed with the, that thou mayst possesse the lande (wherin thou arte a straunger) whiche God gaue unto Abraham. Thus Isaac sent forth Jacob / to go to Mesopotamia B unto Laban / sonne of Bethuel the Syrien / and brother to Rebecca Jacobs and Esaus mother.

Jacob is blessed.

When Esau sawe that Isaac had blessed Jacob / and sent hym to * Mesopotamia/ to fet hym a wyfe thence / and that as he blessed hym / he gaue hym a charge / sayinge: se thou take not a wyfe of the daughters of Canaan: and that Jacob had obeyed his father & mother, and was gone to Mesopotamia: and seynge also that the doughters of Canaan pleased not Isaac his father: then went he unto Ismael, and toke unto the wyues whiche he had, Mahala the doughter of Ismael Abrahams sonne, the syster of Nabaioth to be his wyfe. Jacob departed from Berseba, and went towarde Haran, and came unto a place, and taryed there all nyght, because the sonne was downe. And toke a stone of the place, and put it under his head/ and layde him downe in the same place to slepe. And he dreamed: and beholde there stode a ladder upon the earth, & the top of it reached up to heauen. C And se, the angels of God went up and downe upon it / yea and the Lorde stode upon it, and sayde:

CAPI. XXIX.

A Then Jacob lyfte up his feete, and went towarde the East coûtrey. And as he loked aboute, beholde there was a well in the felde, and thre flockes of shepe laye therby (for at that wel were the flockes watered) and there laye a greate stone at the well mouthe. And the maner was to bryng the flockes thyther, and to roull the stone from the welles mouth, and to water the shepe/ and to put the stone agayne upon the welles mouth unto his place. And Jacob sayde unto them: Brethren whēce be ye? And they sayd, of Haran are we. And he sayd unto them: knowe ye Laban the sonne of Nahor? And they sayde: we knowe hym. And he sayde unto them: is he in good helth? And they said: he is in good helth, and B beholde, his doughter Rachel commeth with the shepe. And he sayd/ lo, it is yet a great whyle to night/ neither is it time that the catell shuld be gathered togither/ water the shepe, and go and fede them. And they sayd: we maye not, tyl all the flockes be brought togither, and the stone be roulled from the welles mouthe/ and so we water our shepe.

Whyle he yet talked with them, Rachel came w her fathers shepe, for she kepte them. As sone as Jacob sawe Rachel the doughter C of Laban his uncle, and his uncles shepe/ he wente and roulled the stone from the welles mouthe, and watered the shepe of Laban his mothers brother. And Jacob kyssed Rachel/ and lyfte up his voyce and wepte: and tolde her also that he was her fathers brother, and Rebeccas sonne. Then Rachel ran and tolde her father.

When Laban herde tell of Jacob his systers son, he ranne to mete hym, and imbraced hym, and kissed hym/ and brought him to his house. And then Jacob tolde Laban all the matter. And then Laban sayd: well, thou art my bone and my fleshe. Abyde with me the space of a moneth. And afterwarde Laban sayd unto Jacob: Thoughe thou be my kynsman/ shouldest thou therfore serue me for nought? tell me D what shall thy wages be? And Laban had.ii. doughters, the eldest called Lea, and the yongest Rachel. Lea was sore eyed, but Rachel was beautifull and well fauoured. And Jacob loued her well, and sayde: I wyll serue the seuen yere for Rachel thy yongest dougher. And Laban answered: it is better that I gyue her to the than to an other man: abyde therfore with me.

And Jacob serued * seuen yeres for Rachel, and they semed unto hym but a fewe dayes/ for the loue he had to her. And Jacob sayd unto Laban: gyue me my wyfe that I maye lye with her, for the tyme appoynted is come.

E Then Laban bade all men of that contrey, and made a feest. And when euen was come, he toke Lea his doughter and brought her to hym: and he lay with her. And Laban gaue to his doughter Lea Zilpha his mayde, to be her seruaunt. And when the mornynge was come beholde it was Lea. Then sayd he to Laban: wherfore hast thou played thus with me? dyd not I serue the for Rachel, wherfore then hast thou begyled me? Laban answered: it is not the maner of this countrey, to marye the yongest before the eldest. Passe out this weke, and then shall this also be gyuen the for the seruyce which thou shalt serue me yet.vii. yeres more. F And Jacob dyd euen so, and passed out that weke, & then he gaue hym Rachel his doughter to wyfe also. And Laban gaue to Rachel his doughter, Bilha his handmayde to be her seruaunt. So laye he by Rachel also, and loued Rachell more then Lea, and serued hym yet.vii. yeres more.

Jacob maryeth ii. doughters of hys mothers brother.

When the Lorde sawe that Lea was despysed, he made her frutefull: but Rachel was barayn. And Lea conceyued and bare a sonne, and called his name Ruben/ for she sayd: the Lorde G hath loked upon my * tribulacion. And nowe my husbande wyll loue me. And she conceyued agayne and bare a sonne, and sayd: the Lorde hath herde that I am despysed, and hath therfore gyuen me this sonne also /, and she called hym * Symeon. And She conceyued yet and bare a sonne, and sayd: now this ones wyl my husbande kepe me companye, bycause I haue borne him thre sonnes: and therfore she called hys name Leui. And she conceyued yet agayne and bare a sonne sayinge: now wyll I prayse the Lorde, therfore she called his name Judas/ and lefte bearynge.

CAPI. XXX.

A When Rachel sawe that she bare Jacob no chyldren/ she enuyed her syster/ and sayd unto Jacob: Gyue me chyldren, or els I am but deed. Then was Jacob wrothe with Rachel sayinge: Am I in Gods stede, which kepeth frō the the frute of thy wombe? Then she sayd: here is my mayde Bilha: lye with her, that she maye beare upon my lappe, that I may be encreased by her. And she gaue hym Bilha her handmayde to wyfe. And Jacob laye with her: and Bilha conceyued and bare Jacob a sonne. Then sayd Rachel. God hath gyuen sentence on my syde/ and hath also herde my voyce / and hath gyuen me a sonne. Therfore called she hym Dan. And Bilha Rachels mayde conceyued agayne, and bare Jacob an other sonne. And Rachel sayd: God is turned, and I haue made a chaunge with my syster, and haue gotten the upper hande. And she called his name Nepthali.

B When Lea sawe that she had left bearynge/ she toke Silpha her mayde, and gaue her Jacob to wyfe. And Silpha Leas mayde bare Jacob a sonne. Then sayd Lea: Good lucke: and called his name Gad. And Silpha Leas mayde bare

C And Ruben went out in the wheet haruest tyme, and found ꝑ mandragoras in the feldes, & brought them vnto his mother Lea. Then sayde Rachel to Lea, gyue me of thy sonnes mandragoras. And Lea answered: Is it not ynoughe that thou hast taken awaye my husbande/ but woldest take away my sones mandragoras also? Then said Rachel, wel let him slepe with the this night, for thy sonnes mandragoras. And when Jacob came frome the feldes at euen/ Lea wente out to mete hym, and sayd: lye with me, for I haue bought the with my sonnes mandragoras.

And he slept with her that nyght. And God herde Lea, that she conceyued and bare vnto Jacob the fyfth sonne. Then sayde Lea: God hath gyuen me my rewarde, bycause I gaue my mayden to my husbande/ & she called hym Isachar. And Lea conceyued yet agayne, & bare Jacob the sixth sonne. Then sayde she: God hath endewed me with a good dowry. Now wyll my husbande dwell with me, bycause I haue borne hym. vi. sonnes/ & called his name Zabulon. After that she bare a doughter, and called her ✶ Dina.

Rachel beareth Joseph.

And God remembred Rachel, herd her, and made her frutefull: so that she conceyued and bare a son, and sayd: God hath taken awaye my rebuke. And she called his name Joseph, saying: The Lorde gyue me yet an other son. As sone as Rachel had borne Joseph, Jacob said to his father in lawe. Send me away that I may go vnto my owne place & coūtrey/ gyue me my wyues and my chyldren for whome I haue serued the, & let me go, for thou knowest what seruyce I haue done the. Then sayd Laban vnto hym. Yf I haue founde fauour in thy syght (for I suppose that the Lorde hath blessed me for thy sake) appoynte what thy rewarde shall be, and I wyll gyue it the. Then he sayd vnto hym, thou knowest what seruyce I haue done the/ and in what case thy catell haue ben vnder me: for it was but lytle that thou haddest before I came/ and now it is encreased in to a multitude/ and the Lorde hath blessed the for my sake. But now when shall E I make prouysyon for myne owne house also. And he sayd/ what shall I then gyue the? And Jacob answered: thou shalt gyue me nothing at all so thou wylt do this one thynge for me/ and then wyll I turne agayne & fede thy shepe and kepe them.

✶ iii.reg.xi.d

So thou aboute all thy shepe this day, and seperate from them al the shepe that are spotted and of diuers colours, and all blacke shepe amonge the lambes. And then loke, all that shall be party coloured, blacke and spotted, as wel amonge the shepe as the kyddes, the same shall be my rewarde. So shall my ꝑ ryghtousnes answere for me, when the tyme commeth that I shall receyue my rewarde of the, so that what so euer is not speckled and party among the gotes and blacke amonge the lambes/ let that be thefte with me. Then sayd Laban: Lo I am content, that it be accordynge as thou hast said. And he sorted out that same daye the gotes that were party and of dyuers colours, and all the kyddes that were spotted and partye coloured, and all that had whyte in them, and all the blacke among the lambes, and put them in the keppynge of his sonnes/ and sette thre dayes iourney bytwene hym selfe and Jacob. And so Jacob kepte the reste of Labans shepe.

ꝑ Ryghtousnes signifieth here true and faythfull seruyce.

Jacob toke roddes of grene popull hasell, and of chestnottrees, and pylled whyte streakes in them, and made the whyte appere ī the staues: And he layde the staues whiche he had pylled before the shepe in the gutters and watrynge troughes/ when the shepe came to drynke: that they sholde conceyue when they came to drynke. And the shepe conceyued before the staues & brought forthe speckled, spotted, and party coloured. Then Jacob diuided the flock F and put the roddes in the troughes before the eyes of the wethers and all whyte & all blacke were Labans, but the resydue were Jacobs, and he seuered the flockes one from an other. And alwaye in the fyrst buckynge tyme of the shepe. Jacob put the staues before the shepe in the gutters, that they myght conceyue before the staues: But in the latter buckynge tyme he put them not there: so the last brode was Labans, and the fyrst Jacobs. And the man became excedynge rych, and hadde many shepe/ mayde seruauntes/ men seruauntes/ camelles and asses.

¶ At the cōmaundement of God, Jacob departed from Laban/ and toke his goddes with hym. Rachel stealeth her fathers ymages. Laban foloweth Jacob. The couenaunt bytwene Laban and Jacob.

CAPI. XXXI.

A AND Jacob herd the wordes of Labans sonnes how they sayd: Jacob hath taken awaye all that was our fathers/ and of our fathers goodes hath he goten all this honour. And Jacob behelde the countenaūce of Laban, that it was not towarde him as it was in tymes past. And the Lorde sayde vnto Jacob: turne agayne in to the lande of thy fathers, and to thy kynred, and I wyll be with the. Then Jacob sent and called Rachel and Lea to the felde vnto his shepe, and said vnto them: I se your fathers coūtenaunce that it is not towarde me as in tymes paste. Moreouer the God of my father hathe ben with me. And ye knowe how that I haue serued your father with all my myght. And your father hathe disceyued me, and chaunged my wages. x. tymes: but God suffred hym not to hurte me. When he sayd, the spotted shall be thy wages, then all the shepe bare spotted. Yf he sayd, the speckled shall be thy reward, then bare all the shepe speckled: thus hath God taken B awaye your fathers catell, and gyuen thē me. For in buckynge tyme I lyfted vp myne eyes and sawe in a dreame/ and beholde, the rammes that bucked the shepe were straked, spotted, and partye. And the aungell of God spake vnto me in a dreame, sayenge: Jacob? And I answered: here am I. And he sayd, lyft vp thyne eyes and se, how al the rammes that leape vpon the shepe are straked, spotted, and partye:

partye:

Than answered Rachel and Lea, and sayd vnto hym: we haue no parte nor enheritaūce in oure fathers house, he counteth vs as strāgers/ for he hath solde vs, and hathe eaten vp the price of vs. Moreouer all the ryches whiche God hath taken frome our father, that is ours and our chyldrens. Now therfore what so euer God hath sayd vnto the, that do. Thē Jacob rose vp, and set his sonnes and wyues vp vpon camels, and caryed awaye all his catell and all his substaunce whiche he had gotten in Mesopotamia, for to go to Isaac his father vnto the lande of Canaan. Laban was gone to ✶ shere his shepe, and Rachel had stolen her fathers ymages. And Jacob stale away priuily frome Laban the Syrien, and tolde him not that he wolde departe. So fled he and all that he had, and made him selfe redy, & passed ouer the ryuers, & wente streyght towarde the mount Gilead.

Vpon the thirde daye after, was it tolde Laban that Jacob fled. Then he toke his brethrē with hym, and pursued hym. vii. dayes iourney, and ouertoke hym at the mount Gilead. D And God came to Labā ẏ Sirian in a dreame by nyghte, and sayde vnto hym: take hede to thy selfe, that thou speake not to Jacob ouer sharpely. And Labā ouertoke Jacob: and Jacob had pitched his tente in the mounte. And Laban with his brethren, pitched their tente also vpon the mount Gilead. Then sayde Labā to Jacob: why hast thou this done to steale awaye frome me, and carye away my doughters as thoughe they had bene taken captyue with the swerde? Wherfore wentest thou awaye secretly vnknowen to me, and dyddeste not tell me, that I myghte haue brought the on the waye with myrth, syngynge, tymrels, and harpes, and haste not suffered me to kisse my chyldren and my daughters? Thou wert a ✶ fole to do it, for I am hable to do you euyll. But the God of youre father spake vnto me yesterday, saying: take hede that thou speake not to Jacob ought saue good. Jacob answered and sayde to Laban: I departed priuely/ because I was afraed, and E thought that thou woldest haue taken awaye thy doughters frome me. But where as thou doest calenge me for thefte, with whome so euer thou fyndest thy goddes, let hym dye here before oure brethren. Seke that thyne is with me, and take it to the: for Jacob wist not that Rachel had stolen them. Then wente Laban in to Jacobs tente, and into Leas tente, and into the two maydens tentes: but founde thē not. Then wente he out of Leas tente, & entred into Rachels tente. And Rachel toke the ymages and put them in the camels strawe, & sate downe vpon them. And Laban serched all the tente: but founde them not. Then sayde she to her father: Syr, be not angrye that I can not ryse vp before the, for the disease of women is come vpon me. So searched he, but founde them not.

Racheles polecye.

Jacob was wroth, and chode with Laban. Jacob also answered and sayde to hym: what haue I trespased, or what haue I offended, that thou folowedeste after me? Thou haste searched all my stuffe, and what haste thou founde of all thy housholde stuffe? put it here before thy brethren and myne, and let theym iudge betwene vs both. This. xx. yere that I haue bene with the, thy shepe and thy gootes haue not bene baren, and the rammes of thy flocke, haue I not eaten. What so euer was torne of beastis, I brought it not vnto the, but made it good my selfe: of my hande dyddeste thou require it, whether it was stolen by daye or nyght. Moreouer, by daye the hete consumed me, and the colde by nyght, and my slepe F departed frome myne eyes.

Thus haue I bene. xx. yere in thy house, & serued the ✶ xiiii. yeres for thy. ii. doughters, & vi. yere for thy shepe, and thou hast chaunged my rewarde. x. tymes. And except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and the God whō Isaac ꝑ feareth had bene with me: surely thou haddest sent me awaye nowe all emptye. But God behelde my tribulation, and the laboure of my handes: and rebuked the yesterdaye.

Laban answered and sayd vnto Jacob: the doughters are my doughters, and the chyldren are my chyldren, and the shepe, are my shepe, and all that thou seyst is myne. And what can I do this daye, vnto these my doughters, or vnto their children whiche they haue borne? Nowe therfore come on, let vs make a bonde, I and thou togither, and let it be a wytnesse betwene the and me. Then toke Jacob a stone and set it vp for a pyler and marke stone, and sayde vnto his brethren, gather stones. And they toke stones, and made an heape, & they ate there vpon the heape. And Laban called it Jegar Sahadutha, but Jacob called it Gilead, eyther of theym after the proprietie of his language.

Then sayde Laban: this heape be ✶ wytnesse betwene the and me this daye, (therfore is it called Gilead) The Lorde loke & iuge betwene me & the, when we ar departed one frō another: that thou shalt not vexe my doughters, neyther shalte take other wyues vnto them. Here is no man with vs: beholde, God is witnesse betwene the and me. And Laban sayd moreouer to Jacob: beholde, this heape and this marke whiche I haue set here, betwene me and the: this heape be wytnesse and also this marke, that I wyll not come ouer this heape to the, and thou shalt not come ouer this heape & this marke to do any harme. The God of Abraham, the God of Nahor, and the God of their fathers/ be iudge betwene vs. G

And Jacob sware by hym that his father Isaac feared. Then Jacob dyd sacrifice vpon the mount, & called his brethren to eate bred.

And

And they ate breed and tarped all night in the hyll. And early in the mornyng Laban rose vp and kyssed his chyldre & his doughters, and blessed them and departed and went vnto his place agayn, but Jacob went forth on his iourney/and the aungels of God came & met hym. And when Jacob sawe them, he sayd: this is Gods hoost, and called the name of that same place, Mahanaim.

¶ The vyson of the aungels. Jacob sendeth presentes vnto his brother Esau. How he wrastled with the aungell whiche chaunged his name and called hym Israel.

CAPI. XXXII.

A Josu.xxiiii.a. IAcob sente messengers before hym to Esau his brother, vnto the lande * of Seir and the feld of Edom. And he cõmaunded them sayinge: Se that ye speake after this maner to my Lorde Esau: thy seruaunt Jacob sayth thus. I haue sotourned and ben a straunger with Laban vnto this tyme and haue gotten oxen, alles and shepe, men seruauntes and women seruantes, and now I sende imbassage to the my Lorde, that I maye fynde grace in thy syght. And the messengers came agayne to Jacob sayinge: we came vnto thy brother Esau, and he cõmeth agaynst the & .iiij. hundred men with hym. Then was Jacob greatly afrayde and wist not which way to turne him self, and deuyded the people that was with hym, & the shepe, oxen, and camels in to two companyes, and sayd: Yf Esau come to the one parte and smyte it, the other may saue it selfe.

And Jacob sayde: O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Isaac: Lorde which saydest vnto me, returne vnto thy countrey and to thy kynred/and I wyll do all well with the. I am not worthy of the leest of all the mercyes and truthe whiche thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaunt. For with my ꝓ staffe came I ouer this Iordane, and nowe haue I gotten two droues. Delyuer me from the handes of my brother Esau: for I feare hym, lest he wyll come and smyte the mother with the chyldren. Thou sayest that thou wouldest surely do me good, and woldest make my seed as the sande of the see, whiche can not be nombred for multitude.

And he tarped there that same nyght/ and toke of that which came to hande, a presente/ vnto Esau his brother two hundred she gootes and .xx. he gotes/ two hundred shepe, and xx. rammes: thyrty mylche camels with their colttes. xl. kyne, and .x. bulles. xx. she alles, and .x. foles, and delyuered them vnto his seruautes/ euery droue by them selues/ and sayde vnto them: go forth before me, and put a space betwene euery droue. And he commaunded the formest, sayinge.

When Esau my brother meteth the and asketh the sayinge: whose seruaunt art thou, and whyther goest thou, and whose are these that go before the: thou shalt say, they be thy seruaunt Jacobs, and are a present sent vnto my Lorde Esau, and beholde, he hym selfe commeth after vs. And so commaunded he the seconde and euen so the thyrde/ and lykewyse all that folowed the droues sayinge, of this maner se that ye speake vnto Esau when ye mete hym and sayd moreouer. Beholde thy seruaunt Jacob commeth after vs/ for he sayd I wyl pease his wrath with the present that goeth before me, and afterwarde I wyll se hym my selfe/ so peraduenture he wyll receyue me to grace. So went the present before hym, and he tarped all that nyght in the tente/ and rose vp the same nyght, and toke his two wyues and his .ij. maydens, and his .xi. sonnes, and went ouer the foorde Jacob. And he toke them and sent them all ouer the ryuer, and tarped behynde hym selfe alone.

F * Osee.xii. Jacob wrastleth with the aungell.

And there * wrastled a man with hym vnto the breakynge of the daye. And when he sawe that he coulde not preuayle agaynst hym he smote hym vnder the thygh, and the senow of Jacobs thygh wranke as he wrastled with hym. And he sayd: let me go, for the day breaketh. And he sayd: I wyll not let the go/ excepte thou blesse me. And he sayde vnto hym: What is thy name? He answered: Jacob. And he sayde: thou shalte be called Jacob no more/ but * Israel. For thou hast wrastled with God, and hast preuayled.

* Ge.xxxv. Jacob but lyd Israel

G

And Jacob asked hym sayinge, tell me thy name. And he sayd, wherfore dost thou aske after my name? and he blessed him there. And Jacob called the name of the place Phenuel/ for I haue sene God face to face, and yet is my lyfe reserued. And as he wente ouer Phenuel the sonne rose vpon hym, and he halted vpon his thigh, wherfore the chyldren of Israel eate not of the senow of the thygh vnto this daye/ because that he smote Jacob vnder the thygh in the senowe that shronke.

* Judi.ii.

¶ Esau and Jacob are agreed. And Jacob came in to Sichem.

CAPI. XXXIII.

IAcob lyft vp his eyes and sawe his brother Esau come, and with hym .iiij.C. men. And he diuided his children vnto Lea, vnto Rachel, and vnto his two women seruantes. And dyd set the women seruantes & their chyldren formost/ and Lea & her chyldren after, and Rachel & Joseph byndermost. And him selfe went before them and fell on the ground .vij. tymes tyll he came vnto his brother.

A

Esau ran to mete him and imbraced him and fell on his necke & kyssed him, and they wepte. And he lyft vp his eyes & sawe the wyues and their childre, & said: what are these which thou there hast? And he sayd: they are the chyldren whiche God hath gruen thy seruaunt. Then came the maydens forth/ and dyd their obeysaunce. Lea also and her children came and did their obeysaunce. And last of all came Joseph and Rachel, and dyd their obeysaunce.

B

And he sayde: what meanest thou with all the droues which I met. And he answered: to fynde grace in the syghte of my Lorde. And Esau sayd: I haue ynoughe my brother kepe that thou hast vnto thy selfe. Jacob answered: oh nay/ but yf I haue founde grace in thy syghte, receyue my present of my hande: for I haue sene thy face * as thoughe I had sene the face of God, wherfore receyue me to grace and take my blessing that I haue brought the for for god hath gruen it me. And I haue ynough of all thynge. And so he compelled hym to take it. And he said: let vs take our iourney and go And I wyll go in thy companye. And he sayde vnto hym: my lorde knoweth that I haue ten dre chyldren/ ewes and kyne with ponge vnder myne hand, which yf men shold ouerdryue but euen one daye, the hole flocke wolde dye. Let my Lorde therfore go before his seruaunt, and I wyll dryue fayre and softly, accordynge as the catell that goth before me and the children be hable to endure: tyll I come to my lorde vnto Seir.

E

And Esau said: let me yet leaue some of my folke with the. And he sayd: what needeth it? let me fynde grace in the syght of my lorde. So Esau went his waye agayne that same daye vnto Seir. And Jacob toke his iourney towarde Sucoth, and bylt hym an house, & made boothes for his catteil: wherfore the name of the place is called Sucoth.

D

And Jacob came pealyly in to the citye of Sichem in the lande of Canaan/ after that he was come from Mesopotamia, and pitched before the citye, and bought parcell of grounde where he pitched his tent, of the children of Hemor Sichems father, for an hundred lambes. And he made there an aulter, and there called vpon the mighty God of Israel.

¶ The rauyshing of Dina Jacobs doughter by the men of Sichē. And of the great bloode sheding done by the sonnes of Jacob.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

A is rauished. DIna the doughter of Lea which she bare vnto Jacob, went out to se the doughters of the land. And Sichem the sonne of Hemor the Heupte lorde of the countrey sawe her, and toke her and laye with her, and forced her: and his herte laye vnto Dina the doughter of Jacob. And he loued the damsell and spake kyndly vnto her, and spake vnto his father Hemor saying/ get me this mayde vnto my wyfe. And Jacob herd that he had defyled Dina his doughter, but his sonnes were with the catell in the felde, and therfore he held his peace tyll they were come. Then Hemor the father of Sichem went out vnto Jacob, to cõmen with hym. And the sonnes of Jacob came out of the felde as sone as they herde it/ for it greued them/ and they were not a lytle wroth, bycause he had wrought foly in Israel, in that he had lyen with Jacobs doughter, whiche thynge ought not to be done. And Hemor cõmoned with them sayinge: The soule of my son Sichem longeth for your doughter: gyue her hym to wife, and make mariages with vs: gyue your doughters vnto vs, and take our doughers vnto you, and dwell with vs, and the lande shall be at your pleasure/ dwell and do your busynes, and haue your possessions therin. And Sichem sayd vnto her father and and her brethren: let me fynde grace in your eyes, and what so euer ye appoint me, that wyl I gyue. Aske frely of me bothe the dowry and gyftes, & I wyll gyue according as ye say vnto me, and gyue me the damsell to wyfe.

Then the sonnes of Jacob answered to Sichem and Hemor his father disceytfully, bycause he had defyled Dina their syster. And they said vnto them/ we can not do this thyng that we wolde gyue our syster to one that is vncircūcised/ for ꝑ were a shame vnto vs. Onely in this wyll we consente vnto you. Yf ye wyll be as we be, that all the men chyldren amonge you be circumcised, than wyl we gyue our doughter to you, and take yours to vs, & wyll dwell with you and be one people. But yf ye wyll not herken vnto vs to be circūcised, then wyll we take our doughter and go our wayes. And their wordes pleased Hemor: and Sichem his sonne. And the ponge man deferred not for to do the thynge, bycause he had a lust to Jacobs doughter: he was also moost set by of al that were in his fathers houle. Then Hemor and Sichem went vnto the gate of their citye and commoned with the men of their citye, sayinge: these men are peasible with vs/ and wyll dwell in the lande and do their occupacion therin. And in the land is rowme ynough for them/ let vs take their doughters to wyues, and gyue them ours: onely herin wyll they consent vnto vs for to dwel with vs and to be one people: yf all the men chyldren that are among vs be circūcised as they are. Their goodes and their substance and all their catell are ours, onely let vs consent vnto them, that they may dwell with vs.

And vnto Hemor and Sichem his sonne harkened all that went out of the gate of his citye. And all the men chyldren were circumcyled what so euer went out at the gates of his citye. And the thyrde daye when it was paynefull to them, two of the sonnes of Jacob Simeon and Leui Dinas brethren, toke eyther of them his * swerde, and went in to the citye boldly, and slewe all that was male and slewe also Hemor and Sichem his sonne with the edge of the swerde, and toke Dina their syster out of Sichems house, and went their waye.

* Gen.xlix.a. Judith.ix.a.

Then came the sonnes of Jacob vpon the deed, and spoyled the citye, bycause they had defyled their syster: and toke their shepe, oxen, asses and what so euer was i the city & alto in the feldes. And all their goodes, all their chyldrē and their wyues toke they captyue & made bauocke of all that was in the houses.

And Jacob said to Simeon & Leui: ye haue troubled me and made me stynke vnto the inhabitauntes of the lande, bothe to the Canaanytes and also to the Pherezytes. And I am few in nõbre. Wherfore they shal gather them selues togither agaynst me and slay me/ and so shall I and my house be destroyed. And they answered, shulde they deale with our syster as with an hoore?

¶ Jacob goeth vp vnto Bethel, and buryed his ymages vnder an oke. Debora dyeth. Jacob is called Israel. The lande of Canaan is promysed hym. Rachel dyeth in labour. Ruben lay with his fathers concubyne. The deth of Isaac.

¶ Joseph accuseth his brethren. Joseph dreameth and is hated of his brethren, and is solde to the Ismaelytes Jacob bewayleth Joseph.

CAPI. XXXVII.

A And Jacob dwelte in the lande wherin
his father was a straunger / that is to saye in the lande of Canaan. And these are the generacions of Jacob: when Joseph was.xvj. yere olde,he kept shepe with his bre=

and of Zilpha his fathers wyues. And he ac= cused his brethren vnto his father of an euyll cryme. And Israel loued Joseph more then all his chyldren, bicause he begat hym in his olde
age/& he made hym a cote of many colours.
When his brethren sawe that theyr father B
loued hym more then all his brethren/they ha ted hym,and coulde not speke one kynd worde vnto hym. Moreouer Joseph * dreamed a *Gene.xlii.b Joseph dreameth.
dreame and tolde it his brethren: wherfore
they hated hym yet the more. And he sayd vn= to them/ heare I pray you this dreame which I haue dreamed: Beholde we were makynge sheues in the felde: and lo, my shefe arose and stode vpryght,and yours stode rounde aboute
and made obeysaunce to my shefe. Then sayd his brethren vnto hym: What,shalte thou be our kynge, or shalt thou reygne ouer vs? And they hated hym yet the more, bycause of his dreame and of his wordes.
And he dreamed yet an other dreame & told C it his brethren sayinge: beholde, I haue had one dreame more: Me thought the sonne and the moone and.xj. sterres made obeysaunce to me. And when he had tolde it vnto his father and his brethren,his father rebuked hym and sayde vnto hym: what meaneth this dreame
which thou hast dreamed: shall I and thy mo ther & thy brethren come and fall on the groūd before the? And his brethren hated hym / but his father noted the sayinge.
His brethren wente to kepe theyr fathers
shepe in Sichem/and Israel sayd vnto Joseph:
Do not thy brethren kepe shepe in Sichem?
come,that I may send the to them. And he an= swered, * here am I. And he sayd vnto hym: *i.Reg.iij.c Go & se whether it be well with thy brethren and the shepe,and bryng me worde agayn. And sent hym out of the vale of Hebron, for to go to Sichem. And a certayne man founde hym wandrynge out of his waye in the felde, and asked hym what he sought. And he answered:
I seke my brethren, tell me I pray the where they kepe shepe. And the man said,they are de= parted hence/for I herd them say,let vs go vn=
to Dothan. Thus went Joseph after his bre= thren,and founde them in Dothan.
And when he sawe them a farre of before D
he came at them / they toke counsell agaynste
hym for to sley hym/and sayd one to an other:
Beholde,this * dreamer commeth/come now *Mat.xxj.d
and let vs sley hym, and caste hym in to some Marc.xij.a
pytte/and let vs saye that some wycked beest Luc.xx.c.
hath deuoured hym, and let vs se what his

When Ruben sawe that,he went about to ryd hym out of theyr handes and sayd / let vs
not kyll,hym. And Ruben sayd moreouer vn=
to them/shede not his * bloode, but cast hym *Gen.xlij.d.
in to this pytte that is in the wyldernes/ and
laye no handes vpon hym: for he wolde haue
rydde hym out of theyr handes,and delyuered
hym to his father agayne.
And as soone as Joseph was come vnto his E brethren,they strypte hym out of his gay cote that was vpon hym / and they toke hym and caste hym in to a pytte: But the pytte was empty and had no water therin. And they sat them downe to eate breed. And as they lyft vp their eyes and loked about,there came a com=

panye of Ismaelites frome Gilead, and their camels laden with spicery, baulme and myrre,
and were goynge downe into Egypte.
F Then sayde Juda to his brethren, what a-vayleth it that we sley our brother, and kepe *Act.vii.b his bloude secret? come on, let vs * sell hym
to the Ismaelytes, and let not our handes be our flesh. And his brethren were content. Thẽ

as the Madianites marchant men passed by,
they drewe Joseph oute of the pyt / and solde
hym vnto the Ismaelytes for .xx. peces of syl-
uer. And they brought him into Egypte.
G And when Ruben came agayn vnto the pyt
and founde not Joseph there, he rent his clothes, and went agayne vnto his brethren say-enge: the lad is not yonder, and where shal I go? And they toke Josephs cote and kylled a goote, and dypped the cote in the bloude. And they sent þ gaye cote & caused it to be brought vnto their father, and sayde: This haue we founde: se, whether it be thy sonnes cote, or
no. And he knewe it sayenge: it is my sonnes

A And it fortuned at that tyme, that Judas went frome his brethren, and gat
hym to a man called Hira of Odollam
and there he sawe the daughter of a man cal*i.Par.ii.a. led * Sua, a Canaanyte: And he toke her, & laye with her. And she conceyued, and bare a sonne, and called his name Er. And she conceyued agayne, and bare a sonne, and called him Onan. And she conceyued the thirde tyme and bare a sonne, whome she called Sela: and he was at Chesyb when she bare him.
And Judas gaue Er his eldest sonne a wyfe whose name was Thamar. But this Er Ju-B das eldest sonne, was wycked in the syghte of the Lorde, wherfore the Lorde slew him. Thẽ sayde Judas vnto Onã: go in to thy brothers
wyfe and marye her, and styrre vp seed vnto thy brother. And when Onan perceyued that the seed shulde not be his: therfore when he went in to his brothers wyfe, he spylled it on the grounde, because he wolde not geue seed

doughter in lawe: remayne a wydowe at thy fathers house, tyll Sela my sonne be growen:
for he feared lest he shoulde haue dyed also, as his brethren dyd. Thus went Thamar, and dwelt in her fathers house.

And in processe of tyme, the daughter of Sua, Judas wyfe, dyed. Then Judas when C he had lefte mornynge, wente vnto his shepe
sherers to Thymnath, with his frende Hira
of Odollam. And one tolde Thamar, sayeng:

she saw that Sela was growen, and she was not geuen him to wyfe.
D When Juda sawe her, he thought it hadde bene an hoore, because she hadde couered her face. And turned to her vnto the waye & sayde Come I praye the, let me lye with the, for he knewe not that it was his daughter in lawe.
And she sayde what wilt thou gyue me, to lye with me? Then sayde he, I will sende the a kydde frome the flocke. She answered, Then geue me a pledge tyll thou sende it. Then sayd her, and she was with childe by him. And she gat her vp, and went, and put her mantell frõ

her, & put on her wydowes rayment agayne.
And Judas sent the kyd by his neyghboure of Odollam, for to fetche out his pledge agayne
from the wyues hande. But he found her not.
Then asked he the men of the same place, say-
enge: Where is the whore that sat at Enaim
in the waye? And they sayde: there was no whore here. And he came to Juda agayn, say-enge: I can not fynde her, and also the men of the place sayde: that there was no whore
there. And Juda sayd: let her take it to her, lest we be shamed: for I sente the kydde, and thou couldest not fynde her.
F And it came to passe that after thre mone-thes, one tolde Juda, sayenge: Thamar thy daughter in lawe hath played the whore, and with playing the whore is become great with childe. And Juda sayde: brynge her forth, and let her be brente. And when they brought her forth, she sent to her father in lawe, sayenge:
by the man vnto whome these thynges per-tayne, am I with childe. And sayde also: loke whose are this seale, bracelet, and staffe. And Juda knewe them, sayeng: she is more ryghtwyse than I, because I gaue her not to Sela
my sonne. But he laye with her no more.
G When tyme was come that she shoulde be delyuered, behold there was two twynnes in her wombe. And as she traueled, the one put out his hande, & the mydwyfe toke & bounde
a reed threde aboute it sayeng: this will come called him Pharez. And afterwarde came out his brother that hadde the read threde about

Joseph

A Joseph was brought vnto Egypt, and Pu- *Genesis ...
tiphar * a lorde of Pharaos: and his chefe marshall an Egyptian bought hym of the Ismaelytes, which brought him thyther. And the Lorde was with Joseph / and he prospered and contynued in the house of his master the Egyptian. And his master sawe that the Lorde was with hym / and that the Lorde made all B that he dyd prospere in his hande: Wherfore
he founde grace in his masters syght, and ser-ued hym. And his master made hym ruler of his house, and put all that he had in his hand.
And as soone as he had made hym ruler ouer
his house, and ouer all that he had, the Lorde blessed this Egyptiãs house for Josephs sake/
and the blessynge of the Lorde was vpon all that he hadde: bothe in the house, and also in the feldes. And therfore he lefte all that he had in Josephs hande / and loked vpon nothynge
that was with hym, saue onely on the breed
*i.Reg.xvi.c Joseph is in... ed of his maystres to ... dnes. whiche he ate. And Joseph was a * goodly person, and a well fauoured. And it fortuned
after this, that his masters wyfe cast her eyes
vpon Joseph, and sayde: come lye with me:
But he denyed and sayd to her. Beholde, my master woteth not what he hath in the house with me/ but hath committed all that he hath to my hande. He hym selfe is not greater in the house then I / and hathe kepte nothynge from me / but onely the bycause thou arte his wyfe. How then can I do this great wycked-nes, for to synne agaynst God? And after this maner spake she to Joseph daye by daye: but he harkened not vnto her, to slepe nere her, or to be in her company.
C And it fortuned about the same season, that Joseph entred in to the house, to do his busynes: and there was none of the housholde by in the house. And she caught hym by the garment, saying: come slepe with me. And he left his garment in her hand, and fled and got him out. When she sawe that he had lefte his garment in her hande, and was fled out, she called vnto the men of the house, and told them sayinge: Se, he hath brought in an Hebrue vnto vs, to do vs shame: for he came in to me, for to haue slept with me. But I cryed with a loude voyce. And when he herde that I lyfte vp my voyce and cryed, he lefte his garment with me
and fled awaye, and got hym out.
And she layde vp his garment by her, vntyll
D her lorde came home. And she tolde hym accordynge to these wordes saying. This Hebrues seruaunte whiche thou hast brought vnto vs came in to me to do me shame. But as soone as I lyfte vp my voyce and cryed, he left his garment with me and fled out. When his master
herde the wordes of his wyfe which she tolde
hym saying: after this maner dyd thy seruant
to me, he waxed wroth.
*Psal.ciiii.b And he toke Joseph and put hym in * pryson
euen in the place where the kynges prysoners lay bounde. And there contynued he in pryson/
but the Lorde was with Joseph, & shewed him mercy/ and got hym fauour in the syght of the keper of the pryson, which cõmytted to Josephs
hande all the prysoners that were in the pryson house. And what so euer was done there, that dyd he. And the keper of the pryson loked vnto nothynge that was vnder his hande, bycause
the Lorde was with hym, & bicause that what so euer he dyd, the Lorde made it come luckely to passe.

¶ Joseph expoundeth the dreames of the two prysoners.

CAPI. XL.

And it chaũced after this, that the chefe
butler of the kyng of Egypt & his chefe A baker had offended their lord the kyng
of Egypt. And Pharao was angry with them and put them in warde in his chefe marshals house: euen in the pryson where Joseph was bounde. And the chefe marshall gaue Joseph a charge with them/ & he serued them. And they contynued a season in warde.
And they dreamed eyther of them in one The kynges nyght: bothe the butler and the baker of the baker & but-kynge of Egypte whiche were bounde in the ler do dreame pryson house, eyther of them his dreame, and B eche mannes dreame of a sondrye interpreta-cion. When Joseph came in vnto them in the mornynge / and loked vpon them: Beholde,
they were sadde. And he asked them sayinge, wherfore loke ye so sadly to daye? They answered hym/ we haue dreamed a dreame/ and haue no man to declare it. And Joseph sayde vnto them. Interpretynge belongeth to god, but tell me yet. And the chefe butler tolde his Expowninge dreame to Joseph, and sayd vnto hym. In my of dreames dreame me thought there stode a vyne before apperteyneth
me/ and in the vyne were thre braunches, and to god.
it was as though it budded, and her blossums
shotte forthe: and the grapes therof waxed rype. And I had Pharaos cup in my hande, and toke of the grapes and wronge them in to Pharaos cuppe, and delyuered Pharaos cuppe in to his hande. And Joseph sayd vnto hym/ this is the interpretacion of it. The thre C braunches are thre dayes: for within thre dayes shall Pharao lyfte vp thyne heed / and restore the vnto thyne offyce agayne / and thou shalte delyuer Pharaos cuppe in to his hand, after the olde maner, euen as thou dydest
when thou wast his butler. But thynk on me when thou art in good case/ and shewe mercy vnto me. And make mencion of me to Pharao/ and helpe to brynge me out of this house/for I was stollen out of the lande of the He-brues, and here also haue I done nothynge at all wherfore they shold haue put me in to this dongeon. When the chefe baker sawe that he had well expowned it/ he sayde vnto Joseph/Me thought also in my dreme, that I had .iii.
wyker baskettes on my heed. And in the vppermost basket, of all maner bake meates for Pharao. And the byrdes ate them out of the basket vpon my heed.
Joseph answered and sayde: this is the interpretacion therof. The thre baskettes are D thre dayes/ for this daye thre dayes shall Pharao take thy heed from the/ and shal hang the
on a tree, and the byrdes shall eate thy fleshe
from the.
And it came to passe the thyrde daye whiche
was Pharaos * byrth daye / that he made a feast vnto all his seruauntes. And he lyfted vp the heed of the chefe butler and of the chefe baker amonge his seruauntes. And restored the chefe butler vnto his butlershyp agayne/ and he reached the cup in to Pharaos hande/and hanged the chefe baker: euen as Joseph had interpretated vnto them. Notwithstandynge the chefe butler remembred not Joseph / but forgate hym.

¶ Pharaos dreames are expounded by Joseph. He is made ruler ouer all Egypt. He hath two sonnes / Manasses and Ephraim. The derth begynneth in Egypte.

CAPI. XLI.

A Pharao dreameth.

AND it fortuned at two yeres ende that Pharao dreamed, and thought that he stode by a ryuers syde / and that there came out of the ryuer.vij.goodly kyne, & fatte fleshed, and fed in a medowe/& hym thought that.vij.other kine came vp after them out of the ryuer euyl fauored and leane fleshed, and stode by the other vpon the brynke of the ryuer. And the euyl fauoured and leane fleshed kyne, ate vp the.vij. welfauoured & fat kyne/ and he awoke therwith. And he slept agayne and dreamed the seconde tyme, that.vij.eares of corne grewe vpon one stalke ranke & goodly. And that.vij.thynne eares blasted with the wynde, sprange vp after them / and that the.vij.thynne eares deuoured the.vij.ranke and
B full eares. And then Pharao awaked, and se, here is his dreame. When the mornynge came, his sprete was troubled. And he sente and called for the sothsayers of Egypte / and all the wyse men therof, and tolde them his dreame: but there was none of them that coulde interprete it vnto Pharao. Then spake the chefe butler vnto Pharao sayinge. I do remembre my faute this daye. Pharao was angrye with his seruauntes, and put in warde in the chefe marshals house, bothe me and the chefe baker. And we dreamed both of vs in one nyght, & eche mans dreame of a sondrye interpretacion.

And there was with vs a yong man an Hebrue borne, seruaunt vnto the chefe marshall. And we tolde hym, & he declared our dreames to vs accordynge to eyther of our dreames. And as he declared them vnto vs so it came to passe. I was restored to myne offyce agayn, and he was hanged.

C Then Pharao sent and called Joseph. And they brought hym forthwith out of pryson. And he shaued him self and chaunged his rayment, & went in to Pharao. And Pharao sayd vnto Joseph, I haue dreamed a dreme and no man can interpretate it/ but I haue herde tell of the, that as sone as thou hearest a dreame, thou doest declare it. And Joseph answered Pharao saying: God shal gyue Pharao a prosperous answere without me. Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: In my dreame me thought I stode by a ryuers syde, and there came out of the ryuer.vij. fatte fleshed and welfauoured kyne, and fed in the medowe. And then.vij.other kyne came vp after them, poore and very euylfauoured & leane fleshed: so that I neuer sawe theyr lyke in all the lande of Egypte in euylfauouredness. And the.vij.leane and euilfauoured kyne ate vp the first.vij.fatte kyne. And when they had eaten them vp a mā coulde not perceyue that they had eaten them: for they were styl as euylfauoured as they were at the begynnyng, And I awoke. And I saw agayne in my dreme.vij.eares spryng out of one stalke full and good, and.vij.other eares wythered, thyn and blasted with wynde, spryng vp after them. And the thynne eares deuoured the.vij. good eares. And I haue tolde it vnto the sothsayers, but no man can tell me what it meaneth. Then Joseph sayd vnto Pharao, bothe Pharaos dremes are one. And god doth shew Pharao what he is about to do. The.vij.good kyne are.vij.yeres, and the.vij.good eares are.vij.yeres also/and it is but one dreame. Lyke wise the.vij.thyn and euylfauoured kyne that came out after them, are seuen yeres/ and the seuen emptye and blasted eares shall be seuen yeres of hunger. This is that whiche I sayde vnto Pharao, that God dothe shewe Pharao what he is about to do.

D Beholde there shall come.vij.yeres of great plenteousnes throughout all the lande of Egypt. And there shall aryse after them.vij.yeres of hunger: So that all the plenteousnes shal be forgoten in the land of Egypt. And the hunger shal consume the land, so that the plenteousnes shal not be ones perceyued in the lande by reason of that hunger that shal come after, for it shall be excedynge great. And where as the dreame was doubled vnto Pharao the seconde tyme, it betokeneth that the thynge is certaynly prepared of God, & that God wyll shortly brynge it to passe.

Now therfore let Pharao prouyde for a man of vnderstandynge and wysdome, and set him ouer the land of Egypt. And let Pharao make offycers ouer the lande, and take vp the fyfte parte of the lande of Egypt in the seuen plenteous yeres, and let them gather all the foode of these good yeres that come, & laye vp corne vnder the power of Pharao, that there may be foode in the cityes, and there let them kepe it, that there may be foode in store in the lande agaynst the seuen yeres of hunger whiche shall come in the lande of Egypt, and that the lande perysshe not thorow hunger.

E And the saying pleased Pharao and al his seruantes. Then said Pharao vnto his seruantes where shall we fynde suche a man as this is, that hath the spirite of God in hym? wherfore Pharao sayd vnto Joseph: forasmoch as god hath shewed the al this, there is no man of vnderstanding or of wysdom like vnto the. Thou therfore shalt be * ouer my house, & accordyng to thy worde shall all my people obey: onely in the kynges seat wyl I be aboue the. And he sayd vnto Joseph, beholde, I haue set the ouer all the land of Egypt. And he toke of his ryng from his fyngre, & put it vpon Joseps fyngre/ and arayde hym in rayment of sylke, and hong a golden cheyne aboute his necke, and set hun vpon the best charet that he had saue one. And proclamacion was made, þ euery person sholde bowe his knee before hym, as to hym whome Pharao had set ouer all the lande of Egypte.

And in the seuen plentyfull yeres they made sheues, and gathered vp all the encrease of the seuen plenteous yeres which were in the land of Egypte, and put it in to the cityes. And he put the foode of the feldes that grewe rounde aboute euery city, euen in the same. And Joseph layde vp corne in store, lyke to the sande of the see in multitude aboue measure, vntyll he lefte nombrynge: For it was without nombre. And vnto Joseph were borne two sonnes
G before the yeres of hūger came, which Asnath the doughter of Putiphar preest of On, bare vnto hym. And he called the name of the fyrst sonne * Manasse/ for God (said he) hath made me forget all my laboure, and all my fathers housholde. The second called he Ephraim, for God (sayd he) hath caused me to growe in the lande of my trouble.

* Gen.xlvi.c

And when the seuen plentyfull yeres that were in the lande of Egypt were ended, then came the seuen yeres of * derth, accordyng as Joseph had sayd. And the derth was in all landes, but in the lande of Egypte was there yet fode. When now all the land of Egypt began to hunger, then cryed the people to Pharao for breed. And Pharao sayd vnto all Egypte: go vnto Joseph, and what he sayth to you, that do. And when the derth was throughout all the lande/ Joseph opened all that was in the cityes and solde vnto the Egyptians. And hunger waxed sore in the lande of Egypte. And all countreys came to Egypt to Joseph for to bye corne: bycause that the hunger was so sore in all landes.

Joseph said vnto thē/that is it that I said vnto you, that ye are surely spyes. Hereby ye shal be proued. For by the lyfe of Pharao ye shall not go hence tyl your yongest brother be brought hither. Sende therfore one of you to fetche your brother, and ye shall be in pryson in the meane season. And therby shall your wordes be proued / whether ye be true, or els by the lyfe of Pharao, ye are but spyes. And he put them in warde thre dayes.

Then they sayd one to an other: we haue verely synned agaynst our brother, in that we sawe the anguysshe of his soule, when he besought vs, and wolde not heare hym: therfore is this trouble come vpon vs. Ruben answered them sayinge. Sayd I not vnto you that ye sholde not * synne agaynst the chylde? but ye wolde not heare. And nowe verely se, his bloode is ‡ requyred. They were not aware that Joseph vnderstode them / for he spake

And so it was done to them. And they laded theyr asses with the corne and departed thence. And as one of them opened his sacke for to gyue his asse prouender in the Inne, he spyed his money in his sackes mouthe. And he sayd vnto his brethren: my money is restored me agayne, and is in my sackes mouthe. Then theyr hertes fayled them, and were astonyed, and sayd one to an other / how cometh it that God dealeth thus with vs? And they came to

‡ To require the bloude of the hād of an other is to take vengeaunce of þ euyl done vnto him / as in Genesis.ix.a Psa.ix.b and Ezechiel.iii.c

 And

And we sayd vnto hym: we meane truly and are no spyes. We be twelue brethren sonnes of our father / one is awaye, and the yongest is now with our father in the lãde of Canaan. And hereby shal I knowe that ye are no spyes, but meane truly: So wyll I delyuer you your brother agayne/and ye shall occupye in the lande.

And as they emptied theyr sackes, behold euery mans bũdell of money was i his sacke. And when both they and theyr father saw the bundels of money, they were afrayde.

B And Jacob their father said vnto them, haue ye robbed me of my chyldren: Joseph is deed, and Symeon is awaye/and ye wyll take Ben Jamin from me. All these thynges fall vpon me. Ruben answered his father sayinge: Slee my two sonnes, yf I bryng him not to the agayn. Delyuer hym therfore vnto my hande, and I wyll brynge hym to the agayne: But he sayd: my sonne shal not go downe with you/for his brother is deed, and he is left alone. CAPI. XLIII.

A And the derth waxed sore in the lande. And when they had eaten vp the corne whiche they brought out of the lande of Egypt, theyr father sayd vnto them: go agayne and bye vs a litle fode. Then said Juda vnto him: the man did testifie vnto vs saying, * loke ye se not my face, onlesse your brother come with you. Therfore yf thou wylte sende our brother with vs, we wyll go and bye the foode. Yf thou wylte not sende hym, we wyll not go: For the man sayde vnto vs: loke ye se not my face, excepte your brother be with you. And Israel sayd: wherfore delte ye so cruelly with me, to tell the man ye had yet an other brother? B They sayde: The man asked vs of our kynred, sayinge: Is your father yet alyue? haue ye not an other brother? And we tolde hym accordynge to these wordes: How coulde we knowe that he wolde byd vs bryng our brother downe with vs? Then sayd Juda vnto Israel his father: Send the lad with me, and we wyll ryse and go, that we maye lyue and not dye: both we, thou and also our chyldren. I wyll be suertye for hym / and of my handes requyre hym. Yf I brynge him not to the, and set hym before thyne eyes * let me bere the blame for euer. For onlesse we hadde made this tarying, by this we had ben there twyse and come agayne.

C Then theyr father Israel said vnto them. Yf it must nedes be so now, then do thus, take of the best frutes of the lande in your vessels, and cary the man a present, a quantitie of bawlme and a porcion of hony, spyces and myrre, dates and almondes. And take as moch money more with you. And the money that was brought agayn in your sackes, take it agayn with you, peraduenture it was some ouersyght.

Take also your brother with you, and aryse and go agayne to the man. And God almyghtye gyue you mercy in the sight of the man and sende you your other brother & also BenJamin and I wyl be as a man robbed of his children.

Thus toke they the present & twyse so moche more money with them, and BenJamin. And rose vp, went downe to Egypt, and presented D them selues to Joseph. When Joseph saw BenJamin with them, he sayd to the ruler of his house/ bryng these men home; and sley & make redy: for they shall dyne with me at none. And the man did as Joseph bad, and brought them in to Josephs house.

When they were brought to Joseps house/ they were afrayde and sayd, bycause of the money ꝥ came in our sackes mouthes at the fyrst tyme/are we brought that they myght pyke a quarell with vs, and laye some thynge to our charge, to brynge vs in bondage and our asses also. So came they to the man that was the ruler ouer Josephs house, and spake with him at the dore and sayd. E

Syr, we came hyther at the fyrst tyme to bye fode, and as we came to an Inne, and opened our sackes: behold euery mans * money was in his sacke with full weyghte: But we haue brought it agayne with vs, and other money haue we brought also i our handes, to bye fode but we can not tell who put our money in our sackes. And he sayde: be of good chere/ feare not: your God, and the God of your fathers hathe put that treasure in your sackes / for I had your money. And he brought Simeon out to them, & led them i to Josephs house, & gaue them water to wasshe theyr fete, & gaue theyr asses prouender: And they made redye theyr present, agaynst Joseph came at none/ for they herde say that they sholde dyne there. When F Joseph came home, they brought the present in to the house to hym, whiche they had in theyr handes, and fell flat in the ground before him. And he welcõmed them courteysly, sayinge/ is your father that olde man which ye told me of in good helth? and is he yet alyue? They answered: thy seruant our father is i good helth and is yet alyue. And they bowed them selues and fell to the grounde.

And he lyft vp his eyes and behelde his brother BenJamin his mothers sonne and sayd: * Is this your yongest brother of whome ye sayde vnto me? And sayd: God be mercyfull G vnto the my sonne. And Joseph made hast (for * his hert did melt vpon his brother) & sought where to wepe, and entred in to his chambre, for to wepe there. And he wasshed his face and came out and refrayned hym selfe, and bad set bred on the table.

And they prepared for him by him selfe, & for them by them selues, and for the Egyptians whiche ate with hym by them selues, bycause the Egyptians maye not eate bred with the Hebrues/for that is an ꝥ abhominacion vnto the

A And he commaunded the ruler of his house sayeng: fyl the mens sackes with food, as moche as they can carye, & put euery mans money in his bagge mouthe, and put my syluer cup in the sackes mouthe of the yongest and his corne money also. And he dyd as Joseph had sayde. And in the mornynge as soone as it was lyghte, the men were let go with their asses. And when they were out of the cytie and not yet ferre paste, Joseph sayde vnto the rular of his house: Aryse and pursue after the men, and ouertake theym, and saye vnto theym: Wherfore haue ye rewarded euell for good? is that not the cuppe, of whiche my lorde drynketh, and dothe he not propheeye therin? ye haue euyll done, that ye haue done.

And he ouertoke theym and sayde the same wordes vnto them. And they answered hym: wherfore sayth my lorde suche wordes? God B forbyd that thy seruauntes shulde do so. Beholde, the money which we founde in our sackes mouthes, we broughte agayne vnto the, out of the lande of Canaan: how then shulde we steale out of my lordes house, either syluer or golde? with whomsoeuer of thy seruantes it be founde let hym dye, and let vs also be my lordes bondemen. And he sayde. Nowe therfore accordynge vnto youre wordes he with whome it is founde, shalbe my seruaunt: but ye, shalbe harmelesse.

And forthwith euerye man toke downe his C sacke to the grounde, and euery man opened his sacke. And he serched/ frome the eldest, to the yongest. And the cup was founde in BenJamins sacke. Then they * rente their clothes, and laded euery man his asse, and went agayne vnto the cytie. And Juda and his brethren came to Josephs house, for he was yet there, and they fell before him on the ground. And he answered: God forbyd that I shulde do so, the man with whome the cuppe is founde, he shalbe my seruaunte: but go ye in peace home to your father.

Then Juda went vnto him and sayde: oh my lorde, let thy seruaunte speake a worde in my lordes eare, and be not wrothe with thy seruaunt: for thou arte euen as Pharao. My lorde asked his seruaunte sayenge: haue ye a E father or a brother? And we answered my lord * we haue a father that is olde, and a yonge ladde which he begat in his age: and the brother of the sayde lad is dead, and he is all that is left of that mother. Wherfore God sent me afore to make prouision, that ye myght continue in the earth, & to saue your lyues by a greate delyueraunce. So now, it was not ye that sent me hyther, but God: and he hathe made me as a father vnto Pharao, and lorde ouer all his house, & ruler in all the lande of Egypte. Haste you therfore, and go to my father, and tell him, this sayth thy sonne Joseph: God hath made me lorde ouer all Egypte. Come downe vnto me and tarye not. And thou shalt dwell in the lande of Golan, and be by me: bothe thou, & thy children, and thy childrens children: and thy wepe, and beastes, and all that thou hast. There will I make prouysyon for the: For there remayne yet fyue yeres of derth, leaste thou, and thy household, and all that thou hast, perysshe.

Beholde, your eyes do se, and the eyes also of my brother Ben Jamin, that I speake to you by mouthe. Therfore tell my father of all my honoure, which I haue in Egypte, and of all that ye haue sene, and make hast & bring my father hyther.

And he fell on his brother Ben Jamins neck and wept, and Ben Jamin wept on his necke. Moreouer he kyssed all his brethren, & wepte vpon them. And after that, his brethren talked with him. And when the tydinges were brought to Pharaos house, that Josephs brethren were come, it pleased Pharao well, and all his seruauntes.

And Pharao spake vnto Joseph: saye vnto thy brethren, this do ye: lade your beastes, & get you hence, And when ye be come vnto the lande of Canaan, take your father, and youre households, and come vnto me, and I will geue you the beste of the lande of Egypte, and ye shall eate the fatte of the lande. And commaunded also. This do ye: take charettes with you, out of the lande of Egypte, for your children, and for your wyues: and bringe your father, and come. Also, regarde not your stuffe, for the goodes of all the lande of Egypte shal be yours.

And the children of Israel dyd accordyngly, And Joseph gaue them charettes at the commaundement of Pharao, and gaue them vytayle also, to spende by the waye. And he gaue vnto eche of them, chaunge of rayment: but vnto Ben Jamin, he gaue thre hundred peces of syluer, and fyue chaunge of rayment. And vnto his father he sent lyke wyse ten asses laden with good out of Egypte, and ten she asses laden with corne, bread and meat: to serue his father by the waye. So sent he his brethren awaye, and they departed. And he sayde vnto them: se that ye fall not oute by the waye.

And they departed from Egypte / and entred the lande of Canaan, and came to Jacob their father, and tolde him, sayenge. Joseph is yet a lyue, and is gouernour ouer all the lād of Egypte. And Jacobs hert was troubled, but he beleued them not. And they tolde him all the wordes of Joseph, whiche he had sayde vnto them. But when he sawe the charettes which Joseph had sent to carye him, then his spyrytes reuyued. And Israel sayde. I haue ynoughe, yf Joseph my sonne be yet alyue: I will go and se hym, or that I dye.

CAPI. XLVI.

ISrael toke his * tourney, with all he had, and came vnto Berseba, and offred offrynges vnto the God of his father Isaac. And God sayde vnto Israel in a vysyon by nyght, and called vnto him: Jacob Jacob. And he answered: here am I. And he sayde: I am that myghtye God of thy father, feare not to go downe into Egypte. For I will make of the a great people. I will go downe with the into Egypte, and I will also bringe the vp agayne, and Joseph shall ꝓ put his hande vpon thyne eyes.

And Jacob rose vp from Berseba. And the sonnes of Israel caryed Jacob their father, and their children, and their wyues in the charettes, whiche Pharao had sent to carye him. And they toke their catell, & the goodes whiche they had gotten in the lande of Canaan, & came into Egypt: both Jacob and all his seed with him, his sonnes, and his sonnes sonnes with hym, his doughters, & his sonnes doughters, and all his seed brought he with hym into Egypte.

These are the names of the children of Israel, whyche came into Egypte, bothe Jacob and his sonnes: * Ruben Jacobs fyrst sonne. The children of Ruben: Hanoch, Pallu, Hezron, and Charmi. The children of Symeon: Jemuel, Jamim, Ohad, Jachin, Zohar, and Saul the sonne of a Cananytish woman. The children of * Leui: Gerson, Kahath, and Merari.

The children of * Juda: Er, Onan, Sela, Pharez, and Zerah, But Er, and Onan, dyed in the lande of Canaan. The children of Pharez, Hezron, and Hamul. The children of Issachar: Tola, Phua, Job and Semron. The children of Zabulon: Sered, Elon and Jaheleel. These be the children of Lea, whyche she bare vnto Jacob in Mesopotamia, with his daughter Dina. All these soules of his sonnes and doughters, make thyrty and three.

The children of Gad: Ziphion, Haggi, Suni, Ezbon, Eri, Arodi, and Areli. The children of * Aser: Jemna, Jesua, Jesui, Bria, and Serah their syster. And the children of Bria, were Heber, and Malchiel. These are the children of Silpha, whome Laban gaue to Lea his doughter. And these she bare vnto Jacob, In noumbre syxtene soules.

The children of Rachel / Jacobs wyfe: Joseph and Ben Jamin. And vnto Joseph, in the lande of Egypte, were borne: Manasses, and Ephraim, whiche * Asnath the doughter of Putiphar, preest of On, bare vnto him. The children of * Ben Jamin: Bela, Becher, Asbel, Gera, Naeman, Ehi, Ros, Mupim, Hupim, and Ard. These are the children of Rachel, whiche were borne vnto Jacob. xiiij. soules all togither. The children of Dan: Husim. The children of Nepthali: Jahzeel, Guni, Jezer, and Sillem. These are the sonnes of Bilha, which Laban gaue vnto Rachel his wughter, and she bare these vnto Jacob, all togither. vij. soules. All the soules that came with Jacob into Egypte, whiche came out of his loynes (beside his sonnes wyues) were all togyther. lx. and. vj. soules. And the sonnes of Joseph, whiche were borne hym in Egypte were two soules: So that all the soules of the house of Jacob, which came into Egypte are. lxx.

And he sent Juda before hym vnto Joseph, that she waye myghte be shewed hym vnto Golan, and they came into the lande of Golan. And Joseph made redy his charet, & went to mete Israel his father, vnto Golan, & presented hym selfe vnto hym, & fell on his necke and wepte vpon his necke a good whyle. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: Nowe am I content to dye, for almoche as I haue sene the, ꝓ thou arte yet alyue.

And Joseph sayde vnto his brethren & vnto his fathers house: I will go and shewe Pharao, and tell hym: that my brethren and my fathers house, which were in the lande of Canaan, are come vnto me, and howe they are shepardes (for they were men of catell) & they haue brought their shepe and their oren, and all that they haue, with them. If Pharao cal you, and aske you what your occupation is / saye: thy seruauntes haue bene occupyed aboute catell, frome oure childhode vnto this tyme: bothe we and our fathers, that ye may dwell in the lande of Golan. For the Egyptians abhorre all shepardes.

¶ Jacob cometh before Pharao / and vnto him is geuen the lande of Golan. He sweareth his sonne for his buryal.

CAPI. XLVII

AND Joseph went and tolde Pharao, & sayde: my father and my brethren, their shepe and their beastes, & all that they haue, are come out of the lande of Canaan / & are in the lande of Golan. And Joseph toke a part of his brethren: euen fyue of them, and presented them vnto Pharao. And Pharao sayde vnto his brethren: what is your occupation? And they sayde vnto Pharao: shepeherdes are thy seruauntes, bothe we and also our fathers. They sayde moreouer vnto Pharao: for to * soiorne in the lande are we come, for thy seruauntes haue no pasture for their shepe, so sore is the kampfhement in the lande of Canaan. Now therfore let thy seruauntes dwell in the lande of Golan.

And Pharao sayde vnto Joseph: thy father and thy brethren are come vnto the. The land of Egypte is open before the: In the best place of the lande, make bothe thy father and thy brethren dwell: And euen in the lande of Golan let them dwell. Moreouer yf thou knowe any men of actiuitie amonge them, make the rulars ouer my catell. And Joseph brought in Jacob his father, and set hym before Pharao. And Jacob blessed Pharao. And Pharao asked Jacob, howe olde art thou? And Jacob sayde vnto Pharao: the dayes of my pilgremage, are an hundred and thirty yeres. Fewe and euyll haue the dayes of my lyfe bene, and haue not attayned vnto the yeres of the lyfe of my fathers, in the dayes of their pilgremages. And Jacob blessed Pharao, and went out frome hym. And Joseph prepared dwellinges for his father and his brethren, and gaue them possessions in the lande of Egypte, in the best of the lande: euen in the lande of Rameles, as Pharao commaunded. And Joseph made prouysyon for his father, his brethren and all his fathers household, as ponge children are fed with bread.

There was no bread in al the lande, for the derth was exceadynge sore: so that the lande of Egypte, and the lande of Canaan, were fayntyed, by the reason of the derth. And Joseph gathered togyther all the money that was founde in the lande of Egypte, and of Canaan, for the corne whyche they boughte: and he layde vp the money in Pharaos house. When money fayled in the lande of Egypte, & of Canaan, all the Egyptians came vnto Joseph, and sayde: geue vs sustenaunce: wherfore suffrest thou vs to dye before the: for our money is spent. Then sayde Joseph: bringe your catell, and I will geue you for your catell, yf ye be without money. And they brought their catel vnto Joseph. And he gaue them bread for horses and shepe, and oxen and asses: so he fed them with bread, for all their catell, that yere.

When that yere was ended, they came vnto hym the next yere, and sayde vnto hym: we will not hyde it frome my lorde, how that we haue neyther money nor catell, for my lorde: there is no more left for my lorde, but our bodyes, and oure landes. Wherfore latest thou vs dye before thyne eyes, and the lande to go to naught? bye vs and our landes for bread: and let bothe vs and our landes be bonde to Pharao. Geue vs seed, that we maye lyue / & not dye, and that the lande go not to waste.

And Joseph bought all the lande of Egipt for Pharao. For the Egyptians solde euery man his lande, because the derth was sore vpon them: and so the lande became Pharaos. And he appointed the people vnto the cyties / frome one syde of Egypte vnto the other: only the lande of preestes bought he not. For there was an ordinaunce made, by Pharao / for the preestes, that they should eate that whyche was appointed vnto them: whiche Pharao had geuen them, wherfore they solde not their landes.

Then Joseph sayde vnto the folke: behold I haue bought you this daye, and youre landes for Pharao. Take there seed, and go sow the

F the lande. And of the encrease, ye shall geue ℘ fyfte parte vnto Pharao, and. iiij. partes shal be your owne for seed to sowe the felde: and for you, and them of your housholdes, and for youre children, to eate. And they answered: Thou hast saued our lyues. Let vs fynde grace in the syghte of my lorde, and let vs be Pharaos seruauntes. And Joseph made it a lawe ouer the lande of Egypte vnto this daye: that men must geue Pharao the fyfte parte, except the lande of the preastes only, which was not bounde vnto Pharao.

And Israel dwelte in Egypte: euen in the countrepe of Gosan. And they had their possessions therin, and they grewe and multyplyed exceadyngly. Moreouer Jacob lyued in the lande of Egypte. xvij. peres, so that the hole age of Jacob, was an hundred, and. xlvij. peres.

B When the tyme drew nye, that Israel must dye: he sent for his sonne Joseph, and sayde vnto hym: If I haue found grace in thy sight, put thy hande vnder my thye, and deale mercyfully and truely with me, that thou burye me not in Egypt: but let me lye by my fathers and carye me oute of Egypte, and bury me in their buryall. And he sayde: bynge them to me, and let me bleste them. And the eyes of Israel were dymme for age, so that he coulde not well se. And he brought them to hym, and he kyssed them, and embraced them. And Israel sayde vnto Joseph: I wolde not haue thoughte, that I shoulde haue sene thy face, and yet lo, God hathe shewed it me, and also thy seed. And Joseph toke them awaye frome his lappe, and they fell on the grounde before hym.

C Then toke Joseph them bothe: Ephraim in his ryght hande towarde Israels left hande and Manasses in his lefthande, towarde Israels ryghte hande, and broughte them vnto hym. And Israel stretched oute his ryghte hande, and ℘ layde it vppon Ephraims head, whiche was the yonger, and his lefte hande, vppon Manasses head, crossinge his handes, for Manasses was the elder. D When Joseph sawe that his father layde his ryght hande vppon the head of Ephraim, it displeased hym. And he lyfte vp his fathers hande, to haue remoued it frome Ephraims head vnto Manasses head, and sayde vnto his father. Not so my father, for this is the eldest. Put thy ryght hande vpon his head. B Then there rose vp a newe kynge in Egypt whiche knewe not Joseph. And he sayde vnto his folke: beholde the people of the childrẽ of Israel are mo & myghtyer than we. Come, let vs playe wysely with them: lest they multiplye, and so (yf there chaunce any warre) they ioyne them selues to oure ennemyes and fyghte agaynste vs, and so gette them oute of the lande.

C And he set taskemasters ouer them, to kepe them vnder with burdens. And they buylt vnto Pharao cyties of defense: Phiton and Rameses. But the more they vexed thẽ, the more they multyplyed and grewe: so that they abhorred the children of Israel. And the Egyptians helde the children of Israel in bondage withoute mercye, and made their lyues bitter vnto theym, with cruell laboure in claye, and brycke, and all maner worke in the feldes, and in all maner seruice, whiche they caused them to worke, cruelly.

And the kynge of Egypte sayde vnto the mydwyues of the Ebrue women, of whiche the ones name was Sephora, and the other Phua: When ye do the office of a mydwyfe, to the women of the Ebrues, & se in the byrth tyme that it is a boye, kyll it. But yf it be a mayde, let it lyue. Notwithstanding the mydwyues feared God, and dyd not as the kynge of Egypte commaunded them: but saued the men children.

D Then the kynge of Egypte called for the mydwyues, and sayde vnto them: why haue ye delt on this maner, and haue saued the menchildren? And the mydwyues answered Pharao/ that the Ebrues wemen were not as the wemen of Egypte: but were sturdy women, and were delyuered afore the midwyues came at them. And god therfore delt well with the mydwyues. And the people multiplyed and waxed very myghty. And because the mydwyues feared God, he made them houses.

Then Pharao charged all his people, sayenge. All the menchildren that are borne, caste into the ryuer, and saue the mayde children a lyue.

A Then Moses and Aaron went and tolde Pharao, thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel. Let my people go, that they may kepe holye daye vnto me in the wyldernesse. And Pharao answered: What felowe is the Lorde, that I shuld heare his voyce for to let Israel go? I know not the Lorde, neyther wil let Israel go. And Pharao sayd furthermore: beholde there is moche people in the lande, and ye make theym playe, and let their worke stande.

B And Pharao commaunded the same daye the taskemasters ouer the people, and the officers, sayenge: se that ye geue the people no more strawe to make brycke with, as ye dyd in tyme passed: let them go and gather straw them selues, and the nombre of brycke, which they were wont to make in tyme passed, laye vnto theyr charges also, and dymynysshe nothinge therof. For they be ydell, and therfore crye, sayenge: Let vs go and do sacrifice vnto our God. They must haue more worke layde vpon them, that they maye laboure therin, and then will they not turne theym selues to false wordes.

Then went the taskemasters of the people and the officers out, and tolde the people sayenge: Thus sayth Pharao: I will geue you no more strawe, but go youre selues, and gather you strawe where ye can fynde it, yet shal none of your labour be mynyshed. Then the people scatered abrode thorow out all the lãd of Egypte, for to gather theym stubyll, to be in stede of strawe.

C And the taskemasters hasted them forward, sayenge: Fulfill your werke daye by day, euẽ as when strawe was geuen you. And the officers of the children of Israel, which Pharaos taskemasters had set ouer them, were beaten. And it was sayde vnto them: Wherfore haue ye not fulfilled your taske in makynge brycke, bothe yesterdaye and to daye, as well as in tymes paste.

Then went the officers of the children of Israel, and complayned vnto Pharao, sayeng: Wherfore dealest thou thus with thy seruauntes? there is no strawe geuen vnto thy seruauntes, and yet they saye vnto vs: make brycke. And lo, thy seruauntes are beaten, and thy people is foule intreated. And he answered: Ydell are ye, and therfore ye saye: let vs go and do sacrifice vnto the Lorde. So therfore and worke, for there shall no strawe be geuen you, and yet se that ye delyuer the hole tale of brycke.

Moses returned vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Lorde, wherfore dealest thou cruelly with this people: and wherfore hast thou sent me? For sence I came to Pharao to speke in thy name, he hathe fared foule with this folke, and yet thou hast not delyuered thy people at all. Thẽ the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Nowe shalte thou se what I will do vnto Pharao, for with a myghtye hande, shall he let them go, & with a myghtye hande, shall he dryue them oute of his lande.

Thou shalt speke all that I cõmaunde the, and Aaron thy brother shall speake vnto Pharao: that he sende the childzen of Israel out of his lande. But I wyll harden Pharaos hert, that I maye multiplye my myracles and my wonders in the lande of Egypte. And yet Pharao shal not herken vnto you, that I may set myne hande vpon Egypte, and bzynge out myne armyes, euen my people the childzen of Israel out of the lande of Egypte, with greate iudgementes. And the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lorde, when I haue stretched forth my hande vpon Egypte, & haue bzought out the childzen of Israel from them.

made like vnto Pharaos in Exod.

Moses and Aaron dyd as the Lorde commaunded them. And Moses was. lxxx. yere olde, and Aaron. lxxxiij. when they spake vnto Pharao. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayenge: When Pharao speaketh vnto you, and sayeth: Shewe a wondze, then shalte thou saye vnto Aaron: Take the rodde, and caste it before Pharao, and it shall turne to a serpente. Then wente Moses and Aaron to Pharao, and dyd as the Lorde had commaunded. And Aaron cast forth his rodde before Pharao and his seruauntes, and it turned to a serpente. Then Pharao called for the wyse men and * enchaunters of Egypte: and they dyd in lyke maner with their sozcerye. And they caste downe euery man his rodde, and they turned to serpentes: but Aarons rodde ate vp their roddes: and yet for all this Pharaos herte was hardened, so that he herkened not vnto them, accozdyng as the Lord had sayde.

* Exod.vij.c.

Then sayde the Lorde vnto Moses. Pharaos herte is hardened, and he refuseth to let the people go. Get the vnto Pharao in the mornynge, for he wyll come vnto the water, and stonde thou vpon the ryuers bzynke, against he come, and the rodde whiche turned to a serpent take in thyne hande. And saye vnto hym: the Lorde God of the Hebzues hath sent me vnto the, sayenge: let my people go, that they maye serue me in the wyldernelle: but hytherto vnto thou woldeste not heare. Wherfore thus sayth the Lord: hereby thou shalt knowe that I am the Lorde. Beholde, I will smyte with the staffe that is in myne hande, the waters that are in the ryuer, and they shall turne to bloude. And the fysshe that is in the ryuer shall dye, and the ryuer shall stynke, so that it shall greue the Egyptians to dzynke of the water of the ryuer.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, say vnto Aaron: take thy staffe & stretche out thyne hande ouer the waters of Egypte, ouer their streames, ryuers, pondes, & all pooles of water, that they maye be bloude, and that there may be bloude in all the lande of Egypt: both in vessels of wodde and also of stone.

And Moses and Aaron dyd as the Lorde commaunded. And he lyfte vp the staffe, and smote the waters that were in the ryuer, in the sight of Pharao, and in the sight of his seruauntes, and al the water that was in the ryuer, turned into bloude. And the enchaunters of Egypte, dyd lykewyse with their enchauntementes, so that Pharaos herte was hardened, and dyd not regarde the, as the Lorde had sayde. And Pharao turned hym selfe, & went into his houlle, and set not his herte there vnto. And the Egyptians dygged rounde about the ryuer for water to drynke, for they coulde not drynke of the water of the ryuer. And it contynued a weke, after that the Lorde hadde smyten the ryuer.

CAPI. VIII.

THe Lorde spake vnto Moses: Go vnto Pharao, and tell hym, thus sayth the Lorde: * Let my people go, that they maye serue me. If thou wilt not let them go, beholde, I wyll smyte all thy lande with frogges. And the ryuer shall sceale with frogges, and they shal come vp, & go into thyne houlle and into thy chaumbze, where thou slepeste, and vppon thy bedde, and into the houlles of thy seruauntes, and vpon thy people, and into thyne ouens, and vpon thy vytayles, whiche thou haste in stoze. And the frogges shall come vppon the, and on thy people, and vpon all thy seruauntes.

* Exod.viij.c.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saye vnto Aaron: stretche forthe thyne hande with thy rodde ouer the streames, ryuers and pondes. And bzynge vp frogges vpon the lande of Egypte. And Aaron stretched his hande ouer the water of Egypte, and the frogges came vp, and couered the lande of Egypte. And the sozcerers dyd lykewyse with their sozcery, and the frogges came vp, vppon the lande of Egypte.

The secõde plage.

Then Pharao called for Moses, and Aaron, and sayde: Praye ye vnto the Lorde that he maye take awaye the frogges from me and frome my people, and I wyll let the people go, that they may do sacrifice vnto the Lord. And Moses sayde vnto Pharao: Appointe thou the tyme vnto me, when I shall pray for the / and thy seruauntes, and thy people, to dzyue awaye the frogges frome the, and thy houlle, so that they shall remayne but in the ryuer onely. And he sayde to morowe. And he sayd: euen as thou hast sayd that thou mayst knowe that there is none lyke vnto the Lord our God. And the frogges shall departe from the, and frome thyne houles, and frome thy seruauntes, and frome thy people, and shall remayne in the ryuer onely.

And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharao, and Moses cryed vnto the Lorde vppon the appointment of frogges, whiche he hadde made vnto Pharao. And the Lorde dyd accozdynge to the sayenge of Moses. And the frogges dyed out of the houlles, courtes & feldes. And they gathered them togither vpõ heapes so that the lande stanke of them.

But when Pharao sawe that he had reste gruen hym, he hardened his hert, and herkened not vnto them, as the Lorde hadde sayde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: saye vnto Aaron, stretche out thy rodde, and smyte the duste of the lande, that it maye turne to lyse / in all the lande of Egypte. And they dyd so. And Aaron stretched oute his hande, with his rodde, and smote the duste of the earth, and it turned to lyse, both in man and beast, so that all the duste of the lande, turned to lyse, thorowe out all the lande of Egypte.

The thyrde plage.

And the enchaunters assayde lykwyse with their enchauntementes, to bzynge forth lyse, but they coulde not. And the lyse were bothe vpon man and beast. Then sayde the enchaunters vnto Pharao: It is the fynger of God. Neuerthelater Pharaos hert was hardened, and he regarded them not, as the Lorde had sayde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: ryse vp early in the mornyng, and stonde before Pharao, for he will come vnto the water: and say vnto hym, Thus sayth the Lorde: let my people go, that they may serue me. If thou wylt not let my people go, beholde, I will sende al maner flyes, bothe vpon the, thy seruauntes, and thy people, and into thy houlles. And the houlles of the Egyptians shalbe full of flyes, and the grounde wheron they are. But I will separate the same daye, the lande of Gosan where my people are, so that there shall no flyes be there: that thou mayste knowe, that I am the Lorde vppon the earth. And I will put a dyuisyõ, betwene my people and thyne. And euen to morow shal this miracle be done.

And the Lorde dyd accozdyngly: and there came noysome flyes into the houlle of Pharao and into his seruauntes houles, and into all the lande of Egypte: so that the lande was marred with flyes. Then Pharao sent for Moses and Aaron, and sayde: Go and do sacrifice vnto your God in the lande. And Moses answered: it is not mete so to do. For we shulde so offer vnto the Lorde our God, that whiche is an abhominacyon vnto the Egyptians: beholde, shall we sacrifice that whiche is an abomination vnto the Egyptiãs before their eyes, & shall they not stone vs? we wyll therfore go thze dayes iourney, into the wyldernelle, and sacrifice vnto the Lorde our God as he hath commaunded vs.

And Pharao sayde: I will let you go, that ye maye sacrifice vnto the Lorde your God in the wildernes: onely go not farre away, and se that ye praye for me. And Moses sayde: beholde, I wyll goo oute frome the, and praye vnto the Lorde, and the flyes shall departe frome Pharao, and frome his seruauntes and frome his people, to morowe. But let Pharao frome henceforth deleaue no moare, that he will not let the people go to sacrifice vnto the Lorde.

And Moses went oute frome Pharao, and prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde dyd as Moses had sayd, and toke away the flyes frome Pharao, and from his seruauntes, and frome his people, so that there remayned not one. But for all that, Pharao hardened his herte euen then also, and wolde not let the people go.

And as many as feared the worde of the Lorde, amonge the seruauntes of Pharao made their seruauntes and their beastes flee to house: and they that regarded not the worde of the Lorde, lefte their seruauntes and their beastes in the felde.

And the hayle smote all the herbes of the felde, and brake all the trees of the felde: only in the lande of Golan where the children of Israel were, was there no hayle.
And Pharao sent and called for Moses & Aaron, and sayde vnto them: I haue nowe synned, the Lorde is ryghtwyse, and I and my people are wicked. Praye ye vnto the Lorde, that the thonder of God and hayle may ceasse G and I will let you go, and ye shall tary no lōger. And Moses sayde vnto hym: assone as I am out of the cytie, I will sprede abrode my handes vnto the Lorde, and the thunder shal ceasse, neyther shall there be any more hayle: that thou mayst knowe howe that the earthe is the Lordes. The flaxe and the barly were smyten, for the barly was shot vp, and the flaxe was boulled: but the whete and the rye were not smytē, for they were late sowne.

And Moses went out of the cytie from Pharao, and spredde abrode his handes vnto the Lorde, and the thunder and hayle ceased, neither rayned it any more vpon the earth: when Pharao sawe that the rayne and the hayle & thunder were ceased, he synned agayne & hardened his herte: both he and his seruauntes. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordynge to the sayinge of Moses: and they borowed of the Egyptians iewels of syluer, and iewels of golde / and rayment. And they baked swete cakes of the doughe whiche they broughte out of Egypte / for it was not soured, bicause they were thrust out of Egypt and could not tary, neyther had they prepared any other prouysyon of meate.

G And the tyme of the dwellynge of the chyldren of Israel whiche they dwelled in Egypte was .iiij. hundred and .xxx. yere. This is a nyght to be obserued to the Lorde / bycause he brought them out of the lande of Egypte. This is a nyght of the Lorde, to be kepte of all the children of Israel and of theyr generacyons after them.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses & Aaron: this is the maner of Passeouer: there shall no straunger eate therof / but all the seruauntes that are bought for money shall ye circumcise, and then let them eate therof. A straunger and a hyred seruaunt shall not eate therof. In one house shal it be eaten. Ye shal cary none of the flesshe out at the dores: moreouer * se that ye breke not a bone therof. CAPI. XIIII.

A Then the Lorde spake vnto Moses saying: byd the children of Israel that they turne and pitche their tentes before the entryng of Hiroth bytwene Migdole and the see toward Baalzephon: euē before that shal ye pytche vpon the see. For Pharao wyll saye of the chyldren of Israel: they are inuegled in the land/the wyldernes hath shut them in. And I wyll harden his herte, that he shall folowe after them, to thintent I may get me honour vpon Pharao and vpon all his host, that the Egyptians maye knowe that I am the Lorde. And they dyd euen so,

B And when it was tolde the kynge of Egypt that the people fled, then Pharaos herte and all his seruauntes turned agaynste the people and sayde: why haue we this done, that we haue let Israel go out of our seruyce? And he made redye his charettes and toke his people with hym, & toke.vj.hundred chosen charettes and all the charettes of Egypte, and capteyns vpon all his people. For the Lorde hardened the herte of Pharao kynge of Egypte, that he folowed after the chyldren of Israel, whiche neuertheles went out thorow an hye hande, and the Egyptians folowed after them, and ouertoke them where they pytched by the see with all the horses and charettes of Pharao and with his horsemen and his host: fast by the entrynge of Hyroth before Baal Zephon. And Pharao drewe nye/ and when the chyldren of Israel lyfte vp theyr eyes, and sawe that the Egygtians folowed after them, they were sore afrayde, & cryed out vnto the Lorde.

C Then sayd they vnto Moses. Were there no graues for vs in Egypte, but thou muste bringe vs awaye to dye in the wyldernelle? wherfore hast thou serued vs thus, to carye vs out of Egypt? Dyd not we tell the this in Egypte sayinge/ let vs be in rest and serue the Egyptians? For it hadde ben better for vs to haue serued the Egyptians, then to dye in the wyldernelle. And Moses sayde to the people: feare not but stande styll and beholde how the Lorde shall saue you this day: For the Egyptians whome ye se this daye, ye shall neuer se more for euer, The Lorde shall fyght for you, and ye shall be styll.

D The Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Wherfore cryest thou vnto me? speke to the chyldren of Israel to go forwarde. But lyfte thou vp thy rod, and stretche forthe thy hande ouer the see and diuyde it asondre, that the chyldren of Israel may go on dyre ground, thorow the myddest therof. And beholde, I wyll harden the hertes of the Egyptians that they may folow you. And I wyll get me honour vpon Pharao and vpon all his hoost vpon his charettes, and vpon his horse men. And the Egyptians shall knowe that I am the Lorde when I haue gotten me honoure vpon Pharao, vpon his charettes and vpon his horsemen.

E And the aungell of god whiche went before the hoost of Israel, remoued and went behynd them. And the clouden pyller that was before them, remoued and stode behynde them, & went betwene the host of the Egyptians & the host of Israel. It was a darke cloude, & gaue lyght by nyght: so that all the nyght longe the one coulde not come at the other.

* When Moses stretched forth his hande ouer the see, the Lorde caryed awaye the see with a strong east wynd that blewe all night, and made the see dyre lande, and the water deuyded it selfe. And the chyldren of Israel went in thorow the myddest of the see vpon the dyre ground. And the water was a wall vnto them bothe on their ryght hande and on their lefte. And the Egyptias folowed, and went in after them to the myddest of the see, with all Pharaos horses and his charettes & his horsemen. And in the mornynge watche the Lorde loked vnto the hoost of the Egyptians out of the fiery and cloudye pyller, & troubled theyr hoost, and smote of theyr charet wheles, and caste them downe to the grounde. Then sayd the Egyptians: Let vs fle from Israel, for the Lorde fyghteth for them agaynst vs. Then sayd the Lorde vnto Moses: stretch forth thyne hande ouer the see, that the water may come agayn vpon the Egyptians, vpon theyr charettes and horsemen.

F Then stretched forth Moses his hande ouer the see/ and it came agayne to his course early in the mornynge/ and the Egyptians fledde agaynst it. Thus the Lord ouerthrew the Egyptians in the myddest of the see/ and the water returned and couered the charets & the horsemen: so that of all the hoost of Pharao that came i to the see after them, remayned not one. But the children of Israel went vpon dyre land in the myddest of the see, and the water was a wall to them, both on the ryght hand of them and also on the lefte.

* Thus the Lorde delyuered Israel the selfe same daye out of the hande of the Egyptians/ and Israel sawe the Egyptians dead vpon the see syde. And when Israel sawe that myghty hande, whiche the Lorde had shewed vpon the Egyptians * they feared the Lorde, and byleued bothe the Lorde, and also his seruaunt Moses.

CAPI. XV.

THen Moses and the chyldren of Israel sange this songe vnto the Lorde, & sayd. Let vs synge vnto the Lorde / for he is become glorious/ the horse and hym that rode vpon hym, hathe he ouerthrowne in the see. * The Lorde is my strength and my song, and is become my saluacion.

He is my God and I wyll glorifye hym/ he is my fathers God, and I wyll lyft hym vp on hyghe. The Lorde is a man of warre almyghtye is his name: Pharaos charettes and his hoost hath he cast in to the see. His tolye captaynes are drowned in the red see/ the depe waters haue coucred them: they sonke to the botome as a stone. Thyne hande Lorde is glorious in power/ thyne hande Lorde hath all to dasshed the ennemye. And with thy great glorye thou haste destroyed thyne aduersaryes/ thou sentest forthe thy wrathe, and it consumed them as stobell. With the breth of thyne anger the water gathered togyther and the floodes stode styll as a rocke/ and the depe water congeled togyther in the myddest of the see.

The ennemye sayde: I wyll folowe and ouertake them/ and wyll deuyde the spoyle: I wyll

I wyll satisfye my luste vpon them: I wyll drawe my swerde, and myne hande shall destroye them.

Thou bluest with thy breth and the see couered them, and they sanke as lead in the mighty waters. Who is lyke vnto the, o Lorde, amonge goddes: who is like the, so glorious in holynes, fearfull, laudable, and that sheweth wondres? Thou stretchedest out thy ryght hande, & the erth swalowed them. And thou carriedest with thy mercye this people whiche thou delyueredest, and broughtest them with thy strength vnto thy holy habitacion. The nations herde, and were afrayde, panges came vpon the Philistynes. Then the dukes of the Edomytes were amased/ and tremblynge came vpon the myghtyest of the Moabytes, and all the inhabiters of Canaan waxed faynt herted. Let feare and dreed fall vpon them thorow the ♀ greatnesse of thyne arme, and let them be as styll as a stone: whyle thy people passe thorowe, o Lorde, whyle the people passe thorowe, whiche thou hast goten. Bringe them in, and plant them in the mountaynes of thyne enheritaunce, the place Lorde whiche thou hast made for to dwell in/ the sanctuarye Lorde, whiche thy handes haue prepared.

The Lorde reygne euer and alwaye. For Pharao went in on horsebacke with his charettes and horsemen in to the see, & the Lorde broughte the waters of the see vpon them. And the chyldren of Israel went on dyre lande thorow the middest of the see. And Mir Jam a yphetesse the syster of Aaron, toke a tymbrel in her hand, & all the wome came out after her with tymbrels in a daunce. And Mir Jam sang before them: Sing ye vnto the Lorde, for he is become glorious in dede: the horse and his ryder hathe he ouerthrowne in the see. Moses brought Israel from the red see, and they went out in to the wyldernelle of Sur. And they went thre dayes longe in the wyldernelle, and could fynd no water. At last they came to Mara: but could not drinke of the waters for bitternelle, for they were bitter, therfore the name of the place was called Mara. Then ♀ people murmured against Moses, sayinge: * what shal we drinke? And Moses cried vnto the Lorde, and he shewed hym a tree which he caste in to the waters, and they waxed swete.

There he made vnto them an ordinaunce and a lawe, and there he proued them, and said: If ye wyll herken to the voyce of the Lorde your God, and do that which is ryght in his syght, and gyue eare to his commaundementes, and kepe all his ordinaunces: I wyll put none of these diseases vpon you, whiche I broughte vpon the Egyptians/ for I am the Lorde God your surgeon.

Israel were gone out of Egypt, the same daye they came in to the wyldernesse of Sinai. * For they were departed from Raphi- *Nu.xxxiii.c dim; and were come to the desert of Sinai, and had pitched their tentes in the wyldernes. And there Israel pytched before the mounte. And Moses wente vp to God. And the Lorde called to him out of the mountayne, saying/thus saye to the house of Jacob, and tel the children of Israel: ye haue sene what I dyd to the Egyptians, and how I toke you vp vpon egles

shal be vnto me a kyngdom of preestes, and an holy people, these are the wordes which thou i.Petter.ii.b
shalte saye vnto the chyldren of Israel.
And Moses came and called for the elders
of Israel, and layde before them all these wor-
des, whiche the Lorde had commaunded him.
And the people answered all togyther and sayde: All that the Lorde hath sayd, we wyll doo. And Moses broughte the wordes of the people vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Lo, I wyll come vnto the in a thicke cloude, that the people may heare when I talke with the, and also bileue the for euer.

CAPI. XXVI.

A And thou shalte make an habitacyon with tenne curtaynes of twyned bysse, Jacyncte, scarlet, and purple/ and shalt make them with cherubyns of brodred worke. The lengthe of a curtayne shall be. xxviij. cubytes, and the bredth foure / and they shall be all of one measure: fyue curtaynes shall be coupled togyther one to an other / and the other fyue lykewyse shall be coupled togyther one to an other.

B Then shalte thou make loupes of Jacyncte colour, alonge by the edge of the one curtayne euen in the seluege of the couplynge curtayne. And lykewyse shalte thou make in the edge of the vttermost curtayne, that is coupled therwith on the other syde. Fyftye loupes shalte thou make in the one curtayne, and fyftye in the edge of the other that is coupled therwith on the other syde: so that the loupes be one ouer agaynst an other. And thou shalte make fyftye buttons of golde, and couple the curtaynes togither with the buttons, that it may be an habitacion.

And thou shalt make eleuen curtaynes of gotes heere, to be a tente to couer the habitacion. The length of a curtayne shall be. xxx. cubytes/ and the bredth foure / and they shall be all. xi. of one measure. And thou shalte couple fyue by them selues, and the other syxe by them selues, and shalte double the syxte in the fore fronte of the tabernacle. And thou shalte
C make fyftye loupes in the edge of the vttermost curtayne on the one syde, euen in the couplynge curtayne: and as many in the edge of the couplynge curtayne on the other syde.
And thou shalt make fyftye buttons of brasse, and put them on the loupes, and couple the tent togyther withall, that there maye be one coueryng.

And the remnaunt that resteth in the curtaynes of the tente, the bredth of halfe a curtayne, that remaineth shal be left on the backe sydes of the habitaciõ: a cubyte on the one syde and a cubyte on the other syde, of that that remayneth in the length of the curtaynes of the tabernacle, which shall remayne of either syde of the habitacion, to couer it with.

And thou shalt make an other couerynge for D
the tent of rammes skynnes dyed red/ and yet an other aboue all of taxus skynnes.

And thou shalte make bordes for the habitacion of Sethim wodde to stande vpryghte, ten cubytes longe shall euery borde be, and a cubyte and a halfe brode. Two fete shall one borde haue to couple them togither with, and so thou shalt make vnto all the bordes of the tabernacle.

And thou shalte make. xx. bordes for the habitacion on the south syde, & thou shalte make. xl. sockettes of syluer, and put them vnder the. xx. bordes, two sockettes vnder euery borde for theyr two feete. In lyke maner in the northe syde of the habitacion there shall be. xx. bordes and. xl. sockettes of syluer: two sockettes vn- E der euery borde.

And for the west ende of the habitacion shalt thou make syxe bordes, and two bordes moo for the two Weste corners of the habitacion: so that these two bordes be coupled togyther benethe, and lykewyse aboue with clampes. And so shall it be in bothe the corners. And so there shall be eyght bordes in all, and sixtene sockettes of syluer, two sockettes vnder euery borde.

And thou shalte make barres of Sethim- F
wod, fyue for the bordes of the one syde of the tabernacle, and fyue for the other syde, and fyue for the bordes of the west ende. And the myddle barre shall goo alonge thorowe the myddes of the bordes, and barre them togyther frome the one ende vnto the other. And thou shalte couer the bordes with golde, and make golden rynges for them to put the barres thorowe, and shalte couer the barres with golde also. And rere vp the habitacion accordyng to the facion therof that was shewed in the mounte.

And thou shalte make a vayle of Jacyncte, of scarlet, purple, and twyned bysse/ and shalt make it of brodred worke, and full of cherubyns. And hange it vpon four pyllers of Sethim wod couered with golde, and that theyr knoppes be couered with golde also, and stand G
vpon four sockettes of syluer. And thou shalte hange vp the vayle with rynges, and shalte bryng in within the vayle the arke of wytnes. And the vayle shall deuyde the holy frome the ☩ moost holy. And thou shalte put the mercye seate vpon the arke of wytnesse in the holyest place. And thou shalte put the table without the vayle, and candelstycke ouer agaynste the table vpon the south syde of the habitacion, and put the table on the north syde.

And thou shalte make an hangynge for the dore of the tabernacle, of Jacyncte, of scarlet, of

CAPI. XXVII.

And thou shalt make an aultare of Sethim wodde: fyue cubytes longe, and fyue cubytes brode, that it be foure-square, and thre cubytes hyghe. And make it hornes procedinge out in the foure corners of it, & couer it with brasse. And make his asshepannes, shouels, basens, fleshhokes, fyrepãnes, and all the appartenaunces, of brasse, & thou shalt make a gredyern also lyke a net, of brasse: vpon whose foure corners, shalbe. iiij. brasen rynges: and the gredyern shall reache vnto the myddes of ȳ altare. And thou shalte make staues for the altare of Sethim wodde, & couer them with brasse, and let theym be put in rynges alonge by the sydes of the altare to beare it with, and make the aulter holowe wt bordes: as it was shewed the in the mounte, so let them make it.

B And thou shalt make ☩ a court vnto the habitation, whiche shall haue in the southe syde hangynges of twyned bysse, beynge an hundred cubytes longe, and. xx. pylers therof, wt their. xx. sockettes of brasse: but the knoppes of the pylers and their howpes shalbe syluer. In lykewyse on the north syde, there shall be hangynges of an hundred cubytes longe, and. xx. pilers with their sockettes of brasse, and ȳ knoppes and the howpes of syluer. And in the breadth of the court westwarde, there shall be hangynges of fyfty cubytes longe, and ten pylers, with their ten sockettes. And in the breadth of the courte eastwarde, towarde the rysynge of the sonne, shalbe hangynges of. l. cubytes.

C So there shalbe hangynges of. xv. cubytes in the one syde of it, with thre pylers. and. iij. sockettes: and lykwyse on the other syde shal be hangynges of. xv. cubytes with. iij. pylers and. iij. sockettes.

And in the gate of the courte shalbe a vayle of twenty cubites: of Jacincte, scarlet, purpul and twyned bysse wrought with nedle worke and. iiij. pylers with their. iiij. sockettes. All the pylers rounde aboute the courte, shall be howped with syluer, and their knoppes of syl

CAPI. XXVIII.

And take thou vnto the Aaron thy brother and his sonnes with hym, forth of the children of Israel, that he maye minister vnto me, both Aaron, Nadab, Abihu, A Eleazar, and Ithamar, Aarons sonnes. And thou shalt make holy rayment for Aaron thy brother, both honourable & glorious. Moreouer speke vnto al that are wyse harted, whiche I haue fylled with the spirite of wysdome: that they make Aarons raymẽt to consecrate hym with, that he maye mynistre vnto me.

These are the garmentes whiche they shal make: a ☩ brestlappe, Ephod, a tunycle, a strayte cote, a myter and a gyrdell. And they shal make holy garmentes for Aaron thy brother, and his sonnes, that he maye mynistre vnto me.

☩ Brestlappe or brestflappe is suche a flappe as is i the brest of a cope.

And they shall take therto golde, Jacincte, B scarlet purpull and bysse. And they shall make the Ephod of Golde, iacyncte, scarlet, purpul and whyte twyned bysse with broderd worke. The two sydes shall come togyther, closed vp in the edges therof. And the gyrdell of the Ephod shalbe of the same workmanshyp and of the same stuffe, euen of golde, iacincte, scarlet, purpull and twyned bysse.

And thou shalt take two Onyx stones, and graue in them the names of the children of Israel: syxe in the one stone, and the other syxe in the other stone: accordynge to the order of their byrth. After the worke of a stonegrauer, euen as sygnettes are grauẽ, shalt thou graue the. ij. stones with the names of the children of Israel, and shalt make them to be set in ouches of golde. And thou shalt put the two stones vpon the two shoulders of the Ephod, & they shalbe stones of remembraunce vnto the children of Israel. And Aaron shal beare their C names before the Lorde vpon his two shoulders for a remẽbraunce. And thou shalt make hokes of golde and two cheynes of fyne gold: lynkeworke and wrethed, and fasten the wrethed cheynes to the hokes.

And thou shalt make the brestlappe of iudgement with broderd worke: euen after the worke of the Ephod, shalte thou make it: of golde, iacincte, scarlet, purple & twyned bysse shalt thou make it. Fowresquare it shalbe, & double, an hande brede longe, and an hande brede brode. And thou shalte fyll it with. iiij. rowes of stones. In the firste rowe shall be a Sardios, a Topas, and an Emeraude. The seconde rowe, a ☩ Rubye, Saphir and Diamonde. The thirde: Lygurios, an Achat and Amatist. The fourth: a Turcas, Onix, and Jaspis. And they shall be set in golde in their inclosers. And the stones shall be grauen, as sygnettes be grauen: with the names of the D
children of Israel euen with twelue names euery one with his name accordynge to the. xij tribes.

Foure rowes of stones.

☩ Some rede a carbuncle.

And thou shalt make vpon the brestlappe,

two

two fastenynge cheynes of pure golde & wre-then worke. And thou shalte make lykewyse vpon the brestlappe two rynges of golde, and put them on the edges of the brestlappe, and put the two wrethen cheynes of golde, in the two rynges, whiche are in the edges of the brestlappe. And the two endes, of the. ij. cheynes, thou shalt fasten in the two rynges, and put them vpon the shulders of the Ephod on the forepyde ofit. And thou shalt yet make. ij.
rynges of golde, and put them in the two edges of the brestlappe euen in the borders ther
of towarde the inpyde of the Ephop that is ouer againste it. And yet two other rynges of golde thou shalt make, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth ouer against the brestlappe, alowe where the sydes are ioy ned togyther vpon the bordered gyrdell of the Ephod. And they shal bynde the brestlappe by his rynges, vnto the rynges of the Ephod, w
a lace of Jacincte, that it maye lye closse vnto
the brodered gyrdell of the Ephod, that the brestlappe be not loosed frome the Ephod.

E And Aaron shall beare the names of the childzen of Jsrael, in the brestlappe of iudge-ment, vpon his hert, when he goeth into the holye place, for a remembraunce, before the Lorde alway. And thou shalt put in the brestlappe of iudgement * Urim and Thumin: þ
they be vpon Aarons herte, when he goeth in before the Lorde, and Aaron shall beare the enfaumple of the childzen of Jsrael, vpon his herte, before the Lorde alwaye.

* Urim and Thumin, are Hebrewe wor-des Urim signifieth lyght and Thumin perfectnes.

And thou shalte make the tunycle vnto the Ephod, all togither of Jacincte. And there shalbe an hole for the heed, in the myddes of it, and let there be a bonde of wouen worke rounde aboute the colet of it, (as it were the colet of a partlet) that it rent not. And beneth vpon the hem, thou shalt make pomgranates
of Jacincte. of scarlet, and of purple, round about the hem, & belles of golde betwene them
rounde about: that there be euer a golden bel and a pomgranate, rounde aboute vpon the hem of the tunycle. And Aaron shall haue it vpon him, when he ministreth, that the sound
maye be herde, when he goeth into the holy place, before the Lorde, and when he cōmeth
out, that he dye not.

And thou shalt make a plate of pure golde,
and graue theron, (as sygnettes are grauen)

holy thinges which the childrē of Jsrael haue halowed in all their holy gyftes. And it shalbe alwayes vpō Aarons forehed, that they may be accepted before the Lorde.

And thou shalt make an albe of bysse, and thou shalt make a myttre of bysse, and a gyrdel of nedle worke.

And thou shalt make for Aarons sonnes al so cotes. gyrdels and bonettes honourable & glorious and thou shalt put them vpon Aarō thy brother, and on his sonnes with him and shalt annoynte them. and fyll their handes, &
consecrate them that they maye minister vn-

¶ The consecracion of Aaron and his sonnes.

CAPI. XXIX.

THis is the thynge that thou shalt do vn g
to them when thou halowest theym to be my preestes. Take one oxe and two rammes that are without blemysh, and vnleuended bred, and cakes of swete bred tempered with oyle, and wafers of swete bred, annoynted with oyle (of wheten floure shalte thou make them) and put them in a maunde
and bringe them in the maunde with the oxe,
and the two rammes.

And bringe Aaron and his sonnes, vnto þ
dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and wasshe
them with water, and take the garmentes, &
put vpon Aaron: the strayte cote. and the tunycle of the Ephod, and the Ephod, and the brestlappe: and gyrde them to him, with the brodered gyrdell of the Ephod. And put the myttre vpon his heed, and put the holy crown
vpon the myttre. Then take the annoyntinge
oyle, and powre it vpon his heed and anoynt
him. And bringe his sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrde theym with gyrdels: as wel Aaron as his sonnes. And put the bonet-tes on them, that the preestes office maye be theirs for a perpetuall lawe.

And fyll the handes of Aarō and of his son-
nes, and bringe the oxe before the tabernacle
of wytnesse. * And let Aaron and his sonnes *Leui.viii.
put their handes vpon his heed, and kyll him
before the Lorde in the dore of the tabernacle
of wytnesse. And take of the bloude of the oxe and put it vpon the hornes of the alter, with thy fyngar and powre all the bloud vpon the botome of the alter, and take all the fat that coutereth the inwardes, and the kall that is on the lyuer, and the two kydneis with the fat that is vpon them: and burne them vpon
the alter: But the flesh of the oxe & his skynne
and his donge shalt thou burne with fyre wō
out the hoste, For it is a synne offeringe.

Then take one of the rammes, and let Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpō the heade of the ram, and cause hym to be slayne
and take of his bloude, and sprenkel it round about vpon the altar, and cut the ram in pe-ces, and wasshe the inwardes of him and his legges, and put them vnto the peces, and vn to his heed, and burne the hole ram vpon the alter. For it is a burnt offeringe to the Lorde and a swete sauoure of the Lordes sacrifice.

And take the other ram, and let Aaron and his sonnes, put their handes vpon his heed, &
let him than be kylled. And take of his bloud and put it vpon the typpe of the right eare of Aaron and of his sonnes, & vpon the thombe
of their

of their right handes, and vpon the great too
of their right fete, and sprenkell the bloude vpon the alter round about.

d Then take of the bloude, that is vpon the alter, and of the annoyntinge oyle, and spren kell it vpon Aaron, and his vestimentes, and
vpon his sonnes, and vpon their garmentes also. Then is he and his clothes holy and his sonnes, and their clothes holy also.

Then take the fat of the ramme, and his
rompe, and the fat that coureth the inward-es, and the kall of the lyuer, and the two kyd
neys, and the fat that is vpon them, and the ryght shoulder (for that ram is a full offringe)
and a cymnell of bred, and a cake of oyled bred
and a wafer oute of the basket of swete bred that is before the Lorde, and put all vpon the handes of Aarō, and on the handes of his son-
nes: and waue them in & out a waue offringe vnto the Lorde. Then take it frome of their handes, and burne it vpon the alter: euen vpon the burntoffring, to be a sauoure of swetnesse before the Lorde. For it is a sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Then take the breste of the ram
e that is Aarons full offrynge, and shalt sanctisfie it an offringe before the Lorde, and let that be thy part. And sanctify the brest of the waue
offringe, and the shoulder of the heueoffringe, which is the fulloffringe of Aaron, and of his sonnes. And it shalbe Aarons and his sonnes ductie for euer, of the childzen of Jsrael, for it is an heueoffringe. And the heueoffring shall be the Lordes ductye of the childzen of Jsrael:
euen of the sacrifice of their peaceofferinges, whiche they haue vnto the Lorde. And the ho ly garmentes of Aaron, shalbe his sonnes after him, to annoynte them therin, and to fill their handes therin. And that sonne that is preest in his stede after hym, shal put them on seuen dayes: that he go into the tabernacle of wytnesse, to mynistre in the holy place.

Then take the ram that is the fulloffringe
f and sethe his flesshe in an holy place. And Aaron and his sonnes shall eate the flesh of hym
and the bred that is in the basket: euen in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And they shall eate them, because the attonement was made therwith to fyll their handes, and to san ctifie them: but a straūger shall not eate ther-
of, because they are holy.

If ought of the flesshe of the fulloffringes,
or of the bread remayne vnto the morninge,
thou shalte burne it with fyre: for it shall not be eaten, because it is holy. And se thou do vn to Aaron and his sonnes, euen so in all thin-ges as I haue commaunded the: that thou fil
their handes seuen dayes, and offre euery day
an oxe for a synne offringe to reconcyle with.
And thou shalt halowe the alter, when thou reconcylest it, and shalt annoynte it, to sanctifie it. Seuen dayes thou shalte reconcyle the g alter. and sanctifie it, that it maye be an alter most holye: so that no man may touche it but they that be consecrate.

This is that thou shalt offre vpon the alter
two lambes of one yere olde, daye by day for euer, the one thou shalt offre in the mornynge
and the other at euē. And vnto the one lambe take a tenth deale of floure myngled with the fourth parte of an hin of beaten oyle, and the fourth parte of an hin of wyne, for a drynkoffringe. And the other lambe thou shalte offer at euen, and shalt do thereto accordynge to the meateoffringe and drynkeoffringe in the mor-nynge, to be an odoure of a swete sauoure of þ sacrifice of the Lorde. And it shalbe a continuall burnt offringe, amonge your childzen after you, in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, before the Lorde, where I will mete you, to speke vnto you there. There I wil mete with the childzen of Jsrael, and will be sanctyfyed, in myne honoure. And I will sanctifie the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the alter: and I wil sanctifie also both Aaron and his sonnes to be my preestes. And moreouer I wil dwell amōg
the childzen of Jsrael, and will be their God.
And they shall knowe that I am the Lorde
their God, that brought them out of the lād of Egypte, to dwell amonge them: euen I þ Lorde their God.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayenge: take principall spices: of pure myrre fyue hundred sycles, of swete cynamome halfe so moch two hundred and fyftye sycles: of swete calamyte, two hundred and fyfty. Of cassia, two hundred and fyfty, after the holy sycle, and of oyle olyue, an hin. And make of them ⸸ holy anoyntynge oyle, euen an oyle compounde after the crafte of the Apotycary. And annoynte the tabernacle of wytnesse therwith, and the arke of wytnesse, and the table with al his appartenaunce, and the candelstycke with al his ordinaunce, and the altare of incense, and the alter of burnt sacrifice and all his vessels, & the lauer and his fote. And sacrifie them that they may be most holy: so that no man touche them, but they that be halowed. And anoynte Aaron and his sonnes, and consecrate them to ministre vnto me.

⸸ This holy anoyntynge oyle, doth fygure the vertue of the holy ghost, declared or shewed by the word of god: & descendyng downe fyrste on the hed of Aaron, which is Christ, and consequently vpon the Apostles and all the faythfull as in Psalmus cxxxii.a

And thou shalt speake vnto the children of Israel, sayeng: This shalbe an holy oyntinge oyle vnto me, thorowe oute youre generacions. No mans fleshe shalbe annoynted therwith: neyther shall ye make any other after the makynge of it, for it is holye, se therfore that ye take it for holy: Who so euer maketh lyke that, or who so euer putteth any of it vpon a straunger, shall perysshe frome his people.

And the Lorde sayde to Moses: Take to the swete spices: stacte, onycha, swete galbanum, and pure frankencens, of eche lyke moche: and make encense of them compounde after the crafte of the apotycary, myngled togither, that it maye be made pure and holy. And beate it to powder, and put it before the witnesse, in the tabernacle of wytnesse, where I wyll mete the, but let it be vnto you holye. And se that ye make none after the makyng of that, but let it be vnto you holy for the Lorde. And who so euer shall make lyke vnto that, to smell there to, shall perysshe frome his people.

¶ The callinge of Bezaleel and Aholiab the work men. The Saboth is commaunded. The tables of stone are gyuen Moses.

CAPI. XXXI.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: Beholde *I haue called by name Bezaleel, the sonne of Vri, sonne to Hur, of the trybe of Iuda. And I haue fylled hym with the sprete of God, with wysdome, vnderstandynge and knowledge: euen in all maner worke, to fynde oute sotle craftes, to worke in golde, syluer and brasse, and with ẏ crafte to graue stones, to set and to carue in tymbre, and to worke in all maner workmanshyp. And beholde, I haue gyuen hym, to be companyon, Aholiab, the sonne of Ahisamach of the trybe of Dan, & in the hertes of all that are wyse harted, I haue put wysdom to make all that I haue commaunded the: the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the arcke of wytnesse, and the mercyseate that is there vpon all the ornamentes of the tabernacle, and the table with his ordinaūce, and the pure candelsticke with all his apparell, and the alter of incens, and the alter of burnt offringes, with all his vessels, and the lauer with his foote, and the vestimentes to minister in, and the holy garmentes for Aaron the preest, and the garmentes of his sonnes to ministre in, & the annoyntynge oyle, and the swete sense for the sanctuary: accordynge to all that I haue commaunded the, shall they do. A B

C

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayeng: Speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye: In any wyse, se that ye kepe my *Sabboth, for it shall be a signe betwene me and you, in youre generacyons, for to knowe, that I the Lorde doo sanctifie you. Kepe my Sabboth therfore, that it be an holy thinge vnto you. He that defyleth it shalbe slayne therfore. For who so euer worketh there in, the same soule shalbe roted out frome his people.

D

Sixe dayes shal men worke, but the seuenth daye is the Sabboth, of the holye reste of the Lorde: so that who so euer doeth any worke in the Sabboth daye, shall dye for it: Wherfore let the children of Israel kepe the Sabboth, that they obserue it thorowe out their generacions, that it be an appoyntement for euer. For it shalbe a signe betwene me and the children of Israel, for euer. *For in six dayes the Lorde made heauen and earthe, and the seuenth daye he rested and was refresshed.

And when he hadde made an ende of comenynge with Moses vpon the mounte Sinai, *he gaue him two tables of wytnesse: which were of stone, and written with the ⸸ fynger of God.

¶ The Israelites worshyp the golden calfe. Moses prayeth for them, puttynge God in remembraunce of his promyse. He breaketh the tables for anger. He chydeth Aaron. The ydolaters are slayn. Moses prayeth God to forgyue them, or to put him out of the booke of lyfe.

CAPI. XXXII.

And

AND when the people sawe that it was longe or Moses came downe of ẏ mountayne, they gathered them selues togither, and came vnto Aaron, and sayde vnto him. *Aryse and make vs a God to go before vs: for of this Moses thy felow that brought vs oute of the lande of Egypte, we wote not what is become. …es.vii.e

And Aaron sayde vnto them: plucke of the golden earynges, whiche are in the eares of your wyues, your sonnes and of your doughters: and bringe theym vnto me. And all the people plucked of the golden earynges, that were in their eares, and broughte theym vnto Aaron. And he *receyued them of their handes, and facyoned it with a grauer and made it a calfe of molten metall. And they sayde: *This is thy God O Israel, whiche broughte the out of the lande of Egypte. …alm.cv.c …Reg.xii.f

And when Aaron saw that, he made an altare before it, and made a Proclamation sayenge, To morowe shall be holy daye vnto the Lorde. And they rose vp in the mornynge and offred burntoffringes, and broughte offringes of attonement also. *And than they sat them downe to eate and drinke, and rose vp agayne to playe. …orin.x.b

Then the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: *go get the downe, for thy people whiche thou broughtest oute of the lande of Egypte haue marred all, they are turned at once out of the waye whiche I commaunded them: *& haue made them a calfe of molten metall, and haue worshypped it, and haue offred therto, & haue sayde: This is thy God thou Israel, whiche hath brought the out of the lande of Egypte. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: behold *I se this people that it is a styfe necked people and nowe therfore suffre me that my wrathe maye waxe hote vpon them, and that I maye consume them: and then will I make of the a myghty people. …ut.ix.b C

Then Moses besought the Lorde his God and sayde: O Lorde, Why shulde thy wrath waxe hote vpon thy people whiche thou haste brought out of the lande of Egypte wt greate power and with a myghtye hande? *wherfore shulde the Egypcians speake and say: For a myschefe dyd he brynge theym out: euen to slee them in the mountaynes, and to consume them frome the face of the earth? Turne from thy fearse wrath, and haue compassion ouer ẏ wyckednesse of thy people. Remembre Abraham, Isaac and Israel thy seruauntes, to whō thou sworest by thyne owne selfe, and saydest vnto them: *I will multiplye youre seed as the starres of heauen, and all this lande whiche I haue sayde, I will gyue vnto your seed: & they shall enheret it for euer. And the Lorde refrayned him selfe frome that euyll, which he sayde he wolde do vnto his people. D

And Moses turned his backe, and wente downe frome the hyll, and the two tables of wytnesse in his hande: whiche were written on bothe the leaues, and were the worke of God, and the wrytynge was the wryting of God, grauen vpon the tables. And when Iosua herde the noyse of the people as they shouted, he sayde vnto Moses: there is a noyse of warre in the hoste. And he sayde: it is not the crye of them that haue the mastrye, nor of thē that haue the worse: but I do heare the noyse of syngynge.

And as sone as he came nyghe vnto the host and sawe the calfe and the daūsyng, his wrath waxed hote, and he cast the tables out of his hande, and brake them euen at the hyll fote. And he toke the calfe which they had made, & burned it with fyre, and stampt it vnto powder, and strawed it in the water, and made ẏ children of Israel drynke. And than Moses sayde vnto Aaron: What dyd this people vnto the, that thou hast brought so great a synne vpon them? E

And Aaron sayde: let not the wrath of my Lorde waxe fearse, thou knowest the people that they are euen set on myschefe: they sayde vnto me: Make vs a God to go before vs, for we wote not what is become of Moses thy felow, that brought vs out of the lande of Egypte. And I sayd vnto them: Let them that haue golde, take and bringe it me: And I cast it into the fyre, & thereof came out this calfe. F

When Moses sawe that the people were naked (for Aaron had made them naked vnto their shame when they made insurrection) he went and stode in the gate of the hoste, & sayd: Yf any man pertayne vnto the Lorde, let him come to me. And all the sonnes of Leui gathered them selues togyther, and came vnto him. And he sayde vnto them: Thus sayth ẏ Lorde of Israel: *Put euery man his sweerd by his syde, and go in and out from gate to gate thorow out the host: and slee euery man his brother, euery man his frende, and euery mā his neyghboure. And the children of Leui dyd as Moses had sayde. *And there were slayne of the people the same daye, aboute thre thousande men. Then Moses sayde: fyll your hādes vnto the Lorde this daye, euery man vpō his sonne and vpon his brother: to bringe vpon you a blessynge this daye. *Nu.xxv.a *i.Corin.x.b

And on the morowe, Moyses sayde vnto the people: Ye haue synned a great synne. But now I will goo vp vnto the Lorde, to wytte whyther I can make an attonement for your synne.

And Moses went agayne vnto the Lorde, & sayde: Oh, this people haue synned a great synne, and haue made them a god of gold: yet forgyue them their synne I praye the: Yf not ⸸ wype me out of thy boke whiche thou haste written. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I will put him out of my boke that hath synned against me. But goo and bringe the people vnto the lande which I sayd vnto the: beholde, myne aungell shall goo before the. Neuerthelater in the daye when I vyset, I will ‡ vyset their synne vpon them. And the Lorde plaged the people, because they made the calfe which Aaron made.

⸸ To wype hym out of ẏ booke, is to put him oute of the nōbre of the chosen and to caste him clean out frome god, as Roman.ix.a.

‡ To vyset theyr sinne is to haue theyr synn in remēbraunce to punyshe it: as in Genesis.l.d

¶ The Lorde sendeth an angell before his people. The Lorde denyeth to go vp with the people. The people lament theyr synne. Moses talketh with the Lorde and desyreth to se his face: and is commaunded to stande vpon the rocke.

CAPI.

CAP. XXXIII.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: departe and go hence: both thou and the people which thou hast brought out of the lande of Egypt, vnto the lande whiche I swore vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, sayenge: vnto thy seed I will gyue it. * And I will sende an angell before the, and will caste oute the Cananytes, the Amorytes, the Hethites, the Pherezites, the Heuites, and the Jebusytes: that thou maiste go into a lande that floweth with mylke and honye. But I will not go amonge you my selfe, for ye are a stynecked people: lest I consume you by the waye. And when the people herde this cupll tydinges, they sorowed: and no man dyd put on his best rayment.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, Say vnto the children of Israell: ye are a stynecked people: I must come once sodenly vpon you, and make an ende of you. But now put your goodly rayment from you, that I maye wete what to do vnto you. And the children of Israel layde their goodly rayment frome them euen vnder the mount Horeb.

B And Moses toke the tabernacle & pytched it without the hoste a farre of frome the hoste, and called it the tabernacle of wytnesse. And all that wolde are any question of the Lorde, wente oute vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, which was without the hoste. And when Moses went out vnto the tabernacle, all the people rose vp, and stode euery man in his tent dore, and loked after Moses, vntyll he was gone into the tabernacle. And as sone as Moses was entred into the tabernacle, the clouden pyller descended, and stode in the doore of the tabernacle, and he talked with Moses. And when all the people saw the clouden pyller stande in the tabernacle dore, they rose vp & worshipped: euery man in his tent dore.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses ⊙ face to face, as a man speaketh vnto his frende. And when Moses turned agayn into the host, the lad Josua his seruaunte the sonne of Nun departed not out of the tabernacle. And Moses sayde vnto the Lorde: Se, thou saydest vnto me: Leade this people forthe, but thou hewest me not whom thou wilt sende with me. And hast sayd moreouer: I know the by name and thou hast also founde grace in my sighte: Now therfore, yf I haue founde fauour in thy sight, then shew me thy waye, & let me know the: that I maye fynde grace in thy sighte. And loke on this also, how that this nacyon is thy people.

And he sayde: my presence shall go with the, and I will gyue the rest. And he sayd: Yf thy presence go not with me, cary vs not hence for how shall it be knowen now that both I and thy people haue founde fauoure in thy sighte, but in that thou goest with vs: that bothe I and thy people haue a preeminence before all the people that are vpon the face of the earth. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: I will do this also that thou haste sayde, for thou haste founde grace in my syghte, and I knowe the by name.

And he sayde: I beseche the, shewe me thy glory: And he sayd: I wyll make all my good go before the, & I will be called in this name Jehouah before the, and wyll shewe mercy to whome I shewe mercye, and wyll haue compassion on whome I haue compassion. And he sayde furthermore: thou mayst not se my face, for ⊙ there shall no man se me and lyue.

And the Lorde sayde, Beholde, there is a place by me, & thou shalt stonde vpon a rocke, and whyle my glory goeth forthe, I will put the in a clyfte of the rocke, and will put myne hande vpon the whyle I passe by. And then I wyll take awaye myne hande, and thou shalte se my backe partes: but my face shall not be sene.

¶ The tables are renued. The mercye of God. To haue felowshyp with the gentyles is forbidden, and theyr ydolatrie also. The feast of swete breade. The fyrste begotten. The Sabboth. The feaste of the wekes. The fyrste frutes. Moses fast, Moses face glystreth.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: hewe the two tables of stone, lyke vnto the first, that I may wryte in them the wordes which were in the first two tables, which thou brakest. And be redy against the morning that thou mayst come vp early vnto the mount of Sinai and stande me there vpon the toppe of the mounte. But let no man come vp with the, neyther let any man be sene thorowe out all the mount, neyther let shepe nor oxen fede before the hyll.

And Moses hewed two tables of stone like vnto the first, and rose vp early in the morning and went vp vnto the mount of Sinai as the Lorde commaunded him, and toke in his hand the two tables of stone. And the Lorde descended in the cloude, & stode with him there: and he called vpon the name of the Lorde. And when the Lorde walked before him, he cryed: *Jac. xxiii.c Deute. xiiii.c
Lorde * Lorde God, full of compassion and mercy, whiche atte not lyghtly angrye, but abundant in mercy and truth, and kepest mercy in store for thousandes, and forgyuest wyckednesse, trespace, and synne (for there is no man innocent before the) and visytest the wyckednesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, & vpon chyldrens chyldren, euen vnto the thyrde and fourth generations. And Moses bowed him selfe to the erth quyckly, and worshypped and sayde: Yf I haue founde grace in thy syght, o Lorde, then let my Lorde go with vs (for it is a stubburne people) and haue mercy vpon our wickednes and our synne, and let vs be thyne enheritaunce.

And he sayd: beholde, I make an appoyntment before all this people, that I will do marueiles, suche as haue not bene doone in all the worlde, neither amonge any nation. And all the people, amonge which thou art, shal se the worke of the Lorde: for it is a terrible thynge that I wyll do with the: kepe all that I commaunde the this daye, and beholde, I wyl cast out the out before the: the Amorites, Cananytes, Hethytes, Pherezites, Heuytes, and Jebusites. * Take hede to thy self, that thou make no leage with the inhabyters of ỹ lande whether thou goeste, leaste it be cause of ruyne amonge you. But ouerthrow their altars and breake their pylers, and cut downe their groues, for thou shalte worshyppe no straunge God. For the Lorde is called gelous, because he is a gelous God: least yf thou make any agreement with the inhabitauntes of the land when they go a hoorynge after their goddes and w sacrifice vnto their goddes, they call ỹ and thou eate of their sacrifice: and thou take of their doughters vnto thy sonnes, and whē their doughters go a hoorynge after their goddes, they make thy sonnes go a hoorynge after their goddes also.

L Thou shalt make the no goddes of metall. The feast of swete bred shalte thou kepe, and seuen dayes thou shalt eate vnleuend bred (as I commaunded the) in the tyme appoynted in the moneth of Abib: for in the moneth of Abib thou camest out of Egypte. All that breaketh vp the matrice shalbe myne, and al that breaketh the matrye amonge thy catell, yf it be male: whether it be oxe or a shepe. But ỹ firste of the asse thou shalte bye oute with a shepe, or if thou redeme him not: se thou breake his necke. All the firste borne of thy sonnes thou must nedes redeme. * And se that no mā appeare before me emptye.

Sixe dayes thou shalte worke, and the seuenth thou shalt rest: bothe frome earynge & reappynge. * Thou shalte obserue the feast of wekes with the first frutes of wheate hervest and the feast of ingaderynge at the yeres ende. Thrise in a yere shall all youre men children appeare before the Lorde omnipotent God of Israel: for I will cast out the nacyons before the, and wyll enlarge thy costes, so that no man shall desyre thy lande, whyle thou goest vp to apeare before the face of the Lorde thy God, thryse in the yere.

* Thou shalte not offre the bloude of my sacrifice with leuended bred: neyther shall ought of the sacrifice of the feast of Passouer be lefte vnto the morninge. The firste of the firste frutes of thy lande, thou shalte bryng vnto the house of the Lorde thy God. And se, thou seethe not a kydde in his mothers mylke.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: Wryte these wordes, for vpon these wordes I haue made a couenaunt with the, and with the children of Israel. * And he was there with the Lorde. xl. dayes, and. xl. nyghtes, and neyther ate bred nor dranke water. And he wrote in the tables the wordes of the couenaunt: euen ten verses.

And Moses came downe frome mount Sinai, and the two tables of wytnesse in his hande, and wyste not that his face shone with beames of his commenynge with the Lorde.

And when Aaron and all the children of Israel looked vpon Moses, and sawe that the skynne of his face shone with beames, they were afrayde to come nyghe him. But he called them to hym, and then Aaron and all the chiefe of the company came vnto him, & Moses talked with them.

And at last all the children of Israel came vnto him, and he gaue commaundement vnto them of all that the Lorde had sayde vnto him in mounte Sinai. And as soone as he hadde made an ende of talkynge with them, he put a couerynge vpon his face. But when he wēt before the Lorde to speake with him, he toke the couerynge of, vntyll he came out. And he came out and spake vnto the children of Israel that which he was commaunded. And the children of Israel sawe the face of Moses, that the skynne of his face shone with beames / but Moses put a couerynge vpon his face, tyll he wente in to commen with him.

¶ The Sabboth. The fyrste frutes are requyred. The redynes of the people to offre. Bezaleel and Aholiab are praysed of Moses and set to worke.

CAPI. XXXV.

AND Moses gathered all the companye of the chyldren of Israel together, and sayde vnto them / these are the thynges whiche the Lorde hathe commaunded to do. Sixe dayes ye shall worke, but the seuenth daye shall be vnto you the holy Sabboth of the Lordes reste / so that who so euer wothe anye worke therein, shall dye. Moreouer ye shall kyndle no fyre thorowe out all your habitations, vpon the Sabboth daye.

And Moses spake vnto all the multytude of the chyldren of Israel saying * this is the thynge whiche the Lorde commaunded, sayinge. Gyue frome amonge you fyrste frutes vnto the Lorde. *Exo. xxv.a.

All that are wyllynge in theyr hartes, shall bryng fyrste frutes vnto the Lorde: golde, syluer, brasse, Jacyncte, scarlet, purple, bysse, and gotes heare: rammes skynnes reed and taxus skynnes and Sethim wood: and oyle for lyghtes and spices for the anoynting oyle and for the swete encense: & Onixstones and stones to be set for the Ephod and for the brestlappe.

And lette all theym that are wyse harted among you, come and make all that the Lord hathe commaunded: the habytacion and the tente therof with his couerynge and his ringes, bordes, barres, pyllers, and sockettes, the arke and the staues therof with the mercyseate and the vayle that couered it / the table and his staues, with all that pertayneth therto and the shewbred / the candelsticke of lyght with his furnishynge and his lampes, and the oyle for the lyghtes / the incense alter and his staues, the anoyntynge oyle, and the swete incense and the hangynge before the tabernacle wre / the altare of burntsacrifices, & his brasen gredyron that lōgeth therto with his staues and all his ordynaunce, and the

lauer & his fote: the hangynges of the court with his pylers and their fockettes, and the hangynge to the woze of the courte: the pynnes of the habitation, and the pynnes of the courte with their boozdes: the mynysteinge garmentes to minister with in holynesse, and the holy vestymentes of Aaron the preast and the vestymentes of his sonnes, to mynystre in.

And all the company of the childzen of Israell departed frome the presence of Moses.

And they went (as many as their hertes couraged them, & as many as their spirites made them wyllynge) and brought heueofferinges vnto the Lozde, to the makynge of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and foz all his vses, & foz the holy vestimentes. And the men came with the wemen (euen as many as were wyllinge herted) and brought braceletes, earynges, rynges and gyrdels, and all maner Jewels of golde. And all the men that waued waueofferinges of golde vnto the Lozde and euery mã with whome was founde Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple, Bysse oz gootes heare oz red skynnes of Rammes oz Taxus skynnes, brought it. And all ỹ houe vp golde oz brasse, brought an heueofferynge vnto the Lozde. And all men with whome was founde Sethim wode mete foz anye manner wozke / oz seruice, brought it.

And all the wemen that were wyse herted to wozke with their handes, span & brought the sponne wozke, both of Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple and Bysse. And all the wemen that excelled in wysdome of herte, spanne the gootes hayre. And the Lozdes brought Onix stones and sectiones foz the Ephod, and foz the brestlappe, and spyce and oyle / bothe foz the lyghtes and foz the annoynting oyle and foz the swete incense. And the childzen of Israel brought wyllyngeofferinges vnto the Lozde, both men and wemen / as many as their hertes made them wyllinge to bringe, foz all maner wozkes which the Lozde had commaũded to make by the hande of Moses.

And Moses sayde vnto the childzen of Israel / beholde * the Lozde hath cast by name
*Exo.xxxi.a. Bezaleel the sonne of Ury the sonne of Hur of the tryde of Juda, and hathe fylled hym with the spyrite of God, with wysdome, vnderstandinge and knowledge, euen in all maner wozke, and to fynde out curyous wozkes, to wozke in golde, sylucr and brasse / & with graueynge of stones to set, and with kerninge in wode, and to wozke in all maner of subtle wozkes. And he hathe put in his herte the grace to teache / bothe hym and Aholiab the sonne of Ahisamach of the tryde of Dan hath he fylled with wysdome of herte, to wozke al maner of grauen wozke / they are also broderers and wozkers with nedle, In Jacynct, Scarlet, Purple and Bysse, and are weuers that can make all maner wozke, and can deuyse subtel wozkes.

AND Bezaleel wrought and Aholiab & all wyse herted men, to whome the Lozde hadde gyuen wysdome and vnderstandynge, to knowe howe to wozke all maner wozke foz the holy seruyce, in all that the Lozde commaunded. A

And Moses called foz Bezaleel Aholiab, & all the wyse herted men, in whose hertes the Lozde hadde put wysdome, euen as many as their hertes were encouraged to come vnto ỹ wozke to wozke it. And they receyued of Moses all the heueofferinges which the childzen of Israel hadde brought foz the wozke of the holye seruice to make it with all. And they brought beside that wyllynge offerynges euery mozynge.

And all the wyse men that wrought all the holy wozke, came euery man from his wozke whiche they made, and spake vnto Moses sayenge / the people bringe to mocheandaboue that is ynoughe to serue foz the wozke which the Lozde hathe commaunded to make. And then Moses gaue a commaundement, & they caused it to be proclamed throw out the host sayenge / se that neyther man noz woman prepare any moze wozke foz the holye heueofferinge, and so the people were forbidden to bringe / foz the stuffe they had, was sufficiẽt foz them vnto all the wozke, to make it and to mochе.

And all the wyse herted men among them that wrought in the wozke of the habytaciõ made / euen ten curteynes of twyned Bysse, Jacynct, Scarlet, and Purple, and made them full of Cherubins with broderd wozke. The length of one curtayne was. xxviij. cubytes, and the bredth foure, and were all of one syse. And they coupled fyue curtaynes by them selues, and other fyue by them selues. And they made fyfty loupes of Jacynct alõg by the edge of the furdest curtayne, euẽ in the seluege of the coupilynge curtayne / And lykewyse they made on the syde of the furdest coupilynge curtayne on the other syde, fyfty loupes they made in the one curtayne, and fyfty in the edge of the coupilynge curtayne on the other syde / so that the loupes were one ouer against an other. B

And they made fyfty rynges of golde / and coupled the curtaynes one to an other with the rynges / and so was it made a dwellinge place.

And they made.xi. curtaynes of gotes hayre to be a tent ouer the tabernacle thirtye cubytes longe a pece, and foure cubytes brode, & they all. xj. of one syse. And they coupled. v. by them selues, and. vi. by them selues, & they made fyfty loupes alonge by the border of the furdest coupilynge curtayne on the one syde / & fyfty in the edge of the coupilynge courtayne on the other syde. And they made fyfty rynges of brasse to couple the tente togyther that it myghte be one. And they made a couerynge vnto the tente of Rammes skynnes reed, and yet an other of Taxus skynnes aboue all. C

And they made boxdes foz the dwellynge place of Sethim wode that stode vpright euery boxde ten cubytes longe, and a cubyte and an halfe brode. And they made two feete to euery boxde of the dwellynge place ioynynge one to an other. And they made twenty boxdes foz the southsyde of the habitation, and.xl sockettes of syluer vnder the. xx. boxdes two sockettes vnder euery boxde, euen foz the two feete of theym. And foz the other syde of the dwellynge towarde the Noxth, they made other twenty boxdes with fourty sockettes of syluer, two sockettes vnder euery boxde. And behynde in the ende of the tabernacle towarde the west, they made sixe boxdes and two other boxdes foz the cozners of the habytation behynde, and they were ioyned close bothe beneth and also aboue with clampes & thus they dyd to bothe the cozners: so they were in all eyght boxdes and. xvi. sockettes vnder euery boxde two sockettes. D

And they made barres of Sethim wode. v. foz the boxdes of the one syde of the habitation and fyue foz the other, and fyue foz the boxdes of the west ende of the habitation. And they made the myddell barre to shoote throwe the boxdes: frome the one ende to the other, and ouerlayde the boxdes w̃ golde, and made them rynges of golde to thrust the barres throw, and couered the barres with golde. And they made an hangynge of Jacynct, of Scarlet, Purple and twyned bysse with Cherubins of broderd wozke. And made thereunto foure pylers of Sethim wode, and ouerlayde them with golde. Their knoppes were also of golde, and they cast foz them.iiij. sockettes of syluer. And they made an hangynge foz the tabernacle woxe: of Jacynct, Scarlet, purple and twyned Bysse of nedlewozke, and the pylers of it were fyue with their knoppes, and ouerlayde the heades of them and the hoopes with golde, with their fyue sockettes of brasse.

¶ The arcke of witnesse. The mercyseate. The table. The candelstycke. The lyghtes. The aulter and the incense

CAPI. XXXVII.

AND Bezaleel made the arcke of Sethim wode two cubytes and an halfe longe and a cubyte and a halfe brode, and a cubyte and an halfe hyghe: and ouerlayde it with fyne golde both within & without, and made a crowne of golde to it round aboute, and caste foz it foure rynges of golde foz the foure cozners of it: two rynges foz the one syde and two foz the other, and made staues of Sethim wode, and couered them with golde, and put the staues in the rynges along by the syde of the arcke to beare it with. a

And he made the mercyseate of pure golde two cubytes and a halfe longe and one cubite and a halfe brode, and made two Cherubins of thicke golde vpõ the two endes of the mercyseate: One Cherub on the one ende, and an other Cherub on the other ende of the mercyseate. And the Cherubins spred out their wynges aboue an hyghe, and couered the mercyseate therewith. And their faces were one to an other: towardes the mercyseate, were the faces of the Cherubins. b

And he made the table of Sethim wode. ij. cubytes longe and a cubyte brode, and a cubyte and a half hyghe, and ouerlayde it with fyne golde, and made therto a crowne of golde round about, and made therto an hoope of an hande breadth rounde about, and made vnto the hoope a crowne of golde rounde aboute, & cast foz it foure rynges of golde and put the rynges in the foure cozners by the fete: euen vnder the hoope to put staues in to beare the table with. And he made staues of Sethim wode and couered theym with golde to beare the table with, and made ỹ vessels that were on the table of pure golde, the dysshes, spones, flatpeces and pottes to poure with. c

And he made the candelstycke of pure thicke golde: both the candelstycke and his shafte: w̃ braunces, bolles, knoppes and floures procedynge out of it. Sixe braunches, procedynge out of the sydes therof, three oute of the one syde, and three out of the other. And on euery braunche were three cuppes lyke vnto almondes with knoppes and floures throwe oute the sixe braunches that proceded out of the cãdelstycke. And vpon the candelsticke selfe were foure cuppes / after the facyon / of almondes with knoppes and floures: vnder euery two braunches a knoppe. And the knoppes, and the braunches proceded oute of it, & were all one pece of pure thicke gold. And he made seuen lampes therto, and the snoffers therof, and fyrepannes of pure golde. An hundred weyght of pure golde, made bothe it and all that belonged therto.

And he made the altare of incense, of Sethim woode, of a cubyte longe, and a cubyte broode: euen foure square, and two cubytes hygbe with hornes procedynge out of it. And he couered it with pure golde, both the toppe and the sydes rounde aboute, and the hornes of it, and made vnto it a crowne of gold rounde aboute. d

And he made two rynges of golde vnto it, euen vnder the crowne vpon eyther syde of it, to put staues in foz to beare it with: & made staues of Sethym wode, and ouerlayde them with golde. And he made the holye annoyntinge oyle and the swete pure incense after ỹ Apothecaris craft.

¶ The aulter of burntoffrynges. The brasen lauer. The somme of that the people offred to the buyldyng of the habytacyon of the Lozde.

CAPI. XXXVIII.

AND he made the burntoffrynge altare of Sethim wode, fyue cubytes longe / and fyue cubytes brode: euẽ iiij. square and three cubytes hygbe. And he made hornes in the foure cozners of it procedinge out of it, and ouerlayde it with brasse. And he made all the vessels of the altare: the cauldzons, shouels, basyns, flesshehookes, and colepannes, a

all of brasse.

And he made a brason gredyron of networke vnto the altare rounde aboute alowe beneth vnder the compasse of the altare: so that it reached vnto halfe the altare, and cast foure rynges of brasse, for the foure endes of the gredyron to put staues in. And he made staues of Sethim woode, and couered theym with brasse, and put the staues in the rynges alonge by the altare syde to beare it, and made the altare holowe with bordes. And he made the lauer of brasse, and the fote of it al-
B so of brasse in the syghte of theym that dyd watche before the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And he made the court with hangynges of twyned Bysse, of an hundred cubytes longe, vpon the southsyde, and twenty pylers with twenty sockettes of brasse: but the knoppes of the pylers, and the hoopes were siluer. And on the Northsyde the hanginges were an hundred cubytes longe with twenty pylers, and twenty sockettes of brasse, but the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were of siluer. And on the west syde, were hangynges of fyfty cubytes longe, and .x. pylers with their sockettes, and the knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were siluer. And on the east syde towarde the sonne rysynge, were hangynges of fyfty cubytes: the hangynges of the one syde of the gate were fyftene cubytes lōg, and their pylers thre with their thre sockettes. And of the other syde of the courte gate were hangynges also of .xv. cubytes longe, and their pylers thre with thre sockettes.
C Now all the hangynges of the courte rounde aboute, were of twyned Bysse, and the sockettes of the pylers were brasse: but ẏ knoppes and the hoopes of the pylers were siluer and the heedes were ouerlayde with syluer, & all the pylers of the courte were hooped aboute with syluer. And the hangynge of the gate of the courte was nedleworke, of Jacyncte, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned bysse twenty cubytes longe and fyue in the bredth, accordynge to the hangynges of the courte. And the pylers were foure with foure sockettes of brasse, and the knoppes of syluer, and the heedes ouerlayde with syluer and hooped aboute with syluer, and all the pynnes of the tabernacle and of the courte rounde aboute were brasse.

This is the summe of the habitatiō of witnesse, which was counted at the commaundement of Moses: and was the office of the Leuytes by the hande of Ithamar sonne to Aaron the preeste. And Bezaleel sonne of Uri, sonne to Hur of the tribe of Juda, made all that the Lorde commaūded Moses, and with hym Ahaliab sonne of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan, a connynge grauer, and a worker of nedleworke in Jacyncte, Scarlet, Purple and Bysse.
D All the golde that was occupyed vpon all the worke of the holy place (whiche was the golde of the waueofferynge) was .xxix. hundred weyght, and seuen hundred and thyrtye sycles, accordynge to the holy sycle. And the summe of syluer that came of the multitude, was fyue score hundred weyght, and a thousande seuen hundred and .lxxv. sycles of the holy sycle. Euery man offerynge halfe a sycle after the weyght of the holy sycle among them that went to be nombred frome twenty yere olde and aboue, among six hundred thousand and thre thousande, and fyue hundred and fyfty men.

And the fyue score hundred weyght of siluer went to the castynge of the sockettes of the sanctuary and the sockettes of the vayle: an hundred sockettes of the fyue score hūdred weyght, an hundred weyght to euery socket. And the thousande seuen hundred and .lxxv. sycles, made knoppes to the pylers, and ouerlayde the heedes and hooped them.

And the brasse of the waueofferynge was .lxx. hundred weyght and two thousande, and foure hundred sycles. And therwith he made the sockettes to the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the brasen altare, and the brasen gredyron that longeth therto, and all the vessels of the altare, and the sockettes of the courte rounde about, and the sockettes of the court gate, and all the pynnes of the habitation, and all the pynnes of the courte rounde about.

¶ The makynge of Aaron and his sonnes apparell. All that the Lorde commaunded was offered.

CAPI. XXXIX.

AND of the Jacyncte, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned Bysse, they made the vestimentes of ministration to do seruice in that holy place, and made the holy garmentes that pertayned to Aaron, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. A

And they made the Ephod of golde, Jacyncte, Scarlet, Purple, and twyned bysse. And they dyd beate the golde into thynne plates, and cut it into wyres: to worke it in the Jacyncte, Scarlet, Purple, and the Bysse, with broderd worke. And they made the sydes come togyther, and closed them vp by the .ij. edges. And the brodrynge of the gyrdell that was vpon it, was of the same stuffe and after the same worke of Golde, Jacyncte, Scarlet, Purple and twyned Bysse, as the Lorde cōmaunded Moses.

And they wrought Onix stones, closed in ouches of golde and graued as signettes are grauen with the names of the children of Israel, & put them on the shoulders of ẏ Ephod that they shoulde be a remembraunce of the children of Israel, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. B

And they made the brestlappe of connynge worke, after the worke of the Ephod: euen of Golde, Jacyncte, Scarlet, Purple & twyned Bysse. And they made it foure square and double, an hande breadth long and an hande breadth brode. And they fylled it with foure rowes of stones (the first rowe Sardios, a Topas, and ✝ Smaragdus: the seconde rowe, a ✝ Rubye, a Saphir & a Diamonde: the third rowe, Ligurios, an Achat & an Amatiste: the fourth rowe, a Turcas, an Onix and a Jaspis) closed in ouches of golde in their inclosers. And the .xij. stones were grauen as signettes with the names of the children of Israel, euery stone with his name, accordyng to the .xij. tribes. C

D And they made vpon the brestlappe, two fastenynge cheynes of wrethen worke & pure golde. And they made two hokes of golde and two golde rynges, and put the two rynges vpon the two corners of the brestlappe. And they put the two cheynes of golde in the two rynges, in the corners of the brestlappe. And the two endes of the two chaynes they fastened in the two hokes, and put theym on the shoulders of the Ephod vpon the forefronte of it.

And they made two other rynges of golde and put theym on the two other corners of the brestlappe alonge vpon the edge, toward the insyde of the Ephod that is ouer agaynste it. And they made yet two other golden rynges, and put them on the two sydes of the Ephod, beneth on the foresyde of it, euen where the sydes goo togyther, aboue vpon the brodringe of the Ephod, and they strapned the brestlappe by his rynges vnto the rynges of the Ephod, with laces of Jacincte, that it myghte lye faste vpon the brodrynge of the Ephod, and shoulde not be lowsed frome of the Ephod, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he made the Tunicle vnto the Ephod
E of wouen worke, and all togyther of Jacinct, and the head of the Tunicle was in the myddest of it as the coler of a partlet, with a bond rounde aboute the coler, that it shoulde not rent. And they made beneth vpon the hem of the Tunycle, Pommegranates of Jacyncte, Scarlet, purple and twyned Bysse. And they made lytle belles of pure golde, and put thē amonge the Pommegranates rounde aboute vpon the edge of the tunycle a bell & a Pomgranate, a bell and a Pommegranate rounde aboute the hemmes of the Tunycle, to mynyster in / as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And they made cootes of bysse of wouen worke for Aaron and his sonnes, and a mytre of Bysse, and goodly bonettes of Bysse, and lynen breches of twyned bysse, and a gyrdell of twyned Bysse, Jacyncte, Scarlet and purple / euen of nedleworke, as the Lorde cōmaunded Moses.

F And they made the plate of the holy crown of fyne golde, and wrote vpon it with grauen worke, the holynes of the Lorde / and tyed it to a lace of Jacyncte to fasten it an hyghe vpon the mytre, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

Thus was all the worke of the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnesse fynysshed. And the children of Israel dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde hadde commaunded Moses.

And they brought the habitation vnto Moses / the tent and all the furniture therof / the buttons, bordes, barres, pylers and sockettes / and the coueryng of Rams skynnes red / and the couerynge of Taxus skynnes, and the hangynge vayle, and the arcke of wytnesse with the staues thereof, and the mercyseate: the table and all the ordinaunce therof, and the shewbred, and the pure candelstycke, and the lampes prepared therunto, with all the vessels therof, and the oyle for lyghtes, and the golden altare, and the annoyntynge oyle and the swete incense, and the hangynge of the tabernacle dore, and the brasen altare / and the gredyron of brasse longynge therunto with his barres and all his vessels, and the lauer with his fote, and the hangynges of ẏ courte with his pylers and sockettes, and the hanginge to the courte gate, his bordes and pynnes, and all the ordinaunce that serueth to the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the mynistring vestimentes to serue in the holy place, and the holy vestimentes of Aaron the preaste and his sonnes raymentes to mynistre in / accordynge to all ẏ the Lorde commaunded Moses / euen so the children of Israel made all the worke. And Moses behelde all the worke / and se, they hadde done it euen as the Lorde commaunded / and then Moses blessed them. G

¶ The tabernacle is reared vp. The glorye of the Lorde appeareth in a cloude couerynge the tabernacle.

CAPI. XL.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge. In the first daye of the firste moneth shalt thou set vp the habitation of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and put therin the arcke of wytnesse, and couer the arcke with the vayle, and brynge in the table and apparel it, and brynge in the candelsticke and put on his lampes, and set the cense altare of golde, before the arcke of wytnesse, and put the hangynge of the dore vnto the habitatiō. And set the burnteofferinge altare before the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, and put water therin, and make ẏ court rounde about, and set vp the hangynge of the court gate. A B

✳ And take annoyntynge oyle and anoynte the habitation, and all that is therein, and halowe it, and al that belongeth therto: that it maye be holye. And annoynte the altare of the burntofferynges, and all his vessels, and sanctifye the altare that it maye be moste holye. And annoynte also the lauer and his fote and sanctify it. ✳ Exod.xxx.c

Than brynge Aaron and his sonnes vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and wasshe them with water. And put vpon Aaron the holy vestimentes, and annoynte hym and sanctifye hym that he maye mynystre vnto me, that their annoyntinge maye be an euerlastinge preasthode vnto theym thorowe oute their generacyons. ✳ And Moses dyd ✳ Num.viii.g

accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded him.

Thus was the tabernacle reared vp the L first daye, in the fyrste moneth, in the seconde yere. And Moses reared vp the tabernacle/and fastened his sockettes, and set vp the bor-des, and put in their barres, and reared vp the pillers, and spred abrode the tent ouer the habitation, and put the couerynge of the tente
on hyghe aboue it: as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he toke and put the testimony in the arcke, and set the staues to the arcke, and put thegu crcyseate on hyghe vpon the arcke, and brogeh te the arcke into the habitation, and hanud vp the vayle and couered the arcke of wytnesse, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he put the table in the Tabernacle of
wytnesse in the Northsyde of the habitation,
without the vayle, and set the bred in order before the Lorde, euen as the Lorde had commaundrd Moses.

And he put the candelsticke in the tabernacle of witnesse ouer againste the table in the southsyde of the habitation, and set vp ϸ lam-pes before the Lorde: as the Lorde commaun
ded Moses.

And he put the golden altare in the tabernacle of witnesse before the vayle, and brent swete incense theron as the Lorde commaun-
ded Moses.

And set vp the hangynge in the wore of the habitation, and set the burntofferynge altare
before the wre of the taberuacle of wytnesse,
and offered burntofferynges and meateoffe-rynges thereon: as the Lorde commaunded D Moses.

*Exodi.xxx.c * And he set the lauer betwene the tabernacle of wytnesse and the altare, and poured water therin to washe with. And both Moses, Aaron and his sonnes washed their han-des and their feete thereat: bothe when they went into the tabernacle of wytnesse, & when they wente to the altare, as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And he reared vp the court roundeabout the habitation and the altare, and set vp the han-gynge of the court gate: and so Moses fynis-shed the worke.

* And the cloude couered the tabernacle of *Exo.xl.a wytnesse, and the glorye of the Lorde, fylled
the habitation, so that Moses coulde not entre into the tabernacle of wytnesse, because ϸ clowde abode therin, and the glorye of ϸ Lorde
fylled the habitation.

When the clowde was taken vp frome of the habytation, the childzen of Israell toke
their iourneys as ofte as they had iourneyed. And yf the clowde departed not, they iorneyed not, tyll it departed, for the clowde of the Lorde was vpon the habitation
by
daye, and fyre by nyght, in the sight
of all the house of Israel
in all their iour-neyes.

The ende of the seconde booke of Moses.

THE THYRDE BOKE OF MOSES, CALLED LEVITICVS.

The order of burnte offrynges, whether it be of small or great catell or foules.

CAPI. I.

ANd the Lorde called Moses, and spake
vnto him out of the tabernacle of witnes, sayinge: Speke to the chil dren of Israel, and saye
vnto them: who so e-uer of you shall brynge
a gyfte vnto the Lorde shall brynge it of the cattell: euen of the oxen
and of the shepe.

Yf he brynge a burnt offrynge of the oxen,
he shall bryng a male without blemysshe, and shall brynge hym to the doore of the tabernacle of wytnes, that he maye be accepted before the Lorde. And let him put his hand vpon the B heed of the burnt sacrifyce, and sauoure shall be giuen him to make an attonement for him, and let him kyll the ore before the Lorde. And let the preestes Aarons sonnes bring the bloude
and let them sprynkle it rounde aboute vpon
the alter, that is before the dore of the tabernacle of wytnes. And let the burnt offrynges be strypped and hewed in peces. And then let the sonnes of Aaron the preest put fyre vpon
the alter, and put wod vpon the fyre, and let them laye the peces with the heed and the fat
vpon the wod that is on the fyre in the alter.
But the intraples and the legges they shall washe in water, and the preest shall burne al together vpon the alter, that it be a burnt sacrifyce, and an offeryng of a swete odour vnto
C the Lorde.

Yf he wyll offre a burnt sacrifyce of the
shepe, whether it be of lambes or of the gotes
he shall offre a male without blemysshe. And let hym kyll it on the northe syde of the aulter before the Lorde. And let the preestes, Aarons sonnes sprynckle the bloude of it rounde aboute vpon the aulter. And let it be cutte in peces: euen with his heed and his fatte, and lette the Preeste put them vpon the wodde that lyeth vpon the fyre in the aulter. But lette hym washe the intraples and the leg-
ges with water, and then brynge all together and burne it vpon the aulter: that is a burnt offryng, and a sacrifice of swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

D Yf he wyll offre a burnt offrynge of the foules, he shall offre eyther of the turtle doues, or of the younge pygpons. And the Preeste shall brynge it vnto the aulter, and wrynge the necke asonder, and burne it on the aulter, and lette the bloude runne oute vpon the sydes of the aulter, and plucke awaye his croppe and his fethers, and caste
them beside the aulter on the East part vpon
the heape of asshes, and breake his wynges,
but plucke them not asonder. And then lette
the Preeste burne it vpon the aulter: euen vpon the wodde that lyeth vpon the fyre, a burnt sacrifyce, and an offerynge of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

The order of meateoffrynges, of swete cakes, of fyne flower, of frankencens. &c. without leuen and without hony, but not without salte.

CAPI. II.

YF any soule wyll offre a meat offerynge A vnto the Lorde, his offerynge shall be fyne floure, and he shall poure therto oyle, and put frankensence theron, and shall brynge it vnto Aarons sonnes the Preestes.
And one of them shall take therout his hand-full of the floure, and of the oyle with all the frankensence, and burne it for a remembraunce
vpon the aulter: an offerynge of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde. And the remnaunt of the meat offryng shall be Aarons and his sonnes,
as a thynge moost holy of the sacrifices of the Lorde.

Yf anye man brynge a meate offerynge B
that is baken in the ouen, lette hym brynge
swete cakes of fyne floure mingled with oyle,
and vnleuend wafers annopnted with oyle.
Yf thy meate offerynge be baken in the fry-
inge panne, then it shall be of swete floure myngled with oyle. And thou shalte mynce it small, and poure oyle theron: and so it is a meat offerynge.

Yf thy meat offerynge be a thynge broyled vpon the gredyron, of floure myngled with oyle it shall be. And thou shalte brynge the meat offerynge that is made of these thynges
vnto the Lorde, and shalte delyuer it to the C
preest, and he shall brynge it vnto the aulter,
and shall heue vp parte of the meat offerynge
for a memoriall, and shall burne it vpon the aulter: an offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto
the Lorde. And that is lefte of the meat offe-rynge shall be Aarons, and his sonnes, as a thynge that is mooste holy of the offerynges
of the Lorde.

All the meat offerynges which ye shal bryng
vnto the Lorde, shall be made without leuen.
For ye shall neyther burne leuen nor hony in any offeryng of the Lorde: Notwithstanding ye shall brynge the firste frutes of them vnto
the Lorde: but they shall not come vpon the aulter, to make a swete sauour.

All thy meat offeringes thou shalt salt with salte: neither shalt thou suffre the salte of the couenaunt of thy God to be lackyng from thy meat offeryng: but vpon all thyne offeringes
thou shalt brynge salte.

Yf thou offre a meat offering of the first tyde
frutes vnto the Lorde, then take that whiche D is yet grene, and dryе it by the fyre, and beat it small, and so offre the meat offring of thy first tyde frutes. And then poure oyle therto, and put frankensence theron: and so it is a meatofferynge. And the preest shall burne parte of the beaten corne, and parte of that oyle with all the

all the frankencence, for a remembrance, that is an offerynge vnto the Lorde.

¶ The order of peax offerynges, whiche were offerd for the keppynge of peax, made of oxen, shepe, lambes and gotes.

CAPI. III.

A ✱Ex.xxiiii.b

YF any man bringe a ✱ peax offerynge of the oxen: whether it be male or female, he shall bringe suche as is without blemyshe before the Lorde: and let hym put his hande vpon the heed of his offerynge, and kyll it before the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse. And Aarons sonnes the Preestes shall sprynckle the bloude vpon the aulter rounde about. And they shall offre of the peax offerynge to be a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde: the fatte that couereth the inwardes and all the fat þ is vpon the inwardes: and the two kydneys, with the fatte that lyeth vpon the loynes, and the hall that is on the lyuer they shall take awaye with the kydneys. And Aarons sonnes shall burne them vpon the aulter with the burnt sacrifyce which is vpon the wod on the fyre: that is a sacrifyce of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde.

Yf a man bringe a peax offerynge vnto the Lorde frome the flocke, whether it be male or female, it shall be without blemyshe. Yf he offre a lambe, he shall bringe it before the Lorde, and put his hande vpon his offerynges heed, and kyll it in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and Aarons sonnes shal sprynckle the bloude therof rounde about the aulter.

C And the of peax offeryng they shall bringe a sacrifyce vnto the Lorde: the fatte therof and the rompe all togyther whiche they shal take of, harde by the backe bone: and the fat that coureth the inwardes, and all the fat that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kidneys with the fatte that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the loynes, and the hall that is vpon the lyuer, he shall take awaye with the kydneys. And the Preeste shall burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lordes offeringe with.

Yf the offerynge be a goote, he shall bringe it before the Lorde, and put his hande vpon the heed of it, and kyll it before the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the sonnes of Aaron shall sprynckle the bloude therof vpon the aulter rounde about. And he shall bringe therof his offerynge vnto the Lordes sacrifyce: the fatte that coureth the inwardes, and all the fatte that is vpon the inwardes, and the two kydneys, and the fat that lyeth vpon them, and vpon the loynes, & vpon the hall that is vpon the lyuer, he shall take awaye with the kydneys. And the Preeste shall burne them vpon the aulter, to fede the Lordes sacrifyce with, and to make a swete sauour. And thus shal all the fatte be the Lordes, and it shall be a lawe for euer amonge youre generacions after you in youre dwellynge places: that ye eate neyther fat nor bloude.

¶ The offerynge made for synnes doone of ignorance.

CAPI. IIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: when a soule synneth thorow ignorasice, and hath done any of those thynges whiche the Lorde hath forbydden in his commaundementes to be doone: Yf the preest that is anoynted, synne and make the people to doo amysse, he shall bringe for his synne whiche he hathe done: an ore without blemyshe vnto the Lorde for a synne offering. And he shall bringe the ore vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse before the Lorde, and shall put his hande vpon the ore heed, & kyll hym before the Lorde.

And the preest that is ✱anoynted shal take of the ore bloude, and bringe it in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall dyppe his synger in the bloude and sprynckle therof seuen tymes before the Lorde: euen before the hangynge of the holy place. And he shall put some of the bloude vpon the hornes of the aulter of swete incense before the Lorde, which is in the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall poure all the bloude of the oxen vpon the bottome of the aulter of burnt offerynges, whiche is by the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And he shall take awaye all the fatte of the ore that is the synne offerynge: the fatte that coureth the intraples, and all the fatte that is aboute them, and the two kydneys with the fat that lieth vpon them and vpon the loynes, and the hall vpon the lyuer let them take awaye also with the kydneys: as it was taken from the ore of the peax offerynge, and let the Preeste burne them vpon the aulter of burnt offerynges. But the layme of the ore, and all his flesche with his heed, his legges, his intraples with his donge, shall he cary all togither oute of the hoste vnto a clene place: where the asshes are poured oute, and burne hym on wodde with fyre: euen vpon the heape of asshes.

Yf the hole commonaltie of the chyldren of Israel syn thorowe ignorasince, and the thing be hyd from theyr eyes: so that they haue committed any of these thynges which the Lorde hath forbydden to be done in his commaundementes and haue offended, and the synne whiche they haue synned be afterwarde knowen, then shall they offre an ore for a synne offerynge, and shall bringe hym before the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the elders of the multitude shall put theyr handes vpon his heed before the Lorde.

E of wytnesse, and shall take all his fatte frome hym, and burne it vpon the aulter, and shall do with his ore as he hyd with the synne offerynge ore. And the Preeste shall make an attonement for them, and so it shall be forgyuen them. And he shall bringe the ore without the hoste, and burne hym as he burned the firste: so is this the synne offerynge of the commonaltie.

When a Lorde synneth, and committeth thorow ignorasince any of these thynges whiche the Lorde his God hathe forbydden to be doone in his commaundementes and hath so offended: when his synne is shewed vnto hym whiche he hathe synned, he shall bringe for his offerynge an he goote without blemyshe, and laye his hande vpon the heed of it, and kyll it in the place where the burnt offerynges are kylled before the Lorde: this is a synne offerynge. Then let the preest take of the bloud of the synne offerynge with his synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offerynge aulter, and poure his bloude vpon the bottome of the burnt offerynge aulter, and burne all his fatte vpon the aulter, as he dothe the fatte of the peax offerynges. And the Preest shall make an attonement for hym as concernyng his synne, and so it shall be forgyuen hym.

F Yf one of the common people of the lande synne thorowe ignorasince, and committ any of the thynges whiche the Lorde hathe forbydden in his commaundementes to be done and so hath trespased, when his synne which he hathe synned is come to his knowlege, he shall bringe for his offerynge a he gote without blemyshe for his synne whiche he hathe synned, and laye his hande vpon the heed of the synne offerynge, and slee it in the place of burnt offerynges. ✱ And the preest shal take of the bloude with his synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offerynge aulter, and poure all the bloude vpon the bottome of the aulter, and shall take awaye all his fat as the fat of the peax offerynges is taken awaye. And the preest shall burne it vpon the aulter for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, and the preest shal make an attonement for hym, and it shal be forgyuen hym.

G Yf he bryng a lambe, and offre it for a synne offerynge, he shall bringe a female without blemyshe, and laye his hande vpon the heed of the synne offerynge, and slee it in the place where the burnt offeringes are slayne. And the preest shall take of the bloude of the synne offerynge with his synger, and put it vpon the hornes of the burnt offeryng aulter, and shall poure all the bloude therof vnto the bottome of the aulter. ✱ And he shall take awaye all the fatte therof, as the fatte of the shepe of the peax offerynges was taken awaye. And the Preest shall burne it vpon the aulter of the Lordes sacrifice, and the preest shall make an attonement for his synne, and it shall be forgyuen hym.

¶ Of othes. The clensynge of him that toucheth vncleane thynges. The purgacion of an othe and of synne done by ignorsunce.

CAPI. V.

WHen the soule hath synned, and herd the voyce of cursyng, and is a wytnes, whether he hath sene or knowne of it, yf he haue not vttered it, he shall beare his synne. A

Eyther when a man toucheth any vncleane thynge: whether it be the carpon of an vncleane beest, or of vnclene catell or vncleane wormе, and is not ware of it, he is also vncleane and hathe offended. Eyther when he toucheth any vnclennesse of man (what so euer vnclennesse it be, that a man is defyled w) and is not ware of it, and after commeth to the knowlege of it, he is a trespacer.

Either when a soule sweareth, so that he pronounceth with his lyppes to do euyll, or to doo good (what so euer it be that a man pronounceth with an othe) and the thynge be out of his mynde, and afterwarde commeth to the knowlege of it, then he hathe offended in one of these. Then when he hathe synned in one of these thynges, he shall confesse that wherin he hath synned, and shall bringe his trespace offerynge vnto the Lorde for his syn whiche he hathe synned. A femele frome the flocke, whether it be a lambe, or a she goote, for a synne offeryng. And the preest shall make an attonement for hym for his synne. ✱ But yf he be not hable to bringe a shepe, then let hym bringe for his trespace whiche he hathe synned, two turtle doues, or two yonge pygions to the Lorde, one for a synne offeryng, and an other for a burnt offerynge. And he shall bringe them vnto the preest, whiche shall offre the synne offerynge fyrste, and wrynge the necke alonder of it, but plucke it not clene of. And let hym sprynckle of the bloude of the synne offerynge vpon the syde of the aulter, and lette the reste of the bloude blede vpon the botome of the aulter, and then it is a sinne offerynge. And let him offer the seconde for a burntofferynge as the maner is: and so shall the Preeste make an attonement for him for the synne whiche he hath synned, and it shall be forgyuen hym.

And yet yf he be not hable to bringe two turtle doues or two yonge pygyons, then let him bringe his offerynge for his synne: ✱ the tenthe parte of an Epha of tyne floure for a synne offerynge, but put none oyle therto neyther put any franckencens theron, for it is a synne offerynge. And let him bringe it to the preest, and the Preest shall take his handefull of it, and burne it vpon the aulter for a remembrance. to be a sacrifyce for the Lorde: that is a synne offrynge. And let the Preest make an attonement for hym for his synne (whatsoeuer of these he hath synned) and it shall be forgiuen. And the remnaunt shalbe the prestes as it is in the meate offrynge.

And the Lorde communed with Moses, D sayinge: When a soule trespaseth and synneth thorowe ignorsunce in any of the holye thynges of the Lorde, he shall bringe for his trespace vnto the Lord a ramme without blemyshe out of the flocke valued at two sycles after the sycle of the sanquarye, for a treſpace offryng e, offeryngе. And he shall make amendes for the harme that he hath done in the holy thynge, and put the fyfte parte more to, and gyue it vnto the Preest. And the Preest shall make an attonement for hym with the ramme of the trespace offeryngе, and it shall be forgyuen hym.

When a soule synneth and committeth any of these thynges whiche are forbydden to be done by the commaundementes of the Lorde: thoughe he wyst it not, he hathe yet offended and is in synne, and shall bryngе a ram without blemyshe out of the flocke that is estemed to be worthe a synne offeryngе, vnto the Preest. And the Preest shall make an attonement for hym for the ignorаunce which he dyd, and was not ware, and it shall be forgyuen hym: This is a trespace offeryngе, for he trespaced agaynst the Lorde.

¶ The offerynges for synnes whiche are done wyllyngly. The lawe of burntoffrynges. The fyre must abyde euermore vpon the altare. The offerynges of Aaron and his sonnes.

CAPI. VI.

A And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: When a soule synneth, and trespaceth agaynst the Lorde, and denyed vnto his neyghbour that whiche was taken hym to kepe, or that was put vnder his hande or that which he hath violently taken away, or that whiche he hath discepued his neyghbour of with subtelte, or hathe founde that whiche was lost and denyeth it, and sweareth falsely in what so euer thyng it be that a man dothe, and synneth therin.

Then when he hath synned or trespaced, he shall restore agayne that he toke violently awaye or the wrongе whiche he dyd, or that whiche was delyuered him to kepe, or the lost thynge whiche he founde, or what so euer it be aboute whiche he hathe sworne falsely, he shall restore it agayne in the hole summe, and adde the fyfte parte more therto, and gyue it vnto him to whome it pertayneth, the same daye that he offereth for his trespace, and shal bryng for his trespace offeryng vnto the Lord a ramme without blemyshe out of the flocke that is estemed worth a trespace offeryngе vnto the Preest. And the Preeste shall make an attonement for him before the Lorde, and it shall be forgyuen him, in what so euer thyng it be that a man doth and trespaceth therin.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayinge:
B Commaunde Aaron and his sonnes, sayinge: this is the lawe of the burnt offeryngе. The burnt offeryngе shal be vpon the harth of the aulter all nyght vnto the mornynge, and the fyre of the aulter shall burne therin. And the preest shall put on his lynnen Albe, and his lynnen breches vpon his fleshe, and take awaye the asshes whiche the fyre of the burnt sacrifice in the aulter hath made, and put them beside the aulter, & then put of his rayment, and put on other, and carye the asshes out, without the hoost vnto a clene place.

The fyre that is vpon the aulter shal burne therin, and not go out. And the preest shal put wodde on the fyre euery mornynge, and put the burnt sacrifyce vpon it, and he shall burne theron the fatte of the peax offerynges. The fyre shall euer burne vpon the aulter, and neuer go out. *Leui.vi.d

This is the lawe of the meat offeryng: Aarons sonnes shall bryngе it before the Lorde, vnto the aulter: and one of them shall take his handfull of the floure of the meat offeryng and of the oyle with all the frankencens whiche is theron, and shall burne it for a remembraunce vpon the aulter, to be a swete sauour of the memoryall of it vnto the Lorde. C And the rest therof, Aaron and his sonnes shal eate vnleuended: it shall be eaten in the holy place: euen in the courte of the tabernacle of wytnesse they shall eate it. Their parte which I haue gyuen them of my sacrifice shall not be baken with leuen, for it is moost holy, as is the synne offeryngе, and trespace offeryngе. All the males amonge the chyldren of Aaron shall eate of it: and it shall be a duty for euer vnto your generations of the sacrifices of the Lorde, neyther shall any man touche it, but he that is halowed.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: this is the offeryngе of Aaron and of his sonnes which he shall offre vnto the Lorde in the daye when they are anoynted: the tenth part of an Epha of floure, whiche is a dayly meat offeryngе perpetually: halfe in the mornynge and halfe at nyght: and in the fryinge panne it shall be made with oyle. And when it is fryed, thou shalt bryngе it in as a baken meat offeryngе mynsed small, and shalte offer it for a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And that preeste of his sonnes that is anoynted in his steade shall offre it: and it shalbe the Lordes dutye for euer, and it shall be burnt all togyther. For all the meat offerynges of the preestes shall be burnt all togyther, and shall not be eaten. D

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron and vnto his sonnes, and saye: This is the lawe of the synne offeryngе. In the place where the burnt offeryngе is kylled, shal the synne offeryngе be kylled also before the Lorde, for it is moost holy. The preest that offereth it, shall eate it in the holy place: euen in the courte of the tabernacle of wytnesse. No man shall touche the fleshe therof saue he that is halowed. And yf any rayment be sprynckled therwith, it shall be washed in the holy place, * and the erthen potte that it is soden in, wall be broken. Yf it be soden in brasse, then the potte shall be scoured and rynsed in water. All the males amonge the Preestes shall eate therof, for it is moost holye. Notwithstandynge no synne offeryngе that hathe his bloude broughte in to the tabernacle of wytnesse to reconcyle with, in the holy place, shall be eaten: but shall be burnt in the fyre. E

¶ The

CAPI. VII.

A This is the lawe of the trespace offeryng which is moost holy. In the place where the burnt offeryngе is kylled, the trespace offeryng shal be kylled also: & his bloude shal be sprynckled round about vpon the aulter. And all the fat that couered the inwardes and the two kydneys with the fat that lyeth on them and vpon the loynes, and the hall on the lyuer shall be taken awaye with the kydneys: and the preest shal burne them vpon the aulter, to be an offeryng vnto the Lorde, this is a trespace offeryngе.

All the males among the preestes shal eate therof in the holy place, for it is moost holy. As the synne offeryngе is, so is the trespace offeryngе, one lawe serueth for bothe. And it shall be the preestes that reconcyleth therwith. And the preest that offered a mans burnt offeryng shall haue the skynne of the burnt offeryngе whiche he hath offered. And all the meat offerynges that are baken in the ouen, & all that is dressed vpon the gredyron and in the fryng pan, shall be the preestes that offereth them. And all the meat offerynges that are mingled with oyle or dryе, shall pertayne vnto all the sonnes of Aaron, and one shall haue as moche as an other.

B This is the law of the peax offeringes whiche shall be offered vnto the Lorde. Yf he offre to gyue thankes, he shal bryng vnto his thake offeryngе: swete cakes mynsled with oyle & swete wafers anoynted with oyle, and cakes mynsled with oyle of fyne flower fryed, and he shall bryngе his offeryngе vpon cakes made of leuend breed vnto the thanke offeryngе of his peax offerynges, and of them all, he shall offre one to be an heue offeryngе vnto the Lorde, and it shall be the preestes that sprynckleth the bloude of the peax offerynges. And the fleshe of the thanke offeryngе of his peax offerynges shall be eaten the same daye that it is offred, and there shall none of it be layde vp vntyll the mornynge.

Yf it be a vowe of a freewyll offering that he bryngeth that same daye that he offereth it it shall be eaten, and that remayneth maye be eaten on the morow: but as moche of the offered fleshe as remayneth vnto the thyrde daye, shall be burnt with fyre. For yf any of the fleshe of the peax offerynges be eaten in the thyrde daye, then shall he that offred it obtayne no fauour, neyther shall it be reckened vnto him, but shall be an abhominacion, and the soule that eateth of it, shall beare the synne therof.

C The fleshe that toucheth any vncleane thynge, shall not be eaten, but burnte with fyre: and all that be clene in theyr fleshe, may eate fleshe. Yf any soule eate of the fleshe of the peax offerynges that pertayne vnto the Lorde, and his vnclennes yet vpon hym, the same soule shall perysshe oute of his people. Moreouer yf a soule toucheth any vncleane thynge, wyether it be the vnclennes of man, or of any vncleane beest, or any abhominacion that is vncleane, and then eate of the fleshe of the peax offerynges, whiche pertayne vnto the Lorde, that soule shall perysshe from his people.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: Ye shall eate no maner fatte of oxen, sheepe, or gootes: yet the fatte of the beest that dyeth alone and the fatte of that whiche is torne with wylde beestes, maye be occupyed in all maner wes: but ye shall in no wyse eate of it. For who so euer eateth the fatte of the beest of whiche men bryngе an offeryngе vnto the Lorde, that soule that eateth it, shall perysshe from his people.

Moreouer ye * shall eate no maner of bloude where so euer ye dwell, whether it be of foule or of beest. What so euer soule it be that eateth any maner bloude, shall perysshe from his people. *Leui.vii.d D

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye: He that offereth his peax offeryngе vnto the Lorde, shall bryngе his gyfte vnto the Lorde of his peax offeryngе: his owne handes shall bryngе the offeryngе of the Lorde: euen the fatte vpon the brest, he shall bryngе with the brest, to waue it a waue offeryngе before the Lorde. And the preest shall burne the fat vpon the aulter, and the brest shall be Aarons and his sonnes. And the ryght shoulder they shall gyue vnto the preest, to be an heue offeryngе, of theyr peax offerynges. And the same that offereth the bloude of the peax offerynges and the fatte amonge the sonnes of Aaron, shall haue the ryght shoulder vnto his parte, for the wauebrest and the heueshoulder I haue taken of the chyldren of Israel, euen of theyr peaxofferynges, and haue giuen it vnto Aaron the preest, and vnto his sonnes: to be a dutye for euer of the chyldren of Israel.

This is the anoyntynge of Aaron, and of the sacrifyces of the Lorde, in the daye when they were offred to the preestes vnto the Lord, whiche the Lorde commaunded to be gyuen them in the daye when he anoynted them, of the chyldren of Israel, & to be a dutye for euer amonge theyr generations. This is the lawe of burntoffrynges, of meateoffrenges, of synne offerynges, of trespaceoffrenges, of fulloffrenges, of peaceoffrynges, which the Lorde commaunded Moses in the mounte Sinai, in the daye when he comaunded the chyldren of Israel to offer theyr offerynges vnto the Lorde in the wildernesse of Sinai.

CAPI. VIII.

A And the Lorde spake vnto Moses. sayinge: take Aaron and his sonnes with hym, and the vestures and the anoyntynge oyle, and an oxe for a synneofferyngе, and two rammes and a basket of swete breed: and gather all the commenye togyther vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded hym, hym, and the people gathered them selues to-gyther, vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Moses sayd vnto the people, this is the thynge which the Lozde commaun ded to do.

And Moses brought Aaron and his sonnes and washed them with water, and put vpon him the albe, and gyrded him with a gyrdell, & put vpon him the tunicle, and put the Ephod theron, and gyrded him with the brodred gyr-dell of the Ephod, and bounde it vnto hym therwith. And he put the brestlap theron, and put in the brestlap Urim and Thumim. And he put the myter vpon his heed, and put vpon the myter euen vpō the forefront of it the gol den plate of the holy crowne, as the Lozde cō-maunded Moses.

And Moses toke the anoyntynge oyle, and anoynted the habitacion and all that was therin, & sanctified them, and sprinckled therof vpon the alter seuen tymes, and anoynted the aulter and all his vessels, and the lauer with the fote, to sanctifie them. And he poured of ỹ anoyntynge oyle vpon Aarons heed, and a-noynted him to sanctifie him. And he brought Aarons sonnes, and put albes vpon them, and gyrded them with gyrdles, and put bonettes vpon theyr heedes: as the Lozde commaun-ded Moses.

And the synneofferynge was brought. And Aaron and his sonnes put their handes vpon the heed of the ore of the synneofferynge. And when it was slayne, Moses toke of the blonde and put it vpon the hornes of the alter rounde aboute with his synger, and purified it, and poured the blonde vpon the bottome of the aulter, and sanctified it, and reconciled it. And he toke al the fatte that was vpon the inwar des, and the hall that was on the lyuer, and the two kydneys with theyr fatte, and burned it vpon the aulter. But the ore, the hyde, his flesshe and his donge, he burnt with fyre without the hoste, as the Lozde commaunded Moses.

And he brought the ramme of the burntof-ferynge, and Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ramme, and it was kylled. And Moses sprynckled the blond vpon the aulter rounde aboute, and cut the ramme in peces, and burnt the heed, the peces and the fatte, and washed the inwardes and the legges in water, and burnte the ramme euery whit vpon the aulter. That was a burnt sacrifyce of a swete sauoure, and an offerynge vnto the Lozde, as the Lozde commaunded Moses.

And he brought the other ram that was the fulloffrynge, and Aaron and his sonnes put theyr handes vpon the heed of the ramme, and when it was slayne, Moses toke of the blond of it, and put it vpon the typ of Aarons ryght eare, and vpon the thombe of his right hande, and vpon the greate too of his ryght foote. Then were Aarons sonnes brought, and Mo-ses put of the blonde on the typ of the ryghte eare of them, and vpon the thombes of theyr ryghte handes, and vpon the greate toes of theyr ryghte feete, and sprynckled the blonde vpon the aulter rounde aboute.

And he toke the fat and the rompe, and all the fat that was vpon the inwardes, and the hall of the lyuer, and the two kydneys with theyr fatte, and theyr ryght shoulder. And out of the basket of swete breed that was before the Lord, he toke one swete cake of oyled bred and one wafer, and put them on the fat, and vpon the ryght shoulder: and put all together vpon Aarons handes, and vpon his sonnes handes, and waued it a waue offerynge be-fore the Lozde.

And then Moses toke them from their han des agayne, and burnt them vpon the aulter, euen vpon the burntofferynge: These are the fulofferynges of a swete sauoure, and a sacri-fyce vnto the Lozde. And Moses toke ỹ breſt, and waued it a waue offerynge before the Lozde, of the ramme of the fulofferinges: and it was Moses parte, as the Lozde commaun-ded Moses.

And Moses toke of the anoyntynge oyle, & of the blond which was vpon the aulter, and sprinckled it vpon Aaron, and vpon his vest-mentes, and vpon his sonnes and on their ve-stimentes with him, and sanctified Aaron and his vestures, and his sonnes and his sones ve-stures also. Then Moses sayd vnto Aaron & his sonnes: boyle the flesshe in the dooze of the tabernacle of witnes, and there * eate it with the breed that is in the basket of fulofferyn-ges, as the Lozde commaunded, sayinge: Aa-ron and his sonnes shall eate it: and that whi che remayneth of the flesshe and of the breed, burne it with fyre.

And se ye departe not from the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse seuen dayes longe, tyll the dayes of your fulofferynges be at an ende. For seuen dayes muste your handes be fylled, as they were this day: euen so the Lord hath commaunded to do, to thintent to reconcyle you. Se therfore ye abyde in the dooze of the ta bernacle of witnesse day and nyght seuē dayes longe: and kepe the watche of the Lozde that ye dye not, for so I am commaunded. And Aa-ron and his sonnes did all that the Lozde com maunded by the handes of Moses.

¶ The fyrste offrynges of Aaron, for hym selfe and for the people. Aaron blesseth the people. The glorye of the Lozde is shewed. The fyre commynge from aboue consumeth the sacrifyce.

CAPI. IX.

And the eyght daye, Moses called Aa-ron and his sonnes, and the elders of Is rael, and sayd to Aaron: take a calfe for a synne offerynge, a ram for a burntofferynge: both without blemysshe, and bryng them be-fore the Lozde. And vnto the children of Israel he spake, saying: take ye an he gote for a synne offerynge, and a calfe and a lambe both two of a yere old, & without blemysshe for a burnt sacrifice, and an ore and a ramme for peaxoffe-rynges, to offre before the Lozde, and a meat-offerynge myngled with oyle, for to daye the Lozde wyll appere vnto you.

And

And they brought that whiche Moses commaunded vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse and all the people came and stode before the Lozde. And Moses sayde: this is that the Lozde commaunded ye shulde do: and then the glory of the Lozde shall appere vnto you. And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: Goo vnto the aulter, and offre thy synneofferynge, and make an attonement for the and the people: and then offre the offerynge of the people, and re-concyle them also: as the Lozde commaun-ded Moses.

And Aaron went to the aulter, and slewe the calfe that was his synneofferynge. And the sonnes of Aaron brought the blonde vnto hym, and he dypte his synger in the blonde, and put it vpon the hornes of the aulter, and poured the blonde vnto the bottome of the al-ter. And the fatte and the two kydneys, with the hall of the lyuer of the synne offerynge he burnt vpon the aulter, as the Lozd commaun ded Moses: but the flesshe and the hyde, he burnt with fyre without the hoste. Afterwarde he slewe the burntofferynge, and Aarons son-nes brought the blond vnto him, and he spri-nkled it rounde aboute vpon the aulter. And they brought the burntofferynge vnto hym in peces, and the heed also, and he burnt it vpon the aulter, and dyd washe the inwardes, and the legges, and burnt them also vpō the burnt offerynge in the aulter.

And then he brought the peoples offerynge and toke the goote that was the peoples syn-offerynge, and slewe it, and offered it for a synneofferynge: as he dyd the first. And then brought the burntofferynge, and offered it as the maner was, and brought the meatoffering and fylled his hande therof, and burnt it vpon the aulter, beside the burnt sacrifice in the mor-nynge.

Then he slewe the ore and the ramme that were the peoples peaceoffrynges, and Aarons sonnes brought the blonde vnto hym, and he sprynckled it vpon the a ulter rounde aboute, and toke the fat of the ore and of the ramme: the rompe & the fat that coureth the inwardes and the kydneyes and the hall of the lyuer, and put them vpon the brestes and burne it vpon the aulter: but the brestes and the right shoulders Aaron waued before the Lozde, as the Lozde commaunded Moses. And Aaron lyfte vp his hande ouer the people and blessed them, and came downe from offerynge of syn-offrynges, burntofferinges and peaxoffrynge. Then Moses and Aaron went in to the taber-nacle of wytnesse, and came out agayne and blessed the people, and the glorye of the Lozde appeared vnto all the people. And there came a fyre out from the Lozde, and consumed vpon the aulter, the burntofferynge and the fat. And all the people sawe it, and shoted, and fell on theyr faces.

¶ Nadab and Abihu are slayne. Israel mourneth for them. The Preestes are forbidden wyne. The re-sydue of the sacrifyce the Preestes eate.

CAPI. X.

And Nadab and Abihu the sonnes of Aa ron toke either of them his censor, and put fyre therin, and put cens vpon, and brought straung fyre before the Lozde: which he commaunded them not: and there wente a fyre out from the Lozde, & consumed them, and they dyed before the Lozde. Then Moses said vnto Aaron: this is that the Lozde spake saying: I wyl be sanctified in them that come nye me, and before all the people I wyll be glorified. And Aaron held his peas. And Mo-ses called Misael and Elisaphan the sonnes of Oziel the vncle of Aaron, and said to them: Go and carye youre brethren frome the holy place out of the hoste. And they went to them and caryed them in theyr albes out of the host as Moses bad.

And Moses sayd vnto Aaron and Eliazar, and Ithamar his eldest sonnes: vncouer not your heed, neyther rent your clothes, least ye dye, and wrath come vpon all the people, let your brethren the hole house of Israel bewepe the burnynge whiche the Lozde hathe burnt. But go ye not out by the dooze of the taber-nacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye: for the anoyn-tynge oyle of the Lozde is vpon you. And they dyd as Moses bad,

And the Lozde spake vnto Aaron, sayinge: drynke no wyne ne strouge drynke, neyther thou nor thy sonnes with the: when ye go in to the tabernacle of wytnesse, lest ye dye. And let it be a lawe for euer vnto youre chyldren after you: that ye maye put difference by-twene holy and vnholy, bytwene vncleane and cleane, and that ye maye teache the chyl-dren of Israel all the ordinaunces whiche the the Lozde hath commaunded them by ỹ han-des of Moses.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron, and vn-to Eleazar and Ithamar his sonnes that were lefte. Take the meatofferynge that re-mayneth of the sacrifyces of the Lozde, and eate it without leuen beside the aulter, for it is moste holy: eate it therfore in the holy place, bycause it is thy durye and thy sonnes durye of the sacrifyce of the Lozde: for so I am commaūded. And the wauedbrest and heue shoulder eate in a cleane place: bothe thou and thy sonnes, and thy doughters with the. For it is thy durye, and thy sonnes duty with the, of the peaxofferynges of the chyldren of Israel. For the heueshoulder, and the waue-brest whiche they bryngе with the sacrifyces of the fatte, to waue it before the Lozde, shall be thyne, and thy sonnes with the: and be a lawe for euer, as the Lozde hathe com-maunded.

And Moses sought for the goote that was the synneofferynge, and se it was burnt. And he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar the sonnes of Aaaron, whiche were lefte alyue, saying: wherfore haue ye not eaten the synne offerynge in the holy place, seynge it is moste holy: and for as moche as it is gyuen you to bere the synne of the people, and make agree-ment for them before the Lozde? Beholde, the blonde of it was not brought in within the holy place, therfore shulde ye haue eaten it in the holy place, as I commaunded. And Aaron said vnto Moses: beholde, this day haue they offered their synneofferynge and their burnt offerynge before the Lorde, and it is chaunsed me after this maner. If I sholde eate of the synneofferyng to day, wolde the Lorde be content withall? And when Moses herde that, he was content.

¶ Of beastes whiche be cleane and whiche be vncleane.

CAPI. XI.

a AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, saying: speake vnto the chyldren
of Israel, and say: these are the beestes
whiche ye shall eate amonge all the beastes
that are on the erth: what so euer hath hoofe
and deuideth it in to two clawes, and cheweth cud among the beastes, that shall ye eate. But these shal ye not eate of them that chewe cud
and haue hoofes. The Camell, for he cheweth
The Camell. cud, but he deuideth not the hoofe in to two clawes, therfore he shall be vncleane vnto you.
The Conye. And the Conye, for he cheweth the cud, but de-uideth not the hofe in to two clawes, therfore
he is vncleane to you. And the Hare, for he like The Hare. wyse cheweth the cud, but deuideth not the hofe into two clawes, he is therfore vncleane to you
The swyne. And the swyne, for though he deuyde the hofe
in to two clawes, yet he cheweth not the cud,
and therfore is vncleane to you. Of their flesh
se ye eate not, and their carkalles se ye touche
b not. for they are vncleane to you.

These shal ye eate, of all that are in the wa-Fysshes. ters: what so euer haue fynnes and scales in the waters, sees and ryuers, that shal ye eate.
And all that haue not fynnes and scales in the sees and ryuers of all that moue and lyue
in the waters shall ye abhorre. Se ye eate not
c of their flesh, and also that ye abhorre their Foules. carcalles: for all that haue no fynnes nor scales in the waters, shall be abhominacion vnto you. These are the foules which ye shal abhorre, and which shal not be eaten, for they are abhominacion. The egle, the golshauke, the cormoraunt, the kyte, the bultur and all his kynde, and all kynde of rauens, the estrich
the nyghtcrow, the cuckow, the sparowhauke
and all the kynde: and the lytle oule, the storcke,
the great oule, the backe, the pellicane, the pye,
the heron, the lape with the kynde, the lapwing,
and the swalowe. And all foules that creepe and go vpo all foure, shall be an abhominacion vnto you.

d Yet these maye ye eate of all the foules that moue and go vpon four fete: euen those that haue no knees aboue vpon their fete to leape withall vpon the earthe: euen these of them ye may eate: the Arbe and all his kynde:
the Selaam with all his kynde: the Hargol
and all the kynde, the Hagab and all his kynd.
All other foules that moue and haue foure fete, shall be abhominacion vnto you. In such ye shal be vncleane who so euer touche the carkalle of them, shall be vncleane vnto the euen/
and who so euer beareth the carkalle of them
shal washe his clothes, and so shal be vncleane vntyll euen.

Amonge all maner beastes that haue hofes
and deuyde them not in to two clawes, or that chewe not the cud, shall be vncleane vnto
you: and all that toucheth them shall be vncleane. And all that goeth vpon his handes a- e monge all maner beaues that go on all foure fete, are vncleane vnto you: and as many as touche their carkalles, shall be vncleane vntyll
the euen. And he that beareth the carkalle of them, shall washe his clothes, and be vncleane vntyll the euen, for suche are vncleane vnto you.

And these are also vncleane to you amonge
the thynges that creepe vpon the erathe: the weasell, the mouse, the toode, and all his kynde,
the hedgehogge, stellio, the lizerde, the snayle,
and the moule: these are vncleane to you among all that moue, and al that touche them
when they be ded, shall be vncleane vntyll the euen. And what so euer any of the ded car-kalles of them fall vpon, shall be vncleane:
what so euer vessell of wod it be, or rayment,
or skynne, or bagge, or what so euer thynge it be that any worke is wrought withall. And they shall be plunged in the water, and be vncleane tyll the euen, and then they shal be clene agayne.

All maner of erthen vessell wherinto any of f
them falleth is vncleane with al that therin is and * ye shal breake it. All maner meate that *Leui. vi. d.
is eaten, yf any suche water come vpon it, it shall be vncleane. And all maner drynke that is dronke in all maner suche vessels shal be vn clene. And whether it be ouen or kettel it shal be broken. For they are vncleane, and shal be vncleane vnto you. Howbeit the fountaynes and welles, and pondes of water, shal be clene tyll. But who so euer toucheth their carkal-ses, shall be vncleane.

If the ded carcalle of any such fal vpon any seed vsed to sowe, it shal yet be clene tyl: but yf any water be poured vpon the seed, and afterwarde the ded carkalle of them fall theron,
then it shal be vncleane vnto you.

If any beest of whiche ye may eate, dye, he g
toucheth the ded carcalle shal be vncleane tyll
the euen. And he that eateth of any suche ded carkalle, shal washe his clothes, and remayne vncleane tyll the euen. And he also that beareth the carkalle of it, shal washe his clothes
and be vncleane tyl euen.

All that scrauleth vpon the earthe, is ab-hominacion, and shal not be eaten. And what so euer goeth vpon the brest, and what so euer goeth vpon foure or mo fete, amonge all that scrauleth vpon the erth, of that se ye eate not:
for they are abhominable.

Make not your soules abhominable with h
nothyng that creepeth, neither make your sou-
les vncleane with them: that ye sholde be defiled therby. For I am the Lorde youre God,
*be sanctified therfore that ye may be holy, or *Leui. xix. a.
I am holy: and defyle not your soules with any maner thyng that creepeth vpon the erth.
For I am the Lorde that brought you out of i the lande of Egypt to be your God: be holy therfore, for I am holy.

This

This is the lawe of beest and foule, and of all maner thynge that lyueth and moueth in the water, & of all thynges that creepe on the earth, that ye may put difference betwene vn-clene and clene, and betwene the beestes that are eaten, and the beestes that are not eaten.

¶ Howe women shuld be purged after their deliueraunce.

CAPI. XII.

a AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, and sayd: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye: when a woman hath conceyued, and hath borne a man chylde, she shall be vncleane seuen dayes: euen in lyke maner
as when she is put apart in tyme of her naturall disease. And in the eyght daye the flesh of the chyldes foreskynne shall be cut awaye. And b she shal continue in the bloude of her purify-inge. xxxiij. dayes, she shall touche no halowed
thynge, nor come in to the sanctuarye, vntyll
the tyme of her purifying be out. If she beare
a maydechylde, then she shall be vncleane two wekes, as when she hath her naturall disease.
And she shall continue in the bloude of her pu rifying. lxvj. dayes.

c *And when the dayes of her purifyinge are out: whether it be a sonne or a doughter, she shal bring a lambe of one yere olde for a burnt offering, and a ponge pigeon or a turtle doue
for a synne offeryng vnto the doze of the taber nacle of wytnesse, vnto the preest: which shall offre them before the Lorde, and make an attonement for her, & so she shal be purged of her d Leuit. v. d. yssue of bloude. *This is the law for her that Luk. ii. d hath borne a chylde, whether it be male or female. But yf she be not able to bring a sheepe
then let her bringe two turtles, or two yong pygions: the one for the burntofferynge, and the other for the synneofferyng. And the preest shall make an attonement for her, and she shall be clene.

¶ The Preestes are appoynted to iudge who are Lepers.

CAPI. XIII.

a AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, and
vnto Aaron, sayinge: when there appereth a rysyng in a mans flesshe eyther a scabbe or a glysteryng whyte: as thoughe the plage of leprosye were in the skyn of his flesh,
let him be brought vnto Aaron the preest, or vnto one of his sonnes the preestes, and lette
the preest loke on the sore that is in the skynne of his flesshe. If the heere in the sore be turned vnto whyte, & the sore also seme to be lower
then the skynne of his flesshe, then it is surely a leprosye, and let the preest loke on hym, and iudge him vncleane.

If there be but a whyte plecke in the skyn of his flesshe, and seme not to be lower then the other skyn, nor the heere therof is turned vnto whyte, then let the preest shut him vp seuen dayes. And let the preest loke vpon hym the seuenth day: yf the sore seme to hym to a-byde styll, and to go no further in the skynne,
then let the preest shut him vp yet seuen dayes
mo. And let the preest loke on him agayne the seuenth daye. Then yf the sore be waxed black ysh, and is not growen abrode in the skynne,
let ye preest make him clene, for it is but a skirf.
And let him washe his clothes, and then he is clene: But yf the scabbe growe in the skynne
after that he is sene of the preest agayn: if the preest se that the scabbe be growen abrode in the skynne, let him make hym vncleane: for it is surely a leprosye.

If the plage of leprosye be in a man, let him
be brought vnto the preest, and let the preest se him. If the rysing appeare whyte in the skyn, and haue also made the heere white, and there be rawe flesshe in the sore also: then it is an olde leprosy in the skyn of his flesshe. And the preest shall iudge him vncleane, and shall not shut him vp, for he is vncleane.

If a leprosy breake out in the skyn, and co-
uer all the skynne from the heed to the foote ouer all where so euer the preest lokeyth, then let the preest loke vpon hym. If the leprosye haue couered all his flesshe, let him iudge the disease clene, for in as moche as he is all together whyte, he is clene. But yf there be rawe flesshe on hym when he is sene, then he shall be vncleane. Therfore when the preest seeth the rawe flesshe, let him iudge him vncleane. For in
as moche as his flesshe is rawe, he is vncleane:
and it is surely a true leprosye. But if the raw flesshe depart agayn and chaunge in to white,
then let him come to the preest, and let ye preest
se hym. If the sore be chaunged vnto whyte, let the preest iudge the disease clene, and then
he is clene.

When there is a byle in the skynne of any mannes flesshe, and is healed and after in the place of the byle there appeare a whyte rysyng
eyther a shynynge whyte, somwhat redysshe,
let hym be sene of the preest. yf when the preest
seeth hym, it appeare lower then the other skynne, and the heere therof be chaunged vn-
to whyte, let the preest iudge hym vncleane:
for it is a very leprosye, that is broken out in the place of the byle. But if when the preest lo keth on it there be no white heeres therin, neither the scabbe lower then the other skynne,
and be somwhat blackysshe, then the Preeste shall shut him aparte seuen dayes. If it spred abrode in the meane season, then let the preest iudge him vncleane: for it is a leprosye. But yf the glysteryng whyte abyde styll in one place, and goo no further, then it is but the pynne of the byle, and the Preest shall iudge him clene.

When the skyn of any mans flesshe is burnt with fyre that it be rawe, and there appere in the burnynge a glysteryng whyte that is som-
what redysshe or all together whyte, let the preest loke vpon it. If the heere in that bright-nesse be chaunged to whyte, and it also appere lower then the other skynne, then it is a leprosye that is broken oute of the place of the burnynge. And the preest shall iudge him vncleane, for it is a leprosye. But yf (when the Preeste loketh on it) he se there is no whyte heere in the brightnes, and that it is no lower then thother skynne, and that it is also blackeshe, then let the Preest shut hym vp seuen dayes. And yf (when the preest loketh on him the seuenth daye) it be growen abrode in the skynne, let hym iudge hym vnclene: for it is a leprosye. But yf that bryghtnesse abyde styll in one place and go no further in the skynne and be blackesh, then it is but a rysyng in the place of the burnynge, and the Preest shall make hym cleane: for it is but the prynte of the burnynge onely.

E When eyther man or woman hathe a breakynge out vpon the heed or the beerde, let the Preest se it. And yf it appeare lower then the other skynne, and there be therin golden heeres and thynne, let the preest iudge hym vncleane, for it is a breakynge oute of leprosye vpon the heed or beerde. Yf (when the Preeste loketh on the breakynge oute) he se it is no lower then thother skynne, and that there are blacke heeres therin, let hym shut him vp seuen dayes. And let the preest loke on the disease the seuenth daye: and yf the breakynge out be gone no further, neyther be any golden heeres therin, neyther the scabbe be lower then the other skynne, then let him be shauen, but let him not shaue the scabbe: and let the preest shut hym vp seuen dayes mo. And let the preest loke on the breaking out the .vij. daye agayne: yf the breakyng out be gone no further in the skynne, nor more lower then thother skynne, then let the preest iudge him cleane, and let hym wasshe his clothes, and then he is cleane.

Yf the breakynge out growe in the skynne
F after he be ones iudged cleane, let the preeste se hym. Yf it be growen abrode in dede in the skynne, let the Preest seke no further for any golden heeres, for he is vncleane. But yf he se the scabbe stande styll, and that there is blacke heere growen vp therin, then the scabbe is healed, and he is cleane: and the Preeste shall iudge hym cleane. Yf there be founde in the skynne of the flesshe of man or woman a glysterynge whyte, lette the preest se it. Yf there appeare in theyr flesshe a glysterynge whyte, somwhat blackysshe, then it is but frekels growen vp in the skynne: and he is cleane.

Yf a mans heere fall of his heed, then he is heedbaulde and clene. Yf his heere fall before in his foreheed, then he is foreheedbaulde and clene. Yf there be in the baulde heed, or baulde foreheed a redysshe whyte scabbe, then there is leprosye spronge vp in his baulde heed, or baulde foreheed. And let the preest se it: and yf the rysynge of the sore be reddysshwhyte in his baulde heed or foreheed after the maner of a leprosye in the skynne of the flesshe, then he is a leper, and vncleane: and the preest shall iudge him vncleane, for the plage of his heed.

G And the leper in whom the plage is, shal haue his clothes rent, and his heed bare, and his mouthe mosfeld, and shall be called vncleane. And as long as the disease lasteth vpon hym, he shall be vncleane, for he is vncleane: & shall therfore dwell alone, and euen without ye host shall his habitacion be.

When the plage of leprosye is in a clothe: Lepry clothe whether it be lynnen or wollen, yea and whether it be in the warpe or wolfe of the lynnen, or of the wollen: eyther in a skynne, or any thynge made of skynne, yf the disease be pale or somwhat redysshe in the clothe or skynne: whether it be in the warpe or wolfe, or any thyng that is made of skynne, then it is a very leprosye, and must be shewed vnto the preest And when the preest seyth the plage, let hym shut it vp seuen dayes, and let him loke on the plage the seuenth daye. Yf it be increased in the cloth, whether it be in the warpe or wolfe or in a skynne, or in any thynge that is made of skynne, then the plage is a freatyng leprosye, and it is vncleane: and that clothe shall
H be burnt, eyther warpe or wolfe, whether it be wollen or lynnen, or any thynge that is made of skynne wherin the plage is, for it is a freatynge leprosye, and shall be burnt in the fyre.

Yf the preest se that the plage hath freaten no further in the clothe: eyther in the warpe or wolfe, or in what so euer thynge of skynne it be, then let the preest commaunde them to wasshe the thynge wherin the plage is, and let hym shut it vp seuen dayes and moo. And let the preest loke on it agayne after that the plage is wasshed. If the plage haue not chaunged his fasion, though it be spred no further abrode, it is yet vncleane. And se ye burne it in the fyre, for it is freat inwarde: whether in parte or in all. But yf the preest se it somwhat blackysshe after it is wasshed, let hym rent it out of the clothe, or out of the skynne, or out of the warpe or wolfe.

And yf it appeare any more in the clothe eyther in the warpe, or in the wolfe, or in any thynge made of skynne, then it is a warynge plage. And se ye burne that with fyre wherin the plage is. Moreouer the cloth either warpe or wolfe, or what so euer thing of skynne it be which thou hast wasshed, and the plage be departed from it shall be wasshed ones agayne. and then it is clene. This is the lawe for the plage of leprosye in a cloth, whether it be wollen or lynnen: either whether it be in ye warpe or wolfe, or in any thyng made of skynnes, to iudge it clene or vnclene.

¶ The cleansinge of the leper, and of the house that he is in.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, saying: * this is the law for a leper when he shall be clensed: He shal be brought vnto the preest, and the preest shall go forthe without the hoost and loke vpon hym. Yf the plage of leprosye be healed in the leper, then shall the preest commaunde that there be brought for hym that shall be clensed two lyuynge byrdes that are clene, and cedar wodde, and a pece of purple cloth and ysope. And the preest shal cōmaunde that one of the byrdes be kylled kylled in an erthen vessell with rennyng water. And the Preeste shall take the lyuynge byrde and the cedar wode and the purple and the ysope, and shal dyppe them and the lyuing byrde in the bloude of the slayne byrde, and in the rennynge water and sprynkle it vpon him that muste be clensed of his leprosye seuen tymes and clense him, and shall let the liuing byrde goo free in to the feldes.

B And he that is clensed shall wasshe his clothes, and shaue of all his heere, and wash him selfe in water, and then he is clene. And after that he shall come in to the hoost, but shal tarye without his tent seuen dayes. When the seuenth daye is come, he shall shaue of all his heere, bothe vpon his heed, and his berde, and on his browes: and euen all the heere that is on him, shall be shauen of. And he shal wasshe his clothes and his flesshe in water, and then he shall be clene.

And when the eyght daye is come, let hym take two lammes without blemysshe, and a yewelambe of a yere olde without blemysshe, and thre tenth deales of fyne flour, for a meat offerynge myngled with oyle, and a logge of oyle. Then let the Preeste that maketh him clene, brynge the man that is made clene with those thinges before the Lorde vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And let the prest take one of the lambes, & offre hym for a trespaceoffering, and the logge of oyle: and waue them before the Lorde. And then let them slee the lambe in the place where the synne offeryng and the burntoffering were slayne: euen in the holy place. For as the synneofferynge is, euen so is the trespaceofferynge of the preestes for it is moost holy.

C Then let the preest take of the bloude of the trespaceofferynge, and put it vpon the typ of the right eare of him that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hande, and vpon the great too of his right fote. Then let the preest take of the logge of oyle, and poure it in to the palme of his lefte hande, and dyp his right fynger in the oyle that is in the palme of his lefte hande, and let him sprynckle it with his fynger seuen tymes before the Lorde. And of the reste of the oyle that is in his hande, shall the preest put vpon the typ of the ryght eare of hym that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hande, and vpon the great too of his ryght fote: euen vpon the bloude of the trespaceofferynge. And the rest of the oyle that is in the preestes hande, he shall poure vpon the heed of hym that is clensed: and so shall the preest make an atonement for him before the Lorde.

Then let the preest offre the synneofferynge and make an attonement for him that is clensed for his vnclennesse. And then let the burnt offeryng be slayne, and let the preest put bothe the burntofferyng and the meatofferyng vpon the aulter: and make an attonement for him and then he shall be clene. Yf he be poore and can not get so moche, then let hym bryng one lambe for a trespace offerynge to waue it, and to make an attonement for him, and a tenthe deale of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meatofferynge, and a logge of oyle, and two turtle doues or two yonge pigions whiche he is hable to get, and let thone be a synneofferynge, and thother a burnt offerynge. And let him bryng them the eyght day for his clensing vnto the preest to the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse before the Lorde. D

And let the preest take ye lambe that is the trespace offerynge, and the logge of oyle, and waue them before the Lorde. And when the lambe of the trespaceofferynge is kylled, the preest shall take of the bloude of the trespace offerynge, and put it vpon the typ of his ryght eare that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of his ryghte hande, and vpon the greate too of his ryghte foote. And the preest shall poure of the oyle in to his ryghte hande, and shall sprynckle with his fynger of the oyle that is in his lefte hande seuen tymes before the Lorde.

And the Preest shall put on the oyle that is in his hande (vpon the typ of the ryght eare of hym that is clensed, and vpon the thombe of his ryght hande, and vpon the greate too of his ryghte foote: euen in the place where the bloude of the trespaceofferynge was put. And the reste of the oyle that is in his hande, he shall poure vpon the heed of him that is clensed: to make an atonement for hym before the Lorde. And he shall offre one of the turtle doues, or of the yonge pigions, suche as he can get: the one for a synne offeryng, and thother for a burntofferynge vpon the aulter. And so shal the preest make an attonement for him that is clensed before the Lorde. This is the lawe of him that hathe the plage of leprosye, whose hande is not hable to get that belongeth to his clensynge.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron saying: when ye become vnto the land of E
Canaan which I giue you to possesse: yf I put the plage of leprosye in the house of the lande of your possession, let hym that oweth ye house go and tell the preest, saying: me thynke that there is as it were a leprosye in the house. And the preest shall commaunde them to ryd all thynge forth of the house, before the preest, enter to se the plage: that he make not all that is in the house vnclene, and then the preest shal go in, and se the house.

Yf the Preest se that the plage is in the walles of the house, and that there be holow strakes pale or redde whiche seme to be lower then the other partes of the wall, then lette the preest go out at the house dores, and shut vp the house for seuen dayes. And let the preest come agayne the seuenth daye and se it, yf the plage be increased in the walles of the house, F lette the Preeste commaunde them to take awaye the stones in whiche the plage is, and lette them caste them in a foule place without the citye, and scrape the house within rounde aboute: and poure oute the duste withoute the cytye in a foule place. And lette them take other stones, and put them in the places of those stones, and other morter, and plaster the house with. Yf nowe the plage come agayne, and breake oute in the house, after that they haue taken awaye the stones, and scraped the house, and after that the house is playstered anewe: let the Preest come and se

it. And if then he perceyue that the plage hath eaten further in the house, it is a freetynge leprosye that is in the house, and it is vncleane.
Then they shall breake downe the house:
both the stones, tymbre, and all the morter of the house, and carye it forthe of the citye vnto a foule place. Moreouer he that goeth in to the house all the whyle it is shut vp, shall be vncleane tyll nyght. And he that sleepeth in the house shall washe his clothes, and he also that eateth in the house, shall washe
his clothes.

But yf the Preeste come and se that the
plage hathe spred no further in the house after it is newe plastered, then let hym make it cleane, for the plage is healed. And lette hym take to clense the house with: two birdes, cedar wodde, and purple clothe and yssope. And let hym kyll one of the birdes in an earthen vessell with runnynge water: and take the cedar wodde, the yssope, the purple and the lyuynge bryde, and dyppe them in the bloude
of the slayne bryde, and in the runnynge water, and sprynckle vpon the house seuen tymes, and clense the house with the bloude of the bryde, and with the runninge water, and with the lyuynge bryde, and with the cedar wodde, and the yssope, and the purple clothe.
And he shall let the lyuynge bryde flee forthe
of the towne in to the wylde feldes, and so make an attonement for the house, and it shall be cleane. This is the lawe for all maner plage of leprosye and breakynge out, and of the leprosye of clothe and house, and of rysinnges, scabbes, and glistering white, to teache when a thynge is vncleane or cleane. This is the lawe of leprosye.

¶ The maner of purgynge the vnclennes bothe of men and women.

CAPI. XV.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: Speake vnto the chil-dre of Israel, and say vnto them: euery
man that hath a runnynge yssue in his flesshe, is vncleane by reason of his yssue. And hereby shall it be knowen when he is vncleane. Yf his flesshe runne, or yf his flesshe congele by the reason of his yssue, then he is vncleane.
Euerye couche wheron he lyeth, and euerye
thynge wheron he sytteth shall be vncleane.
He that toucheth his couche shall washe his clothes, and bath him selfe with water, and
be vncleane tyll the euen.

He that sytteth on that wheron he sate,
shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe
with water, and be vncleane vntyll the euenynge. And he that toucheth his flesshe, shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in wa ter, and be vncleane vnto the euen. Yf any suche spyt vpon hym that is cleane, he musse
washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in wa ter and be vncleane vntyll euen.

And what so euer sadel that he rideth vpon
shall be vncleane. And whs so euer toucheth any thynge that was vnder hym, shal be vncleane vnto the euen. And he that beareth any suche thynges, shall washe his clothes, and bathe hym selfe in water, and be vncleane vn-
to the euen: and what so euer he toucheth (yf
he haue not fyrste washed his handes in water) must washe his clothes, and bathe hym
selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto the euenynge. And yf he touche a vessell of erth, it shall be broken: and all vessels of wod, shall be rynsed in water.

When he that hath an yssue is clensed of his yssue, let hym nombre seuen dayes after he is cleane, and washe his clothes, and bathe his flesshe in runnynge water, and then he is cleane. And the eyght daye lette hym take two turtle doues, or two yonge pygeons,
and come before the Lorde vnto the dore
of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and gyue them
vnto the Preeste. And the Preeste shall offre them: the one for a synne offerynge, and the other for a burntofferynge: and make an attonement for hym before the Lorde concernynge his yssue.

Yf any mans seed departe from him in his slepe, he shall washe his flesshe in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. And all the clothes or furres wheron suche sede chaunceth, shall be washed with water, and be vncleane vnto
the euen. And yf a woman lye with suche person, they shall washe them selues with water, and be vncleane tyll euen.

When a womans naturall course of bloud
runneth, she shall be put aparte seuen dayes:
and who so euer toucheth her, shall be vncleane vnto the euen. And all that she lyeth or sitteth vpon as longe as she is put aparte, shall be vncleane. And who so euer toucheth her couche, shall washe his clothes, and bath him
selfe with water, & be vncleane vnto the euen.
And who so euer toucheth any thyng that she sate vpon, shal washe his clothes, and washe
hym selfe also in water, and be vncleane vnto
the euen: so that whether he touch her couche
or any thynge wheron she hath sytten, he shal
be vncleane vnto the euen: and yf a man lye
with her in the meane tyme, he shall be put aparte as well as she, and shall be vncleane seuen dayes, and all his couche wherin he lepeth shall be vncleane.

When a womans bloude runneth longe
tyme, beyonde the tyme of her natural course:
as longe as her vnclennesse runneth, she shall be vncleane, after the maner as when she is put aparte. All her couches wheron she lyeth (as longe as her yssue lasteth) shall be vn-
to her as her couche, when she is put aparte.
And what so euer she sytteth vpon, shall be vncleane as is her vnclennesse when she is put aparte. And who so euer toucheth them, shall be vncleane, and shall washe his clothes, and bathe him selfe in water, and be vncleane vnto euen.

But yf she be cleane of her yssue, lette her count her seuen dayes, after that she is clene.
And the eyght daye let her take two turtles
or two yonge pygeons and bryngе them vnto
the

the preste vnto the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the preste shall offer the one for a synneofferynge, and the other for burntof-ferynge: and so make an attonement for her before the Lorde, concernynge her vncleane issue. Make ye the chyldren of Israel to kepe them selues from their vnclennes, that they dye not in their vncleannesse: when they haue
defyled my habitacion that is amonge them.

This is the lawe of him that hath a run-
nynge sore, and of hym whose seed runneth
from hym in his slepe and is defiled therwith,
and of her that bathe an yssue of bloude as longe as she is put aparte, and of whosoeuer hath a runnynge sore whether it be man or woman, and of hym that sleepeth with her that is vncleane.

¶ What Aaron muste do or he entre in to the holy place. The cleansynge of the sanctuary or holy place.
Of the geast of clensynge. Aaron confesseth the sinnes of the chyldren of Israel ouer the lyue gote and put-teth them vpon his heade.

CAPI. XVI.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses after the death of the two sonnes of Aaron, when they had offered before the Lorde and dyed: And he sayde vnto Moses:
Speake vnto Aarō thy brother that he go not at all tymes into the holy place, that is within the vayle that hangeth before the merce-seate which is vpon the arcke that he dye not
For I will appeare in a clowde vpō the mercyseate.

But on this maner shall Aaron go into the holy place: with a bullocke for a synneoffring and a Ram for a burntoffringe. And he shall put the holy lynen albe vpon him, and shall haue a lynen breche vpon his flesshe, and shal gyrde him with a lynen gyrdell, and put the lynen myter vpon his heade: for they are holy raymentes. And he shall washe his flesshe with water, and put them on. And he shall take of the multitude of the children of Israel two he gotes for a synneoffring and a Ram
for a burntoffringe.

And Aaron shall offer the bullocke for his synneoffringe and make an attonemēt for him and for his house. And he shall take the two gotes and presente them before the Lorde in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shall cast lottes ouer the two gootes:
one lot for the Lorde, & an other for a scapegote. And Aaron shall bryngе the gote vpon which the Lordes lot fell, and offer him for a synneoffringe. But the gote on which the lot fell to escape, he shal set alyue before the Lord to reconcyle with and to let him go fre into wyldernesse. And Aaron shall bryngе the bullocke of his synneoffringe, and make attonement for him selfe and for his housholde, and kyll him.

And then he shall take a censer full of burnynge coles out of the altare that is before Lorde, and his handeful of swete incense beaten small and bryngе them within the vayle,
and put the incense vpon the fyre before the Lorde: that the clowde of the incense maye
couer the mercyseate that is vpon the wytnes that he dye not. And he shall take of the bloude of the bullocke and sprynkle it with his fynger before the mercyseate eastwarde:
euen seuen tymes.

Then shall he kyll the gote that is the peo ples synneoffringe, & bringe his bloude within the vayle, and do with his bloude as he dyd
with the bloude of the bullocke, and let hym sprynkle it towarde the mercyseate, and before the mercyseate: and reconcyle the holy place
frome the vnclennesse of the children of Israel, and frome their tresspaces and all their syn
nes. And so let him do also vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse that dwelleth with them, euē amonge their vnclennesses.

And there shalbe no person in the tabernacle of wytnesse, when he goeth in to make an attonement in the holy place, tyll he come forth agayne. And he shall make attonement for him selfe and his housholde, and all the multitude of Israel. Then he shall go forthe vnto the aultare that standeth before the Lorde, and clense it, and shall take of the bloude of the bullocke, and the gote, and put vpon the hornes of the altare rounde about,
and sprynkle of the bloude vpon it with his fynger seuen tymes, and clense it, and halow
it frome the vnclennesses of the chyldren of Israel.

And when he hath clensed the holy place &
the tabernacle of wytnesse, and the altar, let him bryngе the lyue gote, and let Aaron put both his handes vpon the head of the lyue
gote, and confesse ouer him all the misdedes
of the children of Israel, and their tresspaces, &
all their synnes: and let him put them vpon
the heed of the gote, and sende him awaye by the handes of one that is acquaynted in the wyldernesse. And the goote shall beare vpon him all their misdedes into the wyldernesse,
and he shall let the gote go fre in the wyldernesse.

And let Aaron go into the Tabernacle of wytnesse, and put of the lynen clothes which he put on when he went into the holy place, and leaue them there. And let him washe his flesshe with water in the holy place, and put on his owne rayment, and then come out and offer his burntofferynge and the burntoffring
of the people, and praye for him selfe and the people, and the fat of the synneoffrynge let him burne vpon the altare. And let him that carped forth the scapegote, washe his clothes and bathe his flesshe in water, and then come into the hoste agayne.

And the bullocke of the synneoffringe and the gote of the synneofferynge (whose bloude was brought in to make an attonemēt in the holy place) let one carye forthe without the hoste and burne with fyre: both their skyn-nes, their flesshe and their donge. And let him that burneth them, washe his clothes and bathe his flesshe in water, and so come into hoste agayne. And this shalbe an ordinaunce for euer vnto you. And euen in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, ye shall humble your soules

soules and shall do no worke at al: whether it be one of your selues or a straunger that sojourneth amonge you, for that day shall an attonement be made for you to clense you frome all youre synnes before the Lorde, and ye shall be cleane. It shall be a Sabboth of reeste vnto you, and ye shal humble your soules, and it shall be an ordynaunce for euer.

And the preest that is anoynted and whose hande was fylled to mynistre in his fathers stede, shall make the attonement and shall put on, the holy lynnen clothes and holy vestimentes, and shall repourge the holy sanctuary and the tabernacle of witnesse and the aultare, and shall make attonement also for the preestes and all the people of the congregacion. And this shall be an euerlastyng ordinaunce vnto you to make attonement for the children of Israel for al theyr synnes ones a yere. and it was done euen as ꝑ Lorde commaunded Moses.

¶ All sacrifyce must be brought to the dore of the tabernacle. To deuyls may they not offer, Blonde and all baren is forbydden them.

CAPI. XVII.

A Nd the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake to Aaron and his sonnes, and vnto al the children of Israel, and tell them, this is the thyng which the Lorde charged, sayinge: what so euer he be of the house of Israel, that kylleth an oxe, lambe or gote, in the hoste or out of the hoste, and bryngeth them not vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, to offre an offeryng vnto the Lorde, before the dwellyng place of ꝑ Lorde, blonde shall be imputed vnto that man, as thoughe he had shedde blonde, and that man shall perysshe from his people.

Wherfore let the children of Israel bryng theyr offerynges that they offre in the wylde felde, vnto the Lorde: euen vnto the dore of the tabernacle of witnesse, and vnto the preest, and offre theym for the peaxofferynges vnto the Lorde. And the Preest shall syprynckle the blonde vpon the auiter of the Lorde in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and burne the fat to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And let them no more offre theyr offerynges vnto deuyls, after whome they go an hoorynge. And this shall be an ordinaunce for euer vnto you, thorowe out youre generacions.

And thou shalte saye vnto theym: what so euer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the straungers that sojourne among you, that offereth a burntofferyng, or any other offeryng, and bryngeth it not vnto the wose of the tabernacle of wytnesse to offre vnto the Lorde, the same shall perysshe frome his people. And what so euer man it be of the house of Israel, or of the straungers that sojourne amonge you that eateth any maner of blonde, I wyll sette my face agaynst that soule that eateth blonde, and wyll destroye hym out of his people, for the lyfe of the flesshe is in the blonde, and I haue geuen it vnto you vpon the aulter, to make attonement for youre soules, for blonde shall make attonemente for the soule. And therfore I sayde vnto the children of Israel: ye no soule of you eate blonde, ne any straunger that sojourneth amonge you.

Whatsoeuer man it be of the children of Israel or of the straungers that sojourne amonge you: that hunteth and catcheth any beeste or foule that maye be eaten, he shall poure out the blonde and couer it with erth, for the lyfe of al flesshe is in the blonde, therfore I sayde vnto the children of Israel ye shall eate the blonde of no maner of flesshe, for the lyfe of all flesshe is in his blonde, and whosoeuer therfore eateth it, shall perysshe. And whatsoeuer soule it be that eateth that whiche dyed alone or that whiche was torne with wylde beastes: whether it be one of youre selues or a straunger, he shall wasshe his clothes and bathe him selfe in water and shall be vncleane vnto the euen, and then is he cleane. But yf he wasshe them not nor washe his flesshe, he shall beare his synne.

¶ what degrees of kynred maye marye to sythes and what not.

CAPI. XVIII.

A Nd the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the children of Israel, and shewe them, I am the Lorde youre god. Wherfore after the doynges of the lande of Egypte wherein ye dwelte, se ye doo not: after the doynges of the lande of Canaan, whyther I wyll brynge you: neyther walke ye in theyr ordinaunces, but do after my iudgementes, and kepe myne ordynaunces, to walke therin. For I am the Lorde youre God. Kepe therfore myne ordinaunces, and my iudgementes, whiche yf a man doo, he shall lyue therby: for I am the Lorde.

Se ye goo to none of youre nyghest kynred, for to vncouer theyr secretes, for I am the Lorde. The secretes of thy father, and thy mother, se thou vnhylle not: she is thy mother, therfore shalte not thou discouer her secretes. The secretes of thy fathers wyfe shalte thou not discouer, for they are thy fathers secretes. Thou shalte not discouer the priuitie of thy sister the dughter of thy father or of thy mother: whether she be borne at home or without. Thou shalt not vncouer the secretes of thy sones daughter or thy daughters daughter, for that is thyne owne priuite: Thou shalte not vncouer the secretes of thy fathers wyues daughter, whiche she bare to thy father, for she is thy sister: Thou shalte therfore not discouer her secretes. Thou shalt not vncouer the secretes of thy fathers sister, for she is thy fathers nexte kynswoman. Thou shalte not discouer the secretes of thy mothers sister, for she is thy mothers nexte kynswoman.

Thou shalte not vncouer the secretes of thy fathers brother: that is, thou shalte not go in, to his wyfe, for she is thyne awnte. Thou shalt not discouer the secretes of thy doughter in lawe, she is thy sonnes wyfe: therfore vncouer not her secretes. Thou shalt not vnhyl the secrettes of thy brothers wife, for that is thy brothers priuite. Thou shalte not discouer the priuytes of the wyfe and her daughter also, neyther shalte thou take her sonnes daughter or her daughters daughter to vncouer theyr secrettes, they are her nexte kynne, it were therfore wyckednesse. Thou shalte not take a wyfe and her sister therto, to vexe her that thou wouldest open her secrettes as longe as the lyueth. Thou shalte not goo vnto a woman to vncouer her priuitye, as longe as she is put aparte for her vncleannesse. Thou shalte not lye with thy neyghboures wyfe, to defyle thy selfe with her. Thou shalt not gyue of thy seed to offer it vnto Moloch, ꝑ thou defyle not the name of thy God, for I am the Lorde.

Thou shalt not lye with mãkynde as with womankynde, for that is abhommacion.

Thou shalt lye with no maner of beaste to defyle thy selfe therewith, neyther shall any womã stonde before a beast to lye towne therto, for that is abhominacion.

Defyle not your selues in any of these thinges, for with all these thinges are these nacions defyled which I cast out before you: and the lande is defyled, and I will vysett the wickednesse thereof vpon it, and the lande shall spewe out her inhabitters. Kepe ye therfore myne ordinaunces and iudgementes, and se ye no none of these abhominacions: neyther any of you nor any straunger that sojourneth amonge you (for all these abhominacions haue the men of the lande wne whiche were there before you, and the lande is defyled) lest the lande spewe you out when ye haue defyled it, as it spewed oute the nacions that were there before you. For who so euer shall commit anye of these abhominacions, the same soules that do them shall perysshe frome their people. Therfore se ye kepe myne ordinaunces, that ye commit none of these abhominable customes whiche were committed before you: that ye defyle not your selues therwith for I am the Lorde your God.

¶ Repetycion of certayne lawes pertaynynge to the ten commaundementes. Consyderacion for the poore. Howe we oughte to iudge ryghtously. Howe we ought not to be auenged. witchcraft is forbidden.

CAPI. XIX.

A Nd the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to all the multitude of ꝑ children of Israel, and saye vnto the. Be holy for I the Lorde your God am holy. Se ye feare euery man his father and his mother, and that ye kepe my Sabbothes, for I am the Lorde your God. Ye shal not turne vnto ydoles nor make you goddes of metall: I am the Lorde your God.

When ye offre your peaceoffrynges vnto ꝑ Lorde, ye shall offer them that ye may be accepted. And it shalbe eaten the same daye ye offer it and on the morowe, but what so euer is lefte on the thirde daye shalbe burnt in the fyre. Yf it be eaten the thirde daye, it shalbe vnclene and not accepted. And he that eateth it shall beare his synne, because he hath defyled the halowed thinges of the Lorde, & that soule shall perysshe frome his people.

When ye reape downe the rype corne of your lande, ye shall not reape downe the vtermost borders of your feldes, neyther shalt thou gather that is lefte behynde in thy haruest. Thou shalte not plucke in all thy vyneyarde clene, ne gather in the grapes that are ouerscaped. But thou shalte leaue them for the poore and straunger. I am the Lorde your God.

Ye shal not steale neyther lye, nether deale falsely one with an other. Ye shal not swere by my name falsely / that thou defylest not the name of thy God, I am the Lorde. Thou shalte not beggle thy neyghboure with cauillations, neyther robbe him violently, nether shall the workmans labour abyde with the vnsyll the mornynge. Thou shalte not curse the deafe, neyther put a stombling blocke before the blynde / but shalt feare thy God. I am the Lorde. Ye shall do no vnrighteousnes in iudgement. Thou shalt not fauoure the poore nor honoure the myghtye, but shalte iudge thy neyghbour righteously.

Thou shalt not go vp and downe a preuye accuser amonge thy people, nether shalt thou helpe to shede the blonde of thy neyghboure / I am the Lorde. Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thyne harte, but shalt in any wyse rebuke thy neyghboure / that thou bere not synne for his sake. Thou shalt not auenge thy selfe nor beare hate in thy mynde against the children of thy people, but shalt loue thy neyghbour as thy selfe, I am the Lorde.

Kepe myne ordinaunces. Let none of thy catell gendre with a contrary kynde, neyther sowe thy felde with myngled seed, neyther shalt thou put on any garment of lynen and wollen.

Yf a man haue to do with a woman that is bonde and hathe bene medled with all of an other man which neyther is bought nor free-wome gyuen her, there shalbe a payne vpon it, but they shall not dye, because she was not made free. And he shall bryngе for his trespaceofferinge vnto the Lorde / euen vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, a Ram for a trespaceofferynge. And the preest shal make attonement for him with the Ram of the trespaceofferynge before the Lorde, for his synne whiche he hathe done / and it shall be forgyuen him, concernynge the synne whiche he hath done.

And when ye come to the lande and haue planted all maner of trees whereof men eate ye shall holde them vncircumcysed as concernynge their frute / euen three yere shal they be vncircumcysed vnto you and shall not be eate of, and the fourth yere all the frute of theym shall be holy and acceptable to the Lorde. And the fifth yere maye ye eate of the frute of them the, & gat her in the increase of them: I am the Lorde youre God. * Ye shall eate nothinge

*Leui.xvii.d with the bloude, ye shall vse no witchecrafte,
nor obserue dismall dayes, ye shall not round
the lockes of your heedes, neyther shalt thou marre the tuftes of thy beerde.
Ye shall not rent your flesshe for any soules sake, nor pryncte any markes vpon you: I am the Lorde. Thou shalt not pollute thy daugh ter, that thou wouldest mayntayne her to be an hoore: least the lande fall to whoredome, and ware full of wyckednesse. Se ye kepe my Sab bothes & feare my sanctuary: I am the Lord.
Turne not to them that worshe with spirites,
ne regarde them, that obserue dismall dayes:
that ye be not defyled by theym, for I am the Lorde youre God.
Thou shalt ryse vp before the hoorehed, &
reuerence the face of the olde man, and dread
thy God, for I am the Lorde. * Yf a straun
* Exod.xx.c ger sorourne by the in youre lande, se ye vexe
hym not: But let the straunger that dwelleth
with you, be as one of your selues, and loue him as thy selfe, for ye were straungers in the lande of Egypte. I am the Lorde your God.
Ye shall vse no vnrighteousnes in iudgemẽt neyther in meteyerde, weyght or mesure. But ye shall haue true balances, true weyghtes,
A true Epha, and a true Hin. I am the Lord your God which brought you forth of the lãd
of Egypt, that ye shulde obserue all myne or dinaunces and iudgementes and kepe them: I am the Lorde.

¶ They that gyue of their seed to Moloch shall dye therfore. Other goodly lawes necessarye to be vsed in common wealthes.

CAPI. XX.

AND the Lorde talked with Moses, say
enge: tell the children of Israel, whoso euer he be of the children of Israel or of the straungers that dwell in Israel, that gy eth of his seede vnto Moloch ye shall dye for it: the people of the lande shall stone him w stones. And I will set my face vpon that fe
low, and will destroye him frome his people:
because he hath gyuen of his seed vnto Mo
loch, to defyle my sanctuary and to polute my holy name. And thoughe the people of the lande hyde their eyes frome that felow, when he gyueth of his seed vnto Moloch, so that they kyll him not: yet I will put my face vpõ that man and vpon his generacion, and will destroye him and all that goo a hoorying with him and commit horedome with Moloch frõ
their people.
Yf any soule turne him to enchaunters or expounders of tokens and go a hoorynge after them, I will put my face vpon that soule and will destroye him frome his people. Sanctifye your selues therfore, and be holy, for I am y Lorde youre God. And se ye kepe myne ordi naunces and do them. For I am the Lorde which sanctifye you.
Who so euer curseth his father or mother,
shal dye for it, his bloude on his head, because he hath cursed his father or mother.

Ye that breaketh wedlocke with an other mans wyfe shall dye for it, because he hathe broke wedlocke with his neyghbours wyfe, &
so shall she lykewyse.
Yf a man lye with his fathers wyfe & vn
couer his fathers secrettes, they shall bothe
dye for it, their bloude be vpon their heedes.
Yf a man lye with his daughter in lawe
they shall dye both of thẽ: they haue wrought
abhominacion, their bloude vpõ their heedes.
Yf a man lye with mankynde after the ma
ner as with woman kynde, they haue bothe
committed abhominacion and shal dye for it.
Their bloude be vpon their heades.
Yf a man take a wyfe and her mother ther to, it is wyckednesse. Men shall burne with fyre both him and them, that there be no wic kednesse amonge you.
Yf a man lye with a beast he shall dye, and
ye shall slay the beast.
Yf a woman go vnto a beast and lye vpone therto: thou shalte kyll the woman and the beast also, they shall dye, and their bloude be vpon their heades.
Yf a man take his sister, his fathers daugh ter or his mothers daughter, & se her secrettes
and she se his secrettes also: it is a wycked thinge. Therfore let them perysshe in the sight of their people, he hath sene his sisters secret
nesse, he shall therfore beare his synne.
Yf a man lye with a woman in tyme of her flowers and vncouer her secretes and opẽ her fountayne, and she also open the fountayne
of her bloude, they shall both perysshe frome
the people.
Thou shalt not vncouer the secretes of thy mothers sister nor of thy fathers sister, for be that doth so, vncouereth his nexte kyn: & they shall beare their mysdoynge.
Yf a man lye with his vncles wyfe, he hath vncouered his vncles secrettes / they shall beare their synne, and shall dye childlesse.
Yf a man take his brothers wyfe, it is an vncleane thynge, he hath vncouered his bro thers secrettes, they shall be childelesse ther fore.
* Se ye kepe therfore all myne ordinaun
ces and all my iudgementes, and that ye do them / that the lande whether I bryngе you to dwell therin, spewe you not out. And se ye walke not in the maners of the nacyons whi
che I cast out before you / For they commit ted all these thinges, and I abhorred them.
But I haue sayde vnto you that ye shall enioye their lande, and that I wil gyue it vn
to you to possesse it: a lãde that floweth with mylke and hony. I am the Lorde youre God, which haue dyuyded you frome other nacõs:
* that ye shulde put difference betwene cleane
beastes and vncleane, and betwene vncleane foules and them that are cleane. Make not your soules therfore abhominable with bea
stes and foules, and with all maner thinge
that creepeth on the grounde, which I haue se uered vnto you to holde theym vncleane. Be holy vnto me, for I the Lorde am holy, and haue seuered you frome other nacions: that ye shulde be myne.
* Yf

Leuit.xviii.b, xx.xviii.a * Yf there be a man or woman that wor keth with a spirite or that expoundeth tokẽs,
they shall dye for it. Men shall stone theym
with stones, and their bloude shall be vpon
them.

¶ The preest forbydden to be at the death of any of his people, a fewe of his kynne excepte. Preestes maye not be shaven neyther on the heade nor on the bearde. The preestes wyfe muste be a mayde. The preestes daughter maye not be an harlot.

CAPI. XXI.

A AND the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: speake vnto the preestes the sonnes of Aaron and saye vnto them. A preest shall not defyle hym selfe at the death of any of his peo ple, but vpon his kynne that is nyghe vnto
him: as his mother, father, sonne, wughter
and brother: and on his sister as longe as she is a mayde and dwelleth nyghe him and was neuer gyuen to man: on her he maye defyle him selfe. But he shal not make him selfe vn cleane vpon a rular of his people to polute
him selfe withall.
They shall make them no baldnesse vpon
their heades or shaue of the lockes of their beardes, nor make any markes in their flesshe.
They shall be holy vnto their God, and not polute the name of their God, for the sacrifi ces of the Lorde and the breed of their God
they w offre: therfore they must be holy.
They shall take no wyfe that is an hoore
or polluted, or put frome her husbande: for a preest is holy vnto his God. Sanctifye hym therfore, for he offreth vp the bread of God:
he shall therfore, be holy vnto the, for I the Lorde which sanctifie you, am holy.
Yf a preestes wughter fall to play the hoore
she poluteth her father: therfore she shall be burnt with fyre.
He that is the hyghe preest amonge his bre thren vpon whose head the annoyntinge oyle was powred and whose hande was fylled to put on the vestimentes, shall not vncouer his head nor rent his clothes, neyther shall go to any dede body nor make him selfe vncleane:
not on his father or mother, neyther shall go out of the sanctuary, that he defyle not the ho ly place of his God, for the crowne of the an noyntynge oyle of God, is vpon him. I am y Lorde. He shall take a mayde vnto his wyfe:
but no wydow nor deuorced nor defyled hoore.
But he shall take a mayde of his owne peo ple to wyfe, that he defyle not his seed vpon
his people: for I am the Lorde which sancti fye hym.
And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayenge /
speake to Aaron, and saye: No mã of thy seed
in their generacions that hath any defourmitie vpon him, shall preace to offer the bred of his God: for none that hath any blemyshe shall come nere: whether he be blynde, lame, snot
nosed, or that hath any mishappen membre, or broken foted, or broken handed, or crokt bac ked, or perleyed, or gogeleyed / or maungye, or skaulde, or hath his stones broken.
No man that is defourmed of the seed of Aa ron the preest, shall come nyghe to offer the sacrifices of the Lorde. Yf he haue a defour mitie, he shall not preace to offer the bred of his God. Notwithstandinge he shall eate of the bred of his God: euen as well of the most ho ly, as of the holy: but shall not go in, vnto ỹ vayle, nor come nyghe the altare, because he is defourmed that he polute not my sanctuary/for I am the Lorde that sanctifye them. And Moses tolde it vnto Aaron and to his sonnes
and vnto all the Children of Israel.

¶ What maner personnes ought to abstayne from eatynge the thynges that were offred. How, what,
and when they shulde be offered.

CAPI. XXII.

A AND the Lorde comened with Moses, A sayenge: byd Aarõ and his sonnes that they absteyne frome the halowed thin
ges of the children of Israel which they haue halowed vnto me, that they polute not my holy name: for I am the Lorde. Saye vnto them: who so euer he be of all youre seed a monge your generacion after you, that goeth
vnto the halowed thinges which the children of Israel shall haue halowed vnto the Lorde,
his vnclennes shall be vpon hym: and that soule shall perysshe forth of my sighte. I am the Lorde.
None of the seed of Aaron that is a leper or that hath a runnynge sore, shall eate of the halowed thinges tyll he be cleane. And who so euer toucheth any vncleane soule, or man whose seed runneth frome him by nyghte, or who so euer toucheth any worme that is vn cleane to him, or man that is vncleane to him
what so euer vncleannesse he hath: the same
soule that hath any suche thinge, shall be vn cleane vntyll euen, and shall not eate of the halowed thinges vntyll he haue washed his flesshe with water. And then when the sonne B is downe, he shall be cleane and shall after warde eate of the halowed thinges: for they Exodi.xxii.d.
are his fode. * Of a beast that dyeth alone or Ezech.xliiii.g is rent with wylde beastes, he shall not eate,
to defyle him selfe therwith: I am the Lord.
But let them kepe therfore myne ordinaunce
least they lade synne vpon them and dye ther
in, when they haue defyled them selues: for
I am the Lorde which sanctify them.
There shall no straunger eate of the halo
wed thinges, neyther the preestes gest, or his hyred seruaunt. But yf the preest bye any per son with money, he maye eate of it, and he also that is borne in his house, maye eate of his bred. Yf the preestes wughter be maryed vnto a straunger, she maye not eate of the ha
lowed heueoffringes. Notwithstandinge yf
the preestes wughter be a wydow or deuorced,
and haue no childe but is returned vnto her fathers house agayne, she shall eate of her fa thers bred as well as she dyd in her youth.
But there shall no straunger eate therof. Yf
a man eate of the halowed thinges vnwittin gly, he shall put the fyfte parte therunto, and make good vnto the preest ỹ halowed thinge.
And let the preestes se, that they defyle not ỹ hale-

halowed thinges of the children of Israel
which they haue offred vnto the Lorde, least they lade them selues with miswynge & tres= pace in eatynge their halowed thinges, for I
C am the Lorde which halowe them.
And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng:
speake to Aaron and his sonnes and to all ẏ chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them, what= so euer he be of the housse of Israel or straun=
ger in Israel that will offer his offerynge:
what so euer vowe or frewyll offerynge it be whiche they wyll offer vnto the Lorde for a burntofferynge to reconcyle them selues, it must be a male without blemysh of the oxen, shepe, or gootes, let them offer nothyng that is deformed for they shall gette no fauoure Yf a man wyll offer a peaceofferynge vnto
the Lorde and seperate a vowe or a frewyll offerynge of the oxen or the flocke, it muste be without deformyte, that it maye be accepted.
There maye be no blemyshe therin: whe= ther it be blynde, broken, wounded or haue a wen, or be maungye or scabbed, se ye offer no suche vnto the Lorde, nor put an offerynge
of any such vpon the aultare vnto the Lorde.
An oxe or a shepe that hathe any membre
out of proporcion, mayste thou offer for a fre= wyll offerynge: but in a vowe it shall not be D accepted. Thou shalt not offer vnto the Lord that is brused, broken, plucked out or cutt a= waye, neyther shalte make any suche in your lande, neyther of a straungers hande shall ye offer an offrynge to your God of any suche.
For they marre al in that they haue deformy=
tes in them, and therfore can not be accepted for you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: when an oxe, a shepe, or a goote is broughte forth, it shall be seuen dayes vnder
the dame. And frome the eyght daye forth, it shall be accepted vnto a gyfte in the sacrifice of the Lorde. And whether it be oxe or shepe, ye shall not kyll it and her younge bothe in one daye.
When ye wyll offer a thanke offerynge vnto the Lorde, ye shal so offre it that ye may be accepted. And the same day, it must be eaten
vp, so that ye leaue none of it tyl the morow.
For I am the Lorde, kepe now my commaun=
dementes and do them, for I am the Lorde.
And polute not my holy name, that I maye
be halowed amonge the chyldren of Israel.
For I am the Lorde whiche halowe you, and brought you out of the lande of Egypt, to be your God: for I am the Lorde.

¶ Of the holy dayes, as the Sabboth, Ester, whit= sontyde, the feast of the fyrste frutes. The feaste of cleansynge. The feaste of Trompetes. The feast of the tabernacles.

CAPI. XXIII.

A And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, say= inge: speake vnto the chyldren of Is= rael, and saye vnto them. These are the feastes of the Lorde whiche ye shall call holy feastes. Syxe dayes ye shall worcke, and the seuenth is the Sabboth of reaste an holye
feaste: so that ye maye doo no worcke therin,
for it is the Sabboth of the Lorde, wherso= euer ye dwell. These are the feastes of the Lorde whiche ye shall proclayme holye in theyr ceasons. * The.xiiii.daye of the fyrste
moneth at euen is the Lordes * Passouer.
And the fyftene daye of the same moneth is the feaste of swete brede vnto the Lord seuen dayes ye muste eate vnleuened brede. The B fyrste daye shalbe an holy feaste vnto you, so that ye maye do no laboriouse worcke therin.
But ye shall offer sacryfyces vnto the Lorde
seuen dayes, and the seuenth daye also shalbe
an holy feaste, so that ye maye do no labory=
ous worcke therin.
And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, say=
inge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel and saye vnto them: when ye be come in to the lande which I gyue vnto you and repe doune youre haruest / ye shall brynge a shefe of the fyrste frutes of youre haruest vnto the preeste, and he shall waue the shefe before the Lorde to be accepted for you: and euen the morowe after the Sabboth the preeste shall waue it. And ye shall offer that daye when he waueth the shefe, a lambe without blemyshe
of a yere olde for a burntofferynge vnto the Lorde: and the meatofferynge thereof, two tenthe deales of fyne floure mengled with oyle to be a sacryce vnto the Lorde of a swete sauoure: and the drynkofferynge therto, the fourth deale of an hyn of wyne. And ye shall C eate neyther breade, nor parched corne, nor frymentye of new corne: vntyl the selfe same daye that ye haue brought an offerynge vnto
your God. And this shallbe a lawe for euer vnto your chyldren after you, wheresoeuer ye dwell.
And ye shall counte frome the morowe af= ter the Sabboth: euen frome the daye that ye brought the shiefe of the waueoffryng.vii.
wekes complete: euen vnto the morowe af= ter the seuen wekes, ye shal nombre.l.dayes.
And then ye shall brynge a newe meatoffring vnto the Lord. And ye shal bryng out of your habitaciōs two waueloues made of two teth deales ot fyne floure leuended and baken, for first frutes vnto the Lorde. And ye shal bring with the breed seuen lambes without disfor=
mitie of one yere of age, and one younge oxe,
and two rammes, which shal serue for burnt offrynges vnto the Lorde, with meatoffryn= ges, and drynckeoffrynges longynge to the same, to be a sacrifyce of a swete sauour vnto
the Lorde.
And ye shall offre an he gote for a synneof= frynge: and two lambes of one yere olde for peaxoffringes. And the preest shall waue them
wᵗ the bread of the first frutes before the Lord and with the two lambes. And they shall be holy vnto the Lorde, and be the preestes. And ye shall make a proclamacion the same daye, that it be an holy feast vnto you, and ye shall do no laborious worke therin: And it shal be D
a law for euer thorow out all your habitaci=
ons vnto your chyldren after you.
* When ye repe downe your haruest, thou shalt not make clene ryddaunce of thy feloe, neither

neyther shalt thou make any aftergatheringe of thy haruest: but shalt leue them vnto the pore and the straunger. I am the Lorde your God.
And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng:
speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye.
The first daye of the seuenth moneth shall be a rest of remembraunce vnto you, to blowe
hornes in, an holy feast it shalbe, and ye shal
do no laborious worke therin, and ye shal of= fer sacrifice vnto the Lorde.
And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayeng:
E also the tenthe daye of the selfe seuenth mo=
neth, is a daye of attonement, and shal be on holy feast vnto you, and ye shal humble your soules and offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde. Mo= reouer ye shal do no worke the same daye, for it is a daye of attonement to make an atton=
ment for you before the Lorde your God.
For what so euer soule it be that humbleth
not him selfe that daye, he shall be destroyed
frome his people. And what so euer soule do any maner worke that daye, the same I will destroye frome his people. Se ye do no maner worke therfore. And it shalbe a lawe for euer vnto your generacions after you in all youre dwellynges. A Sabboth of reste it shalbe vn= to you, and ye shall humble your soules. The
ix. daye of the moneth at euen and so forth frō
euen to euen agayne, ye shall kepe your Sab=
both.
F And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng:
speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye:
the.xv. daye of the same seuenth moneth, shal
be the feaste of tabernacles.vii. dayes vnto ẏ Lorde. The first daye shalbe an holy feast, so that ye shall do no laborious worke therin.
Seuen dayes ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde, and the.viii. daye shalbe an holy feast
vnto you, and ye shall offer sacrifice vnto the Lorde. It is the ende of the feast, and ye shal do no laborious worke therin.
These are the feastes of the Lorde whiche
ye shall proclayme holy feastes, for to offer sa= crifice vnto the Lorde, burntoffrynges, meat= offringes and drinkeoffringes euery daye: be= syde the Sabbothes of the Lorde, and besyde
your gyftes, and all your vowes, and al your frewilloffringes which ye shall gyue vnto the Lorde.
G Moreouer in the.xv.daye of the seueth mo=
neth after that ye haue gathered in the frutes
of the lande, ye shall kepe holy daye vnto the Lorde seuen dayes longe. The first daye shall be a daye of reste, and the eyght daye shall be a daye of rest. And ye shall take you the firste daye, the frutes of goodly trees and ẏ braun=
ches of palme trees and the bowes of thycke trees. and wylowes of the brooke: and shall reioyse before the Lorde seuen dayes. And ye shall kepe it holye daye vnto the Lorde seuen dayes in the yere. And it shall be a lawe for euer vnto youre chyldren after you, that ye kepe that feast in the seuenth moneth. And ye shall dwell in boothes seuen dayes: euen all that are Israelites borne, shall dwell in boo=
thes, that your children after you may know howe I made the children of Israel dwell in boothes, when I brought theym oute of the lande of Egypte: for I am the Lorde youre
God. And Moses tolde all the feastes of the Lorde vnto the children of Israel.

¶ The oyle for the lampes and lyghtes of the brede of remembraunce or shewbred. He that curseth must be stoned. He that kylleth shalbe kylled. &c.

CAPI. XXIIII.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, say= A enge: commaunde the children of Is= rael that they brynge vnto the, pure
oyle olyue beaten for lyghtes to powre into ẏ lampes alwaye, without the vayle of wyt= nesse within the tabernacle of wytnesse. And Aaron shall dresse them bothe euen and mor=
nynge before the Lorde alwayes. And it shal be a lawe for euer amonge youre children af= ter you. And he shall dresse the lampes vpon
the pure candelstycke before the Lorde perpe= tually.
And thou shalt take fyne floure and bake
xii. wastels therof, two tenth deales shall e= uery wastell be. And make two rowes of thē, sixe on a rowe vpon the pure table before the Lorde, and put pure frankencens vpon the rowes. And it shall be bred of remembraunce, and an offerynge to the Lorde. Euery Sab= both he shall put theym in rowes before the Lorde euermore, gyuen of the children of Is= B
rael, that it be an euerlastinge couenaunte.
And they shall be Aarons and his sonnes, and they shall eate theym in the holye place. For they are mooste holye vnto him of the offe= rynges of the Lorde, and shall be a duety for
euer.
And the son of an Israelytish wyfe whose father was an Egyptian, went oute amonge
the children of Israel. And this sonne of the Israelytysh wyfe and a man of Israel, stroue togyther in the hoste. And the Israelytyshe womans sonne blasphemed the name of the Lorde and cursed, and they brought him vn=
to Moses. And his mothers name was Sa= lomyth, the doughter of Dibry of the trybe of Dan: and they put him in warde, that Mo= ses shulde declare vnto them what the Lord
sayde therto.
And the Lorde spake vnto Moses sayenge, bringe him that blasphemed without the host ☞ and let all that herde him, put theyr handes C
vpon his heed, and let al the multitude stone
him. And speake vnto the children of Israel, sayenge. Who so euer curseth his God, shall beare his synne: And he that blasphemeth ẏ ☞
name of the Lorde, shall dye for it: all the Cursynge.
multitude shall stone him to deathe. And the straunger as well as the Israelite, yf he curse
the name, shall dye for it.
He that kylleth any man, shall dye for it,
but he that kylleth a beaste shall paye for it, Slaughter.
beast for beast. Yf a man mayme his neygh=
boure, euen as he hath done, so shal it be done Lex talionis.
to hym agayne: broke for broke, eye for eye
and tothe for tothe: euen as he hathe may=
med a man, so shall he be maymed agayne.

D So now he that kylleth a beast shall paye for it: but he that kylleth a man, shall dye for it. Ye shall haue one maner lawe amonge you: euen for the straunger as well as for one of your selues, for I am the Lorde your God.

And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel, þ they shulde brynge hym that had cursed, out of the hoste, and stone hym with stones. And the chyldren of Israel dyd as the Lorde cõmaunded Moses.

¶ The Sabboth of the seuen yeres and of the yere of iubelie, otherwise called the fyftye yere.

CAPI. XXV.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses in mount Sinai, sayenge: speake vnto þ chyldren of Israel and saye to theym. Whẽ ye be come into the lande which I geue you let the lande reste a Sabboth vnto the Lorde. Sixe yeres thou shalt sowe thy felde, and sixe yere thou shalt cut thy vynes and gather in thy frutes. But the seuenth yere shall be a Sabboth of rest vnto the lande. The Lordes Sabboth it shalbe, and thou shalt neyther sowe thy felde, nor cut thy vynes.

The Sabboth of seuen yeares.

The corne that groweth by it selfe thou shalt not repe, neyther gather the grapes that growe without thy dressynge: but it shall be a Sabboth of rest vnto the lande. Neuertheles the Sabboth of the lande shall be meate for you: euen for the and thy seruaunte and for thy mayd and for thy hyred seruaunt and for the straunger that dwelleth with the: and for thy catell and for the beastes that are in thy lande, shall all the encrease therof be meate. Then nombre seuen weekes of yeres, B that is, seuen times seuen yere: and the space of the seuen weekes of yeres wyll be vnto the xlix. yere. And then thou shalte make an horne blowe: euen in the tenth daye of the seuenth moneth, which is the day of atonement. And then shall ye make the horne blowe, euen throughowe out all your lande. And ye shall halowe the fyftieth yere, and proclayme lyberte throughow out the lande vnto all the inhabitces therof. It shall be a yere of iubelie vnto you and ye shall returne: euerye man vnto his possession and euery man vnto his kynred agayne. A yere of iubelye shall that fyftyeth yere be vnto you.

Ye shall not sowe neyther repe the corne that groweth by it selfe, nor gather the grapes that growe without thy laboure. For it is a yere of iubelye and shall be holye vnto you: howe be it, yet ye shall eate of the encrease of the felde. And in this yere of iubelie ye wall returne, euery man vnto his possession agayne.

Yf ye shall saye: what shall we eate the seuenth yere, in as moche as we shall not sowe, nor gather in oure encrease. I wyll sende my blessyng vpon you in the sixte yere, and it shall brynge forthe frute for thre yeres: and ye shall sowe the eyghte yere, and eate of olde frute vntyll the nynth yere, and euen vntyll her frutes come, ye shall eate of olde stooze.

Wherfore the lande shall not be solde for euer, because that the lande is myne, and D ye but straungers and sojourners with me: and ye shall throwowe oute all the lande of youre possession, let the lande goo home free agayne.

* When thy brother is waxed pooze, and hath solde of his possessiõ: yf any of his kin come to redeme it, he shall bye out that whiche his brother solde. And though he haue no man to redeme it for hym, yet yf his hand can get sufficient to bye it out agayne, then let hym counte how longe it hath be solde, and deliuer the rest vnto hym to whome he solde it, and so he shall returne vnto his possession agayne. But yf his hande can not get sufficyent to restore it to hym agayne, then that whiche is solde shall remayne in the hande of hym that hathe boughte it, tyll the Jubelye: and in the yere of Jubelye it shall come oute, and he shall returne vnto his possession agayne.

Yf a man sell a dwellynge house in a walled citye, he maye bye it oute agayne anye tyme within a hole yere after it is solde: and that shall be the space in whiche he maye redeme it agayne.

But yf it be not bought out agayne within E the space of a full yere, then the house in the walled citye shall be stablysshed for euer vnto hym that boughte it, and to his successours after hym, and shall not goo out in the yere of Jubelye. But the houses in vyllages whiche haue no walles rounde aboute them shall be counted lyke vnto the feldes of the countrey, and maye be boughte oute agayne at any season, and shall goo oute free in the yere of Jubelye.

Notwithstandynge the cityes of the Leuytes and the houses in the cytyes of theyr possessions, the Leuytes maye redeme at all seasons. And yf a man purchase oughte of the Leuytes: whether it be house or citye that they possesse, the bargayne shall goo oute in the yere of Jubelye: for the houses of the cityes of the Leuytes, are theyr possessyons amonge the chyldren of Israel. But the feldes that lye rounde aboute theyr cytyes, shall not be bought: for they are theyr possessyons for euer.

F Yf thy brother be waxed pooze and fallen in decaye with the, receyue hym as a straunger or a sojourner, and lette hym lyue by the. * And thou shalte take none vsurye of hym, nor gaynes. But shalte feare thy God, that thy brother maye lyue with the. Thou shalte not lende hym thy money vpon vsurye, nor lende hym of thy fode to haue gaynes by it: for I am the Lorde youre God whiche haue brought you forth of the lande of Egypte, to gyue you the land of Canaan and to be your God.

Yf thy brother that dwelleth by the, waxe pooze and sell him selfe vnto the, thou shalte not let him labour, as a bondseruaunt doeth: but as an hyred seruaunte, and as a sojourner he shall be with, and shall serue the, vnto the yere of iubelye, and then shal ye departe from the: bothe he and his chyldren with hym, and shall returne vnto his owne kynred agayne and vnto the possessions of his fathers: for they are my seruauntes whiche I brought out of the lande of Egypte, and shall not be solde as bondmen.

Se therfore thou raygne not ouer him cruelly, but feare thy God. Yf thou wilte haue bondseruauntes and maydens, thou shalte bye them of the heythen that are rounde aboute you, and of the chyldren of the straungers that are sojourners amonge you and of theyr generations that are with you, whiche they begate in your lande. And ye shal possesse them and gyue them vnto youre chyldren after you, to possesse them for euer: and they shall be youre bondemen. * But ouer your brethren the chyldren of Israel, ye shall not raygne one ouer an other cruelly.

G Wyen a straunger and a sojourner waxeth ryche by the, and thy brother that dwelleth by him waxeth pooze and sell him selfe vnto the straunger that dwelleth by the, or to anye of the straungers kynne: after that he is solde he maye be redemed agayne: one of his brethren maye bye hym oute: whether it be his vncle or his vncles sonne, or any that is nye of kynne vnto hym of his kynred: eyther yf his hande can get so moche, he maye be loosed.

And he shal recken with hym that bought hym from the yere in whiche he was solde, vnto the yere of Jubelye, and the pryce of his brynge shall be accordynge to the nombre of yeres, and he shall be with hym as a hyred seruaunt.

Yf there be yet many yeres behynde, accordynge vnto them he shall gyue agayne for his deliueraunce, of the money that he was solde for.

Yf there remayne but fewe yeres vnto the yere of Jubelye, he shall so counte with hym, and accordynge vnto his yeres gyue hym agayne for his redemption, and shall be with hym yere by yere as an hyred seruaunte, and the other shall not raygne cruelly ouer hym in thy syght. Yf he be not bought free in the meane tyme, then he shall go out in the yere of Jubelye and his chyldren with him: for the chyldren of Israel are my seruauntes whiche I brought out of the lande of Egypte.

CAPI. XXVI.

I Am the Lorde your God. Ye shal make you no ydolles nor grauen ymage, neyther reare you vp anye pyller, neyther ye shall set vp any ymage of stone in your lande to bowe your selues thereto: for I am the Lorde your God: kepe my Sabbothes and feare my sanctuarye: for I am the Lorde. A

Yf ye shall walke in myne ordinaunces and kepe my cõmaundementes and do them, then I will sende you rayne in the ryghte season, & youre lande shall yelde her encrease and þ trees of the felde shall gyue their frute. And the threshynge shall reache vnto wyne harueste, & the wyneharuest shall reache vnto sowinge tyme, and ye shall eate youre breed in plenteousnes, and shall dwell in youre lande prayably. And I will sende peace in your lande, that ye shall slepe, and no man shall make you afrayde.

And I will dryue euyll beastes out of youre lande, and there shall no sweorde goo throwowe out your lande. And ye shall chase your enemyes, and they shall fall before you vpon the sweorde. And fyue of you shall chase an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put ten thousande to flyghte, and your enemyes shal fall before you vpon the sweorde. And I wyll B tourne vnto you and encrease you and multiplye you, and set vp my testament with you. And ye shall eate olde floare, and calle out the olde for plenteousnes of the newe. * I wyll make my dwellynge place amonge you, and my soule shall not lothe you. And I wyll walke amonge you, and wyll be youre God, and ye shall be my people. For I am the Lorde your God, whiche brought you out of the lande of the Egyptians, that ye houlde not be theyr bondmen, and I brake the bawes of youre yockes, and made you goo vpryght.

* Ii. Cor. vi. b
Exodi. xxix. g

* But yf ye will not herken vnto me, nor will do all these my commaundementes, or yf ye shall despyse myne ordinaunces, eyther yf your soules refuse my lawes, so that ye wyll not do all my commaundementes, but shall breake myne appoyntement: then I will do this agayne vnto you: I will vysit you with vexations, swellinge and feuers, that shall make your eyes dasell, and with sorowes of herte. And ye shall sowe youre seed in vayne, for your ennemyes shall eate it. And I will set my face againste you, and ye shall fall before your ennemyes, and they that hate you shall raygne ouer you, and ye shall flee when no mã C pursueth you.

* Deu. xxviii. b. Psalm. lxxx.

And yf ye will not yet for all this herken vnto me, then will I punysh you seuẽ tymes more for youre synnes, and wyll breake the pryde of youre strengthe. For I will make the heauen ouer you as harde as yron, & your lande as harde as brasse. And so your laboure shalbe spent in vayne. For youre lande shall not gyue her encrease, neyther the trees of the lande shall gyue their frutes.

And yf ye walke contrary vnto me and wil not herken vnto me, I will bringe seuen tymes mo plages vpon you accordynge to your synnes. I will sende in, wylde beastes vpon you, which shall spoyle you of your children and destroye your catel, and make you so few in nombre that youre highe wayes shal grow to a wylderneße.

D And yf ye wyll not be lerned yet, for all this, but shal walke contrarye vnto me, then will I also walke contrarye vnto you, and wyll punnysh you yet seuen tymes for youre synnes. I wyll sende a swerde vpon you, that shall auenge my testament with you. And when ye are fled vnto youre cytyes, I wyll sende the pestilence amonge you, ye shalbe gyuen into the handes of your ennemyes. And when I haue broken the staffe of youre bred / that. x. wyues shall bake your bred in one ouen and men shall delyuer you your breed agayne by weyght, then shall ye eate and yet not be fylled.

And yf ye will not yet for all this, herken vnto me, but shall walke contrary vnto me, then I will walke contrarye vnto you also, wrathfully and will also punyshe you seuen tymes for your synnes: so that ye shall eate ꝑ
E fleßhe of your sonnes and the fleßhe of youre doughters. And I will destroye your altares dwyll vpon hyghe hylles, & ouerthrowe your ymages, and cast your carkales vpon the bodyes of your ydolles, and my soule shall abhorre you. And I will make your cyties desolate, & bringe your sanctuaries vnto nought, and will not smel the sauoures of your swete odoures.

And I will bringe the lande vnto a wylderneße: so that your enemyes whiche dwell therin, shall wondre at it. And I will straw you amonge the hethen, and will drawe out a swerde after you, and youre lande shall be waste, and your cyties desolate. Then the lād
F shall reioyse in her Sabbothes, as longe as it lyeth voyde and ye in your ennemies lande euen then shall the lande kepe holy daye and reioyse in her Sabbothes. And as longe as it lyeth voyde it shall rest, for that it coulde not reste in youre Sabbothes, when ye dwelte therein.

And vpon them that are left alyue of you I will sende a faynтneße in to their hertes in the lande of their ennemyes: so that ꝑ sound of a leef that falleth, shall chace them & they shall flee as thoughe they fled a swerde, and shall fall no man folowinge them. And they shall fal one vpon an other, as it were before a swerde no man pursuyng them, and ye shal haue no power to stande before youre ennemyes: And ye shall perysshe amonge the heythen, and the lande of youre ennemyes shall eate you vp.

And they that are left of you, shall pyne away in their vnrighteousnes, euen in their ennemyes lande, and also in the mysdeades of their fathers shall they consume. And they shall confesse their mysdedes, and the mysdedes of their fathers in their trespaces whiche they haue trespaced against me, and for that also that they haue walked cōtrary vnto me. Therfore I also will walke contrarye vnto them, and will bringe them into the lande of G their ennemyes. And then at leest waye their vncircumcysed hertes shall be tamed, & then they shall make attonement for their mysdedes.

And I will remembre my bonde with Jacob and my couenant with Jsaac, and my testament with Abraham, and will thinke on ꝑ lande. For the lande shall be left of them and shall haue pleasure in her Sabbothes, whyle she lyeth waste without them, and they shall make an attonement for their misdedes, because they despised my lawes and their soules refused myne ordinaunces. And yet for al that when they be in the lande of their ennemye, *
* I will not so cast them awaye nor my soule shall not so abhorre them, that I will vtterly destroye them, and breake myne appointement with theym: for I am the Lorde their God. I will therfore remembre vnto them the firste couenaunte made when I broughte them out of the lande of Egypte in the sight of the heythen to be their God: for I am the Lorde.

These are the ordinaunces, iudgementes, and lawes whiche the Lorde made betwene hym and the children of Jsrael in mount Sinai by the hande of Moses.

CAPI. XXVII.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge/ speake vnto the children of Jsrael and saye vnto them: Yf any mā wil gyue a singuler vowe vnto the Lorde accordynge to the value of his soule, then shal the male frome twenty yere vnto. lx. be set at. l. * sycles of syluer, after the sycle of the sanctuary, and the female at. xxx. sycles. And frō v. yeres to. xx. the male shall be set at. xx. sycles, and the female at. x. sycles. And frome a moneth vnto. v. yere, the male shall be set at. v. sycles of syluer, and the female at thre. And the man that is. lx. and aboue, shalbe valued at. xv. sycles, and the woman at. x. Yf the be to pore so to be set, thē let him come before the preest: and let the preest value him, accordynge as the hande of him that vowed is hable to get.

Yf it be of the beastes of which men bringe an offeryng vnto the Lorde: all that any mā gyueth of suche vnto the Lorde, shalbe holy. He maye not alter it nor chaunge it: a good for a bad, or a bad for a good. Yf he chaunge beast for beast, then both the same beast and it also wherwith it was chaunged shalbe holy. Yf it be any maner of vncleane beast of which men maye not offer vnto the Lorde, let hym bringe the beast before the preest and let the preest preest value it. And whether it be good or bad as the preest setteth it, so shall it be. And yf he will dye it agayne, let him gyue the fyfte parte more to that it was set at.

Yf any man dedicate his house, it shall be holy vnto the Lorde. And the preest shall set it, whether it be good or bad, and as ꝑ preest
L hath set it, so it shall be. Yf he that sanctified it, wil redeme his houße, let him gyue the fift parte of the money that it was iuged at therto, and it shalbe his.

Yf a man halowe a pece of his enheryted lande vnto the Lorde, it shall be set accordyng to that it beareth. Yf it beare an homer of barley, it shall be set at fyfty sycles of syluer. Yf he dowe his lande forthwith from the yere of Jubely, it shalbe worthe accordynge as it is estemed. But yf he halowe his felde after the trompet yere, the preest shall recken the pryce with him accordynge to the yeres ꝑ remayne vnto the trompet yere, and therafter, it shall be lower set.

Yf he that sanctifyed the felde will redeme it agayne, let him put the fyfte parte of the pryce that it was set at thervnto, and it shall be his, yf he will not, it shall be redemed no more. But when the felde goeth out in ꝑ yere of Jubylye, it shalbe holy vnto the Lorde: euen as a thinge dedycated, and it shall be the preestes possession.

Yf a man sanctifie vnto ꝑ Lorde a felde, whiche he hath boughte and is not of his enherytaunce, then the preest shall reken with hym what it is worth vnto the yere of Jubylye, and
D he shall gyue the pryce that it is set at ꝑ same daye, and it shalbe holy vnto the Lorde. But in the yere of Jubely, the felde shall returne vnto him of whome he boughte it, whose enheritaunce of lande it was.

And all settynge shall be accordynge to the holy sycle. One sycle maketh. xx. Geras.

But the firſt borne of the beastes that pertayne vnto the Lorde, maye no man sanctifye: whether it be ore or whye, for they are ꝑ Lordes alredy. Yf it be an vncleane beaste, then let him redeme it as it is set at, and gyue the fyfte parte more therto. Yf it be not redemed then let it be solde as it is rated.

Notwithstandynge no dedycated thynge ꝑ a man dedycateth vnto the Lorde, of all his good, whether it be man or beast or lande of his enheritaunce, shalbe solde or redemed: for all dedicate thinges are mooste holy vnto the Lorde. No dedicate thinge therfore that is dedicate of man, may be redemed, but must nedes dye.

All theße tythes of the lande, whether it be of the corne of the felde or frute of the trees, shalbe holy vnto the Lorde. Yf any man will redeme ought of his tythes, let him adde the fyfte parte more therto. And the tythes of oxē and shepe and of all that goth vnder the heed mans keppynge, shall be holy tythes vnto the Lorde. Men shal not loke yf it be good or bad nor shall chaunge it. Yf any man chaunge it then both it and that it was chaunged withall, shalbe holy and may not be redemed.

These are the commaundementes which the Lorde gaue Moses in charge to gyue vnto the children of Jsrael in mount Sinai.

The ende of the thyrde booke of Moses.

THE FOVRTHE BOKE OF MOSES CALLED NVMERI.

¶ All that are apte for batell are numbred. The trybe of Leuy is appoynted to mynystre to the tabernacle.

CAPI. I.

A AND the Lord spake vnto Moses in the wildernesse of Sinai, in the tabernacle of wytnesse, the first daye of the seconde moneth, and in the seconde yere after they were come oute of the lande of Egypte, sayenge: * Take the somme of the hole multitude of the childre of Israel, in their kynredes and housholdes of their fathers, and nombre them by name all þ are males, polle by polle, frome .xx. yere and aboue: euen all that are hable to go forth to warre in Israel, thou and Aaron shall nombre them in their armyes, & with you shall be of euery tryde a heedman in the house of his father.

* Exod.xxx.b Num.xxvi.a.

Of

These

These are the nombres whiche Moses and Aaron nombred with the twelue prynces of G Israel: of euery houle of their fathers a man. And all the nombres of the chyldren of Israel, in the houses of theyr fathers, frome twentye yere and aboue, what so euer was mete for the warre in Israel, dyewe vnto the somme of fyue hundred and thre thousande, fyue hundred and fyftye. But the Leuites in the tribe of theyr fathers, were not nombred amonge them.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: onely se thou nombre not the trybe of Leui, ne take the somme of them amonge the chyldren of Israel. But thou shalt appoynte the Leuytes vnto the habitacion of witnesse, and to all the garnyshment therof, and vnto all that longeth therto. For they shall beare the tabernacle, and all the ordinaunce therof, and they shall minister it, and shall pytche theyr tentes rounde aboute it. And when the tabernacle goeth forthe, the Leuites shall take it downe: and when the tabernacle is pytched, they shall set it vp: for yf any straunger come nere, he shall dye. And the chyldren of Israel shal pitch theyr tentes euery man in his owne companye, and euery man by his owne standerd throwe out all theyr hostes. But the Leuytes shall pytche rounde aboute the habitacion of witnesse, that there fal no wrath vpon the congregacion of the chyldre of Israel, and the Leuytes shall wayte vpon the habitacion of wytnesse. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses.

¶ The order of the pytchynge of the tentes rounde about the tabernacle of witnesse. The heades and chefe Lordes of the kinredes of Israel are named.

CAPI. II.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: The chyldren of Israel shall pytche: euery man by his owne standerd, with the armes of his fathers houses, alwaye frome the presence of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

On the east syde towarde the rysynge of the sonne, shall they of the standerd of the hoste of Juda pytche with theyr armyes: And Nahelson the sonne of Aminadab shall be captayne ouer the sonnes of Juda. And his hoste and the nombre of theym thre score and fourtene thousande, and fyue hundred. And nexte vnto hym, shall the trybe of Isachar pytche, and Nathanael the sonne of Zuar, captayne ouer the chyldren of Isachar, his hoste and the nombre of them. liiij. thousande and foure hundred.

And then the tribe of Zabulon: with Eliab
B the sonne of Helon, captayne ouer the chyldre of Zabulon, and his hoste in the nombre of them. lvij. thousande, and foure hundred. So that all they that perteyne vnto the hoste of Juda, are an hundred thousande. lxxvi. thousande and foure hundred in theyr companyes: and these shall go in the forefront, when they iourney.

And on the southe syde, the standerd of the hoste of Ruben shall lye with theyr companyes, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ruben, Elizur the sonne of Sedeur, and his hoste and the nombre of them. xlvi. thousande, and fyue hundred.

And fast by hym shall the trybe of Simeon pytche, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Simeon. Salumiel the sonne of Zuri Sadai and his hoste, and the nombre of them lix. thousande, and thre hundred. And þ trybe of Gad also: And the captayne ouer the sonnes of Gad, Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel and his hoste, and the nombre of them. xlv. thousande, fyue hundred, and fyftye. So that all the nombre that appertayne vnto the hoste of Ruben, are an hundred and. li. thousande, foure hundred and fyftye, with theyr companyes, and they shall be the seconde in the iourney.

And the tabernacle of wytnesse with þ hoste of the Leuytes, shall go in the myddes of the E hostes: as they lye in theyr tentes, euẽ so shal they procede in the iourney, euery man in his quarter about the standerdes.

On the west syde, the standerd and þ hoste of Ephraim shall lye with theyr companyes. And the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ephraim, Elisama the sonne of Amihud: and his hoste, and the nombre of them fourty thousand and fyue hundred.

And fast by hym the trybe of Manasse, and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Manasse, Gamaliel the sonne of Pedazur and his hoste, and the nombre of them were. xxxij. thousand and two hundred. And the trybe of Ben Jamin also: and the captayne ouer the sonnes of Ben Jamin, Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni, and his hoste, and the nombre of them. xxxv. thousande, and foure hundred. All the nombre that belonged vnto the hoste of Ephraim, were an hundred thousande, eyght thousande and an hundred in theyr hostes: and they shal be the thyrde in the iourney.

And the standerd and the hoste of Dan shal lye on the nozth syde with theyr companyes: and the captayne ouer the chyldren of Dan, Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Sadai: and his hoste, and the nombre of them threscore and two thousande and seuen hundred. And faste by him shall the trybe of Aser pytche: and the D captayne ouer the sonnes of Aser, Pagiel the sonne of Ocran: and his hoste, and the nombre of them. xli. thousand and fyue hundred. And the tribe of Nepthali also, and the captayn ouer the chyldren of Nepthali: Ahira the sonne of Enan: and his hoste, and the numbre of them. liij. thousande an foure hundred. So that the hole numbre of al that perteyned vnto the hoste of Dan, was an hundred. lvij. thousande and fyue hundred. And they shalbe the last in that iorney with their standerdes.

These are the summes of the chyldren of Israel in the houses of theyr fathers: euen al the nombres of the hostes with theyr companyes fyue hundred thousand thre thousande

fyue

fyue hundred and fyfftye. And yet the Leuites were not nombred amonge the chyldren of Israel as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the chyldren of Israel dyd accordyge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses, and pitched with their standerdes, and they iourneyd euery man in his kynred, and in the housholde of his father.

¶ The leuites are not nombred to go to batell, but to mynystre to the holy place of sanctuarye. They muste all o pitch theyr tentes next to the habitacion.

CAPI. III.

A THese are the generacions of Aaron and Moses, when the Lorde spake vnto Moses in mount Sinai. And these are the names of the sonnes of Aaron: Nadab the eldest sonne, and Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. These are the names of the sonnes of Aaron, which were preestes anoynted, and theyr handes fylled to ministre, but *Nadab and Abihu dyed before þ Lorde, as they brought straūge fyre before the Lorde in the wyldernelle of Sinai, and had no chyldren, And Eleazar and Ithamar ministred in the sight of Aaron their father.

*Leuitic.x.a. Num.xxvi.c.

B And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: brynge the trybe of Leui, and set them before Aaron the preest, and let them serue hym and wayte vpon hym, and vpon all the multitude before the tabernacle of wytnelle, to do the seruice of the habitacion. And they shal wayte vpon all the garnyshement of the tabernacle of wytnelle, and vpon the chyldren of Israel, to do the seruyce of the habitacion. And thou shalte gyue the Leuytes vnto Aaron and his sonnes, for they are gyuen vnto hym of the chyldren of Israel. And thou shalte appoynt Aaron and his sonnes to wayte on theyr preestes offyce: and the straunger that cōmeth nye shall dye for it.

C And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Beholde * I haue taken Leuytes of the chil-
*Exod.xiii.a Num.viii.c. dren of Israel for all the fyrstborne that openeth the matrye amonge the chyldren of Israel, so that the Leuytes shall be myne: bycause all the fyrste borne are myne: for the same daye that I smote all the fyrste borne in the lande of Egypte, I halowed vnto me all the fyrste borne in Israel, bothe man and beest, and myne they shall be: for I am the Lorde.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the wyldernelle of Sinai, sayinge: Nombre the chyldren of Leui in the houses of theyr fathers and kynredes, all that are males from a moneth olde and aboue. And Moses nombred them at the worde of the Lorde, as he was commaunded. And these are the names of the chyldren of Leui: Gerson, Cahath, and Merari. And these are the names of the chyldren of Gerson in theyr kynredes: Libni and Semei. And the sonnes of Cahath in theyr kynredes were: Amram, Izehar, Hebron and Oziel. And the sonnes of Merari in theyr kynredes were: Maheli and Musi. These are the kynredes of Leui in the houses of theyr fathers.

D And of Gerson came the kynred of the Libnites and the Semeites, whiche are the kynredes of the Gersonytes. And the sum of them (when al the males were told) from a moneth olde and aboue were seuen thousand and fyue hundred. And the kynredes of the Gersonites pytched behynde the habitacion westwarde. And the captayne of the moost auncient house among the Gersonites, was Eliasaph the son of Lael.

And the offyce of the chyldren of Gerson in the tabernacle of witnelle was to kepe the habitacion, and the tent with the couerynge therof, and the hangynge of the doze of the tabernacle of wytnelle, and the hangynges of the courte, & the curtayne of the doze of the court: whiche court wente rounde aboute the dwellynge, and the aulter, and the cozdes that pertayned vnto all the seruyce therof.

And of Cahath came the kynred of the Amramytes and the kynred of the Jezeharytes and of the Hebronytes, and of the Ozielites. And these are the kynredes of the Cahathites. And the nombre of all the males from a moneth olde and aboue, was eyght thousande, and fyue hundred: which wayted on the holy place.

And the kynred of the chyldren of Cahath pytched on the southsyde of the dwelling. And the captayne in the moolte auncient house of the kynredes of the Cahathytes, was Elisaphan the sonne of Oziel, and theyr offyce was to kepe the arcke, the table, the candelstycke, and the aulter, and the holy vessels to ministre with, and the vayle with all that serued therto. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the Preeste, was Captayne ouer all the Captaynes of the Leuytes, and hadde the ouersyghte of them that wayted vpon the holye E thynges.

And of Merari came the kynredes of the Mahelytes, and of the Musites: and these are the kynredes of the Merarytes. And the nombre of them (when all the males from a moneth olde and aboue was tolde) drewe vn to sire thousande, and two hundred. And the captayne of the moost auncient house amonge the kynredes of the Merarites, was Zuriel þ sonne of Abihael whiche pitched on the north syde of the dwellynge.

And the offyce of the sonnes of Merari was to kepe the bordes of the dwellynge, and the barres, pylers with the sockettes therof, and all the instrumentes therof, and all that serued therto: and the pylers of the courte round aboute, and theyr sockettes with their pynnes and cordes. But on the forefront of the habitacion, and before the tabernacle of wytnelle eastward, shal Moses & Aaron and his sonnes pytche, and wayte on the sanctuary in the stede F of the chyldren of Israel. And the straunger þ commeth nye, shall dye for it. And the hole summe of the Leuytes which Moses and Aaron nombred, at the commaundement of the Lorde throughout their kynredes, euen of all the males of a moneth olde and aboue, was xxij.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Nombre all the fyrst borne that are males amonge the chyldren of Israel, frome a moneth olde and aboue, and take the nombre of theyr names. And thou shalte appoynte the Leuytes to me the Lorde, for all the fyrstborne amonge the chyldren of Israel, and the cattell of the Leuytes for the fyrstborne of the chyldren of Israel. And Moses nombred as the Lorde commaunded hym all the fyrstborne of the chyldren of Israel. And all the fyrstborne males in the summe of names, frome a moneth olde and aboue, were nombred two and twentye thousande, two hundred, and thyrtene.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Take the Leuytes for all the fyrstborne of the chyldren of Israel, and the cattell of the Leuytes for theyr cattell: and the Leuytes shall be myne whiche am the Lorde. And for the redempnge of the two hundred and thyrtene, whiche are moo then the Leuytes in the fyrstborne of the chyldren of Israel, take. v. sycles of euery pece, after * the sycle of the holy place, twentye geras the sicle. And giue the money wherewith the odde nombre of them is redemed, vnto Aaron and his sonnes.

*Exo.xxx.b. Leuit.xxvii.b Num.xviii.b

And Moses toke the redempcyon money of the ouerplus that were moo then the Leuytes, amonge the fyrstborne of the chyldren of Israel, and it came to a thousande, thyrtene hundred, and thyrtene score and fiue sycles, of the holye sycle. And he gaue that redempcyon money vnto Aaron & his sonnes at the worde of the Lorde, lyke as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

¶ The offyces of the Leuytes, euery one after the stocke that he came of.

CAPI. IIII.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aarō, and bad them take the summe of the childrē of Cahath forth of the sonnes of Leui in theyr kynredes and houses of theyr fathers frome thyrtye yere and aboue, vntyll fyftye all that were hable to warre to do the worke in the tabernacle of witnelle. This shall be thoffyce of the chyldren of Cahath in the tabernacle of wytnelle whiche is moost holy. And when the hoste remoueth, Aaron and his sonnes shal come and take downe the vayle, and couer the arke of witnelle there with, and shal put theron a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and shall spred a cloth that is all together of Jacinct aboue all, and put the staues therof in. And vpon the shewe table they shall spred abrode a clothe of Jacinct, and put theron the dysshes, spones, flat peces, and potts to poure with, and the dayly breed shall be theron: and they shall spred vpon them a couerynge of purple, and couer the same with a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and put the staues therof in.

And they shall take a clothe of Jacinct and couer the candelstycke of lyghte, and her lampes and her snoffers, and fyre pannes, and all her oyle vessels whiche they occupy about it, and shall put vpon her and on all her instrumentes, a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and put it vpon staues. And vpon the golden aulter they shall spred a clothe of Jacinct, and put on her staues.

And they shall take all the thynges whiche they occupy to ministre within the holy place, and put a clothe of Jacinct vpon them and couer them with a couerynge of taxus skynnes, and put them on staues. And they shall take B awaye the asshes out of the aulter, and spred a scarlet cloth theron: and put aboute it, the fyre pannes, the flesshe hokes, the shouels, the basens, and all that belongeth vnto the aulter, and they shall spredvpon it a couerynge of taxus skinnes, and put on the staues of it.

And when Aaron and his sonnes haue made an ende of couerynge the sanctuary and all the thynges of the sanctuarye, againste that the hoste remoue, then the sonnes of Cahath shal come in to beare, and so lette them not touch the sauntuarye leaste they dye. And this is the charge of the sonnes of Cahath in the tabernacle of witnelle. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preste, shall haue the charge to prepare oyle for the lyghtes and swete tens, and the daylye meatoffrynge and the anoyntyng oyle, and the ouersyghte of all the dwellynge and of all that therin is, bothe ouer the sanctuarye and of all that pertayneth therto.

And the Lorde spake to Moses and Aaron, sayinge: destroye not the trybe of the kynredes of the Cahathites, frome amonge the Leuites. But thus doo vnto them that they maye lyue and not dye, when they goo vnto the moolte holye place. Aaron and his sonnes shall go in and put them euery man vnto his seruice and vnto his burthen. But lette them not go in, to se when they couer the santuarye, lest they dye.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: C Take the summe of the chyldren of Gerson, in the houses of theyr fathers and in theyr kynredes: frome thyrtye yere and aboue, tyll fyftye all that are hable to go forth in warre, to do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnelle. And this is the seruyce of the kynred of the Gersonytes, to serue and to beare. They shal beare the curtaynes of the tabernacle, and the rofe of the tabernacle of witnes and his couerynge, and the couerynge of taxus skynnes that is on hyghe aboue vpon it, and the hangynge of the doze of the tabernacle of wytnelle: and the hangynge of the courte, and the hangynge of the gate of the courte that is rounde about the dwellynge and the aulter, and the cordes of them, and all the instrumentes that serue vnto them, and all that is made for them. And at the mouth of Aaron and his sonnes, shal al the seruyce of the chyldren of the Gersonytes be doone, in all theyr charges, and in all their seruyce, and ye shall appoynte them vnto all theyr charges, that they shal wayte vpon. And this is the seruice of the kynred of the children of the Gersonytes in þ tabernacle of witnelle, and

and they shall be vnder the hande of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the preest.

And thou shalt nombre the sonnes of Merari in theyr kynredes, and in the houses of theyr fathers, frome thyrtye yeres and aboue vnto fyfye: euen all that is hable to go forth in warre, to woo the seruyce of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And this is the charge that they muste wayte vpon in all that they muste serue in the tabernacle of wytnesse: The bordes of the tabernacle, and the barres, pylers and sockettes therof, and the pylers of the courte rounde aboute, and theyr sockettes, pynnes, and cordes, with all that pertayneth and serueth vnto them.

D And by name ye shall recken the thynges that they muste wayte vpon to beare. This is the seruyce of the kynredes of of the sonnes of Merary in all theyr seruyce in the tabernacle of witnesse vnder the hand of Ithamar the sonne of Aaron the preest.

And Moses and Aaron and the prynces of the multitude nombred the sonnes of the Cahathytes in theyr kynredes and houses of theyr fathers frome thyrtye yeres and aboue vnto fyfye, all that were hable to goo forthe in the hoste, and to do seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the nombre of them in theyr kynredes, were two thousande, seuen hundred, and fyfye. These are the nombres of the kynredes of the Cahathytes, of all that dyd seruyce in the tabernacle of witnesse, whi the Moses and Aaron dyd nombre at the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

And the sonnes of Gerson were nombred in theyr kynredes, and in the houses of theyr fathers, frome thyrtye yere vp vnto fyfye, all that were hable to goo forthe in the hoste to doo seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the nombre of them in theyr kynredes, and in the houses of theyr fathers, was two thousande, syxe hundred, and thyrtye. This is the nombre of the kynredes of the sonnes of Gerson, of all that dyd seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnesse, whiche Moses and Aaron dyd nombre at the commaundement of the Lorde.

And the kynredes of the sonnes of Merari were nombred in theyr kynredes, & in the houses of theyr fathers, from thyrty yere vp vnto fyfye, all that were hable to go forth with the hoste, to do seruice in the tabernacle of witnes And the nõbre of them was in theyr kynredes thre thousande and two hundred. This is the nombre of the kynredes of the sonnes of Merari, whiche Moses and Aaron nombred at the cõmaundement of the Lorde, by the hande of Moses.

The hole summe which Moses, Aaron and the lordes of Israel nombred amonge the Leuytes in theyr kynredes & housholdes of theyr fathers, from thyrty yere vp vnto fyfye euery man to do his office and seruyce, and to beare his burthen in the tabernacle of wytnes was eyght thousande, fyue hundred and foure score which they nombred at the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses, euerye man vnto his seruyce & burthen: as the Lord commaunded Moses.

¶ Who they be that oughte to be caste oute of the hoste. The knowlegynge of synne. The cleansynge of synne done of ignorauance. The lawe of the fyrste frutes, and of gelousye.

CAPI. V.

AND the Lorde spake to Moses, sayng: commaunde the childzen of Israel they put forth of the hoste, all lepers, and all that haue yssues, and all that are defiled vpon the deed, whether they be males or females ye shal put them out of the hoste, that they defile not the tentes among which I dwell. And the childzen of Israel dyd so, and put them out of the hoste, as the Lorde commaunded Moses so dyd the childzen of Israel.

And ẏ Lord spake to Moses, sayng: speake vnto the childzen of Israel: whether it be man or woman, when they haue synned anye manner synne whiche a man doth wherwith a man trespaceth agaynst the Lorde: so that the soule hathe doone amisse: then they knowe lege theyr synnes whiche they haue doone, and restore agayne the hurte that they haue wonne in the hole, and put the fifte parte of it more therto, and gyue it him whom he hath trespaced agaynst. But yf he that maketh the amendes haue no man to doo it to, then the amendes that is made shall be the Lordes, and the preestes, besyde the ramme of the attonement offeryng, wherwith he maketh attonement for him selfe. And all the fyrste frutes whiche the childzen of Israel bryng vnto the preest, shall be the preestes, and euery mannes halowed thynges shall be his owne, but what so euer any man gyueth the preest, it shall be the preestes.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: Speake to the childzen of Israel, and shewe them. Yf any mannes wyfe goo a syde and trespase agaynste hym, so that an other man lye with her fleshelye and the thynge be hyd frome the eyes of her husbande and is not come to lyghte that she is defyled (for there is no wytnesse agaynste her) in as moche as she was not taken with the manor, and the spyrite of gelousye come vpon him and he is gelouse ouer his wyfe and she defyled, or happelye the spyrite of gelousy cometh vpon him, and he is gelouse ouer his wyfe, and she yet vndefyled. Then let her husbande bryng her vnto the preste, and bryng an offeryng for her: the tenthe parte of an Epha of barlye meele, but he shall poure none oyle therunto, nor put franckencens theron: for it is an offeryng of gelousye, and an offerenge that maketh remembraunce of synne.

And let the preeste bryng her and sette her before the Lorde, and let him take holy water in an erthe vessel and of the dust that is in the floure of the habitacion, and put it in to the water. And the preeste shall set the wife before the Lorde and vncouer her heade, and put the memoriall of the offeryng in her handes whiche whiche is the gelousye offering, and the preest shal haue bytter and curling water in his hand and he shal conjure her, and shal saye vnto her Yf no man hathe lyen with the, neyther haste gone asyde and defyled thy selfe behynde thy husbande, then haue thou no harme of this bytter curlynge water.

But yf thou hast gone asyde behynde thyne husbande, and art defyled, and some other mã hath lyen with the besyde thyne husband (and let the preest conjure her with the conjuration of the curse, and saye vnto her) the Lord make the a curse and a conjuracion among thy people: so that the Lorde make thy thyghe rotte, and thy belye swell, and this bytter curlyng water goo in to the bowels of the, that thy belye swell, and thy thyghe rotte, and the wyfe shal saye: Amen Amen.

And the preest shal wryte this curse in a byll D and walshe it oute in the bytter water. And when the curlynge water is in her, then lette the preest take the gelousyofferynge out of the wyues hande, and waue it before the Lorde, and bryng it vnto the aulter: and he shall take an handfull of the memorialofferynge, and burne it vpon the aulter, and then make her dryncke the water, and when he hath made her dryncke the water: Yf she be defyled, and haue trespased agaynste her husbande, then shall the curlynge water goo in to her and be so bytter that her belye shall swell, and her thygh shal rotte, and she shal be a curse among her people: That yf she be not defiled but is clene, then she shal haue no harme, but that she may conceyue.

This is the lawe of gelousye, when a wyfe goeth asyde behynde her husbande and is defiled, or when the spirite of gelousye commeth vpon a mã, so that he is gelouse ouer his wife, then he shall bryng her before the Lorde, and the preest shal minister all this lawe vnto her, and the man shalbe giltlesse, and the wife shal beare her synne.

¶ The lawe of the Nazarees that toke vpon them abstynence. The maner of blessynge the people.

CAPI. VI.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the childzen of Israel, and saye vnto them: when a man or woman appoynteth to bowe a bowe of abstinence for to absteyne vnto the Lorde, he shal absteyne from wyne and stronge dryncke, and shall dryncke no vynegre of wyne or of strong dryncke, nor shal dryncke what so euer is pressed out of grapes: and shal eate no fresh grapes, neyther yet dryed as longe as his abstinence endureth. Moreouer he shal eate nothing that is made of the vyne tree, not so moche as the D kernele or the huske of the grape.

And as long as the bowe of his abstinence endureth, there shall no rasure nor sheeres come vpon his heed, vntyll his dayes be runne out whiche he fasteth vnto the Lorde, and he shall be holye, and shall let the lockes of his heere growe. As longe as he absteyneth vnto the Lorde, he shall come at no deed bodye he shall not make hym selfe vncleane at the deathe of his father, mother, brother or sister: for the abstynence of his God is vpon his heed. And therfore as longe as his abstynence lasteth, he shall be holye vnto the Lorde.

And yf it fortune that any man by chaunce dye sodeynly before him, and defile the heed of his abstinence, then muste he shaue his heed the daye of his clensynge: euen the seuenth daye he shall shaue it. And the eyght daye he shall bryng two turtles, or two ponge pygyons to the preest, vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And the Preest shall offre thone for a synneofferynge and thother for a burntofferynge, and make attonement for hym in that he synned vpon the deed, and shal also halowe his heed the same daye, and shall absteyne vnto the Lorde the tyme of his abstinencye, and shall bryng a lambe of a yere old for a trespaceofferyng: but the dayes that were before are lost, bicause his abstinencie was defiled.

This is the lawe of the absteyner, when E the tyme of his abstynence is runne oute, he shall be brought vnto the dooze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and he shall bryng his offeryng vnto the Lorde: an he lambe of a yere olde without spotte for a burntofferynge and a the lambe of a yere olde without blemysshe for a synofferynge, a ramme without blemysh also for a peaceofferynge, and a basket of swete breed of fyne floure myngled with oyle and wafers of swete breed anopnted with oyle with meatofferynges and dryncksofferynges that belonge therto.

And the preest shall bryng him before the Lorde and offre his synofferyng and his burnt offeryng, and shall offre that ramme for a peaceofferynge vnto the Lorde with a basket of swete breed, and the Preeste shall offre also his meatofferyng and his dryncksofferyng. And the absteyner shall shaue his heed in the doze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and shall take the heere of his sober heed and put it in that fyre whiche is vnder the peaceofferynge.

Then the Preeste shall take the sodden shoulder, of the ramme and one swete take oute of the basket, and one swete wafer also, and put them in the hande of the absteyner after he hathe shaued his abstinence of, and the Preeste shall waue them vnto the Lorde, whiche offeryng shall be holy vnto the preest, with the wauebrest and heue shoulder: & then the absteyner may dryncke wyne.

This is the lawe of the Nazaree whiche D hathe vowed his abstynence vnto the Lorde for his abstinence, besydes that his hande can gette. And accordynge to the vowe whiche he vowed, so he muste do in the lawe of his abstynence.

And the Lorde talked with Moses, sayinge speake to Aaron and his sonnes, sayinge: of this wyse ye shall blesse the childzen of Israel sayinge vnto them.

The Lorde blesse the and kepe the.

The

The Lorde make his face shyne vpon the and be mercyfull vnto the.

The Lorde lyfte vp is countenaunce vpon the / and gyue the peace For ye shall put my name vpon the chyldren of Israel, that I may blesse them.

¶ The offerynge of the Lordes and heades of Israel when the tabernacle was set vp.

CAPI. VII.

A AND when Moses had full sette vp the habitacyon and anoynted it and sanctifyed it and all the vesselles therof, and had anoynted and sanctifyed the alter also and all the vesselles there of: then the prynces of Israell, heedes ouer the houses of theyr fathers, which were the Lordes of the trybes that stode and nombred, offred and brought theyr gyftes before the Lord sixe couered charettes and .xij. oxen: two and two a charette and an oxe euery man, and they brought them before the habytacyon.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge, take it of them and let them be to do the seruyce of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and gyue them vnto the Leuytes euery man after his offyce. The .xi. daye, Pagiel the sonne of Ocran, the chiefe lorde among the chyldren of Aser offered. And his gyfte was a syluer charger of an hundred and thyrtye sicles weyght: a syluer boule of thre scoze and ten sycles of the holy sycle, and bothe ful of fyne floure myngled with oyle for a meatofferynge: and a golden spone of ten sycles full of incense. And a bullocke, a ram and a lambe of one yere olde for burnt offerynges: and an he gote for a synofferynge: and for peaxofferynges: two oxen, fiue rammes, fiue he gotes, and fiue lambes of one yere olde. And this was the offerynge of Pagiel the sonne of Ocran.

The offeringe of Ahira. The .xij. daye, Ahira the sonne of Enan, chief lorde among the chyldren of Nephthali offered, and his gyfte was a syluer charger of an hundred and thyrty sicles weyght: a siluer boule of thre scoze and ten sicles of the holy sicle, bothe ful of fine floure mingled with oyle for a meatofferyng: and a golden spone of .xx. sicles full of incense. And a bullocke, a ramme and a lambe of one yere olde for burntofferinges, and an he gote for a synneofferynge. and for peaxofferinges, two oxen, fiue rammes, fiue he gootes, and fiue lambes of one yere olde. And this was the offeryng of Ahira the sonne of Enan.

Of this maner was the dedicacion of the alter when it was anoynted, vnto whiche was brought by the prynces of Israel .xij. chargers of syluer, twelue syluer boules, and twelue spones of golde: euery charger conteynynge an hundred and thyrtye sicles of syluer, and euery boule thre scoze and ten, so that all ye syluer of all the vessels, was two thousande and foure hundred sicles of the holy sicle. And the twelue golden spones whiche were full of incense, contayned ten sycles a pece of the holye sicle: so that all the golde of the spones, was an hundred and .xx. sicles.

All the oxen that were brought for the burntofferinges were twelue, and the rammes twelue, and the lambes twelue of a yere olde a pece, with the meatofferynges: with he gotes for synneofferinges. And all the oxen of the peaxofferynges were .xxiiij. the rammes .lx. the gotes .lx. and lambes of a yere olde a pece. lx. and this was the dedicacion of the aulter, after that it was anoynted.

And when Moses was gone in to the tabernacle of wytnesse to speake with God, he herde the voyce of one speaking vnto him out of the mercy seate that was vpon the arke of wytnesse: euen betwene the two cherubyns, he spake vnto him.

¶ The disposicion and order of the lampes. The forme of the candelstycke. The cleanlynge and offerynge of the Leuites. The age of the same.

CAPI. VIII.

A AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto Aaron, and say vnto him: * when thou puttest on the lampes, se they lyghte all seuen vpon the forefront of the candelstycke. And Aaron did accordingly and put the lampes vpon the forefront of the candelstycke, as the Lorde comaunded Moses, and the worke of the candelstycke was of fyne golde, bothe the shafte and the floures therof. And accordynge vnto the vision which the Lorde had shewed Moses, so he made the candelstycke. * Exo. xxv.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: take the Leuites forth of the chyldren of Israel, and clense them. And this do vnto them when thou clensest them, syprycle water of purifyenge vpon them, and make a rasure to runne alonge vpon all the fleshe of them, B and let them walsche theyr clothes, and then they shall be clene. And let them take a bullock and his meatofferyng fyne flour mingled with oyle: and an other bullocke shalt thou take to be a synofferynge.

Then bryngе the Leuytes before the tabernacle of wytnelle, and gather the hole multitude of the chyldren of Israel togyther. And bryngе the Leuytes before the Lorde, and let the chyldren of Israel put theyr handes vpon the Leuytes. And lette Aaron heue the Leuytes before the Lorde for an heue offerynge gyuen of the chyldren of Israel, and then let them be appoynted to wayte vpon the seruice of the Lorde.

And let the Leuytes put theyr handes vpon the heedes of the bullockes, and then offre the: the one for a synofferynge, and the other for a burnt offerynge before the Lorde, to make attonement for the Leuytes. And make the Leuytes stande before Aaron and his sonnes, and heue them to be an heueofferynge vnto the Lorde. And thou shalte separat the Leuytes from amonge the chyldren of Israel, that they be myne: and after that let them goo and doo the seruyce of the tabernacle of wytnelle.

C Clense them, and halow them, for they are gyuen me frome amonge the chyldren of Israel for * I haue taken them vnto me for all the fyrstborne that open the matrice amonge the chyldren of Israel.

*Num. iii. c.

*Exod. xiii. a

* For all the fyrstborne amonge the children of Israel are myne bothe man and beast, bycause the same tyme that I smote the fyrste borne in the lande of Egypte, I sanctifyed them for my selfe: and I haue taken the Leuytes for all the fyrstborne amonge the chyldren of Israel, and haue gyuen them vnto Aaron and his sonnes for the of the chyldren of Israel, to doo the seruyce of the chyldren of Israel in the tabernacle of wytnelle, and to make an attonement for the chyldren of Israel, that there be no plage among the children of Israel, yf they come nye vnto the sanctuarye.

D And Moses and Aaron and all the congregacion of the chyldren of Israel dyd vnto the Leuytes accordynge vnto all that the Lorde comaunded Moses. And the Leuytes clensed them selues, and walshed theyr clothes. And Aaron offered them before the Lorde, and make an attonement for them to clense them. And after that, they went in to doo theyr seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnelle, before Aaron and his sonnes. And accordynge as the Lorde had commaunded Moses concernyng the Leuytes, euen so they dyd vnto them.

Numer. iiii. c

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: This shal be the maner of the Leuytes: frome .xxv. yere vpwarde, they shall go in, to wayte vpon the seruyce in the tabernacle of wytnelle, and at fifty they shall cease wayting vpon the seruyce of therof, and shall laboure no more, but shall minister vnto theyr brethre in the tabernacle of witnelle, and there wayte but shall do no more seruyce. And se thou doo after this maner vnto the Leuytes, in theyr waytynge tymes.

¶ The Ester or passouer offerynge of the cleane and vncleane. A cloude couerynge the tabernacle leadeth the hoste.

CAPI. IX.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the wildernelle of Sinai, in the firste moneth of the seconde yere after they * were come out of the lande of Egypt, sayinge: let the chyldren of Israel offre Passeouer in his season, euen the .xiiij. daye of this moneth at euen, they shall kepe it in his season, accordynge to the ordinaunces and maners therof. And Moses bad the chyldren of Israel that they sholde offre Passeouer, and they offered Passeouer the .xiiij. daye of the firste moneth at euen in the wyldernelle of Sinai: and dyd accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded Moses:

And it chaunced that certayne men whiche were defiled with a deed corse, so that they myghte not offre Passeouer the same daye, came before Moses and Aaron the same time and sayde: We are defiled vpon a deed corse, wherfore are we kepte backe that we maye not offre an offerynge vnto the Lorde in the due season, amonge the chyldren of Israel? And Moses sayde vnto them: tarye, that I maye heare what the Lorde wyll commaunde you. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye. Yf any man amonge you or youre chyldren after you, be vncleane by the reason of a corse, or is in the waye ferre of, then let hym offre Passeouer vnto the Lorde, the fourtene daye of the seconde moneth at euen, and eate it with swete breed and sour herbes, and let them leaue none of it vnto the morynge, nor breake any bone of it. And accordynge to all the ordynaunce of the Passouer lette them offre it.

But yf a man be cleane and not lette in a iourney, and yet was negligent to offer Passeouer: the same soule shall perysshe frome his people, bicause he broughte not an offerynge vnto the Lorde in his due season: and he shal beare his synne. And when a strounger dwelleth among you, and wyll offre Passeouer vnto the Lorde, accordynge to the ordinaunce of Passeouer and maner therof shall he offre it. And ye shall haue one law both for the straunger, and for hym that was borne at home in the lande.

And the same daye that the habitacion was reared vp, a cloude coured it an hye vpon the tabernacle of wytnelle: and at euen there was vpon the habitacion, as it were the lykenesse of fyre vntyll the mornynge. And so it was alwaye, that the cloude coured it by day and the symilitude of fyre by nyght. And when the cloude was taken vp frome the tabernacle, then the chyldren of Israel iourneyed, and where the cloude abode, there the chyldren of Israel pytched theyr tentes. At the mouthe of the Lorde the chyldren of Israel iourneyed, and

and at the mouth of the Lorde they pytched. And as long as the cloude abode vpon the habitacion, they laye styll, and when the cloude taryed styll vpon the habitacion longe tyme, the chyldren of Israel wayted vpon the Lorde and iourneyed not.

Yf it chaunsed that the cloude abode anye space of tyme vpon the habitacion, then they kepte theyr tentes at the mouth of the Lorde: and they iourneyed also at the cōmaundement of the Lord. And if it happened that the cloude was vpon the habytacyon frome euen vnto morning, and was taken vp in that morning, then they iourneyed. Whether it was by daye or by nyghte that the cloude was taken vp, they iourneyed. But when the cloude taryed two dayes, or a moneth, or a longe season vpon the habytacyon, as longe as it taryed theron, the chyldren of Israel kepte theyr tentes, and iourneyed not. And as soone as the cloude was taken vp they iourneyed. At the mouthe of the Lorde they rested, and at the commaundement of the Lorde they iourneyed. And thus they kepte the watche of the Lorde, at the commaundement of the Lorde by the hande of Moses.

¶ The Trompettes of syluer, and the vse therof. The Israelytes departe frome Sinai. The captaynes of the hoste are nombred. Hobab refuseth to go with Moses.

CAPI. X.

AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Make the two trompettes of beaten syluer, that thou mayst vse them to call the company togyther, and when the host shall iourney. When they blowe with them, all the companye shall resorte to the vnto the dore of the tabernacle of wytnelle. Yf but one trompet blowe onely, then the prynces which are heedes ouer thousandes of Israel shall come vnto the. And when ye trompe the firste tyme, the hostes that lye on the east partes shall go forwarde.

And when ye trompe the seconde tyme, then the hostes that lye on the south syde shal take theyr iourney: for they shal trompe whē they take theyr iourneys. And in gatheryng the congregacion togyther, ye shall blowe and not trompe. And the sonnes of Aaron the Preestes shall blowe the trompettes, and shall haue them, and it shall be a lawe vnto you for euer, and amonge youre chyldren after you.

And when ye shall goo to warre in youre lande agaynste youre ennemyes that vexe you ye shall trompe with the trompettes, and ye shall be remembred before the Lorde your god and saued frome youre ennemyes. Also when ye be merye in your feest dayes, and in the firste dayes of youre monethes, ye shall blowe the trompettes ouer your burnt sacrifices & peax offerynges, that it may be a remembraunce of you before youre God. I am the Lorde your God.

And it came to passe the twentye daye of the seconde moneth in the seconde yere that the cloude was take vp from the tabernacle of witnelle. And the chyldren of Israel toke theyr iourney out of the wyldernelle of Sinai, and the cloud rested in the wyldernelle of Pharan. And they firste toke theyr iourney at ỹ mouth of the Lorde by the hand of Moses: euen the standarde of the hoste of Juda remoued with theyr armyes, whose capytayne was Nahasson sonne of Aminadab. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the chyldren of Issachar, was Nathanael the sonne of Suar. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the chyldren of Zabulon was Eliab the sonne of Helon. And the habitacyon was taken downe: and the sonnes of Gerson and Merari went forth bearynge the tabernacle.

Then the standerd of the hoste of Ruben went forthe with theyr armyes, whose capytayne was Elizur the sonne of Sedeur. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the chyldren of Symeon: was Samaliel the sonne of Suri Saddai. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the chyldren of Gad: was Eliasaph the sonne of Deguel. Then the Capathytes went forwarde and bare the holy thynges, and the other dyd set vp the habitacion agaynste theyr commynge.

Then the standard of the hoste of the chyldrē of Ephraim went forth with their armies whose capitayne was Elisama the sonne of Amiud. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the sonnes of Manasse, was Gamaliel the sonne of Pedazur. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the sonnes of Ben Jamin, was Abidan the sonne of Gedeoni.

And hyndermooste of all the hoste, came the standarde of the hoste of the chyldren of Dan with theyr armies whose capitayne was Ahiezer the sonne of Ammi Saddai. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the chyldren Aser was ϕ Pagiel the sonne of Ochran. And ouer the hoste of the trybe of the chyldren of Nephthali, was Ahira the sonne of Enan: In this maner were the iourneys of the chyldren of Israel with theyr armyes when they remoued.

ϕ Or phegiel

And Moses sayd vnto Hobab the sonne of Raguel the Madianyte, Moses father in lawe: We goo vnto the place of whiche the Lorde sayde, I wyll gyue it you. Goo with vs, and we wyll do the good: for the Lorde hath promysed good vnto Israel. And he sayd vnto hym: I wyll not, but wyll go to myne owne lande, and to my kynred. And Moses sayde: oh naye, leaue vs not, for thou knowest where is best for vs to pytche in the wildernesse, and thou shalte be oure gyde. And yf thou goo with vs, loke what goodnesse the Lorde sheweth vpon vs, the same we wyll shewe vpon the.

And they departed frome the mounte of the Lorde thre dayes iourney, and the arke of the testament of the Lorde went before them in the thre dayes iourney, to serche out a restyng place for them. And the cloude of the Lorde was ouer them by day when they went forth of the tentes.

And when the Arcke went forthe, Moses sayde, Ryse vp Lorde, and let thyne enemyes be scattered, and let them that hate the, flee before the. And when the arke rested, he sayd: returne (Lorde) vnto the manye thousandes of Israel.

¶ The people murmureth and is punyshed with fyre. They desyre flesshe. They loothe Manna. The murmuryng and weuerynge sayethe of Moses. The Lorde dyuydethe the burden of Moses to seuentye of the auncyentes, and they prophesye. Eldad and Medad doo also prophesye in the hoste. It rayneth quayles. The flesshe raueners are punyshed.

CAPI. XI.

A And the people complayned, and it displeased the eares of the Lorde. And when the Lorde herd it, he was wroth, and the fire of the Lorde burnt amonge them, and consumed the vttermost of the hoste. And the people cryed vnto Moses, and he made sute vnto the Lorde, and the fire quenched. And they called the name of the place Thabarah, because the fire of the Lorde burnt amonge them.

And the common sorte of people that was amonge them fell a lustynge. And the chyldren of Israel also wente to, and wepte and sayde: who shall gyue vs flesshe to eate? we remembre the fysshe whiche we sholde eate in B Egypte for noughte, and of the Cucumbres and melouns, lekes, onyons, and garlyke. But nowe oure soules are dryed awaye, for our eyes loke on nothynge elles, saue vpon Manna.

The Manna was as it hadde ben Coriander seed, and in appearaunce lyke Bedellion. And the people went aboute and gathered it, and grounde it in mylles, or beat it in morters and baked it in pannes, and made cakes of it. And the taste of it was lyke vnto the taste of an oyle cake. And when the dewe fell aboute the hoste in the nyght, the Manna fell therwith.

And when Moses herde the people wepe in theyr housholdes, euery man in the dooze of his tente, then the wrethe of the Lorde waxed hote exceadyngly: and it greued Moses also. And Moses sayd vnto the Lorde: wherfore dealest thou so cruelly with thy seruaunt? wherfore doo I not fynde fauour in thy syghte, sythens thou puttest the wyghte of this people vpon me? Haue I conceyued all this people? or haue I begot them, that thou woldest saye vnto me, carye them in thy bosome (as a nurse beareth the suckyng child) vnto the lande whiche thou swarest vnto their fathers? where sholde I haue flesshe to gyue vnto all this people? For they wepe vnto me, sayinge: gyue vs flesshe that we may eate. I am not hable to beare all this people alone, for it is heuye for me. Wherfore yf thou deale thus with me, kyll me, I praye the, yf I haue founde fauour in thy syghte, and let me not se my wretchednesse.

D And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: gather vnto me thre score and ten of the elders of Israel, whiche thou knowest that they are the elders of the people, and officers ouer them, & brynge them vnto the tabernacle of wytnesse, and let them stande there with the. And I wil come downe and talke with the there, & take of the spirite wich is vpon the, and put vpon the and vpon them, and they shall beare with the in the burthen of the people, and so shalt thou not beare alone.

And saye vnto the people: halow your selues agaynst to morow, that ye may eate flesh, for ye haue whyned in the eares of the Lorde sayinge: who shall gyue vs flesshe to eate, for we were happy whē we were in Egypt? therfore the Lorde wyll gyue you flesshe, and ye shal eate. Ye shall not eate one daye onely, either two or fiue dayes, either ten or twentye dayes: but euen a moneth longe, and vntyll it come out at the nostrels of you, that ye be redye to prebrake: because ye haue caste that E Lorde aside, which is amonge you, and haue wepte before hym, sayinge: why came we out of Egypt.

And Moses sayde: fyre hundred thousande foote men are there of the people, amonge whiche I am. And thou hast sayd: I wil giue them flesshe, and they shall eate a moneth longe. Shall the shepe and the oxen be slayne for them to fynde them? Other shall all the fysshe of the see be gathered togyther to serue them? And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Is the Lordes hande waxed shorte? Thou shalte se whether my worde shall come to passe vnto the, or not.

And Moses went forth, and tolde the people the sayinge of the Lorde, and gathered the thre score and ten elders of the people, and sette them rounde aboute the tabernacle. And the Lorde came downe in a cloude, and spake vnto hym, and toke of the spirite that was vpon him, and put it vpon the thre score and ten elders And as the spirite rested vpon them F they prophecied and dyd noughte elles. But there remayned two of the men in the hoste: the one called Eldad, and the other Medad. And the spirite rested vpon them for they were of them that were wrytten, but they went not out vnto the tabernacle: and they prophesied in the hoste.

And there ran a yonge man and tolde Moses, and sayd: Eldad, and Medad do prophecy in the hoste. And Iosua the sonne of Nun the seruaunt of Moses whiche he had chosen out answered and sayde: Master Moses, forbyd them. And Moses said vnto him: enuiest thou G for my sake? wolde God that all the Lordes people coulde prophecye, and that the Lorde wolde put his spirete vpon them. And then both Moses and the elders of Israel, gat them in to the hoste.

And there wente forthe a wynde frome the Lorde and brought quayles from the see, and let them fal about the hoste, euen a days iourney rounde aboute on euery syde of the hoste. And two cubytes hye vpon the erthe. And the people stode vp al that day and all that night, and on the morowe, and gathered quayles. And he that gathered leest, gathered tenne homers homers full. And they kylled them rounde about the hoste.

And whyle the flesshe was yet betwene theyr teeth, afore it was chewed vp, the wrath of the Lorde waxed hoote vpon the people, and the Lorde slewe of the people an exceadynge myghtye slaughter. And they called the name of the place ✠ Kybroth Hathauah: because they buryed the people that lusted there. That is the graues of lust

And the people toke theyr iourney frome Kybroth Hathauah vnto Hazeroth, and abode at Hazeroth.

¶ Aaron and Mary grudge agaynst Moses. Mary was stryckē with the leper and healed at the prayer of Moses.

CAPI. XII.

A And ✠ Marye and Aaron spake agaynst Moses, because of his wyfe of Inde whiche he hadde taken: for he hadde taken to wyfe one of Inde. And they sayde, dothe the Lorde speake onely thorowe Moses? dothe he not speake also by vs? And the Lorde herde it. But Moses was a very meke man above all the men of the earthe. And the Lorde spake attonce vnto Moses, vnto Aaron, and vnto Marye: Come oute ye thre vnto the tabernacle of wytnelle: & they came out all thre. A ✠ Ebrew woman called Mir

B And the Lorde came downe in the pyller of the cloude, and stode in the dooze of the tabernacle, and called Aaron and Marye. And they wente out bothe of them. And he sayde, heare my wordes: yf there be a Prophete of C the Lordes amonge you, I wyl shewe my self vnto him in a vysion, and wyll speake vnto him in a dreame. But my seruaunt Moses is not so: whiche is faythfull in all myne house vnto hym I speake mouthe to mouthe, and he seeth the syght and the facyon of the Lorde and not thorow ryddels. Wherfore then were ye not afrayde to speake agaynst my seruaunt Moses.

And the Lorde was angrye with them, and went his waye/and the cloude departed from D the tabernacle. And beholde, Marye was become leprous, as it were snowe. And when Aaron loked vpon her and sawe that she was leprous, he sayde vnto Moses: Oh I beseche the my Lorde, put not the synne vpon vs whiche we haue foolyshly committed and synned. Oh, let her not be as one that come deed forth of the mothers wombe: for halfe her flesshe is eaten awaye.

And Moses cryed vnto the Lorde, sayinge: Oh God, heale her. And the Lorde sayd vnto Moses: Yf her father had spytte in her face, wolde she not be ashamed seuen dayes, let her be shutte forth of the hoste seuen dayes, and after that let her be receyued in agayne. And Marye was shut out of the hoste seuen dayes and the people remoued not, tyll she was broughte in agayne. And afterwarde, they remoued from Hazeroth, and pitched in the wilderneſſe of Pharan.

¶ Certayne are sende to searche the lande of Canaan: which bryngē with them a cluster of grapes for a signe of fruitfulnesse.

CAPI. XIII.

A And the Lorde spake there vnto Moses sayinge: ✠ Sende men oute to seeche the lande of Canaan, whiche I gyue vnto the chyldren of Israel: of euery tribe of theyr fathers a man: and let them all be such as are rulers among them. And Moses at the commaundement of the Lorde sent forthe of the wildernesse of Pharan, suche men as were al heedes among the children of Israel, whose names are these.

In the tribe of Ruben: Sammua the sonne of Zacur: In the tribe of Symeon, Saphat the sonne of Hori: In the tribe of Iuda, Caleph the sonne of Iephunne. In the tribe of Isachar, Igeal the sonne of Ioseph. In the tribe of Ephraim, Hosea the sonne of Nun. In the tribe of Wenjamin, Palthy the B sonne of Raphu. In the tribe of Zabulon, Gadiel the sonne of Sodi. In the tribe of Joseph: that was of Manasse, Gaddi the sonne of Suli. In the tribe of Dan, Amiel the sonne of Gemali. In the tribe of Aser, Sethur the sonne of Michael. In the tribe of Nephthali, Nahebi the sonne of Vophsi. In the tribe of Gad, Guel the sonne of Machi: These are the names of the men whiche Moses sent to espye out the lande. And Moses called the name of ✠ Hosea the sonne of Nun, Iosua. ✠ Hosea or Osee signifieth saynge or sauioure. Iosua or Jehosua signifieth the saluacion of the Lorde.

And Moses sent them forthe to espye oute the lande of Canaan, and sayde vnto them: get you southwarde, and go vp in to the high countrey, and se the lande what maner thinge it is, and the people that dwell therin: whether they be stronge or weyke, fewe or many e and what the land is that they dwel in, whether it be good or bad, & what maner of cities they dwell in, whether in tentes or walled townes, and what maner of lande it is: whether fatte or leane, and whether there be trees therin or not. And be of good courage, and brynge of the frutes of the lande. And it C was aboute the tyme that grapes are fyrste rype.

And they went vp and serched out the lande from the wyldernesse of Zin vnto Rehob, as men go to Hemath, and thei ascended vnto the south and came vnto Hebron, where Ahiman was and Sesai, and Thalmai the sonnes of Enacke. Hebron was buylt seuen yere before Zoan in Egypt. And they came vnto the riuer of Escol, and they cut downe there a braunche with one cluster of grapes, and bare it vpon a staffe betwene twayne, and also of the pomegranates, and of the fygges of the place. The ryuer was called Nebel, Escol, because of the cluster of grapes whiche the chyldren of Israel cut downe there.

And they turned backe agayne frome searchynge the lande at fourtye dayes ende. And they wente and came to Moses and Aaron D and vnto all the companye of the chyldren of Israel, vnto the wildernesse of Pharan, euen vnto Cades, and broughte them worde and also vnto all the congregacyon, and shewed them the frute of the lande. And they tolde him, sayinge: we came vnto the lande whyther thou sendest vs, and surely it is a lande that flowyth with mylke and honye, and here is of the frute of it. Neuertheles the people be stronge that dwell in the lande, and the cytyes are walled and exceadynge greate, and moreouer we sawe the chyldren of Enacke there.

That is to saye, replenished with all plentye and commodities

The Amalecckes dwell in the south countrey, and the Hethytes, Jebusytes and the Amorytes dwell in the mountayns, and the Cananytes dwell by the see, and alonge by the coste of Jordane.

And Caleb stylled the murmure of the people agaynst Moses, sayinge: let vs go vp and cõquere it, for we be able to ouercome it. But the men that went vp with him, said: We be not able to go vp agaynst the people, for they are stronger then we: And they broughte vp an euyll reaport of the lande which they had serched vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: The lande whiche we haue gone thorowe to serche it out, is a lande that eateth vp the inhabytauntes therof, and the people that we sawe in it are men of stature. And there we sawe also gyauntes, the chyldren of Enacke whiche are of the gyauntes. And we semed in our syghte as it were grashoppers, and so we dyd in theyr syght.

¶ The people desyearyng of commyng to the lande promysed, do murmure agaynste God, and wolde haue stoned Caleb and Josue, The searchers of the land dye. Amaleck ouerth the Israelites.

CAPI. XIIII.

1 AND all the companye cryed out, and the people wept thorowe out that nyght, and all the people of Israel murmured agaynst Moses and Aaron: sayinge. Wolde God we had dyed in the lande of Egypte, eyther we wolde we hadde dyed in this wyldernesse. Wherfore hath the Lorde brought vs vnto this lande to fall vpon the swerde, that both our wyues, and also our chyldren shulde be a praye? is it not better that we returne to Egypte agayne? And they sayd one to another: let vs make a Capitayne, and returne to Egypte agayne.

And Moses and Aaron hearyng this fel on their faces before all the multitude of the chyldren of Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun, & B Caleb the sonne of Jephone whiche were of them that serched the lande, rent their clothes and spake vnto all the company of the childre of Israel, saying. The lande which we walked thorowe to serche it, is a very good lande. If the Lorde haue lust to vs, he wyll bryng vs in to this lande, and gyue it vs, which is a lande that flowyth with mylke and honye. But in any wyse rebell not agaynst the Lorde. Moreouer feare ye not the people of the lande, for euen as bread, so may we deuour. Their shylde is departed from them, and the Lorde is with vs: feare them not therfore.

Ecclesi. xlvi. b
1. Mac. ii. f

And all the people bade stone them with stones. But the glorye of the Lorde appeared in the tabernacle of witnesse vnto al the childre of Israel. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses Howe longe shall this people raple vpon me, and howe longe wyll it be er they bleue me? for all my tygnes whiche I haue shewed amonges them? I wyll smyte them with the Pestylence and destroye them, and wyll make of the a greater nacion, and a myghtier then they.

And Moses sayd vnto the Lorde: then the Egyptians shall heare it, for thou broughtest this people with thy myghte from them. And they wyl be tolde to the inhabiters of this lande also, for they haue herde lykewyse that thou the Lorde arte amonge this people, and that thou arte sene face to face, and that thy cloude standeth ouer them, and that thou goest before them by daye tyme in a pyller of a cloude, and in a pyller of fire by nyght.

Yf thou shalte kyll all this people, as they were but one man, then the nacions whiche haue herde the fame of the wyll speake, sayinge: bycause the Lorde was not able to bryng in this people in to the lande which he sware vnto them, therfore he slew them in the wyldernesse.

So now let the power of my Lord be great accordynge as thou hast spoken, sayinge: the Lorde is longe er he be angrye, and ful of mercye, and sufferyth synne and trespace, and leaueth no man innocent, and visityth the vnrighteousnesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, euen vpon the thyrde and fourth generacion, be mercyfull I beseche the therfore vnto the synne of this people, accordynge vnto thy greate mercye, and accordynge as thou hast forgyuen this people from Egypte, euen vnto this place.

And the Lorde sayde: I haue forgyuen it, accordynge to thy request. But as truly as I lyue, all the earthe shall be fylled with my glorye. For of all those men whiche haue sene my glorye, and my myracles whiche I dyd in Egypte, and in the wyldernesse, and yet haue tempted me now this tenne tymes, & haue not herkened vnto my voyce, there shall not one se the lande whiche I sware vnto theyr fathers: neyther shall any of them that rayled vpon me, se it. But my seruaunt Caleb: bycause there is an other maner spirite with hym, and because he hathe folowed me: him I wyll bryng in to the lande whiche he hath walked in, and his seed shall conquere it, and also the Amaleckytes and Cananites whiche dwel in the lowe countreys. To morow turne you and get you in to the wildernesse: euen the waye towarde the red see.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayinge: how longe shall this euyll multytude murmure agaynst me: I haue herd the murmurynges of the chyldren of Israel, which they murmure agaynste me. Tell them that the Lorde sayethe: as truly as I lyue, I wyll doo vnto you euen as ye haue spoken in myne eares. Youre carkalles shall lye in the wyldernesse: neyther shall anye of these nombres whiche which were nombred frome twenty yere and aboue of you which haue murmured againste me come into the lande ouer which I lyfted * myne hande to make you dwel therin, saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune, and Josua the sonne of Nun.

And youre chyldren which ye sayde shulde be a praye, them I will bringe in, and they shall knowe the lande which ye haue refused, and youre carkales shall lye in this wyldernesse. And youre chyldren shall wandre in this wyldernesse. xl. yeres and suffre for youre whoredome vntyll youre carkelles be wasted in the wyldernesse, after the nombre of the dayes in which ye serched out the lande. xl. dayes, and euery day a yere: so that they shal beare your vnrighteousnes. xl. yere, and ye shall fele my vengeaunce, I the Lorde haue sayde that I will do it vnto all this cuyll congregacio that are gathered togyther against me: euē in this wyldernesse ye shalbe consumed, and here ye shall dye.

And the men which Moses sent to serche ỹ lande, and whiche (when they came agayne) made all the people to murmure agaynst it in that they broughte vp a sclaunder vpon the lande: dyed for their dyspleasure vp that cuyll sclaunder vpon it, and were plaged before ỹ Lorde. But Josua the sonne of Nun and Caleb the sonne of Jephune whiche were of the men that went to enserche the Lande, lyued styll. And Moses tolde these sayenges to all the children of Israel, & the people toke great sorowe.

And they rose vp early in the morynng and gat theym into the toppe of the mountayne, sayenge: lo we be here, and will go vp vnto the place of whiche the Lorde sayde, for we haue synned. And Moses sayd: wherfore wil ye go on this maner beyonde the worde of the Lorde? it wyll not come well to passe, go not vp (for the Lorde is not amonge you) least ye be slayne before your ennemyes. For the Amalechytes and the Cananytes are there before you, and ye wyl fal vpon the swerde, because ye are tourned away frome the Lorde, & therfore the Lorde will not be with you.

But they were blynded to goo vp in to the hyll toppe: Neuertheles, the arcke of the testamēt of the Lorde and Moses departed not out of the hoste. Then the Amalechytes and the Cananytes which dwelt in that hil, came dwne and smote them and hewed them: euen vnto Horma.

¶ The drynkoffrynges of them that enter in to the lande the punysshment of hym that synneth of arrogancy or pryde. The man is stoned that gathered stykes on the Saboth. Gardes must be made vpon the quarters of theyr garmetes.

CAPI. XV.

1 AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake vnto the children of Israel, and saye vnto theym: When ye be come into the lande of your habitation which I gyue vnto you, and will offre an offrynge vpon the fyre vnto the Lorde, whether it be a burntoffrynge or a specyall vowe or frewil offringe, or yf it be in youre principall feastes to make a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde, of ỹ oxen or of the flocke.

Then, let him that offreth his offrynge vnto ỹ Lorde, bryng also a meatoffrynge of a tenth deale of floure, myngled with ỹ fourth parte of an hin of oyle, and the fourth part of an hin of wyne for a drynkeoffrynge, and offer with the burntoffrynge or any other offrynge when it is a lambe. And vnto a Ram B thou shalt offer a meatoffrynge of .ij. tenth deales of floure, myngled with the thyrde parte of an hin of oyle, and to a drynkoffryng thou shalt offer the thirde parte of an hin of wyne, to be a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

When thou offerest an oxe to a burntoffrynge or in any special vowe or peaceoffring vnto the Lorde, then thou shalt bryng vnto an oxe, a meateoffringe of thre tenth deales of floure myngled with halfe an hin of oyle. And thou shalt bryng for a drynkeoffrynge halfe an hin of wyne, that is an offrynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. This is the C maner that shalbe done vnto one oxe, one Rā a lambe or a kydde. And accordynge to the nō bre of suche offrynges, thou shalte encrease the meatoffrynges and the drynkoffringes.

All that are of youre selues shall do these thinges after this maner, when he offreth an offringe of swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And yf there be a straunger with you or among you in your generacions, and will offer an offrynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde: euen as ye do, so he shall do. One ordynaunce shall serue both for you of the congregacion, and also for the straunger. And it shalbe an ordynaunce for euer amonge youre children after you, that the straunger and ye shalbe lyke before the Lorde. One lawe and one maner shall serue, bothe for you and for the straunger that dwelleth with you.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: speake vnto the children of Israel and saye vnto them: When ye be come into the lande whether I will bryng you, then when ye wil eate of the bread of the lande, ye shal gyue an heueoffrynge vnto the Lorde. Ye shall gyue a lake of the fyrst of your dowe vnto an heueoffrynge: as ye do the heueoffringe of ỹ barne euen so ye shall heue it. Of the fyrste of youre dowe ye must gyue vnto the Lorde an heueoffrynge, thorowout your generacions.

Yf ye ouerse your selues and obserue not al these commaundementes whiche the Lorde hath spoken vnto Moses, and all that the Lorde hathe commaunded you by the hande of Moses, frome the fyrst daye forwarde that the Lorde commaunded amonge youre generacion: when ought is committed ignorauntly before the eyes of the congregacion, then al the multitude shall offer a calfe for a burntoffringe to be a swete sauoure vnto ỹ Lorde, and the meatofferinge and the drynkeoffringe thereto, accordynge to the maner: and an he gote for a synneoffringe. And the preast shall make an attonement for all the multitude of the childre of Israel, and it shalbe forgyuen them them for it was ignorauncе. And they shall bringe their gyftes vnto the offeringe of the Lorde, and their synneoffringe before the Lorde for their ignorauncе. And it shalbe forgyuen vnto all the multitude of the children of Israel, and vnto the straunger that dwelleth amonges you: for the ignorauncе pertayneth vnto all the people.

D Yf any one soule synne thorow ignorauncе, he shall bringe a the gote of a yere olde for a synneoffringe. And the preaste shall make an attonement for the soule that synned vnwetyngly with the synneofferinge before the Lorde and make him at one, and it shalbe forgyuen him. And both thou that art borne one of the children of Israel & the straunger that dwelleth amonge you, shall haue bothe one lawe, yf ye synne vnwetingly.

And the soule that wyll oughte presumptuously, whether he be an Israelite or a straunger, the same hath despyted the Lorde. And ꝑ soule shall be destroyed out of his people, because he hath despysed the worde of the Lorde and hath broken his commaundementes, that soule therfore shall perysh and his synne shal be vpon him.

God punisheth them ꝑ dispyse his worde.

And whyle the children of Israel were in the wyldernesse, they founde a man gathering stickes vpon the Sabboth daye. And they that founde him gatheringe styckes, brought him vnto Moses and Aaron and vnto all the congregation: and they put hym in warde, for it was not declared what shoulde be done vnto hym. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: the man shall dye: let al the multitude stone him with stones forth of the host. And all the multitude brought him without the hoste & stoned him with stones, and he dyed as the Lorde commaunded Moses.

Eardes. Deute. xxii. b

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to the children of Israell, and byd the, they make them gardes on the quarters of their garmentes thorow out their generatiõs and let them make the gardes of rybandes of Iacynct. And the garde shall be vnto you, to loke vpon it, that ye remembre all the commaundementes of the Lorde and do them: that ye seke not a waye after youre owne hertes, and after your owne eyes, to go a hooring after them: but that ye remembre and do all my commaundementes, and be holye vnto youre God, for I am the Lorde youre God, whyche brought you oute of the lande of Egypte to be your God. I am the Lorde God.

¶ The rebellion and resistaunce of Corah Dathan and Abiram. The erth opened and swalowed them vp.

CAPI. XVI.

A Nd * Corah the sonne of Jezehar, the sonne of Cahath, the sonne of Leui, & Dathan, and * Abiram the sonne of Eliab, and On the sonne of Peleth, the sonne of Ruben: stode vp before Moses, with other of the children of Israel. ij. hundred and fyfty heades of the congregation, and counsailoures and men of fame, and they gathered them selues togyther against Moses and Aaron, and sayde vnto them: ye haue wone ynoughe. For all the multitude are holy euery one of them and the Lorde is amonge them. Why therfore auaunce ye your selfes aboue the congregation of the Lordes.

When Moses herde it, he fell vpõ his face and spake vnto Corah and vnto all his companye, sayenge: to morowe the Lorde wyll shewe who is his, and who is holy, and will take them vnto him, & whome so euer he hath chosen, he will cause to come to him. This do: take fyrepannes, thou Corah and all thy cõpanye, and do fyre therin and put cens therto before the Lorde to morowe. And then whõ so euer the Lorde wyll chose, the same is holye. Ye make ynoughe to do ye chyldren of Leui.

And Moses sayde vnto Corah: heare ye children of Leui, Semeth it but a smal thinge vnto you, that the God of Israell hath seuered you from the multitude of Israel to bring you to him, to do the seruyce of the tabernacle of the Lorde, and to stande before the people to minister vnto them? he hath taken the to him and all thy brethren the sonnes of Leui with the, and ye seke thoffice of the preast also. For which cause both thou and all thy cõpany are gathered togither against the Lord: for what is Aaron, that ye shoulde murmure against hym.

And Moses sent to call Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab, and they answered, we will not come. Semeth it a small thinge vnto the that thou hast brought vs oute of a lande that floweth with mylke and hony, to kyll vs in the wyldernesse? but that thou shuldest raygne ouer vs also? Moze ouer thou hast brought vs vnto no lande that floweth with mylke and hony, neyther hast gyuen vs possessions of feldes or of vynes. Cyther wilte thou pull out the eyes of these men? we wyll not come.

And Moses waxed verye angrye and sayde vnto the Lorde: Turne not vnto their offrinyges. I haue not taken so moche as an asse frõ them, neyther haue vexed any of them. Then Moses sayde vnto Corah: Be thou and all thy companye before the Lorde: bothe thou they and Aaron to morowe. And take euerye man his cẽser and put cens in them, and come before the Lorde euery man with his censer: two hundred and fyfty censers, and Aaron with his censer. And they toke euery man his censer and put fyre in theym and layde cens theron, and stode in the wze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and Moses and Aaron also. And Corah gathered all the congregation againste them vnto the wozе of the tabernacle of wytnesse.

And the glory of the Lorde appeared vnto all the congregation. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron, sayenge: seuer your selues frome this congregation, that I maye consume them at once. And they fell vpõ their faces, and sayde. * O most myghtye God of the spirites of all flesh, one man hath synned and wilte thou be wrothe with all the multitude? And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge:

enge: speake vnto the congregation and say: Get you away frõ ỹ tẽtes of Corah, Dathã & Abiram. And Moses arose vp and went vnto Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israel folowed him. And he spake vnto the congregation, sayenge: departe frome the tentes of these vngodly men, and touche not thinge of theirs: least ye perysshe in all their synnes. And they gat them frome the tentes of Corah, Dathan and Abiram on euery syde. And Dathan and Abiram came oute and stode in ỹ wozе of their tentes with their wyues, their sonnes and their children.

D And Moses sayde: Hereby ye shall knowe that the Lorde hathe sent me to wo all these wozkes, and that I haue not wone them of of myne owne hed: Yf these men dye the cõmen death of all men, or yf they be vysited after the visitation of all men, then the Lorde hath not sent me. But yf the Lorde make a E newe thinge, and the earth open hir mouthe and swalowe them, and all that pertayne vn to them, so that they go downe quycke into hell: then ye shall vnderstande, that these mẽ haue rayled vpon the Lorde.

And as sone as he had made an ende of spekynge all these wordes, the grounde cloue a sonder that was vnder them, and the earthe Nũb. xvi. a. opened her mouthe and swalowed them and their houses and all the men that were with Corah and all their goodes. And they and al that pertayned vnto them, went downe alyue vnto hell, and the earthe closed vpon them, and they perysshed awaye frome the congregation. And al Israel that were aboute them fled at the crye of them. For they sayde: The earth mighte happely swalowe vs also. And there came out a fyre frome the Lorde and cõsumed the two hundred and fyfty men that offred incens.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: Speake to Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preast and let him take vp the censers out of the burnynge and scatter the fyre here & there, for the censers of these synners are halowed in their deathes: and let them be beaten into thynne plates and fastened vpon the altare. For they offred them before the Lorde, & therfore they are holye and they shalbe a signe vn to the children of Israel.

And Eleazar the preast toke the brasen censers, which they that were burnt had offered, F and beat them and fastened them vppon the altare, to be a remembraunce vnto the children of Israel, that no straunger which is not of the seed of Aaron, come nere to offer incese before the Lorde, that he be not made lyke vn to Corah and his cõpany: as the Lorde sayd vnto him by the hande of Moses.

And on the morowe all the multitude of ỹ children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron, sayenge: ye haue kylled the people of the Lorde. And when the multitude was gathered against Moses and Aarõ, they loked towarde the tabernacle of wytnesse. And beholde, the cloude had couered it and ỹ glory of the Lorde appeared. And Moses and Aaron went before the tabernacle of wytnes.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Get you frome this congregatiõ, that I may consume them quyckely. And they fell vpon their faces.

And Moses sayde vnto Aaron: take a censer and put fyre therin oute of the altare, and powre on incens, and go quickely vnto the cõgregation and make an attonemẽt for them. G Sapi. xviii. d For there is wrathe gone out from the Lorde and there is a plage begonne. And Aarõ toke as Moses commaunded him, and ran vnto ỹ congregation: and beholde, the plage was begonne among the people, and he put on incens, and made an attonement for the people. And he stode betwene the deed, and them ỹ Expeure of Christe. that were alyue, and the plage ceased. And the nombre of them that dyed in the plage, were. xiiij. thousande and seuen hundred: besyde them that dyed about the busynes of Corah. And Aaron went agayn vnto Moses vn to the wze of the tabernacle of witnesse, and the plage ceased.

¶ Aarons rodde budded and beareth blossomes.

CAPI. XVII.

A Nd the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: speake to the children of Israell A and take of them, for euery principall house a rod, of their rynces ouer the houses of their fathers: euen. xij. roddes, and wryte euery mans name vpon his rod. And wryte Aarons name vpon the staffe of Leui: for euery heedmã ouer the houses of their fathers shall haue a rod. And put them in the tabernacle of wytnesse where I will mete you. And his rod whome I chose, shall blossome: B So I will make cease frome me the grudgynges of the children of Israel which they grudge against you.

And Moses spake vnto the children of Israel, & all the rinces gaue him for euery rince ouer their fathers houses, a rod: euen. xij. rodes, and the rodde of Aaron was amonge the roddes. And Moses put the roddes before C the Lorde in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And on the morowe, Moses went into the tabernacle: and beholde * the rod of Aaron of the D1 * Ebre. ix. b. house of Leui was budded and bare blossomes and almondes. So Moses brought out all the roddes whiche were before the Lorde, D vnto all the children of Israel, and they loked vpon them, and toke euerye man his rodde.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: bringe Aarons rod agayne before the wytnesse to be kept for a token vnto the children of rebellio, that their murmurynges may cease from me, that they dye not. And Moses dyd as ỹ Lord commaunded him. And the children of Israel spake vnto Moses, sayenge: beholde, we are destroyed and all come to noughte: for whoso euer commeth nyghe the dwellynge of the Lorde, dyeth. Shall we vtterly consume awaye?

¶ The

¶ The office of the Leuites. The tythes and fyrste frutes must be gyuen them. Aarons heritage.

CAPI. XVIII.

a AND the Lorde sayd vnto Aaron. Thou and thy sonnes and thy fathers house with the, shall beare the faute of that whiche is done amysse in the holy place. And thou and thy sonnes with the, shal beare the faute of that whiche is done amysse in youre preasthode. And thy brethren also the tribe of Leui, the trybe of thy father take with the, & let them be ioyned vnto the and minister vnto the. And thou & thy sonnes with the, shall minister before the tabernacle of wytnesse. And let them warte vpon the and vpon all ℈ tabernacle: onely let them not come nyghe ℈ holy vessels and the altare, that bothe they & ye also dye not. And let theym be by the, and wayte on the tabernacle of wytnesse, and on all the seruice of the tabernacle, and let no straunger come nyghe vnto you.

Wayte therfore vpon the holy place & vpō the altare, that there fall no more wrath vpō the childzen of Israel: beholde, I haue taken your brethren the Leuites forth of the childrē of Israel, to be yours, as gyftes gyuen vnto the Lorde to do the seruice of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And se that both thou and thy sonnes with the take hede vnto your preastes office, in all thinges that pertayne vnto the altare and within the vayle. And se ye serue, for I haue gyuen your preastes office vnto you for a gyfte to do seruice: and the straunger that commeth nyghe, shall dye.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aaron: beholde I haue gyuen the the keypynge of myne heueoffrynges in all the halowed thinges of ℈ childzen of Israel. And vnto the I haue gyuē thē vnto annoyntynge and to thy sonnes: to be a b dutye for euer. This shall be thyne of moofte holy sacrifices. All their gyftes, thorow oute all their meatoffrynges, synneoffrynges, and trespaceoffringes which they bringe vnto me. They shalbe most holy vnto the and vnto thy sonnes. And ye shall eate it in the moste holy place: all that are males shall eate of it, for it shalbe holy vnto the.

And this shalbe thyne: the heueoffrynges of their gyftes, thorow out all the waueoffrynges of the childzen of Israel, for I haue gyuen theym vnto the, and thy sonnes, and thy doughters with the to be a dutye for euer: & all that are cleane in thy house, shall eate of it, all the fat of the oyle, of the wyne and of ℈ corne: their first frutes which they gyue vnto the Lorde, haue I gyuen vnto the. The first frutes of all that is in their landes, whyche they bringe vnto the Lorde, shall be thyne: and all that are cleane in thyne house, shall eate of it.

Al dedicate thinges in Israel, shalbe thyne.
c All that breaketh the matrice of all flesche ℈ men bringe vnto the Lorde, both of man and beast, shall be thyne. Neuertheleſſe the firſte borne of man shall be redemed, and the firſte borne of vncleane beastes shall be redemed.
And their redemptions shall be at a moneth olde, valued at fyue sycles of syluer, of the holy sycle. A sycle maketh twentye Geras. But the firſt borne of oxen, sheepe and goates shall not be redemed. For they are holy, and thou shalt sprynkle their bloude vpon the altare, & shalt burne their fat to be a sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde.

And the flesche of them shalbe thyne, as ℈ wauebreast and all the eyght shulder is thyne all the holy heueoffringes which the childzen of Israel heue vnto the Lorde, I gyue the & thy sonnes and thy doughters with the to be a dutye for euer. And it shall be a salted couenaunt for euer, before the Lorde: vnto the & to thy seed with the.

And the Lorde spake vnto Aarō: thou shalt haue none enheritaūce in their land nor parte amonge them. For I am thy parte and thy enheritaunce amonge the childzen of Israel. And beholde I haue gyuen the childzen of Leui, the tenth in Israel to enheryte, for the seruice which they serue in the tabernacle of witnes, that the childzen of Israel henceforth come not nyghe the tabernacle of wytnesse, & beare synne and dye. And the Leuites shall do the seruice in the tabernacle of witnesse and beare their synne, and it shalbe a lawe for euer vnto your childzen after you: But amonge the childzen of Israel they shall enheret none enheritaunce. For the tythes of the childzen of Israel whiche they heue vnto the Lorde, I haue gyuen the Leuites to enheret. Wherfore I haue sayde vnto thē: Amonge the childzen of Israel, ye shall enheret none enheritaunce.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayenge: speake vnto the Leuites, and saye vnto them: when ye take of the childzen of Israel the tythes which I haue gyuen you of them to youre enheritaunce, ye shall take an heueoffringe of that same for the Lorde: euen the tenthe of ℈ tythe. And it shalbe reckned vnto you for youre heueofferinge, euen as thoughe ye gaue corne out of the barne or a fulloffringe frō the wyne pzesse.

And in this maner ye shall heue an heueoffringe vnto the Lorde, of al your tythes whiche ye receyue of the childzen of Israel, and ye shall gyue therof the Lordes heueoffringe vnto Aaron the preaste. Of all youre gyftes, ye shall take out the Lordes heueoffringe: euen the fat of all their halowed thinges.

And thou shalte saye vnto them: when ye haue take awaye the fat of it frome it, it shal be counted vnto the Leuites, as the encrease of corne and wyne. And ye shall eate it in all places both ye and your housholdes, for it is your rewarde for youre seruice in the tabernacle of wytnesse. And ye shal beare no synne by the reason of it, when ye haue taken frome it the fat of it: neyther shall ye vnhalowe the halowed thinges of the childzen of Israel, and so shall ye not dye.

¶ Of the redde kowe. The lawe of him that dyeth in the tabernacle: and of him also that toucheth any vncleane thynge.

CAPI. XIX.

And

a AND the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron sayenge: this is the ordinaunce of the lawe which the Lorde commaūdeth, sayenge: speake vnto the childzen of Israel and let theym take the a red kowe without spot whiche neuer bare yocke vpon her. And ye shall gyue her vnto Eleazar the preast and he shall bringe her without the host and cause her to be slayne before him.

And Eleazar the preaste shall take of her bloude vpon his fynger, & sprynkle it streyght towarde the tabernacle of wytnes. vij. tymes. And he shal cause the kowe to be burnt in his sight: both skynne, flesche and bloude, with the dunge also. And let the preast take Cedar woode, and Isope and purple clothe, and cast it vpon the kowe as the burneth. And let the preast walsche his clothes and bathe his flesche in water, and then come into the hoste, & the preast shalbe vncleane vnto the euen.

And he that burneth her, shall walsche his b clothes in water and bathe his flesche also in water, and be vncleane vntyll euen. And one that is cleane, shall go and take vp the asshes of the kowe, and put them without the hoste in a cleane place, where they shall be kept to make sprynkynge water for the multitude of the childzen of Israel: for it is a synneoffring. And let him that gathered the asshes of the kowe, walsche his clothes, and remayne vncleane vntyll euen. And this shall be vnto the childzen of Israel and vnto the straūger that dwelleth amonge them, a lawe for euer.

c He that toucheth any deed persone, shalbe vncleane seuen dayes. And he shal purify him selfe with the asshes the thyrde daye, and so he shalbe cleane the seuenth daye. And yf he purifye not him selfe the thyrde daye, then ℈ seuenth daye, he shall not be cleane. Whosoeuer toucheth anye persone that dyeth and sprinkleth not him selfe, defyleth the dwellynge of the Lorde: and therfore that soule shall perysshe out of Israel, because he hathe not sprinkled the sprynklynge water vpō him, he shalbe vncleane, and his vnclennesse shall remayne vppon him.

This is the lawe of the man that dyeth in a tent: all that come into the tēt and al that is in the tent, shalbe vncleane seuen dayes.
And all the vessels that be open whiche haue no lyd nor couerynge vpon them, are vncleane. And who so euer toucheth one that is slayne with a swerde in the feldes, or a dead persone, or a bone of a dead man, or a graue: shall be vncleane seuen dayes.

d And they shall take for an vncleane person of the burnt asshes of the synneoffringe, and put runnynge water therto into a vessell. And a cleane persone shal take Isope and dyppe it in the water, and sprynkle it vpon the tent & vpon all the vessels and on the soules that were there, and vpō him that touched a bone or a slayne persone or a dead body or a graue. And the cleane person shall sprynkle vpon the vncleane the. iij. daye and the. vij. daye. And the. vij. daye he shall purify him selfe & walsche his clothes and bathe him selfe in water, and shalbe cleane at euen.

Yf any be vncleane and sprynkle not hym selfe the same soule shalbe destroyed forth of the congregacion: for he hath defyled the holy place of the Lorde and is not sprynkled vō sprynklynge water, therfore is he vncleane.
And this shalbe a perpetual lawe vnto them. And he that sprinkleth the sprynklynge water, shall walsche his clothes.

And he that toucheth the sprynklynge water, shall be vncleane vntyll euen. And what so euer the vncleane persone toucheth, shall be vncleane. And the soule that toucheth it, shalbe vncleane vntyll the euen.

¶ Mirjam dyeth. The people murmure. They haue water euen oute of the rocke. Edom denyeth the Israelites passage thorow his realme. The deth of Aaron in whose roume Eleazar succedeth.

CAPI. XX.

a AND the hole multitude of the childzen of Israel, came into the desert of Sin in the first moneth, & the people dwelt at Cades. And there dyed Mirje, and was buryed there. Moreouer there was no water for the multitude, wherfore they gathered them selues togither against Moses and Aaron.
And the people chode with Moses and spake, sayenge: wolde God we had perysshed, when Exodi. xvii. b our brethrē perysshed before the Lorde. Why haue ye brought the congregaciō of the Lord vnto this wyldernesse, that both we and our catell shulde dye here? Wherfore brought ye vs out of Egypte to bringe vs into this vngracious place, which is no place of seed nor of figges nor vines nor of pomgranates, neither is there any water to drynke?

And Moses and Aaron went frome the congregacion vnto the doore of the tabernacle of b wytnesse, and fell on their faces. And the glory of the Lorde appeared vnto them. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Take the staffe, and gather thou and thy brother Aaron the congregacion togyther, and saye vnto the rocke before their eyes, that he gyue forth his water. And thou shalt bringe them water out of the rocke and shalt gyue the cōpany drynke and their beastes also.

And Moses toke the staffe frome before the Lorde, as he commaunded him. And Moses & Sapien. xii. a Aaron gathered the congregacion togyther before the rocke, and he sayde vnto thē, heare ye rebellyons, muste we fet you water oute of Psal. lxxvi. b this rocke? And Moses lyfte vp his hande vō his staffe and smote the rocke. ij. tymes, and the water came out abundantly, and the multitude dranke and their beastes also.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aarō because ye beleued me not, to sanctifie me in ℈ Deute. i. c eyes of the childzen of Israel, therfore ye shal not bringe this congregacion into the lande which I haue gyuen them. This is the water of stryfe, because the childzen of Israel stroue with the Lorde, and he was sanctifyed vpon them.

And Moses sent messengers frome Cades vnto the kynge of Edom. Thus sayth thy bro ther Israel: Thou knowest all the trauell ℈ hath hathe happened vs, howe oure fathers went dwne into Egypte, and how we haue dwelt in Egypte a longe tyme, and how the Egyptians vexed bothe vs and our fathers. Then we cryed vnto the Lorde, and he herde oure

voyces, and sent an aungell and hathe fet vs out of Egypte. And beholde, we are in Cades a cyty harde by the borders of thy cõtrey, let *Num.xxi.c vs go we pray the thorow thy cõtrey we wil
not go thorow the feldes nor thorow ꝑ vyneyardes, nether will we drinke of the water of ꝑ fountaynes, but we wil go by the hye way & nether turne vnto the righthand nor to the left, vntyll we be past thy countreye. And Edom answered him: Se thou come not by me,
lest I come out agaynst the with the swerde.
And the chyldren of Israel sayde vnto him:
we wyll goo by the beaten waye: and yf eyther we or oure cattell drynke of thy water, we wyll paye for it, we wyll do no more but passe thorowe by fote onely. And he sayde:
D ye shall not go thorow. And Edom came out agaynst him with moche people and with a myghtye power. And thus Edom denyed to gyue Israel passage thorowe his countreye.
And Israel turned awaye frome him.

And the children of Israel remoued frome Cades and wente vnto mount Hor with all the companye. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses and Aaron in mounte Hor, whiche is vpon the borders of the lande of Edom, sayinge: let Aaron be put vnto his people, for he shall not come into the lande whiche I haue gyuen vnto the children of Israel: because ye disobeyed my mouth at the water of stryfe.
Deut.xxxii.g Take Aarõ and Eleazar his sonne, and bringe
them vp into mount Hor, and stryppe Aaron
out of his vestimentes and put theym vpon Eleazar his sonne, and let Aaron be put vnto
his people and dye there.

The death of Aaron. Deute.xxvi.b. And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded:
and they went vp into mount Hor in ꝑ sight
of all the multitude. And Moses toke of Aarons clothes and put them vpon Eleazar his sonne, and Aaron dyed there in the toppe of the mount. And Moses & Eleazar came dwn out of the mount. And all the house of Israel mourned for Aaron. xxx. dayes.

¶ Israel vanquyssheth kyng Arad. The fyrye serpentes stynge them: but when they loke at the brasen serpent whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses to lyft vp, they are healed. The kynges, Sehon and Og are ouercome in batell.

CAPI. XXI.

A And when kynge Arad the Cananite,
whiche dwelt in the south partyes,
herde tel that Israel came by the way that the espyes had founde out, he came and foughte with Israel and toke some of them prysonners. Then Israel vowed a vowe vnto the Lorde, and sayde: Yf thou wilt gyue
this people into our handes, we will destroye
their cyties. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Israel, and delyuered vnto theym the Cananytes. And they destroyed both them and their cyties, and called the place Horma.

Then they departed frome mount Hor to-
B warde the red see: to compasse the lande of Edom. And the soules of the people faynted
by the waye. And the people spake agaynste God and agaynst Moses: Wherfore hast thou brought vs out of Egypte, for to dye in the wyldernesse, for here is neyther bread nor water, and oure soules lothe this * lighte bred.
Then the Lorde sent fyrye serpentes amõg
the people, which stonge them: so that moch people dyed in Israel. And the people came to Moses, and sayde: we haue synned, for we haue spoken agaynst the Lord and agaynst
the, make intercession to the Lorde, that he take awaye the serpentes frome vs. And Mo ses made intercession for the people. And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: make the a serpent and hange it vp for a signe, and let as manye
as are byten loke vpon it, and they shall lyue.
And Moses made a serpent of brasse, and set it vp for a signe. And when the serpentes had byten any man, he went and beheilde the serpent of brasse and recouered.

And the chyldren of Israel remoued & pyt-ched in Oboth. And they departed frome O-both and laye at Egebarim in the wyldernes whiche is before Moab on the eastsyde. And they remoued thence, and pytched vpon the ryuer of Zarad. And they departed thence & pytched on the other syde of Arnon, whiche
ryuer is in the wyldernesse, and commeth out of the costes of the Ammorites: for Arnon is the border of Moab, betwene Moab and the Ammorytes. Wherfore it is spoken in the * booke of the warre of the Lorde: goo with a violence, both on the ryuer of Arnon and on the ryuers heed, whiche shooteth dwne to dwell at Ar, and leaneth vpon the costes of Moab.

And frome thence they came to Beer, whi-
che is the well, whereof the Lorde spake vnto Moses: gather the people togither, that I may gyue them water. Thẽ Israel sange this songe: Aryse vp well, synge therto: The wel
which the rulers dygged and the cappytaynes
of the people with the helpe of the lawgyuer
and with their staues.

And frome this wyldernesse they went to Matana, and frome Matana to Nahaliel, & frome Nahaliel to Bamoth, and frome Ba-moth to the valay that is in the felde of Moab in the toppe of * Phasgah which boweth towarde * Jesimon. And Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon, kynge of the Ammorites,
sayenge: let vs go thorow thy lande: we wil
not turne into thy feldes nor into thy vyneyardes, ne drynke of the water of the welles:
but goo alonge by the commen waye, vntyll
we be past thy countreye. And Sehon wolde gyue Israell no lycence to passe thorowe his countreye, but gathered all his people togyether and made out agaynst Israel into the wil dernesse. And he came to Jaheza and foughte with Israel.

And Israel smote him with the edge of the swerde and conquered his lande, frome Arnõ
vnto Jabock: euen vnto the children of Ammon. For the borders of the children of Ammon,

F mon, are strounge. And Israel toke all these cytes, and dwelt in all the cytes of the Am-morites / in Hesbon / and in all the townes therevnto belongynge. For Hesbon was the cytie of Sehon the kynge of the Ammorites,
who had fought before with the kynge of the Moabytes, and had taken all his lande forth
of his hande, euen vnto Arnon. Wherfore it is a prouerbe, go to Hesbon and let the cytie
of Sehon be buylt and made redy, for there is a fyre gone forth of Hesbon and a flame frome
the cytie of Sehon, and hath consumed Ar of the Moabites, and the men of the hylles of Arnon. Wo to the Moab: o people of Cha-G mos ye are vndone. His sonnes are put to flyghte, and his dughters brought captyue vnto Sehon kynge of the Ammorites. Their lyght is out frome Hesbon vnto Dibon, and we made a wyldernesse cuẽ vnto Nopha whiche reacheth vnto Medeba. And thus Israel dwelt in the lande of the Amorites. And Moses sent to serche out Jazer, and they toke ꝑ
townes belongynge therto, and conquered ꝑ
Amorites that were there.

And then they turned and went vp toward Basan. And Og the kyng of Basan came out against them, bothe he and all his people, to warre at Adrei. And the Lorde sayd vnto Mo ses: feare him not, for I haue delyuered him into thy handes with all his people and his land. And thou shalt w with him as thou dyd with Sehon the kynge of the Amorites, which dwelt at Hesbon. And they smote him and his sonnes and all his people, tyll there was nothinge left him. And they conquered his lande, and the children of Israel remoued & pytched in the feldes of Moab, on the other syde of Jordan, by Jericho.

¶ Kynge Balac sendeth for Balam, to curse Israel: but Balam can do nothynge agaynst the will of the Lorde, Balams asse speaketh to him in the waye.

CAPI. XXII.

A And Balac the sonne of Ziphor sawe al
that Israel had vowe to the Amorites, and the Moabites were sore afrayed of the people, because they were many, and abhorred the children of Israel: And Moab sayd vnto the elders of Madian, nowe shall this company lycke vp al that are roundeabout vs
as an oxe lycketh vp the grasse of the felde.
And Balac the sonne of Ziphor was kynge
of the Moabites at that tyme.

And he sent messangiers vnto * Balam the sonne of Beor, the ꝑ interpreter which dwelt vpon the ryuer of the lande of the children of his folke, to call him, sayenge: Behold, there is a people come out of Egypte whiche cou-ereth the face of the earth and lyeth euen hard by me. Come nowe I praye the, and curse me this people. For they are to myghtye for me/
so peraduenture I myghte be able to smyte
them, and to dryue them out of the lande.
For I wote that whom thou blessest, shall be blessed, and whome thou cursest shall be cursed.

And the elders of Moab went with the elders of Madian, hauinge the rewarde of the sothesayenge in their handes. So they came vnto Balam and tolde him the wordes of Ba lac. And he sayde vnto thẽ, tary here al night and I will bringe you worde, euen as ꝑ Lorde shall saye vnto me. And the lordes of Moab abode with Balam.

And God came vnto Balam & sayd: What E
men are these which are with the? And Bala sayde vnto God: Balac the sonne of Zipho
kynge of Moab hath sent vnto me, sayenge:
Beholde, there is a people come forth of Egypte and coureth the face of the earth: come now therfore and curse me them, that so peraduenture I may be able to ouercome them in batell, and to dryue them out. God sayde vnto Balam: thou shalte not go with them,
neyther curse the people for they are blessed.

So Balam rose vp in the morynge & sayd vnto the lordes of Balac: Get you vnto your lande, for the Lorde will not suffre me to go with you. And the lordes of Moab rose vp & went vnto Balac and sayd. Balam wold not come with vs. And Balac sent agayne a greater company of Lordes, and more honorable then they. And they came to Balam and told him: Thus sayth Balac the sonne of Zipho
Oh, let nothinge let the, to come vnto me, for
I will highly auaũce the vnto great honour,
and will w what so euer thou sayest vnto me,
come therfore I praye the, curse me this people.

And Balam answered and sayde vnto the *Nu.xxiiii.c
seruauntes of Balac. * Yf Balac wold gyue D me his house full of syluer and golde, I can go
no further, then the worde of the Lorde my God, to w lesse or more. Neuerthelesse tarye ye here all night: that I maye were, what ꝑ Lorde wil saye vnto me ones more. And God came vnto Balam by nighte and sayde vnto him: Yf the men come to fet the, aryse vp and go with them: but what I say vnto the, that onely thou shalt w.

And Balam arose vp earely, and sadled his
asse, and went with the Lordes of Moab.
But God was angrye because he went. And the aungell of the Lorde stode in the waye against him. And he ryd vpon his asse and two seruauntes with him. And when the asse sawe
the aungell of the Lorde stande in the waye &
his swerde drawen in his hande, she turned a syde oute of the waye, and went out into the felde. And Balam smote the asse, to turne her into the waye.

And the aungell of the Lorde went & stode E in a path betwene ꝑ vyneyardes, where was a wall on the one syde and an other on the other. When the asse sawe the aungell of the Lorde, she wrenched vnto the wal and thrust Balams fote vnto the wall, and he smote her agayne. But the aungell of the Lorde wente further, & stode in a narow place, where was no waye to turne, eyther to the righthand or to the lyft. And when the asse saw the angell of the Lorde, she fell dwne vnder Balam: & Balam was wroth and smote the asse with a staffe. And the Lorde opened the mouth of Balams asse speaketh.

the Asse, and she sayde vnto Balam: What haue I done vnto the, that thou smytest me thus thre tymes? And Balam sayde vnto the Asse: because thou hast mocked me? I wolde that I hadde a swerde in myne hande, that I myght now kyll the. And the Asse sayde vnto Balam: am not I thyne Asse which thou hast ryden vpon sythes thou wast borne vnto this daye? Was I euer wont to do so vnto the? And he sayde, naye.

And the Lorde opened the eyes of Balam, that he sawe the angell of the Lorde standing in the waye, with his swerde drawen in his hande. And he bowed him self and fell flat on his face. And the aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto him: Wherfore smytest thou thyne asse thus thre tymes? Beholde I came oute to resist the, for thy waye is frowarde and contrary vnto me, and the Asse saw me and auoyded me three tymes: or else (hadde she not turned frome me) I had surely slayne the and saued her alyue. And Balam sayde vnto the aungell of the Lorde: I haue synned: for I wist not that thou stodest in the way against me. Now therfore yf it displease thyne eyes, I wil turne againe. And the aungell sayde vnto Balam, go with the men: but in anye wyse, what I saye vnto the, that saye. And Balam went wt the lordes of Balac.

G And when Balac herde that Balam was come, he went out against him vnto a cytie of Moab that stode in the border of Arnon, whiche was the vttermost parte of his countrey. And Balac sayd vnto Balam: dyd I not sende for the, to call the? wherfore camest thou not vnto me? thinkeste thou I am not hable to promote the vnto honoure? And Balam sayd vnto Balac: Lo I am come vnto the. But I can saye nothinge at all, saue what God putteth in my mouthe, that muste I speake. And Balam went with Balac, and they came vnto the large cytie. And Balac offred oxen and shepe, and sent for Balam and for the lordes that were with him.

¶ Balam blesseth the people, where he was requyred to curse them and prophesieth that they shall be a greate people.

CAPI. XXIII.

A And on the morynge, Balac toke Balam, and brought him vp into ỹ hyghe place of Baal, and thence he sawe vnto the vttermost parte of the people. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: buylde me here seuen altares and prouyde here seuen bullockes and seuen Rammes. And Balac dyd as Balã sayd. So Balac and Balam offred on euery altare a bullocke and a Ram. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: stande by the sacrifice, whyle I go to wete whether the Lorde will come and mete me, and what so euer he sheweth me, I wyll tell the, and he wente forthwith. And God came vnto Balam, and Balam sayd vnto him I haue prepared seuen altares, and haue offred vpon euery altare, a bullocke and a ram. And ỹ Lorde put a sayeng in Balams mouth and sayde: goo agayne to Balac and saye on this wyse. And he went agayne vnto him and lo, he stode by his sacrifice, both he and al the lordes of Moab. And he began his parables sayde: Balac the kynge of Moab hath set me frome Mesopotamia out of the mountaynes of the East, sayenge: Come and curse me Jacob, come and defye me Israel. How shall I curse whome God curseth not, and how shal I defye whome the Lorde defyeth not? from the toppe of the rockes I se him and from the hylles I beholde him: loo, the people shall dwell by him selfe and shall not be reckened amonge other nations. Who can tell the dust of Jacob, and the nombre of the fourth parte of Israel. I praye God my soule may dye the death of the ryghteous, and that my last ende maye be lyke his. And Balac sayde vnto Balam, What hast thou done vnto me? I dyd fet the to curse myne enemyes: and behold thou blessest theym. And he aunswered and sayde: must I not kepe that and speake it, whiche ỹ Lorde hathe put in my mouthe? And Balac sayde vnto him: Come I praye the with me vnto an other place whence thou shalte se thẽ and shalt se but the vttermoste parte of them and shalt not se them all, and curse me theym there. And he brought him into a playne feld, where men myght se farre, euen to the toppe of Phasgah, and buylt seuen altares and offred a bullocke and a Ram on euery altare. And he sayde vnto Balac: stande here by thy sacrifice, whyle I go yonder. And the Lorde met Balam, & put wordes in his mouth, and sayde: go agayne vnto Balac, and thus saye. And when he came to him: beholde, he stode by his sacrifice and the lordes of Moab with him. And Balac sayde vnto him: What sayth the Lorde?

And he toke vp his parable and sayde: ryse vp Balac and heare, and herken vnto me thou sonne of Ziphor. The Lorde is not a man, ỹ he can lye, neyther the sonne of man, that he can repent: shulde he saye and not do, or should he speake and not make it good? Beholde, I haue begon to blesse and haue blessed, and can not go backe therfro. He beholde no wickednesse in Jacob nor sawe Idolatrye in Israel: The Lorde his God is with him, and the triumphe of a kynge amonge theym. God that brought thẽ out of Egypte, is as the strength of an vnycorne vnto them, for there is no sorcerer, in Jacob, nor sothsayer in Israel. Whē the tyme commeth, it will be sayde of Jacob and of Israel, what God hath wrought. Beholde, the people shall ryse vp as a lyonesse & heue vp him selfe as a lyon, and shall not lye dowe agayne, vntyll he haue eaten of the praye and dronke of the bloude of them that are slayne.

And Balac sayde vnto Balã: neyther curse them nor blesse them. And Balam answered and sayde vnto Balac / tolde not I the sayenge / all that the Lorde byddeth me, that I must do? And Balac sayde vnto Balam / come I praye the, I will bringe the yet vnto an other place / so peraduenture it shal please God that thou mayst curse them there. And Balac broughte Balam vnto the toppe of Peor, that that boweth towarde the wyldernesse. And Balam sayde vnto Balac / make me here. vij. altares, and prepare me here. vij. bullockes & vij. Rammes. And Balac dyd as Balam had sayde, and offered a bullocke and a Ram on euery altare.

¶ Balam prophesyeth of the kyngdome of Israel and of the commynge of Christe. Balac is angrye with Balam. The destruccion of the Amelickites and of the kenytes.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A When Balam sawe that it pleased the Lorde that he shoulde blesse Israel, he went not as he dyd twyse before to fet sothsayenge, but set his face towarde the wildernesse, and lyft vp his eyes and loked vpon Israel as he laye with his trybes, & the spryte of God came vpon him. And he toke vp his parable and sayde: Balam the sonne of Beor hathe sayde, and the man whose eye is open hath sayde: he hath sayde which heareth the wordes of God, and seeth the visions of the almyghty, which falleth downe and his eyes are opened.

How goodly are the tentes of Jacob and thyne habitation Israel, euen as the brode valeyes and as gardens by the ryuers syde, as the tentes which the Lorde hath pitched, and B as Cypres trees vpon the water. The water shal flowe out of his bouket and his seed shal be many waters, and his kynge shalbe higher then Agag, And his kyngdome shalbe exalted. God that brought him oute of Egypte, his strength is as the strength of an vnicorne, and he shall eate the nacions that are his enemies and breake their bones & perce them thorowe with his arowes. He couched him selfe & laye downe as a lyon and as a lyonesse, who shall stere him vp? blessed is he that blesseth the, & cursed is he that curseth the.

And Balac was wrothe with Balam, and smote his handes together, and sayde vnto him: I sent for the to curse myne ennemyes: & beholde, thou hast blessed them this three tymes, and now get the quickly vnto thy place. I thought to haue auaunced the vnto honour, C but the Lorde hath kept the backe frome worshyp. And Balam sayde vnto Balac: tolde I not thy messengers whiche thou sentest vnto me sayenge. * Yf Balac wolde gyue me his house full of syluer and golde, I can not passe the mouth of the Lorde, to do either good or bad of myne owne mynde. What the Lorde sayeth, that must I speake. And now behold, I go vnto my people: come let me shewe the, what this people shall do to thy folke in the latter dayes. And he began his parable & sayd: Balam the sonne of Beor hath sayde, and the man that hath his eye open hath sayde, & he hath sayde / that heareth the wordes of God, and hath the knowlege of the most hyghe, & beholdeth the vysion of the almyghtye, and when he falleth downe hath his eyes opened I se him but not nowe, I beholde him but not nyghe. There shall come a starre of Jacob & D rise a scepter of Israel, which shall smyte the coostes of Moab, and vndermyne all the children of Seth. And Edom shall be his possessiõ and the possession of Heir shall be their ennemyes, and Israel shall do mankully. And out of Jacob shall come he that shall destroye the residue of the cyties.

And he loked on Amaleck and began his parable and sayde: Amaleck is the first of the nacions, but his latter ende shal perysshe vtterly. And he loked on the Kenites and toke his parable and sayde: stronge is thy dwellynge place and put thy nest vpon a rocke, Neuerthelesse thou shalt be a burnynge to Kain, vntyl Assur take the prysonner: And he toke his parable and sayde: Alas, who shall lyue when God weth this? The shyppes shall come out of the coste * of Chittim, and subdue Assur, and subdue Eber, and he hym selfe shall perysshe at the last. And Balam rose vp & went and dwelt in his place: and Balac also went his waye. * Chalde and the commune translacion Italy.

¶ The people commytteth fornycacyon with the daughters of Moab. Phinehes kylleth Zamri and Cozbi. God commaundeth to kyll the Madianites.

CAPI. XXV.

A And Israell dwelte in Sittim, and the people begã to commit horedome with the doughters of Moab, whiche called the people vnto the sacrifice of their goddes. And the people ate and worshipped their goddes, and Israel coupled him selfe vnto Baal Peor. Then the Lorde was angrye with Israel, and sayde vnto Moses: take all the hedes of the people, and hange them vp vnto the Lorde against the sonne, that the wrathe of the Lorde maye turne awaye frome Israel. And Moses sayde vnto the iudges of Israel: go and slay those men that ioyned them selues vnto Baal Peor. Josue. xxii. d. Deute. xiii. a

B And beholde, one of the childzen of Israel came and brought vnto his brethren, a Madianytish wyfe in the sight of Moses and in the sight of all the company of the childzen of Israel, as they were weppynge in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse. And when Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preast sawe it, he rose vp out of the companye and toke a weapon in his hande, and wẽt after the man of Israel into the hoorehouse, and thrust them thorow: both the man of Israel and also the woman euen thorow the bely of her. And the plage ceased frome the childzen of Israell. And there dyed in the plage. xxiiij. thousande. 1. Macha. ii. c. Num. xvi. c

C And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: Phinehes ỹ sonne of Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preast, hath turned myne anger awaye frome the childzen of Israell, because he was gelous for my sake amonge them, that I had not consumed the childzen of Israel in my gelousye. Wherfore saye: Beholde, I gyue vnto hym my couenaunte of peace, and he shall haue it, and his seed after him, euen the couenaunt of the preastes office for euer. because he was gelous for his Gods sake and made 1. attonement for the childzen of Israel.

The name of the Israelyte which was slyten with the Madianityth wyfe, was Zamri the sonne of Salu, a lorde of an auncient house among the Simeonites. And the name of the Madianitish wyfe, was Cozbi ꝑ dought ter of Zur a hed ouer the people of an auncient house in Madian.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: vexe the Madianites & smyte theym, for they haue troubled you with their wyles wherwith they haue beguyled you, thorow Peor & thorow their syster Cozbi the dought ter of a lorde in Madian, which was slayne in the daye of the plage for Peors sake.

¶ The chyldzen of Israel are nombzede agayne when they shulde entre in to the lande of Canaan.

CAPI. XXVI.

A And after the plage, the Lorde spake vn to Moses and vnto Eleazar the sonne of Aaron the preest, sayenge: take the nomber of the hole companye of the childzen of Israel frome twentye yere and aboue thorowout their fathers houses, all that are hable to go to warre in Israel. And Moses and Eleazar the preest tolde them in the feldes of Moab, by Jordane fast by Jericho, frome .xx. yere and aboue, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the childzen of Israel that came out of Egypte, were:

Kahath begate Amram, and Amrams wyfe was called Jochebed a dughter of Leui, whiche was bozne him in Egypte. And he bare vnto Amrā, Aaron Moses and Marye their sister. And vnto Aaron were borne, Nadab, Abihu, Eleazar & Ithamar. But Nadab and Abihu dyed, as they offred straunge fire before the Lorde. And the nombze of them was. xxiij. thousande, of all the males frome a moneth olde and aboue. For they were not nombzed amonge the childzen of Israel, because there was no enheritaunce gyuen them amonge the childzen of Israel. These are the nombzes of the childzen of Israel which Moses and Eleazar the preest nombzed in the feldes of Moab, fast by Jordane nyghe to Jericho. And amōge these there was not a man of the nombze of the childzen of Israel which Moses and Aaron tolde in ꝑ wyldernesse of Sinai. For the Lorde sayd vnto them, that they shulde dye in the wyldernesse and that there shulde not be lefte a man of them: saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune & Josua the sonne of Nun.

¶ The law of the heritage of the daughters of Zelaphead. The land of promysse is shewed vnto Moses: in whose stede is appoynted Josue.

CAPI. XXVII.

A And the dughters of * Zelaphead the sonne of Hepher the sonne of Gilead, the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kynredes of Manasse the sonne of Joseph (whose names were Mahela, Noha, Hagla, Melcha and Thirza) came and stode before Moses and Eleazar, the preest and before the lordes and all the multitude in the wze of the tabernacle of wytnesse, sayenge / our father dyed in the wyldernesse, and * was not amonge the companye of theym that gathered them selues togither against the Lord in the congregacion of Corah: But dyed in his own synne, and had no sonnes. Wherfore shuld the name of our fathers be taken away forth of his kynred, because he had no sonne? * Gyue vs a possession amonge the brethren of our father. And Moses brought their cause before the Lorde. And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayeng: The dughters of Zelaphead speake right: thou shalt gyue them a possessiō to enherete amonge their fathers brethren, and shalt turne the enheritaunce of their father vn to them. And speake vnto the childzen of Israel sayeng: If a man dye and haue no sonne ye shal turne his enheritaūce vnto his dughter. If he haue no dughter, ye shall gyue his enheritaunce vnto his brethrē. If he haue no brethrē, ye shall gyue his enheritaūce vnto his fathers brethrē. If he haue no fathers brethrē ye shall gyue his enheritaunce vnto him that is next to him of his kynred, and let him possesse it. And this shalbe vnto the childzen of Israel an ordinaunce, and a lawe, as the Lorde hath commaunded Moses.

Deute xxv.g.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: get the vp into this mount Abarim, and beholde the lande which I haue gyuen vnto the childzen of Israel. And when thou hast sene it, thou shalt be gathered vnto thy people also, as Aaron thy brother was gathered vnto his people. For ye were disobedient vnto my mouthe in the deserte of Sin in the stryfe of the congregacion, that ye sanctified me not in the water before their eyes. That is ꝑ water of stryfe in Cades in the wyldernesse of Zin. And Moses spake vnto the Lorde sayenge: let ꝑ Lord God of the spirites of all flesshe, set a man ouer the congregacion, whyche maye goo in and out before them, and to leade theym in & out that the congregació of the Lorde be not as a flocke of shepe without a shepeharde. And D the Lorde sayde vnto Moses: take Josua the sonne of Nun in whome there is a spirite, & put thyne handes vpon him, and set him be-

Deute.iii.d fore Eleazar the preast and before all the congregació and gyue him a charge in their sight. And put thy prayse vpon him, that all the cópany of the children of Israel may heare. And he shall stande before Eleazar the preast whiche shall aske counsell for him after the iudgement of Urim before the Lorde: And at the mouth of Eleazar shall bothe he and all the children of Israel with him and all the congregation, go in and out.

And Moses dyd as the Lorde commaunded him, and he toke Josua and set him before Eleazar the preast and before all the congregacion, and put his handes vpon him and gaue him a charge, as the Lorde commaunded thorow the hande of Moses.

¶ what must be offered on euery feast daye.

CAPI. XXVIII.

A A ND the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayenge: Gyue the children of Israell a charge and saye vnto them, that they take hede to offer vnto the offerynge of my bred in the sacrifice of swete sauoure, in his due ceason. And saye vnto them. This is the offerynge which ye shall offer vnto the Lorde two lambes of a yere olde with out spot day by daye to be a burntoffringe perpetually. One lambe thou shalt offer in the mornynge, and the other at euen, And therto the tenthe parte of an Epha of floure for a meatoffrynge myngled with beaten oyle, the fourth parte of an hin: which is a dayly offring ordeyned in the mount Sinai for a swete sauoure in the sacrifice of the Lorde. And the drynkeoffringe of the same: the fourth parte of an hin vnto one lambe, and poure the drynkoffringe in the holy place, to be good drinke vnto the Lorde.
B And the other lambe thou shalt offer at euen, with the meatoffringe and the drynkeoffringe after the maner of the morning: a sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And on the Sabboth daye two lambes of a yere olde a pece and without spot, and two tenthdeales of floure for a meatoffringe myngled w oyle, & the drinkoffringe therto. This is the burntoffringe of euery Sabboth, besydes the dayly burntoffringe and his drinkoffringe.

And in the first daye of your monethes, ye shall offer a burntoffringe vnto the Lorde: ij. younge bullockes, and a ram, and seuen lambes of a yere olde without spot, and iij. tenth deales of floure for a meatoffringe myngled with oyle vnto one bullocke, and two tenthdeales of floure for a meatoffringe myngled with oyle vnto one Ram. And euermore, a tenthdeale of floure myngled with oyle, for a meatofferinge vnto one lambe. That is a burntoffringe of a swete sauoure in the sacri-
E fice of the Lorde. And their drinkeofferynges shalbe half an hin of wyne vnto one bollock and the thirde part of an hin of wyne vnto a Ram, and the fourth parte of an hin vnto a lambe. This is the burntoffringe of euerye moneth thorow out all the monethes of the yere, and one he gote for a synneoffringe vnto the Lorde, which shalbe offred with the dayly burntoffringe and his drynkeoffringe. ✠ And the. xiiij. daye of the first moneth shalbe Passe ouer vnto the Lorde. And the. xv. daye of the same moneth shall be a feast, in whiche seuen dayes men must eate vnleuended breed. The first daye shalbe an holy feast, so that ye shall do no maner laborious worke therin. And ye shall offer a burntoffringe vnto the Lorde. ij. younge bullockes, one Ram, and seuen lambes of a yere olde without spot, & their meatoffringe of floure myngled with oyle. iij. tenthdeales vnto a bullocke, and two tenthdeales vnto a Ram, and euermore one tenthdeale vnto a lambe, thorow out the. vij. lambes: & an he gote for a synneoffringe to make attonment for you.

And ye shall offer these, besyde the burntofferinge in the mornynge that is alwaye offred. And after this maner ye shall offer thorowout the seuen dayes, the fode of the sacrifice of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde. And it shalbe done besyde the dayly burntoffringe D
and his drynkeoffringe. And the seuenth day shal be an holy feast vnto you, so that ye shal do no laborious worke therin. And the day of your first frutes when ye brynge a new meatoffrynge vnto the Lorde in your wekes, shall be an holy feast vnto you: so that ye shall do no laborious worke therin. And ye shall offer a burntoffringe of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde two younge bullockes, and a Ram, & seuen lambes of a yere olde a pece, with their meatoffringes of floure myngled with oyle. iij. tenthdeales vnto a bullocke. ij. tenthdeales to a Ram, and euermore one tenthdeale vnto a lambe thorow out the seuen lambes, & an he gote to make attonement for you. And this ye shall do besydes the dayly burntoffring and his meatcoffringe: and they shalbe with out spot, with their drinkoffringes.

¶ what muste be offered the eyght fyrste dayes of the seuenth moneth

CAPI. XXIX.

A ND the first day of the seuenth moneth shalbe an holy feast vnto you ✠ and ye A shall do no laborious worke therein. It shall be a daye of trompet blowinge vnto you. And ye shall offer a burntoffringe of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde: one younge bullocke, and one Ram and seuen lambes of a yere olde a pece þ are pure. And their meateofferinges of floure myngled with oyle thre tenth deales vnto the bullocke, and two vnto the ram, and one tenth deale vnto one lãbe thorow the seuen lambes. And an he gote for a synneoffring to make an attonemét for you besyde the burntofferinge of the moneth and his meatoffringe and besyde the dayly burnt-offe-

offerynge, and his meatofferyng, and the drynkofferinges of the same: accordinge to the maner of them, for a sauour of swetenesse in the sacrifice of the Lorde.

✠ And the tenth daye of that same seuenth moneth shall be an holye feest vnto you, and ye shall humble youre soules, and shall doo
B no maner worke therin. And ye shall offre a burntofferynge vnto the Lorde of a swete sauoure: one bullocke, a ramme, and seuen lambes of a yere olde a pece withoute faute, and theyr meatofferynges of floure myngled with oyle thre tenthdeales to a bullocke, and two to a ram, and alwaye a tenthdeale vnto a lambe thorow out the seuen lambes. And one he gote for a synofferynge, besyde the synneofferynge of attonement, and the dayly burntofferynge, and the meate and drynkeofferynges that belonge to the same.

✠ And the fiftye daye of the seuenth moneth shal be holy day, and ye shall do no laboryous worke therin, and ye shall kepe a feast vnto the Lorde of seuen dayes longe. And ye shall offre a burntofferynge of a swete sauour vnto the Lorde, thirtene bullockes, two rammes, and fourtene lambes, whiche are yerelynges and pure, with oyle thre tenthdeales vnto euery one of the thirtene bullockes, two tenthe deales to eyther of the rammes, and one tenth deale vnto eche of the fourtene lambes. And one he gote vnto a synneofferynge, besyde the daylye burntofferynge, with his meate and drynkeofferynges.

And the seconde daye twelue yonge bul-
C lockes, two rammes, and fourtene yerlynge lambes without spotte: and theyr meatofferynges and drinkeofferynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, accordynge to the nombre of them, and after the maner. And an he goote for a synneofferynge, besyde the dayly burntofferyng, and his meat and drinke offerynges.

And the thyrde daye eleuen bullockes, two rammes, and fourtene yerelynge lambes, withoute spotte: and theyr meate and drynkeofferynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, after the nombre of them, and accordynge to the maner. And an he goote for a synneofferynge, besyde the dayly burntofferynge, and his meate and drynkeofferynges.

And the fourthe daye ten bullockes, two rammes, and. xiiij. lambes yerelynges pure, and theyr meate and drynke offerynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, accordyng to the nombre of them, and after the maner. And an he gote for a synofferynge, besyde the dayly burntofferynge and his meate and drynkeofferynges.

And the fifte daye, nyne bullockes, two rammes, and fourtenene lambes of one yere olde a pece, without spotte. And theyr meate and drynke offerynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, accordynge to the nombre of them, and after the maner. And an he goote for a synne offerynge, besyde the dayly burnt offeryng and his meat and drink offerynges.

And the sixte daye, eyghte bullockes, two D
rammes, & fourtene yerelynge lambes withoute spotte. And theyr meate and drynke offerynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, accordynge to the maner. And an he goote for a synneofferynge, besyde the dayly burntofferynge, and his meate and drynke offerynges.

And the seuenth daye, seuen bullockes, two rammes, and thirtene lambes that are yerelynges and pure. And theyr meate and drynke offerynges vnto the bullockes, rammes, and lambes, accordynge to theyr nombre, and to the maner. And an he goote for a synne offerynge, besyde the daylye burnte offerynge, and his meate and drynke offerynges.

And the eyghte daye shall be the conclusion of the feast vnto you, and ye shall do no maner laboryous worke therin. And ye shall offer a burnt offerynge of a swete sauoure vnto the Lorde: one bullocke, one ramme, and seuen yerelynge lambes without spotte. And the meate and drynke offerynges vnto the bullocke, ramme, and lambes, accordynge to their nombres, and accordynge to the maner. And an he gote for a synofferynge, besyde the dayly burnt offerynge, and his meate and drynke offerynges.

These thynges ye shall doo vnto the Lorde in your feastes: besyde your vowes and freewyll offerynges, in youre burnt offerynges, meate offerynges, drinke offerynges, and peace offerynges. And Moses tolde the chyldren of Israel, accordynge to all that the Lorde commaunded him.

¶ Of vowes when they shall be kepte, and when not.

CAPI. XXX.

A ND Moses spake vnto the heades of A
the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: this is the thynge whiche the Lorde commaundeth. Yf a man vowe a vowe vnto the Lorde, or swere an othe, and bynde his soule, he shal not go backe with his worde but shall fulfyll all that procedeth oute of his mouthe.

Yf a damosell vowe a vowe vnto the Lorde, and bynde her selfe beynge in her fathers house and vnmaried: yf her father heare the vowe and bonde, whiche she hathe made vpon her soule, and holde his peace therto: then all her vowes and bondes whiche she hath made vpon her soule, shall stande good. But yf her father forbydde her the same daye that he heareth it, none other vowes ne bon- B
des whiche she hath made vpon he soule, shal be of value, and the Lorde shall forgyue her, bicause her father forbad her.

Yf she hadde an husbande when she vowed or pronounced oughte oute of her lyppes, wherwith she bounde her soule, and her husbande, and herde it, and helde his peace there at the same daye he herde it: Then her vowes and her bondes wherwith she bounde
her

her soule, shall stande. But yf her husbande forbadde her the same daye he herde it, then hathe he made her bowe which she had vpon her, of none effecte, and that also whiche she pronounced with her lyppes, wherwith she bounde her soule, and the Lorde shall forgyue her.

C The bowe of a wedowe, and of her that is deuorsed, and all that they haue bounde their soules with, shall stande.

If she vowed in her husbandes house, or bounde her soule with an othe, and her husbande herde it, and helde his peace and forbadde her not: then all her vowes and bondes wherwith she bounde her soule, shall stande. But yf her husbande disanulled them the same daye he herde them, then nothynge that proceded oute of her lyppes in vowes and bondes wherwith she bounde her soule shall stande: for her husbande hathe loosed them and the Lorde shall forgyue her.

All vowes and othes that bynde to humble the soule, maye her husbande stablysshe or breake. But yf her husbande holde his peace from one daye vnto an other, then he stablysheth all her vowes and bondes which she had vpon her, bicause he helde his peace the same daye he herde them. And yf he afterwarde breake them, he shall beare her synne hym selfe.

These are the ordynaunces whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses, betwene the man and his wyfe, and betwene the father and his doughter, beynge a damsell in her fathers house.

¶ The Madianytes and Balam are slayne. The praye was brought to Moses and equally diuyded A present gyuen of Israel because none of their men were slayne.

CAPI. XXXI.

A And the Lorde spake to Moses, saynge: * Auenge the chyldren of Israel of the madianytes, and afterwarde be gathered vnto thy people. And Moses spake vnto the folke, sayinge: Harnesse some of you vnto warre, and lette them goo vpon the Madianytes, and aueng the Lorde of the Madianytes.

*Nu.xxv.d

Ye shall sende vnto the warre a thousande of euery tribe throwe oute all the tribes of Israel. And there were taken oute of the thousendes of Israel, twelue thousande prepared vnto warre, of euery tribe a thousande. And Moses sente them a thousande of euerye tribe, with Phineas the sonne of Eleazar the Preeste to warre, and the holye vessell es and the trompettes to blowe in his hande.

*Iosue.xiii.c

* And they warred agaynste the Madianytes, as the Lorde commaunded Moses / and slewe all the males. And they slewe the kynges of Madian, amonges other that were slayne: Eui, Rekem, Zur, Hur, and Reba: fiue kynges of Madian. And they slewe Balaam the sonne of Beor with the sworde. And the chyldren of Israel toke all the women of Madian prysoners, and their chyldren, and spoyled all their catell, their substaunce and their goodes. And they burnt all their cityes wherin they dwelte, and all their castels with fire. And they toke all the spoyle, and all they coulde catche, bothe of men and beestes, and brought the captyues, and that whiche they hadde taken, and all the spoyle vnto Moses and Eleazar the Preest, and vnto the compayne of the chyldren of Israel, euen vnto the hoste, in the feldes of Moab by Iordan nere to Jericho.

And Moses and Eleazar the Preeste, and all the lordes of the compayne wente out of the hoste agaynste them. And Moses was angrye with the officers of the hoste, with the capitaynes ouer thousandes and ouer hundredes, whiche came frome warre and battayle, and sayde vnto them: Haue ye saued the women alyue? beholde, * these caused the children of Israel throwe * Balam, to commyt trespace agaynst the Lorde, by reason of Peor, and there folowed a plage amonge the congregacion of the Lorde.

Nowe therfore * slee all the men chyldren and the women that haue lyen with men fleshelye: But all the women chyldren that haue not lyen with men, kepe alyue for youre selues. And lodge without the hoste seuen dayes, all that haue kylled anye persone, * and all that haue touched anye deade bodye, and purifye bothe youre selues and youre prysoners, the thyrde daye and the seuenth. And sprynckle all youre rayments, and all that is made of skynnes, and all worke of goottes here, and all thynges made of wodde.

And Eleazar the Preest sayde vnto the men of warre whiche wente oute to battayle: this is the ordynaunce of the lawe whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses: Golde, syluer, brasse, yron, tynne, and ledde, and all that maye abyde the fyre, ye shall make it go throwe the fyre, and then it is cleane. Neuertheles, it shall be sprynckled with sprynckelynge water. And all that suffereth not the fire, ye shall make go throwe the water. And washe youre clothes the seuenth daye, and then ye are cleane. And afterwarde come in to the hoste.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: take the summe of the praye that was taken, bothe of women and of catell, thou and Eleazar the Preeste, and the heades of the people. And diuyde it in to two partes, betwene them that take the warre vpon them, and wente oute to battayle, and all the congregacion. And take a portion vnto the Lorde of the men of warre whiche wente oute to battayle: one of fyue hundred, of the women and of the oxen and of the asses, and of the shepe: and ye shall take it of their halfe and gyue it vnto Eleazar the Preeste, an heue offeryng vnto the Lorde. And of the halfe of the chyldren of Israel, take one of fifty, of the women, of the oxen, of the asses, and of the shepe, and of all maner of beastes, and gyue them vnto the

the Leuytes whiche attende vpon the habitacion of the Lorde.

And Moses and Eleazar the Preeste dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the botye and praye whiche the men of warre had caught was fyue hundred thousande, and three score and fiftene thousand shepe: and three score and twelue thousande oxen, three score and one thousande asses: and. xxxij. thousande women that had lyen by no man.

And the halfe whiche was the parte of them that wente out to warre was three hundred thousande, and. xxxvij. thousande, and fiue hundred shepe: And the Lordes parte of the shepe was fyue hundred and three score and fiftene. And the oxen were. xxxvi. thousand. of whiche the Lordes parte was three score and twelue. And the asses were thyrtye thousande, and fiue hundred, of whiche the Lordes parte was three score and one. And the women were fyftene thousande, of whiche the Lordes parte was. xxxij. soules.

And Moses gaue that somme whiche was the Lordes heue offeryng vnto Eleazar the preest, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the other halfe of the chyldren of Israel whiche Moses seuered frome the men of warre, (that is to wete, the halfe that pertayned vnto the congregacion) was three hundred thousande, and. xxxvij. thousande, and fiue hundred shepe: and. xxxvi. thousande oxen: and thirtye thousande asses and fiue hundred: and fyftene thousande women.

And Moses toke of this halfe that pertayned vnto the chyldren of Israel: one of euery fifty both of the women and of the catel, and gaue them vnto the Leuytes whiche gaue their attendaunce vpon the habitacion of the Lorde, as the Lorde commaunded Moses. And the officers of thousandes of the hoste, the cappytaynes ouer the thousandes, and the capitaynes ouer the hundredes came forth and sayde vnto Moses: Thy seruauntes haue taken the somme of the men of warre, which were vnder oure hande, and there lacked not one man of them. We haue therfore brought a present vnto the Lord what euery man found of Jewels of golde, cheynes, bracelets, rynges, earynges and spangels to make an attonement for oure soules before the Lorde.

And Moses and Eleazar toke the golde of them: Jewels of all maner facyons. And all the golde of the heue offeryng of the Lorde, of the cappraynes ouer thousandes, and hundredes: was fyftene thousande, seuen hundred, and fiftye sycles: for the men of warre hadde spoyled euery man for him selfe. And Moses and Eleazar the Preest, toke the golde of the cappraynes ouer the thousandes and ouer the hundredes, and brought it in to the tabernacle of wytnesse: to be a memorayll vnto the chyldren of Israel, before the Lorde.

¶ To Ruben and Gad and to halfe the tribe of Manasses, is promysed the possession beyonde Iordan eastward: yf they bringe their brethren in to the lande of promyse.

CAPI. XXXII.

THe chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad hadde a verye greate multitude of catell. And when they sawe the lande of Jazer, and the lande of Galaad that it was a good soyle for catell, they came and spake vnto Moses and Eliezer the preest, and vnto the Lordes of the congregacyon, sayinge. The lande of Ataroth, and Dibo, and Jazer, and Nemrah, and Hesbon, and Eleale, and Sabam, and Nebo, and Beon whiche countrey the Lorde smote before the people of Israel: is a lande good for catell, and we thy seruauntes haue catell: Wherfore (sayde they) yf we haue founde grace in thy syghte, lette this lande be gyuen vnto thy seruauntes to possesse, and bringe vs not ouer Jordan.

And Moses sayde to the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben: shall youre brethren goo to warre, and ye tarye here? Wherfore discourage ye the hertes of the chyldren of Israel, for to go ouer in to the lande which the Lorde hath gyuen them. * This dyd youre fathers, when I sent them from Cades barne to se the lande. And they wente vp euen vnto the ryuer of Escol, and sawe the lande, and discouraged the hertes of the chyldren of Israel, that they sholde not go in to the lande whiche the Lorde hadde gyuen them.

*Num.xiiii.a

And the Lorde was wrothe the same tyme and sware, sayinge. * None of the men that came oute of Egypte frome twentye yere olde and aboue, shall se the lande which I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, bycause they haue not continually folowed me: saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesyte, and Josua the sonne of Nun, for they haue folowed me continually. And the Lorde was angrye with Israel, and made them wander in the wyldernesse forthye yere, vntyll all the generacyon that hadde doone euyll in the syghte of the Lorde, were consumed.

*Nu.xiiii.f.

And beholde, ye are rysen vp in youre fathers steade. to the increase of synfull men, and to augemente the fearfe wrathe of the Lorde towardes Israel. For yf ye do tourne awaye from him, he wyll yet agayne leaue the people in the wyldernesse, so shall ye destroye all this folke.

And they wente nere hym and sayde: we wyll buylde shepefoldes here for oure shepe and for oure catell, and cytyes for oure chyldren: But we oure selues wyll goo redye armed before the chyldren of Israel, vntyll we haue broughte them vnto their place. And oure chyldren shall dwell in the fenced cytyes, bicause of the inhabyters of the lande. And we wyll not returne vnto oure houses, vntyll the chyldren of Israel haue enherited: euerye man his enherytaunce. For we wyll not enherite with them on yonder syde Jordane forwarde, bycause oure enheritaunce is fallen to vs on this syde Jordane

And Moses sayd vnto them: *Yf ye wyll do this thyng, that ye wyl go al harnessed before the Lorde to warre, and wyll goo all of you in harnesse ouer Jordane before the Lorde, vntyll he haue caste oute his enemyes before hym, and vntyll the lande be subdued before the Lorde, then ye shall returne and be without synne agaynst the Lorde and agaynst Israel, and this Lande shall be youre possession before the Lorde.

But yf ye wyll not doo so: beholde, ye synne agaynste the Lorde: and be sure youre synne wyll synde you out. Buylde youre cyties for youre chyldren, and foldes for youre shepe, and se ye doo that ye haue spoken. And the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben spake vnto Moses, sayinge: thy seruauntes wyll doo as my Lorde commaundeth. Our chyldren, oure wyues, our substaunce, and all our catell shall remayne here in the cityes of Galaad. But *we thy seruauntes wyll go all harnessed for the warre vnto batayle before the Lorde, as my Lorde hath sayd.

And Moses commaunded Eleazar the preest, and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient heedes of the trybes of the chyldren of Israel, and sayd vnto them: Yf the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben wyll go with you ouer Jordan al prepared to fyght before the Lorde, then when the lande is subdued vnto you, gyue them the land of Galaad to possesse, but yf they wyll not go ouer with you in harnesse then they shal haue theyr possessions amonge you in the lande of Canaan. And the chyldren of Gad and Ruben answered, sayinge: that whiche the Lorde hathe sayde vnto thy seruauntes we wyll doo. * We wyll go harnessed before the Lorde in to the lande Canaã and the possession of our inheritaunce shall be on this syde Jordan.

And Moses gaue vnto the chyldren of Gad and of Ruben, and vnto halfe the tribe of Manasse the sonne of Joseph, the kyngdome of Sehon kynge of the Amorytes, and the kyngdome of Og kyng of Basan, the land that belonged vnto the cityes therof in the costes of the countrey rounde about. And the chyldren of Gad buylt Dibon, Ataroth, Aroer, Atroth, Sophan, Jaser, Jegabea, Bethnimra, and Betharan fenced cities, and they buylt folds for the shepe. And the children of Ruben buylte Hesbon, Eleale, Kiriathaim, Nebo, Baal, Meon, and turned their names, & Sibama also: and gaue names vnto the cities whiche they buylt.

And the * chyldren of Machir, the sonne of Manasse wente to Galaad and toke it, and put oute the Amorytes that were there. And Moses gaue Galaad vnto Machir, the sonne of Manasse / and he dwelte therin.

And * Jahir the sonne of Manasse, wente and toke the small townes therof, and called them the townes of Jahir. And Nobah went and take Kenath with the townes belongynge therto, and called it Nobah after his owne name.

¶ The iourneyes and departynge frome place to place of Israell are nombred. They are commaunded to kyll the Canaanites.

CAPI. XXXIII.

These are the iourneys of the chyldren of Israel, whiche went out of the lande of Egypte with theyr armyes vnder Moses and Aaron. And Moses wrote theyr goyng out by theyr iourneys at the commaundement of the Lorde: euen these are the iourneys of theyr goynge out. The chyldren of Israel * departed frome Rahemses the fyftene daye of the fyrste moneth, on the morowe after * Passeouer, and went out with an hyghe hande in the syghte of all Egypte, whyle the Egyptians buryed all theyr fyrste borne whiche the Lorde hadde smytten amonge theym. And vppon theyr Goddes also the Lorde dyd execution. And the chyldren of Israel remoued frome Rahemses, and pytched in Socoth,

And they departed from * Socoth and pytched theyr tentes in Ethan, whiche is in the edge of the wyldernesse. And they remoued frome Ethan, and tourned in to the entrynge of * Hiroth whiche is before Baall Zephon, and pytched before Migdol. And they departed frome before Hiroth, and * wente thorowe the myddes of the see in to the wyldernesse, and wente thre dayes iourneye in the wyldernesse of Ethan, and pytched in Marah. And they remoued from Marah, & wente vnto * Elim, where were twelue fountayns and thre score and ten paulme trees, and they pytched there.

And they remoued frome Elim, and laye faste by the redde see. Frome whence they remoued, and laye in the * wyldernesse of Sin. And they toke theyr iourney oute of the wyldernesse of Sin, and sette vp theyr tentes in Daphka, from whense they departed, and laye in Alus, and they remoued frome Alus, and laye at * Raphedim where was no water for the people to drynke. And they departed from Raphedim, and pitched in the wyldernesse of Sinai.

And from thence they remoued, and lodged at the * graues of luste. And they departed from the sepulchres of lust, and laye at * Hazeroth. And frome Hazeroth, and pitched in Riphma. And departed frome Riphma, and pytched at Rimon Parez. And they departed from Rimon Parez, and pytched in Libna. And they remoued frome Libna, and pytched at Rissa. And they tourneyed from Rissa, and pytched in Kehelatha. And so pytched in mount Sapher. And they remoued frō mount Sapher and laye in Harada. And they remoued frome Harada, and pytched in Makeheloth.

And remouynge frome Makeheloth, and laye at Tahath, and they departed frome Tahath, and pitched at Tharath. And they remoued frome Tharath, and pitched in Mithca. And they wente frome Mithca, and lodged in Hal Hasmona. And they departed from Hasmona and laye at Moseroth. And they departed from Moseroth, and pytched in Bane Jakan, and laye at Hor gadgad. And they went from Hor gadgad, and pytched in Jathbatha. And they remoued from Jathbatha, and lay at Abrona. And they departed frome Abrona, and laye at Ezeon Gaber. And they remoued fro Ezeon Gaber, & pytched in the * wyldernesse of Sin, whiche is Cades. And they remoued from Cades, and pytched in mount Hor in the edge of the lande of Edom.

* And Aaron the Preeste wente vp in to mounte Hor at thappoyntment of the Lorde, And dyed there, euen in the fortyeth yere after the chyldren of Israel were come oute of the lande of Egypte, and in the fyrste daye of the fifte moneth. And Aaron was an hundred & thirtye and thre yere olde, when he dyed in mounte Hor. And kynge Arad the Canaanyte, whiche dwelte in the south of the lande of Canaan, herde that the chyldren of Israel were come.

And they departed frome * mount Hor, & pytched in Zalmona. And they departed from Zalmona, and pytched in Phimon. And they departed frome Phimon, and pytched in Oboth. And they departed frome Oboth, and pytched in Jeabarim in the borders of Moab. And they departed frome * Jeabarim, and pytched in Dibon Gad. And they remoued from Dibon Gad, and laye in Almon Diblathama. And they remoued frome Almon Diblathama, and pytched in the mountaynes of Abarim before Nabo. And they departed frome the mountaynes of Abarim, and pytched in the feldes of Moab faste by Jordane, nygh to Jericho. And they pitched vpon Jordane, frome Beth Haiesmoth vnto the playne of Abel Sattim in the feldes of Moab.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses in the feldes of Moab by Jordane nyghe vnto Jericho, sayinge: Speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: When ye are come ouer Jordan in the Lande of Canaan, se ye dryue oute all thinhabytauntes of the lande before you, and destroye theyr ymages of metall, and plucke downe all theyr aulters buylte on hylles: And possesse the lande and dwell therin, for I haue gyuen you the lande to enioye it. And ye shall diuyde the enheritaunce of the lande by lotte amonges youre kynredes, and gyue to the moo the moze enheritaunce, and to the fewer, the lesse enheritaunce. And your enheritaunce shall be in the trybes of youre fathers, in the place where euerye mans lotte falleth.

That yf ye wyll not dryue oute the inhabyters of the lande before you, then those whiche ye lette remayne of them, shall be thornes in youre eyes, and dartes in youre sydes, and shall vexe you in the lande wherin ye dwell. Moreouer it wyll come to passe, that I shall doo vnto you, as I thoughte to doo vnto them.

¶ The costes and borders of the lande of promisse. Certayne are assygned to diuide the lande.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: Commaunde the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: When ye come in to the lande of Canaan, this is the lande that shall fall vnto youre enheritaunce the lande of Canaan with all her costes.

And * youre southe quarter shall be frome the wyldernesse of Sin alonge by the coste of Edom, so that youre southe quarter shall be frome the syde of the salte see eastwarde, and shall fet a compasse frome the south vp to Acrabim, and reache to Zinna. And it shall goo oute on the south syde of Cades Barne / and go oute also at Hazar Adar, and go alonge to Azmon. And shall fette a compasse frome Azmon vnto the ryuer of Egypte, and shall goo out at the see.

And your west quarter shal be the great see, whiche coste shall be your west coste.

And this shall be youre northe quarter: ye shall compasse frome the greate see vnto mount Hor. And frome mounte Hor, ye shall compasse and go vnto Hemath / and the ende of the coste shall be at Zedada, and the coste shall reache oute to Ziphron and goo oute at Hazar Enan. And this shall be youre northe quarter.

And ye shall compasse youre East quarter, from Hazar enan to Sepham. And the coste shall goo downe frome Sepham to Ribla on the East syde of Ain. And then descende and goo oute at the syde of the see of Cenereth eastwarde. And then goo downe alonge by Jordan, and leaue at the salte see. And this shall be youre lande with all the costes therof rounde about.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: this is the lande whiche ye shall enheryte by lotte, and whiche the Lorde commaunded to gyue vnto nyne trybes and an halfe: * for the trybe of the chyldren of Ruben haue receyued in the housholdes of theyr fathers, and the trybe of the chyldren of Gad, in theyr fathers housholdes / and halfe the trybe of Manasse, haue receyued theyr enheryteaunce / that is to wete, two trybes and an halfe haue receyued theyr enheryteaunce on the other syde of Jordan by Jericho eastwarde, towarde the sonne rysynge.

And the Lorde spake vnto Moses, sayinge: These are the names of the men, whiche shall diuyde you the lande to enheryte, Eleazar the Preeste / and * Josua the sonne of Nun. And ye shall take also a lorde of euerye trybe to deuyde the lande, whose names are these: In the trybe of Juda, Caleb the sonne of Jephune. And in the trybe of the chyldren of Symeon, Semuel the sonne of Amiud. And in the trybe of Benjamin, Elidad the sonne of Cilon. And in the trybe of the chyldren of Dan / the lorde Bucki the sonne of Jagli.

And

And amonge the chyldren of Ioseph: in the tribe of the chyldren of Manasse, the lorde Hamel the sonne of Ephod. And in the tribe of the chyldren of Ephraim, the lorde Camuel the sonne of Siphtan. And in the tribe of the sonnes of Zabulon, the lorde Elizaphan the sonne of Phuenach. And in the tribe of the chyldren of Isachar, the lorde Palthiel the sonne of Asan. And in the tribe of the sonnes of Aser, the lorde Ahihud the sonne of Salomi. And in the tribe of the chyldren of Nephthali, the lorde Peda El the sonne of Amihud. These are they whiche the lorde commaunded to diuyde the enheritaunce vnto the chyldren of Israel, in the lande of Canaan.

¶ Vnto the Leuites must be gyuen Cities and suburbes. The Cytues of refuge or sanctuaryes. The lawe of manquellynge. For one mannes witnesse shall no man be condemned.

CAPI. XXXV.

A

AND the Lorde spake to Moses in the feldes of Moab by Iordane ouer against Iericho, sayinge: commaunde the chyldren of Israel, that they gyue vnto the Leuytes of the enheritaunce of their possession: * cytyes to dwell in. And ye shall gyue also vnto the cityes of the Leuytes, suburbes rounde aboute them. The cityes shall be for theym to dwell in, and the suburbes for their catell, possession, and all maner beastes of theyrs.

* Iosu. xxi.a

And the suburbes of the cityes whiche ye shall gyue vnto the Leuytes, shal reache from the wall of the cytye outwarde, a thousande cubytes rounde aboute. And ye shall measure without the cytye, and make the vttermoost border of the east syde, two thousande cubytes And the vttermoost bozder of the south syde, two thousande cubytes. And the vttermoost bozder of the west syde, two thousande cubytes: and the vttermoost bozder of the northe syde, two thousande cubytes also/and the city shall be in the myddes. And these shall be the suburbes of their cityes.

And amouge the cityes which ye shal gyue vnto the Leuytes, * there shall be sixe cityes of fraunchyes, whiche ye shall gyue to that intent, that he whiche hylleth maye flee thyther. And to them ye shall adde fourtye and two cityes moo: so that all the cityes whiche ye shall gyue the Leuytes, shall be fourty and eyght with their suburbes.

* Iosue xxi.a Deuter.xix.b Sentuaryes.

And of the cityes whiche ye shall gyue out of the possessyons of the chyldren of Israel, ye shall gyue manye oute of their possessyons that haue moche, and fewe oute of their possessions that haue lytle: so that euerye tribe shall gyue of his cityes vnto the Leuetes, accordynge to the enheritaunce whiche he enheriteth.

And the Lorde spake to Moses, sayinge: speake vnto the chyldren of Israel, and saye vnto them: * when ye be come ouer Iordan in to the lande of Canaan, ye shall buylde cytyes, whiche shall be priuileged townes for you: that he whiche sleeth a man vnwares, maye flee thyther. And the cityes shall be to flee from the reuenger of bloude, that he whiche hylleth dye not, vntyll he stande before the congregation in iudgement.

* Deut.x.a Iosue.xx.a

And of these sixe free cityes whiche ye shall gyue, three ye shall gyue on this syde Iordan, and three in the lande of Canaan. And these sixe free cityes shall be for the chyldren of Israel, and for the straunger, and for hym that dwelleth amonge you, that all they whiche hyll anye person vnwares, maye flee thyther.

If any man smyte an other with a weapon of yron that he dye, then he is a murtherer/ and shall dye for it.

If he smyte hym with a throwynge stone that he dye therwith, then he shall dye, for he is a murtherer, and shall be slayne therfore.

If he smyte hym with a hande weapon of wodde that he dye therwith, then he shall dye: for he is a murtherer, and shall be slayne therfore.

The iustyce of bloude shall slee the murtherer, as soone as he fyndeth him: If he thrust at him * of hate, or hurle at him with lyinge awayte that he dye, or smyte hym with his hande of malice that he dye, he that smote him shall dye, for he is a murtherer. The iustyce of bloude shall slee him as soone as he fyndeth hym.

But yf he pusshed hym by chaunce, and not of hate, or caste at hym with anye mance of thynge, and not lyinge of wayte: or caste anye mance of stone at hym that he dye therwith, and sawe him not: And he caste it vpon hym and he dye, but was not his ennemye, neither soughte hym anye harme: then the congregacion shall iudge betwene the sleer. and the reuenger of bloude in suche cases. And the congregacion shall delyuer the sleer oute of the hande of the reuenger of bloude, and shall restore hym agayne vnto the fraunchesed cytye/ whither he was fledde. And he shall remayne there * vnto the deathe of the hyghe Preest whiche was anoynted with holy oyle.

But yf he came without the lymytes of his priuileged citye whyther he was fledde, yf the auenger of bloude fynde hym without the precincte, of his free towne, he shall slee the murtherer, and be giltlesse/ byeause he sholde haue kepte hym selfe in his feee towne vntyll the dethe of the hyghe preest, and after the dethe of the hyghe preest, he shall returne agayne vnto the lande of his possession. And this shall be an ordynaunce and a lawe vnto you, amonge youre chyldren after you, in all youre habitacions.

Who so euer sleeth, shall be slayne by the mouthe of wytnesses. For one wytnesse shall not pronowne agaynste one person to put him to dethe. Moreouer ye shall take none amendes for the lyfe of the murtherer whiche is worthy to dye: but he shall be put to deathe. Also ye shall take none attonement for him that is fledde to a free citye, that he sholde come ageyne and dwell in the lande before the death of

of the hyghe Preeste. And se ye defyle not the lande whiche ye are in / for bloude defyleth the lande. And the lande can none otherwyse be clensed of the bloude that is shedde therin, but by the bloude of hym that shedde it. Defyle not therfore the lande whiche ye inhabyte, and in the myddes of whiche, I also dwell amonge the chyldren of Israel.

¶ In order for the mariage of the daughters of Zelaphead. One of the trybes maye not marye with an other: but euerye one muste take him a wyfe of his owne trybe.

CAPI. XXXVI.

A

AND the heedes of the chyldren of Galaad the sonne of Machir the sonne of Manasse of the kynred of the chyldren of Ioseph, came forthe and spake before Moses and the prynces which were auncient vpcedes amonge the chyldren of Israel, and sayd: * The Lorde commaunded my lorde to gyue the lande to inheryte by lotte to the chyldren of Israel. And then my lorde commaunded in the name of the Lorde, to gyue the enheritaunce of * Zelaphead our brother vnto his doughters.

* Num.f. * Num.a

Nowe when any of the sonnes of the trybes of Israel take them to wyues, then shall their inheritaunce be taken frome the enheritaunce of our fathers, and shall be put vnto the enheritaunce of the tribe in whiche they are, and shall be taken frome the lotte of oure enheritaunce. And when the yere of Iubelye commeth vnto the chyldren of Israel, then shall their enheritaunce be put vnto the enheritaunce of the tribe wherin they are and so shall their enheritaunce be taken away from the enheritaunce of the tribe of oure fathers.

And Moses commaunded the chyldren of Israel at the mouth of the Lorde, saying: the tribe of the chyldre of Ioseph haue sayd wel. This therfore dothe the Lorde commaunde the doughters of Zelaphead, sayinge: * Let them be wiues to whom they them selfe thinke belle, but in the kynred of the tribe of their father shall they mary, that the enheritaunce of the chyldren of Israel roule not from tribe to tribe. But that the chyldren of Israel may abyde euerye man in the enheritaunce of the tribe of his fathers.

* Tobi. vii.b

And euery doughter that possesseth any enheritaunce, amonge the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, shall be wyfe vnto one of the kynred of the tribe of her father, that the chyldren of Israel maye enioye euerye man the enheritaunce of his father, and that the enheritaunce goo not frome one tribe to an other: but that the tribes of the chyldren of Israel may abyde euery man in his owne enheritaunce.

And as the Lorde commaunded Moses, e- D
uen so dyd the doughters of Zelaphead: Mahela, Thirza, Hagla, Milcha, and Noa, and were maried vnto their fathers brothers sonnes, of the kynred of the chyldren of Manasses the sonne of Ioseph, and so they hadde their enheritaunce in the tribe of the kynred of their father. These are the commaundementes and lawes whiche the Lorde commaunded thorowe Moses vnto the chyldren of Israel in the feldes of Moab vpon Iordan neere vnto Iericho.

CAPI. I.

THese be the wordes which Moses spake vnto al Israel on the other syde Jordan in the wyldernes, in the feldes by the red see, betwen Pharan & Thophel, Laban, Haseroth, and Disahab. xi. dayes iourney frome Horeb vnto Cades barne, by the way that leadeth vnto mount Seir. And it happened the firste daye of the. xi. moneth, in the. xl. yere that Moses spake vnto the children of Israel according vnto all that the Lord had geuen him in commaundement vnto them after he had smytten Sehon the kyng of the Amorites which dwelt in Hesbon and Og kynge of Basan, whiche dwelt at Astaroth in Edrai.

Numeri. xxi. e

On the other syde Jordan in the lande of Moab, Moses began to declare this law, sayinge: the Lorde oure God spake vnto vs in Horeb, saying: Ye haue dwelt long ynough in this mount: departe therfore and take your iourney and go vnto the hylls of the Amorytes, and vnto all places nye there vnto: both feldes, hylles and dales: and vnto the southe and vnto the sees syde of the lande of Canaan, and vnto Libanon: euen vnto the great ryuer Euphrates. Beholde, I haue set the lande before you: go in therfore and possesse the lande which the Lorde sware vnto your fathers, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, to geue vnto them, and their seed after them.

a Horeb and Sinai are both one.

And I sayd vnto you the same season: I am not able to beare you my selfe alone. For the Lorde your God hath multiplied you: so that ye are this daye as the sterres of heuen in nombre (the Lorde God of your fathers make you a thousande tymes so many mo as ye are, and blesse you as he hath promysed you) how (said I) can I my self alone beare the accombraunce charge and stryfe that is amonges you: bring therfore men of wysdome and of vnderstandynge and of experience, knowne among your trybes, that I maye make them rulers ouer you. And ye answered me and sayd, that which thou hast spoken is good to be done. And then I toke the heades of your trybes men of wisdome and experience, and made them rulers ouer you: capitaynes ouer thousandes, and ouer hundredes, ouer fyftye, and ouer ten, and officers amonge your trybes.

And I charged your Judges the same tyme, sayinge: heare your brethren, and iudge rygh-teously betwene euerye man and his brother, and the straunger that is with hym. Se ye know no mans personage in iudgement, * but heare the small as well as the greate, and be afrayde of no man, for the iudgement is Gods. And the cause that is to harde for you, bringe vnto me, and I will heare it. And I commaunded you the same season al thinges which ye should do. And then we departed frome Horeb, and walked thorow all that great and terrible wyldernesse as ye haue sene alonge by the waye that leadeth vnto the hylles of the Amorytes, as the Lorde oure God commaunded vs, and came to Cades Barne. And there I sayd vnto you: Ye are come vnto the hylles of the Amorytes whiche the Lorde our God dothe geue vs.

Eccl. xiii. a

Beholde, the Lorde thy God hathe set the lande before, goo vp and conquere it, as d the Lorde God of thy fathers sayethe vnto the: feare not, neyther be discouraged. And then ye came vnto me euerye one, and sayde. Lette vs sende men before vs, to inserche out the lande, and to bringe vs worde agayne, bothe what waye we shall goo vs by, and vnto what cytyes we shall come. And the sayinge pleased me well, and I toke twelue men of you, of euerye trybe one. And they departed and wente vp in to the hyghe countrey, and came vnto the ryuer Escoll, and serched it oute, and toke of the frute of the lande in their handes, and broughte it downe vnto vs, and broughte vs worde agayne and sayd: It is a good lande which the Lorde our God dothe geue vs.

d

Notwithstandynge ye wolde not consent to goo vp, but were disobediente vnto the mouth of the Lord your God, and murmured in youre tentes, and sayde: bycause the Lorde hateth vs, therfore he hath broughte vs oute of the lande of Egypte, to delyuer vs into the handes of the Amorites, and to destroye vs. Howe shall we goo vp? Oure brethren haue e discouraged our hertes. sayinge: The people is greater and taller then we, and the cityes are greate and walled, euen vp to heuen / and more ouer we haue sene the sonnes of the Enakims there.

And I sayde vnto you: dred not, neyther be afrayde of them. The Lorde your God which goeth before you, he shall fyght for you according to all that he dyd vnto you in Egypte, before your eyes, and in the wyldernesse, as thou hast sene how the Lorde thy God bare the as a man sholde beare his sonne thorowe out all the waye whiche ye haue gone, tyll ye came vnto this place. And yet for all this, ye dyd not byleue the Lorde your God, whiche goeth the waye before you, to serche you oute a place to pytche youre tentes in, * in fire by f nyght, that ye myght se what waye to go and in a cloude by daye.

And the Lorde herde the voyce of youre wordes, and was wrothe and sware, sayinge/ there shall not one of these men of this frowarde generacion se that good lande whiche I sware to geue vnto youre fathers, saue Caleb the sonne of Jephune, he shall se it/ and to hym will I geue the lande whiche he hathe walked in, and to his children bycause he hathe continually followed the Lorde.

Likewise

Lykewyse the Lorde was angrye with me for your sakes, sayinge: thou also shalte not goo in thyther. But Josua the sonne of Nun whiche standeth before the, he shall go in thyther. Holden him therfore for he shall diuyde the heritage vnto Israel.

Numeri. xx. b

* Moreouer youre children whiche ye sayd should be a praye, and youre sonnes which knowe neyther good nor bad this daye, they shall goo in thyther, and vnto them I will geue it, and they shall enioye it. But as for you, turne backe and take youre iourneye in to the wyldernesse: euen the waye to the redde see. Then ye answered and sayde vnto me: We haue synned agaynst the Lorde we will goo vp and fyghte, according to all that the Lorde oure God commaunded vs.

Deuteron. ii. c

And when ye hadde gyrde on euerye man his weapons of warre, and were redye to goo vp in to the hylles, the Lorde sayd vnto me: saye vnto them, se ye go not vp and that ye fyghte not, for I am not amonges you: lest ye be scoumfited before your ennemyes. * And when I told you ye wolde not heare: but disobeyed the mouthe of the Lorde, and wente presumptuously vp in to the hylles.

Then the Amorytes whiche dwelt in those hylles, came out agaynste you and chased you as bees do, and hewed you in Seir, euen vnto Horma. And ye came agayne and wept before the Lorde: but the Lord wold not heare your voyce, nor gyue you audience. And so ye abode in Cades alonge season.

¶ Brefe rehersall of that which was done frome the tyme that they departed frome Cades barne, vnto the battell agaynste the kynges Sehon and Og.

CAPI. II.

THen we turned and toke oute iourneye in to the wyldernesse, euen the waye to the redde see as the Lorde commaunded me. And we compassed the mountaynes of Seir a longe tyme. Then the Lorde spake vnto e sayinge: Ye haue compassed this mountaynes longe ynoughe, turne you northwarde. And warne the people, saying: Ye shall go thorow the costes of your brethren the children of Esau, whiche dwell in Seir, and they shall be afrayde of you: But take good hede vnto youre selues, that ye prouoke them not, for I will not geue you of their lande, no not so moche as a fote breade: bycause I haue geuen mounte Seir vnto Esau to possesse. Ye shall bye meate of them for money to eate / and ye shall bye water of them for money to drynke. For the Lorde thy God hathe blessed the in al the workes of thyne hand, and knewe the as thou wentest thorow his great wyldernesse. Moreouer the Lorde thy God hath ben with the this fourtye yeres, so that thou hast lacked nothynge.

And when we were departed from our brethren the children of Esau whiche dwelte in Seir by the felde waye from Elath and Ezion Gaber, we turned and wente the waye to the wyldernesse of Moab. Then the Lorde sayd vnto me, se that thou vexe not the Moabites, neyther prouoke them to battayle, for I will not geue the of their lande to possesse: bycause I haue geuen Ar vnto the children of Loth to possesse. The Emims dwelt therin in tymes past, a people great, many and tall, as the Enakims: whiche also were taken for gyauntes as the Enakims: And the Moabites called them Emims.

Emim a kind of Gyauntes so called bycause they were terrible and cruel for Emim signifieth terribleneße.

In lyke maner the Horims dwelte in Seir before tyme whiche the children of Esau call out, and destroyed them before them & dwelte there in their stede: as Israel dyd in the lande of his possession whiche the Lorde gaue them. Now ryse vp (sayd I) and get you ouer the ryuer Zared/ and we wente ouer the ryuer Zared. The space in which we came from Cades Barne, vntyll we were come ouer the ryuer Zared was. xxxviij. yeres, vntyll all the generacion of the men of warre were wasted oute of the hoste as the Lorde sware vnto them. For in dede the hand of the Lorde was against them to destroye them oute of the hoste, tyll they were consumed.

And as soone as all the men of warre were consumed and dead for the of the people, then the Lorde spake vnto me, sayinge. Thou shalte go thorowe Ar the coste of Moab this daye, and shalt come nere vnto the children of Ammon: se thou vexe them not, nor prouoke them. For I will not geue the of the lande of the children of Ammon to possesse, bycause I haue geuen it vnto the children of Loth to possesse. That also was taken for a land of gyauntes, and gyauntes dwelt therin in olde tyme, and the Ammonites called them Zanzummims. A people that was greate, many and talle, as the Enakims. But the Lorde destroyed them before the Ammonytes, and they caste them out, and they dwelte there in their stede: as he dyd for the children of Esau, which dwell in Seir: euen as he destroyed the Horims before them, and they caste them oute and dwell in their stede vnto this daye. And the Auims which dwelte in Hazarim euen vnto Aza, the Caphthorims whiche came out of Caphthor, destroyed them and dwelte in their rowmes.

Ryse vp, take youre iourneye and goo ouer the ryuer Arnon. Beholde, * I haue geuen in to thy hande Sehon the Amorite, kynge of Hesbon and his lande. Go and conquere, and prouoke hym to battayle. This daye I will begyn to sende the feare and dred of the vpon all nacions that are vnder al portes of the heauen: so that when they heare speake of the, they shal tremble and quake for feare of the.

* Num. xxi. e

Then I sente messengers oute of the wyldernesse of the caste vnto Sehon kynge of Hesbon with wordes of peax, sayinge: * Let me goo thorowe thy lande. I will goo alwayes alonge by the hye waye, and will neither turne vnto the right hand nor to the left. Sell me meat for money to eate, and geue me drynke for money to drynke. I wyl go thorow by fote onely (as the children of Esau dyd vn to me which dwell in Seir, and the Moabites which dwel in Ar) vntyll I be come ouer

Iordan in to the lande whiche the Lorde our God gyueth vs.

But Sehon the kyng of Hesbon wolde not let vs passe by him, for the Lorde thy God had hardened his spirite, and made his herte tough because he wolde deliuer him in to thy handes, as it is come to passe this daye.

And the Lorde sayde vnto me: beholde I haue begon to set Sehon and his lande ꝓ before the: go to and conquere, that thou mayst possesse his lande. Then bothe Sehon and all his people came out agaynst vs vnto batayle at ꝓ Iahaza. And the Lorde set him before vs, and we smote hym and his sonnes and all his people.

ꝓ Or, at thy commaundement.

ꝓ Otherwise Iesa.

And we toke all his cityes the same season and destroyed all his cityes, with men, women and chyldren, and let nothynge remayne saue the catell onely we caught vnto our selues, and the spoyle of the cityes whiche we toke, frome Aroer vpon the brynke of the ryuer of Arnon, and the citye in the ryuer, vnto Galaad: there was not one citye to stronge for vs. The Lorde our God delyuered all vnto vs: onely vnto the lande of the chyldren of Ammon ye came not, nor vnto all the coste of the ryuer Iaboche, nor vnto the cityes in the mountaynes, nor vnto what so euer the Lorde our God forbad vs.

¶ A rehersall of thynges that chaunsed frome the vyctorye of the two kynges Sehon and Og, vnto the Institucion of Iosue in Moses steade.

CAPI. III.

A Then we turned and wente vp the waye to Basan: ✳And Og the kyng of Basan came out agaynst vs: bothe he and all his people to battell at Edzai. And the Lorde sayd vnto me: feare hym not, for I haue deliuered him and all his people and his lande in to thy hande, and thou shalte deale with hym as thou dealedst with Sehon kynge of the Amorytes whiche dwelte at Hesbon. And so the Lorde oure God delyuered in to our handes, Og also kynge of Basan, and all his folke. And we smote him, tyll nought was lefte hym.

✳ Num. xxi. g. Deute. xxix. b

Nume. xxi. g.

And we toke all his cityes the same season (for there was not a citye which we toke not from them, euen thre score cityes, all the region of Argob, the kyngdom of Og in Basan. All these cityes were made stronge with hye walles, gates, and barres/ besyde vnwalled townes a greate meyny. And we vtterly destroyed them as we played with Sehon kyng of Hesbon, bringynge to nought all the cyties with men, women, and chyldren. But all the cattell and the spoyle of the cityes, we prese serued for our selues.

B And thus we toke the same season, the lande oute of the hande of two kynges of the Amorytes on the other syde Iordan, frome the ryuer of Arnon vnto mounte Hermon, (whiche Hermon the Sidons call Sirion, but the Amorytes call it Senyr) all the cityes in the playne, and all Galaad, & all Basan vnto Salecha and Edzai, cityes of the kyngdom of Og in Basan. For onely Og kynge of Basan remayned of the rest of the gyaunts/ beholde his yron bed is yet at Rabah among the chyldren of Ammon, nyne cubytes longe, and four cubytes brode, of the cubytes of a man.

And when we had conquered this land the same tyme, I gaue from Aroer, which is vpon the ryuer of Arnon, and halfe mount Galaad, and the cityes therof vnto the Rubenites, and Gadites. And the rest of Galaad and all Basan, the kyngdome of Og / I gaue vnto the halfe trybe of Manasse, all the region of Argob withall. Basan was called the lande of gyauntes. Iair the sonne of Manasse toke all the regyon of Argob vnto the costes of Gesuri and Maachati, and called them after his owne name: Basan ꝓ Hauoth Iair vnto this daye. And I gaue halfe Galaad vnto Machir. And vnto Ruben and Gad I gaue frō Galaad vnto the ryuer of Arnon, and halfe the valley and the coste, euen vnto the ryuer Iaboche, whiche is the border of the chyldren of Ammon, and the feldes and Iordan with the coste from Cenereth vnto the see in the felde, whiche is the salt see vnder the spryngs of Phasgah eastwarde.

And I commaunded you the same tyme (ye Ruben and Gad) sayinge: the Lorde youre God hathe gyuen you this lande to enioye it: se you goo harnessed before youre brethren the chyldren of Israel all that are men of warre amonges you. Your wyues onely, youre chyldren and your catell (for I wote that ye haue moche catell) shall abyde in your cityes which I haue gyuen you, vntyll the Lorde haue gyuen rest vnto youre brethren as well as vnto you, and vntyll they also haue conquered the lande which the Lorde your God hath gyuen them beyonde Iordan: and then returne agayne euery man vnto his possession which I haue gyuen you.

And I warned Iosua the same tyme, sayinge: thyne eyes haue sene all that the Lorde your God hath done vnto these two kynges, euen so the Lorde wyll doo vnto all kyngedomes whyther thou goest. Feare them not, for the Lorde youre God it is, that fyghteth for you.

And I besought the Lorde the same tyme, sayinge: O Lorde God, thou hast begon to shewe thy seruaunt thy greatnesse & thy mighty hande, for there is no God in heuen nor in erth that can doo after thy workes, and after thy power: let me goo ouer and se the good land that is beyonde Iordan, that goodly hye countrey, and Libanon. But the Lorde was angry with me for your sakes, and wolde not heare me, but sayde vnto me: be content, and speake hence forthe no more vnto me of this matter. ✳Get the vp in to the top of Phasgah and lyfte vp thyne eyes west, north, south and east, and beholde it with thyne eyes / for thou shalte not goo ouer this Iordan. Moreouer charge Iosua and incourage him, and bolden him. For he shall go ouer before his people, & he shall diuyde the lande, whiche thou shalte se. vnto them. And so we abode in the valley besyde Bethphgor.

CAPI. IIII.

A Nd nowe herken Israel vnto the ordynaunces and lawes which I teache you for to doo them, that ye maye lyue and go and conquere the lande whiche the Lorde God of your fathers gyueth you. Ye shall put nothyng vnto the word whiche I commaunde you, neyther do ought therfrom, that ye maye kepe the commaundementes of the Lord your God, whiche I commaunde you. ✳Your eyes haue sene what the Lorde dyd to Baal Peor: for all the men that folowed Baal Peor, the Lorde youre God hathe destroyed amonge you. But ye that claue vnto the Lorde your God are alyue euerye one of you this daye. Beholde, I haue taught you ordinaunces and lawes suche as the Lorde my God commaunded me that ye shulde do in the lande whyther ye go to possesse it.

Kepe them therfore and do them, ✳for that is your wysdome and vnderstandynge in the sight of the nations: whiche when they haue herde all these ordynaunces, shall saye: O what a wyse and vnderstandyng people is this greate nation. For what nation is so greate that hathe Goddes so nye vnto him: as the Lorde our God is nye vnto vs in all thynges, when we call vnto him? Yea, and what nacions so great, that hathe ordinaunces and lawes so rygh teous, as all this lawe whiche I set before you this daye.

Take hede to thy selfe therfore onely, and kepe thy soule dylygently, that thou forget not the thynges whiche thyne eyes haue sene, and that they departe not out of thyne herte, all the dayes of thy lyfe: but teache them thy sonnes, and thy sonnes sonnes. The daye that I stode before the Lorde youre God in Horeb when he sayd vnto me, gather me ꝑ people together, that I may make them heare my wordes to thintent they may lerne to feare me as long as they lyue vpon the erth, and that they may teache their chyldren: ye came and stode also vnder the hyll, and the hyll burnt with fire: euen vnto the myddes of heuen, & there was derknes cloudes and mist. And the Lorde spake vnto you out of the fire, and ye herd the voyce of the wordes: but saw no ymage, saue herde a voyce onely.

And he declared vnto you his couenaunt, whiche he commaunded you to doo, euen ten sayinges, and wrote them in to tables of stone And the Lord commaunded me that same season to teache you ordinaunces and lawes, for to doo them in the lande whyther ye goo to possesse it.

Take hede vnto youre selues dilygently, concernynge youre soules, for ye sawe no maner of ymage the day whē the Lorde spake vnto you in Horeb out of the fire, lest you marre youre selues, and make you grauen ymages after what so euer lykenesse it be: whether after the lykenes of man or woman, or anye maner beest that is on the erth, or of any maner fethered foule that fleeth in the ayre, or of any maner worme that crepeth on the erth, or of any maner fysshe that is in the water benethe the erth: yea and lest thou lyfte vp thyne eyes vn to heuen, and when thou seest the sonne and ꝑ mone and the sterres, and what so euer is contayned in heuen, thou dest be dyscoyed, and thou dest bowe thy selfe vnto them, and serue ꝑ thinges whiche the Lorde thy God hath dystributed vnto all nations, that are vnder all quarters of heuen.

For the Lorde toke you and brought you out of the yron fornace of Egypte, to be vnto him a people of enherytaunce, as it is come to passe this daye. Furthermore, the Lorde was angrye with me for your sakes and sware, that I sholde not goo ouer Iordane, and that I sholde not go vnto that good lande, which the Lorde thy God gyueth the to enheritance. For I muste dye in this lande, and shall not goo ouer Iordan. But ye shall goo ouer and conquere that good lande. Deute. i. f

Take hede vnto youre selues therfore that ye forget not the appoyntment of the Lorde your God whiche he made with you, and that ye make you no grauen ymage of what so euer it be that the Lorde thy God hath forbydden the. For the Lorde thy God is a consuming fire and a gelous God.

If after thou halle gotten chyldren, and chyldrens chyldren, and halle dwelte longe in the lande, ye shall marre youre selues and make grauen ymages after the lykenesse of what so euer it be, and shalte worke wickednesse in the syghte of the Lorde thy God, to prouoke him, I call heuen and earthe to recorde vnto you this daye, that ye shall shortly perysshe forthe of the lande whether ye go ouer Iordan to possesse it: ye shall not prolonge youre dayes therin, but shall shortly be destroyed. And the Lorde shall skatter you amonges nations, and ye shall be lefte fewe in nombre among the people whyther the Lorde shall dryuge you: and there ye shal serue goddes whiche are the workes of mannes hande, wodde and stone whiche neyther se, nor heare, nor eate, nor smell. Moreouer lesse, ye shall seke the Lorde your God euen there, and shall fynde hym, yf thou seke hym with all thyne herte, and with all thy soule. In thy tribulacyon, and when all these thynges are come vpon the euen in the latter dayes; thou shalte tourne vnto the Lorde thy God, and shalte herken vnto his voyce. For the Lorde thy God is a pitefull God: he wyll not forsake the, neyther destroye the, nor forget the appoyntment made with thy fathers whiche he sware vnto them.

For aske I praye the, of the dayes that are paste whiche were before the, frome the daye that God created man vpon the earthe, and frome the one syde of heuen vnto the other, whether any thynge hath ben lyke vnto this great thyng, or whether any suche thinge hathe ben herde as it is, that a nacyon hathe herde the voyce of God speakynge out of fyre

A And Moses called all Israel, and sayde vnto them: Heare (Israel) the ordynaunces and lawes whiche I speake in thyne eares this daye, and lerne them, and se ye do them. The Lorde our God made an appointment with vs in Horeb. The Lord made not this bonde with oure fathers, but with vs: we are they whiche are al here alyue this daye. The Lorde talked with you face to face in the mount out of the fyre. And I stode bytwene the Lorde and you the same tyme, to shewe you the sayinge of the Lorde. For ye were afrayde of the fire, and therfore went not vp in to the mounte, and he sayd. * I am the Lorde thy God, whiche brought the oute of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage. Thou shalt haue therfore none other goddes in my presence.

Thou shalte make the no grauen ymage of anye maner lykenesse that is in heuen aboue, or in erth beneth, or in the water benethe the erth. * Thou shalt neyther bowe thy selfe vnto them nor serue them: for I the Lorde thy God am a gelouse God, visitinge the wickednesse of the fathers vpon the chyldren, euen in the thyrde and fourthe generacyon, amonge them that hate me: and shewe mercye vpon thousandes amonges them that loue me, and kepe my commaundementes.

* Thou shalte not take the name of the Lorde thy God in vayne: For the Lorde wil not holde him gyltlesse that taketh his name in vayne.

* Kepe the Saboth daye, that thou sanctifye it, as the Lorde thy God hath commaunded the. Sixe dayes thou shalte labour, and do all that thou hast to do, but the seuenth daye is the Saboth of the Lorde thy God: thou shalte doo no maner worke, neyther thou nor thy sonne, nor thy daughter, nor thy seruaunt, nor thy mayde, nor thyne oxe, nor thyne asse, nor any of thy catell, nor the straunger that is within thy citye, that thy seruaunte and thy mayde may rest as well as thou. And remembre thou waste a seruaunt in the lande of Egypte, and how that the Lorde God brought the oute thence with * a myghtye hande, and a stretched oute arme. For whiche cause the Lorde thy God commaunded the to kepe the Saboth daye.

* Honoure thy father and thy mother, as he Lorde thy God hathe commaunded the: that thou mayst prolonge thy dayes, and that it maye go well with the on the lande whiche the Lorde thy God gyueth the.

* Thou shalte not slee.

Thou shalte not commyt aduoutrye.

Thou shalt not steale.

Thou shalt not beare false witnesse against thy neyghboure.

Thou shalt not luste after thy neyghbours wyfe: thou shalte not couet thy neyghbours house, felde, seruaunt, mayde, oxe, asse, nor ought that is thy neyghbours.

These wordes the Lorde spake vnto all youre multitude in the mounte, oute of the fyre, cloude, and darkenesse, with a loude voyce, and added no more therto, and wrote them in two tables of stone, and delyuered them vnto me.

But as soone as ye herde the voyce, oute of the

the darkenesse, and sawe the hyll burne with fyre, ye came vnto me all the heades of youre tribes and your elders: and ye sayd, Behold, the Lorde our God hath shewed vs his glory and his greatnesse, and * we haue herde his voyce out of the fyre, & we haue sene this daye that God may talke with a man and he yet lyue. And now wherfore shulde we dye þ this great fyre shuld consume vs: Yf we shuld heare the voyce of the Lorde oure God anye more, we shulde dye. For what is any fleshe that he shulde heare the voyce of the lyuynge
D God speakynge oute of the fyre as we haue done and shulde yet lyue: Go thou and heare all that the Lorde our God sayth, & tell thou vnto vs all that the Lorde oure God sayeth vnto the, and we will heare it and do it.

And the Lorde herde the voyce of your wordes when ye spake vnto me, and he sayde vnto me: I haue herde the voyce of the wordes of this people whiche they haue spoken vnto the, they haue well sayde al þ they haue sayd. * Oh that they had suche an herte with them to feare me and kepe all my commaundementes alwaye, that it myght go well with them and with their children for euer. Go and say vnto them: Get you into your tentes agayne but stande thou here before me and I will tell the all the commaundementes, ordinaunces, and lawes which thou shalt teach them, that they may do them in the lande whiche I gyue them to possesse.

Take hede therfore ye do, as the Lord your God hath commaũded you, and * turne not asyde: eyther to the righthande or to the left: but walke in all the wayes which the Lorde your God hath commanded you, that ye may lyue, and that it maye go well with you, and that ye maye prolonge your dayes in the land which ye shall possesse.

¶ The lawe must be ernestly printed in theyr hartes and to kepe it in memorye they must wryte it on the dores and postes of theyr houses: And teache it vnto theyr chyldren.

CAPI. VI.

A These are the commaundementes, ordinaunces & lawes which the Lord your God commaunded to teache you, that ye myght do them in the lande whether ye go to possesse it: that thou myghtest feare the Lorde thy God, to kepe all his ordinaunces and his commaundementes whiche I commaunde the, both thou and thy sonne and thy sonnes sonne all dayes of thy lyfe, that thy dayes maye be prolonged. Heare therfore Israel and take hede that thou do therafter, that it maye go well with the, and that ye maye encrease mightely euen as the Lorde God of thy fathers hathe promysed the, a lande that floweth with mylke and hony.

B Heare Israel, the Lorde thy God is Lord only and thou shalt loue the Lorde thy God with all thyne harte, with all thy soule and with all thy myght. And these wordes which I commaunde the this daye, shalbe in thyne herte and thou shalt whet theym on thy children, and shalt talke of them when thou arte at home in thyne housse, and as thou walkest by the waye, and when thou lyest downe and when thou rysest vp: and thou shalte bynde them for a signe vpon thyne hande. And they shalbe papers of remẽbraunce betwene thyne eyes, and shalt wryte them vpon the postes of thy house and vpon thy gates.

But thus ye shall deale with theym: ouerthrowe their altares, breake downe their pylers, cut downe their groues, and burne their ymages with fyre. For thou arte an holy nation vnto the Lorde thy God, the Lorde thy God hathe chosen the, to be a seuerall people Deute.xiiii.a and xvi.d vnto him selfe, of all nations that are vpon the earthe. B It was not because of the multitude of you aboue all nations, that ꝑ Lorde had lust vnto you and chose you. For ye were fewest of all nations. But because the Lorde loued you, and because he wold kepe the othe which he had sworne vnto your fathers, therfore he brought you oute of Egypte with a myghty hande, and redyuered you forth of the house of bondage: euen frome the hande of Pharao, kynge of Egypte.

All the commaundementes whiche I L commaunde the this daye, ye shal kepe to w̄ them, that ye maye lyue and multyply and go and possesse the lande which the Lorde sware vnto your fathers. And thinke on all the waye which the Lorde thy God led the this. xl. yere in the wyldernesse, for to humble the and to proue the, to wete what was in thyne herte, whether thou woldest kepe his commaundementes or no, He humbled the & made the hongre, and fed the with Manna, which neyther thou nor thy father knewe of, to make the knowe that a man must not lyue by bread only: but by all that proceedeth oute of the mouthe of the Lorde must a man lyue. Thy rayment waxed not olde vpon the, neyther dyd thy fete swell this. xl. yere.

Understand therfore in thyne herte that as a man nourtereth his sonne, euen so the Lorde thy God nourtereth the. Kepe therfore the commaundemētes of the Lorde thy God that thou walke in his wayes, and that thou feare him. For the Lorde thy God bringeth the into a good lande, a lande of ryuers of water, of fountaynes & of springes that springe out bothe in valeyes and hylles: a land of where and of barly, of vynes, fyggetrees and Pomgranates, a lande of olyue trees of oyle and of hony: a lande wherin thou shalte not eate bred in skarcenesse, and where thou shalt lack nothinge, a lande whose stones are yron, and out of whose hylles thou shalt dygge brasse. When thou hast eatē therfore and fylled thy selfe, then blesse the Lorde for the good lande which he hath gyuen the.

L But beware thou forget not the Lorde thy God, that thou woll not kepe his commaundementes, lawes and ordinaunces whiche I commaunde the this day: yee and when thou hast eaten and fylled thy selfe and hast buylt goodly houses and dweite therein, and when thy beastes and thy shepe are waxed manye & thy syluer and golde is multiplied and al that thou hast encreased, then beware least thyne herte ryse and thou forget the Lord thy God which brought the out of the lande of Egypte the house of bondage, and which led the in ꝑ wyldernesse both great and terrible with fyrye serpentes and Scorpions, & drouth where was no water which brought the water oute of the rocke of flynt: which fed the in the wildernesse with Manna, whereof thy fathers knewe not, for to humble the, and to proue the, that he myghte wo the good at thy latter ende.

And beware thou saye not in thyne herte, my power and the myght of myne owne hād hath wone me all these actes: But remembre the Lorde thy God, that it is he which gaue the power to w̄ manfullye, for to make good the promyse which he sware vnto thy fathers as it is come to passe this daye.

For yf thou shalt forget the Lorde thy God and shalt walk after straunge goddes & serue them and worshyp them, I testifye vnto you this daye, that ye shall surely perysshe. Heare Israel, thou goest ouer Iordā this A daye, to go and conquere nations greater and myghtyer then thy selfe, and cyties great and walled vp to heauen, & people great and tall, euen the children of the Enakims, which thou knowest & of whome thou hast herde saye, who is hable to stande before the children of Enack? But vnderstande this daye that the Lorde thy God which goeth before the, a consumynge fyre, he shall destroye them, and shall subdue them before the. And thou shalt cast them out, & bryngе them forth and destroye quyckely as the Lord hath sayd vnto the.

And I turned away and came downe from the hyll (and the hyll burnt with fyre) & had the twoo tables of the appoyntement in my handes. Beholde, heauen and the heauen of heauens, is the Lordes thy God, and the earthe with all that therin is: onely the Lorde had a lust vnto thy fathers to loue them, and therfore chose you their seed after them of all nacions, as it is come to passe this daye.

D Circumcyse therfore the foreskynne of youre hertes, and be no longer styfenecked. For the Lorde youre God, he is God of Goddes, and Lorde of Lordes, a great God, a myghty and a terrible, whiche regardeth no mans person, nor taketh gyftes: but doth ryghte vnto the fatherlesse and wydowe, and loueth the straunger, to gyue him fode and raymẽt. Loue therfore the straunger, for ye were straũgers youre selues in the lande of Egypte. Thou shalte feare the Lorde thy God, and serue him, and cleaue vnto him, and sweare by his name, for he is thy prayse, and he is thy God that hath done these greate and terrible thinges for the, which thyne eyes haue sene. Loue the Lorde thy God, and kepe his obseruaunces, his ordinaũces, his lawes and his commaundmentes alwaye. And call to mynde this daye that which your children haue neyther knowen nor sene: euen the nourture of the Lorde youre God, his greatnesse, his myghty hand, and his stretched out arme: his myracles, and his actes whiche he dyd amonges the Egyptians, euen vnto Pharao the kynge of Egypte, & vnto all his land: and what he dyd vnto the host of the Egyptians, vnto their horses and charettes, howe he broughte the water of the reed see vpon them as they chased you, and howe the Lorde hath brought them to nought vnto this daye: and what he did vnto you in the wildernesse, vntyll ye came vnto this place: and what he dyd vnto * Dathan and Abiram the sonnes of Eliab the sonne of Ruben, howe the erthe opened her mouth and swalowed them with theyr housholdes and theyr tentes, and all theyr substaunce that was in theyr possession, in the myddes of Israel.

B For youre eyes haue sene all the greate dedes of the Lorde which he dyd. Kepe therfore all the commaundementes which I commaunde the this daye that ye maye be stronge and go and conquere the lande whether ye go to possesse it, and that ye may prolonge youre dayes in the lande which the Lorde sware vnto your fathers to gyue vnto them, & to their seed, a lande that floweth with mylke & hony. For the lande whether thou goest to possesse it, is not as the lande of Egypt whence thou camest out, where thou sowedest thy seed and wateredst it with thy fete as a garden of herbes: but the lande whither ye go ouer to possesse, is a lande of hilles and valeyes and drinketh water of the rayne of heauen, and a land which the Lord thy God careth for. The eyes of the Lorde thy God are alwayes vpon it, frome the begynninge of the yere vnto the latter ende of the yere.

Yf you shall herken therfore vnto my commaundmentes which I commaunde you this daye, that ye loue the Lorde youre God and serue him with all your hertes, and with all youre soules: then he will gyue rayne vnto your lande in due season, both the first ‡ rayne and the later, and thou shalte gather in thy corne thy wyne and thyne oyle. And he wyll sende grasse in thy feldes for thy catell: & thou shalt eate and fyll thy selfe. But take hede to youre selfes, that ye be not deceyued that ye turne a syde and serue strange Goddes & worshyp them, & so the wrath of the Lorde waxe hote vpon you, and shut vp the heauen that there be no rayne and that youre lande yelde not her encreace and that ye perysshe shortely frome the good lande which the Lorde gyueth you.

☞ C Put vp therfore these my wordes in youre hertes and in your soules, and bynde them for a signe vnto your handes, and let them be as papers of remembraunce betwene your eyes, and * teache them your childrẽ: so that thou talke of them when thou sittest in thyn house and when thou walkest by the waye, & when thou lyest downe, and when thou rysest vp: yea and wryte theym vpon the dorepostes of thyne house and vpon thy gates, that youre dayes maye be multiplyed, and the dayes of your children vpon the erth which the Lorde sware vnto youre fathers to gyue them, as lõg as the dayes of heauẽ endure vpon the earth. For yf ye shall kepe all these commaũdemẽtes which I commaunde you, so that ye do them, and loue the Lorde your God, and walke in all his wayes and cleaue vnto him: Thẽ will the Lorde cast out all these nacions, & ye shall conquere them whiche are both greatter and myghtyer then your selues. * All the places where on the soles of youre fete shall treade, shalbe youres, euen frome the wyldernesse and frome mount Libanon, and frome the ryuer Euphrates, yea vnto the vttermoste see shall your costes be. A When thou goest out to battell againste thyne ennemyes, and seyst horses & charettes and people mo then thou, be not aferde of them, for the Lorde thy God is with the which brought the forth of the land of Egypte. And when ye are come nyghe vnto battell, let the preast come forth and speake vnto the people and saye vnto them: Heare Israel ye are come this daye vnto battell againste youre ennemyes, let not youre hertes faynte, neyther feare, nor be amased, nor a dread of them. For the Lorde thy God goeth wt you to fight for you againste your ennemyes and to saue you.

B And let the captaynes speake vnto the people, sayenge: Yf any man haue buylt a newe house and haue not dedicate it, let him go and returne to his house least he dye in the battel and an other dedicate. And yf any man haue planted a vyneyarde and haue not made it comen wherof euery man may eate, let him goo and returne agayne vnto his house, least he dye in the battell and an other make it comẽ. And yf any man be betrouthed vnto a wyfe & haue not taken her, let him go and returne agayne vnto his house, least he dye in the battell and an other take her.

And let the captaynes speake further vnto the people and saye. Yf any man feare and be faynte herted, let him goo and returne vnto his house lest his brothers hert be made faint

When thou commest nyghe vnto a cytie to fight against it, offre them peax. And yf they answere the agayne peasibly, and open vnto the, then let al the people that is founde therin be tributaries vnto the, and serue the. But yf they will make no peax with the, thẽ make warre againste the cytie and besiege it. And when the Lorde thy God hath delyuered it in to thyne handes, smyte all males therof with the edge of the swerde, saue the wemen & the children, and the catell and all that is in the cytie, and all the spoyle therof take vnto thy selfe, and eate the spoyle of thyne ennemyes which the Lorde thy God geueth the. Thus thou shalte do vnto all the cyties whiche are farre of from the and not of the cyties of these nacions.

And let the elders of that cytie which is next vnto the slayne man, take an heyffer whiche hathe not bene laboured, nor hath drawen in the yocke, and let them bring her vnto a valeye where is neyther earynge nor sowynge, and stryke of her heed there in the valey. A

Then let the preastes the sonnes of Leui come forth + for the Lorde thy God hath chosen them to serue and to prayse his name, and therfore at their mouth shal all stryfe & plage be tryed. And al the elders of the cytie that is next to the slayne man, shall come forthe to ye corpes & washe their handes ouer the heyffer that is beheaded in the playne, and shall answere and saye: our hãdes haue not shed this bloude, neyther haue our eyes sene it. Be mercyfull Lorde vnto thy people Israel whiche thou hast delyuered & put not innocent bloud vnto thy people Israel: & the bloude shall be forgyuen them. And Moses with the elders of Israel commaunded the people, saying: Kepe all the commaundementes whiche I commaunde you this daye. * And when ye be come ouer Iordan vnto the lande whiche the Lozde thy God giueth the, set vp greate stones, and plaister them with plaister, & wryte vpon them all the wordes of this lawe, when thou arte come ouer: that thou mayste come in to the lande whiche the Lozde thy God giueth the: a lande that flowerth with mylke & honye: as the Lozd God of thy fathers hath promysed the. * Iosue.viii

When ye be come ouer Iordan, se ye set vp these stones whiche I commaunde you this daye vpon mounte Ebal, and plaister them with plaister. And there buyld vnto the Lozd thy God * an aulter of stones, and se thou lift vp no yron vpon them. But thou shalte make the aulter of the Lozde thy God of rough stones, and offre burnt offrynges theron vnto ỹ Lozde thy God. And thou shalte offre peaceofferynges, and shalte eate there, and reioyce before the Lozde thy God. And thou shalt write vpon the stones all the wordes of this lawe, well and playnly. Iosue.viii.c * Exod.xx.d B

And Moyses with the preestes the Leuytes spake vnto all Israel, saynge: take hede and heare Israel / this daye thou arte become the people of the Lozde thy God. Herken therfore vnto the voyce of the Lozd thy God, and do his commaundementes and his ordinaunces whiche I commaunde you this daye.

And Moyses charged the people the same daye, saying. These shall stande vpon mount Garizim, to blesse the people when ye are come ouer Iordan: Symeon, Leui, Juda, Issachar, Joseph and Benjamin. And these shall stande vpon mount Ebal to curse: Ruben, Gad, Aser, Zabulon, Dan, and Nephthali. And the Leuytes shall begynne and saye vnto all the men of Israel with a loude voyce. ¶ The promyſes of the bleſſynges vnto them that regarde the commaundementes: and the curſes to the contrary.

CAPI. XXVIII.

A *Leu.xxvi.a The bleſſynges.

YF *thou ſhalte herken diligently vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to obſerue and do all his commaundementes whyche I commaunde the this daye, the Lord wyll ſet the aboue all nacions of the earthe. And all theſe bleſſynges ſhall come on the and ouertake the, yf thou ſhalte herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God. Bleſſed ſhalte thou be in the towne, and bleſſed in the feldes, bleſſed ſhall be the frute of thy body, the frute of thy grounde, and the frute of they catell, the frute of thyne oxen, and thy flockes of ſheepe, bleſſed ſhal thy barnes be and thy store. Bleſſed ſhalte thou be, both when thou goeſt oute, and bleſſed when thou commeſt in.

*Deute.ii.a *The Lorde ſhal ſmyte thyne ennemyes that ryſe agaynſte the before thy face. They ſhall come out agaynſte the one waye, and flyenke before the ſeuen wayes. The Lorde ſhall commaunde the bleſſyng to be with the in thy store houſes, and in al that thou ſetteſt thyne hand to, and wyll bleſſe the in the lande whyche the Lorde thy God gyueth the.

The Lorde ſhall make the an holy people vnto hym ſelfe, as he hath ſworne vnto the: yf thou ſhalte kepe the commaundementes of the Lorde thy God, and walke in his wayes.

And all nacions of the earthe ſhall ſe that the name of the Lorde is called vpon amongſt you, and they ſhall be afeerde of the. And the Lorde ſhall make the plentious in goodes, in the frute of thy bodye, in the frute of thy catell, and in the frute of thy grounde, in the land which the Lorde ſware vnto thy fathers to gyue the.

*. Deute.xi.b *The Lorde ſhall open vnto the his good treaſure, euen the heuen, to gyue rayne vnto thy lande in due ſeaſon, and to bleſſe all the la-

Deutcr.xv.a. bours of thyne hande. And thou ſhalte lende vnto many nacions, but ſhalt not nede to borowe thy ſelfe. And the Lorde ſhall ſet the, b

b beſore and not beynde, and thou ſhalte be aboue onely, and not benethe: yf thou herken vnto the commaundementes of the Lord thy God whyche I commaunde the this daye to kepe and to doo. And ſe thou bowe not frome any of theſe wordes which I commaunde the this daye, eyther to the eyght hande or to the lefte, that thou woldeſt goo after ſtraunge goddes to ſerue them.

But yf thou wylte not herken vnto ȳ voyce of the Lorde thy God to kepe and to doo all his commaundementes and ordinaunces wyche I commaunde the this daye: then *all theſe curſes ſhal come vpon the and ouertake the: Curſed ſhalte thou be in the towne, and curſed in the felde / curſed ſhall thy barne be and thy ſtore. Curſed ſhall the frute of thy bodye and the frute of thy land be, and the frute of thine oxen and the flockes of thy ſheepe. And curſed ſhalte thou be when thou goeſt in, and when thou goeſt out. And the Lorde ſhal ſend vpon the curſynge, deſtruction, and complaynynge in all that thou ſetteſt thyne hande to, what ſo euer thou woeſt, vntyl thou be deſtroyed and brought to nought quickely, becauſe of the wyckednes of thyne owne deuiſes in that thou haſt forſaken the Lorde. And the Lorde ſhall make the peſtilence cleaue vnto the, vntyll he hath conſumed the from the lande whyther thou goeſt to enioye it. *And the Lorde ſhall ſmyte the with conſumynge, with feuers, with heet, burnynge, witherynge, with ſmytynge, and blaſtynge. And they ſhall folowe the tyll thou peryſhe.

*And the heuen that is ouer thy heed ſhal be braſſe, and the erthe that is vnder the yron. And the Lorde ſhall tourne the rayne of the lande vnto poulder and duſte: euen frome heuen aſſhes ſhall come downe vpon the, vntyll thou be brought to nought. And the Lorde ſhall plage the before thyne ennemyes. Thou ſhalte come oute one waye agaynſte them, and flee ſeuen wayes before them, and ſhalt be be ſcattered amonge all the kyngdomes of the erth. And thy carkaſſe ſhall be meate vnto all maner foules of the ayre, and vnto the beaſtes of the erthe, and no man ſhall fraye them awaye.

*And the Lorde ſhall ſmyte the with the botches of Egypte, and the emerodes, ſcalle and maungynelle, that thou ſhalte not be healed therof. And the Lorde ſhal ſmyte the with madnelle, blyndnelle, and daſyng of hert. And thou ſhalt grope at none dayes as the blynde grogeth in darchenelle, and ſhalte not come to the ryghte waye. And thou ſhalte ſuffre wronge onely and be oppreſſed euermore, and no mā ſhall ſucker the, thou ſhalt marye a wife and an other ſhal lye with her. *Thou ſhalte buyld an houſe and an other ſhal dwel therin. Thou ſhalt plant a vineyard, and ſhalt not gather the frute therof. Thyne oxe ſhal be ſlayne before thyne eyes, & thou ſhalte not eate therof. Thyne aſſe ſhal be violently taken awaye euen before thy face, and ſhalt not be reſtored the agayne. Thy ſheepe ſhal be gyuen vnto thyne ennemyes, and no man ſhall helpe the.

Thy

Thy ſonnes and thy doughters ſhal be gyuen vnto an other nacion, and thyne eyes ſhall ſe and daſe vpon them all daye longe, but ſhalte haue no myght in thyne hande. The frute of thy lande and all thy laboures ſhall a nacion which thou knoweſt not, eate / and thou ſhalt ſyll ſuffre violence, and be oppreſſed alwaye: that thou ſhalte be cleane beſyde thy ſelfe for the ſyght of ſuche thynges as thou ſhalt ſe.

The Lorde ſhall ſmyte the with a myſchevous botche in the knees and legges, ſo that thou canſt not be healed: euen frome the ſole of the fote vnto the top of the heed.

iiii.d *The Lorde ſhall bryngе bothe the, and thy kynge whyche thou haſt ſet ouer the vnto a nacion whyche neyther thou nor thy fathers haue knowen / and there thou ſhalte ſerue ſtraunge Goddes: euen wodde and ſtone. And thou ſhalte goo to waſte, and be made a prouerbe, and a teſtynge ſtocke vnto all nacions whyther the Lorde ſhal carye the. Thou ſhalt cary moche ſeed out in to the feld, and ſhalt gather but lytle in, for the grethoppers ſhal deſtroye it. Thou ſhalte plante a vyneparde and dreſſe it, but ſhalte neyther drynke of the wine ne gather of the grapes, for the wormes ſhal eate it. Thou ſhalte haue olyue trees in all thy coaſtes, but ſhalte not be anoynted with the oyle, for thyne olyue trees ſhall be rooted oute. Thou ſhalte gette ſonnes and doughters, but ſhalte not haue theym: for they ſhall be caryed awaye priſoners. All thy trees and frute of thy lande ſhall be marred with blaſtynge.

The ſtraungers that are amonge you ſhall clymme aboue the, and thou ſhalte come downe alowe. He ſhall lende the, and thou ſhalte not lende hym, he ſhall be before, and thou behynde.

Moreouer all theſe curſes ſhall come vpon the, and ſhall folowe the and imbrace the, tyll thou be deſtroyed: becauſe thou herkenedſt not vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe his commaundementes and ordinaunces wyche he commaunded the, and they ſhal be vpon the as meruayles and wonders, and vpon thy ſeed for euer. And becauſe thou ſeruedeſt not the Lorde thy God with ioyfulneſſe, and with a good herte for the abundance of all thinges therfore thou ſhalte ſerue thyne ennemy whyche the Lorde ſhall ſende vpon the: in hunger and thurſte, in nakednelle, and in nede of all thynge. And he ſhall put a yoke of yron vpon thy necke, tyll he haue brought the to nought.

And the Lorde ſhall bryngе a nacion vpon the from farre, euen from the ende of ȳ worlde as ſwyfte as an Egle fleeth: a nacyon whoſe tonge thou ſhalte not vnderſtande: a harde herted nacion which ſhall not regarde the perſon of the olde, nor haue compaſſion on the yonge. And he ſhall eate the frute of thy lande, and the frute of thy cartell vntyll he haue deſtroyed the: ſo that he ſhall leaue the neyther corne, wyne, nor oyle, neyther the encreaſe of thyne oxen, nor the flockes of thy ſheepe, vntyll he haue brought the to nought. And he ſhall kepe the in, in all thy cytes, vntyll thy walles and ſtronge walles be come downe wherin thou truſteſt, throwe all the lande. And he ſhall beſiege the in all thy gates throwe F all thy lande whyche the Lorde thy God hath gyuen the.

iiii.Re.vi.f Thren. iii.b Baruch.ii.a. *And thou ſhalt eate of the frute of thyne owne bodye: the fleſhe of thy ſonnes and of thy doughters whyche the Lorde thy God hathe gyuen the, in that ſtraytnelle and ſiege wherwith thyne ennemye ſhall beſiege the, ſo that it ſhall greue the man that is tender and verye delycate amonge you, to loke on his brother, and vpon his wyfe that lyeth in his boſome, and on the reſte of his children whyche he hath yet left, for feare of gyuynge vnto anye of them of the fleſhe of his children, whyche he eateth becauſe he hathe nought elſe lefte hym in the ſtraytnelle and ſiege wherwith thyne ennemye ſhall beſiege the in all thy cytes.

Moreouer he wyll bryng vpon the all the diſeaſes of Egypte whyche thou waſte afrayde of, and they ſhall cleaue vnto the.

Thereto all maner ſyckenelles and all maner plages, whyche are not wrytten in the boke of this lawe, wyl the Lorde bryng vpon the, tyll thou be brought to nought. And ye ſhall be left fewe in nombre, where before ye were as the *ſterres of heuen in multitude: becauſe thou woldeſt not herken vnto the voyce of ȳ Lorde thy God. *Deute.x.d.

*And as the Lorde reioyſed ouer you to do you good, and to multiplye you: euen ſo he wyll reioyce ouer you, to deſtroye you, and to bryngе you to nought. And ye ſhall be walked oute of the lande whyther thou goeſt to enioye it. And the Lorde ſhall ſkatter the amonge all nacions, from the one ende of the worlde vnto the other, and there thou ſhalte ſerue ſtraunge Goddes, whyche neyther thou nor thy fathers haue knowen: euen wodde and ſtone. *Jere.xxxi.e

CAPI. XXIX.

A Exod.xix.a Numeri.xxi.c

THese are the wordes of the appoyntmẽt whiche the Lorde commaunded Moses to make with the chyldren of Israel in the lande of Moab, besyde the appoyntment which he made with them in Horeb. And Moses called vnto all Israel and sayd vnto them: Ye haue sene all that the Lorde dyd before youre eyes in the land of Egypt, vnto Pharao and vnto all his seruauntes, and vnto all his lande, and the great temtations which thyne eyes haue sene, and those great myracles and wonders: and yet the Lorde hath not gyuen you an heert to perceyue, nor eyes to se, nor eares to heare vnto this daye.

Deuter.xxx.b Jerem.xxxi.b

* And he hath conducted you.xl. yere in the wyldernesse, and youre clothes are not waxed olde vpon you, nor are youre shoes waxed olde vpon youre fete. Ye haue eaten no bred nor dronke wyne or stronge drynke, that ye might knowe how he is the Lorde your God.

*Deu.viii.a

* And at laste ye came vnto this place, and Sehon the kynge of Hesbon, and Og kyng of Basan came forth agaynst you vnto batayle, & we smote them and toke their land, and gaue it an enheritaunce vnto the Rubenytes, and Gadites, & to the halfe tribe of Manasse. Kepe therfore the wordes of this appoyntment, & w them, that ye may vnderstand al that ye ought to do. * Ye stande here this daye euery one of you before the Lorde youre God: bothe the heedes of your trybes, your elders, your officers, and all the men of Israel: your chyldren, your wyues, and the straũger that soiourneth in thyne hoste, from the hewer of thy wod, vn to the drawer of thy water, that thou sholdest come vnder the appoyntment of the Lord thy God, and vnder his othe which the Lorde thy God maketh with the this daye, to make the a people vnto hym selfe, and that he maye be thy God, as he hath sayde vnto the, and as he hath swoorne vnto thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

*Num.xxi.f. and.g.Deuter. xxx.a Deutro.ii.f. Deuter.iiii.a Deuter.iiii.a Josue.ix.d Genes.xviii.a

Neyther I make this bonde, and this othe with you onely: but both with hym that standeth here with vs this daye before the Lorde oure God, and also with him that is not here with vs this daye. For ye know how we haue dwelt in the land of Egypt, and how we came thorow the mydes of the nations whiche we passed by. And ye haue sene their abhominacions and their rodolles; wodde, stone, syluer and golde whiche they worshypped.

Lest there be amonge you man or woman kynred or tribe that turneth away in his heert this daye from the Lorde our God, to go and serue the Goddes of these nations: and lest there be amonge you some roote that beareth gall and wormewod, so that when he heareth the wordes of this curse, he blesse him selfe in his heert, saying. I shal haue peax. I wyl therfore worke after the lust of myne owne heerte, that the dronken may perysshe with the thyrste. And so the Lorde wyl not be merciful vn to hym, but then the wrathe of the Lorde and his gelousye smoke agaynst that man, and all the curses that are wrytten in this boke, lyght vpon hym, and the Lorde do out his name vn der heuen, and separate hym vnto euyll out of all the trybes of Israel, accordyng vnto al the curses of the appoyntment that is wrytten in the boke of this lawe.

So that the generacion to come of youre chyldren that shall ryse vp after you, and the straunger that shall come from ferre saye why they se the plages of that lande, and the diseases wherwith the Lorde hath smytten ye how all the lande is burnt vp with brymstone and salte, and that it is neyther sowne nor beareth nor anye gralle groweth therin, accordynge to the ouerthrowynge of *Sodome, Gomor, Adama, and Zeboim: whiche the Lorde ouerthrewe in his wrath and angre.

And then shal all nations also saye: *wherfore hathe the Lorde doone in this wyse vnto this lande? O how fearse is this great wrath? And men shal saye: bycause they left the testament of the Lorde, God of their fathers whi che he made with them when he brought them oute of the lande of Egypte. And they wente and serued straunge goddes and worshypped them: goddes which they knewe not, & which hadde gyuen them noughte. And therfore the wrathe of the Lorde waxed hoote vpon that land to bynge vpon it all the curses that are written in this boke. And the Lorde cast them out of their lande in angre, wrath, and great furyousnesse, and caste them in to a straunge lande, as it is come to passe this daye. The secretes of the Lorde our God are opened vnto vs and our chyldren for euer, that we do al the wordes of this lawe.

¶ The worde of God is not farre frome them that seke for it, but in their mouthes and hertes.

CAPI. XXX.

When al these wordes are come vpon the, whether it be the blessynge or the curse whiche I haue set before the, yet if thou turne vnto thyne hert among all the nations whyther the Lorde thy God hathe thrust the, and come agayne vnto the Lord thy God and harken vnto his voyce, accordynge to all that I commaunde the this daye: bothe thou, and thy chyldren with all thyne heerte, and all thy soule: Then the Lorde thy God wyll tourne thy captiuitie, and haue compassion vpon the, and go and set the agayne frome all the nations amonges which the Lorde thy God shal haue

haue scatered the. Though thou wast cast vnto the extreme partes of heuen: euen frome thence wyl the Lord thy God gather the, and from thence fet the & bynge the in to the land which thy fathers possessed, and thou shalt enioye it. And he will shew the kyndnesse & multiply the about thy fathers. * And the Lorde thy God will circumcise thyne heert, and ỹ heert of thy seed for to loue the Lord thy God with all thyne heert, & all thy soule, that thou maist lyue. * And the Lorde thy God will put all these curses vpon thyne enemyes and on them that hate and pursue the.

Deut.x.d B C iiii.b.

But thou shalt turne and harken vnto the voyce of the Lorde and do all his commaundementes which I cõmaunde the this daye. And the Lord thy God wyl make the plentious in all the workes of thyne hand, and in the frute of thy body, in the frute of thy catel, and frute of thy lande, and in riches. * For the Lord wil turne agayn and reioyce ouer the, to do ỹ good as he reioyced ouer thy fathers. If thou herke vnto the voyce of the Lorde thy God, to kepe his commaundementes and ordinaunces, wht che are written in the boke of this law, if thou turne vnto the Lorde thy God with al thyne herte, and all thy soule.

* For the commaundement whiche I commaunde the this daye, is not hyd from the, ne farre of. It is not in heuen that thou nedest to saye: who shall go vp for vs to heuen, and fet it vs, that we maye heare it and do it. Neither is it beyonde the see: that thou sholdest saye: who shal go ouer see for vs & fet it vs that we maye heare it and do it. But the worde is veye nye vnto the, euen in thy mouth & in thyne hert that thou do it.

Deut.xxx.d E F

Beholde, I haue set before you this daye lyfe and good, deth and euyll: in that I commaunde the this daye to loue the Lorde thy God, and to walke in his wayes, and to kepe his commaundementes, his ordynaunces and his lawes: that thou mayste lyue and multiplye, and that the Lorde thy God maye bielle the in the lande whyther thou goest to possesse it.

But if thyne hert turne awaye, so that thou wylt not heare: but shalt go aftraye and worshipp straunge goddes, and serue them, I certifie you this daye, that ye shall surely perysshe, and that ye shal not prolong youre dayes vpon the land whyther thou passest ouer Jordan to go and possesse it.

* I call to recorde this daye vnto you heuen and erth, that I haue set before you lyfe and death, blessynge and cursynge: but chose lyfe, that thou and thy seed may lyue, in that thou louest thy Lorde thy God, harkenest vnto his voyce, and cleauest vnto hym. For he is thy lyfe and the lengthe of thy dayes, that thou mayste dwell vpon the earth which the Lorde sware vnto thy fathers: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob to gyue them.

And Moses wrote this songe that same daye, and taughte it the children of Israel. And the Lorde gaue Josua the sonne of Nun a charge,and said:*be bold
*Josue.i.b iii.Regũ.ii.a and stronge,for thou shalt brynge the children of Israel in to the lande which I promised thẽ, and I wyl be with the.

The boke is put i the arck. When Moses hadde written the wordes of this lawe in a boke, vnto the end of them, he commaunded the Leuites which bare the arke of the testament of the Lorde, sayinge:take the boke of this law, and put it by the syde of the arcke of the testament of the Lorde your God and let it be there for a witnesse agaynste the. For I know thy stubburnes,& thy stiffe necke/ beholde whyle I am yet alyue and in companye with you this daye, ye haue ben stately agaynst the Lorde, how moche more after our deth?

Gather vnto me all ye elders of your tribes
G and your officers,that I may speke these wordes in theyr eares, and call heuen and erth to recorde agaynst them.For I am sure that after my deth,ye will do wickedly,& turne from the waye which I commaunded you,and tribulacion shall come vpon you in the latter dayes when ye haue wrought wickednesse in ye sight of the Lord to prouoke him with the workes of your handes.And Moses spake in the eares of all the congregacion of Israel the wordes of this songe vnto the ende of them.

¶The songe of Moses.He goeth vnto the toppe of Abarim to se the land of promyse.

CAPI. XXXII.

A Heare,o heuen,what I speake,and heare (o earth)the wordes of my mouthe.My doctrine drop as doth the rayne,and my speche floweth as dothe the dewe, as the myselynge vpon the herbes, and as the droppes vpon the grasse. For I wyl call on the name of the Lorde: Magnifye the myghte of oure God.

Perfect are Gods dedes, and all his wayes are rightousnes/God is faithful and without wickednes,both rightous an iust is he.

Genesis.i.d Eccles.xliii.

The frowarde and ouerthwarte generacion hathe trespased agaynste him, and are not his sonnes by reason they are disfigured.Dost thou so rewarde the Lorde? O folisshe nacion and vnwyse. Is not he thy father, and thyne owner? hath he not made the and ordeined the? Remembre the dayes that are paste: consider the yeres from tyme to tyme. Aske thy father and he wyll shewe the thy auncestoures,& they shal tel the, when the most highest sequestred the nacions,and deuided the sonnes of Adam, he put the borders of the nacions faste by the company of the chyldren of Israel.

For the Lordes part is his folke,and Jacob is the porcion of his inheritaunce.

He founde him in a deserte land,in a voyde ground and in a wylde wildernes.He led him about and gaue him vnderstanding,and kepte him as the apple of his eye.

As an Egle that stereth vp her nest to flee, and flottereth ouer her yonge, he stretched out his wynges, and toke him vp and bare hym on his shoulders. The Lorde alone was his gyde, and there was no straunge God with him.

He set him vp vpon an hye land,and he ate the encrease of the feldes.And he gaue him honye to sucke out of the rocke,and oyle oute of the harde stone.With butter of kyne, & mylke of the shepe,with fat of the lambes, and fatte rammes of Basan,with gotes & whete floure. And of the bloud of grapes thou dronkest rype wyne.

And Israel waxed fat, and kycked. Thou wast fat,thycke and smothe. And he let God go that made him, and turned his backe from God that saued him. They stirred vp his displeasure thorow their straunge goddes,& with abhominacions prouoked him.

They offered vnto deuyls, and not to God and to Goddes whiche they knewe not, euen to newe Goddes that came newly vp,whiche theyr fathers neuer worshypped.

Of the God that begat the thou arte vnmyndfull,and hast forgot God that made the. And when the Lorde sawe it he was angrye/ bicause of the prouokynge of his sonnes and doughters.

And he said, I will hyde my face from them and wyl se what theyr ende shall be. For they are a frowarde generacion & children in whom is no faythe. They haue angred me with him that was no God, & prouoked me with theyr vanities. *And I agayne wyll angre them with them which are no people, and wyl prouoke them with a folysshe nacion. *For fyre is kyndled in my wrath, and shall burne vnto the botome of hell.And shal consume the erth with her encrease, and set a fyre the botomes of the mountaynes. I wyll heape myscheues vpon them,and wyll spende all myne arowes amonges them.

They shall pyne awaye by fampn, byrdes shall deuour them with a bytter gnawynge.

*I wyl also sende the teth of beestes vpon them,and poyson serpẽtes of ye erth. Without dores the swerde shal destroye them,and within in the chamber,feare: bothe yonge men and yonge women, and the suckelynges,with the men of greye heedes. I haue determined to scatter them thorowe out the worlde, and to abolysshe theyr name from amonge men, but for theyr enemyes cause I haue forborne the, lest theyr aduersaries wolde take vpon them and saye: our hye hande hathe done all these workes,and not the Lorde.

For it is a nacion that hath no forecast, and hath no vnderstandyng in them: I wolde they were wyse,and vnderstode this,and wold consyder their latter ende.

Howe it commeth, that one shall chase a thousande,and two put ten thousand of them to flyghte: but that theyr God hathe soulde them, and bycause the Lord hath gyuen them ouer.

For our rock is not as their rock,no though
E our enemyes be iudge.But theyr vynes are of the vynes of Sodom,and of the feldes of Gomorra.Their grapes are grapes of gal,& their clusters be bytter.

Theyr wyne is the poyson of dragons, and the cruell gal of adders.Are not suche thinges layd in store with me, and sealed vp amonges my treasures? *Vengeaunce is myne, and I wyll acquyte: Theyr feete shall slyde when the tyme commeth. For the tyme of theyr destruction is at hande, and the tyme that shall come vpon them maketh haste.

For the Lorde wyll do iustyce vnto his people,and haue cõpassion on his seruauntes. For it shall be sene that theyr power shall fayle,& their prisoners be lost,and the residue wasted.

And it shal be sayd: where are their goddes
F wherin they trusted?

The fat of whose sacrifices they ate,& dranke the wyne of their wellaples, let them ryse vp and helpe you,and be your shylde.

Se nowe howe I am alone, and that there is no God but I. I can kyll and make alyue, and what I haue smytten, that can I heale: neyther is there that can rescue any man oute of my hande.

For I wyll lyfte vp myne hande to heuen, and wyll saye,I lyue euer.

Yf I whet the edge of my swerde as it were a thonderbolt,& myne hand goth about to do iustice,I wyl shewe vengeaunce on myne enemyes,and wyl recquite them that hate me.

I wyll make myne arowes droncken with bloude,and my swerde shall eate fleshe of the bloud of the slayne,and of the captyue, and of myne ennemyes bare heed.

Prayse (ye hethen) his people,for he wyl auenge the bloude of his seruauntes, and wyll reuenge him of his aduersaries, & wil be mercyfull vnto the lande of his people.

G Moses wente and spake all the wordes of this songe in the eares of the people,bothe he and Josua the sonne of Nun. When Moses had spoken all these wordes vnto the ende to all Israel,he sayd vnto them. Set your hertes vnto all the wordes which I testifie vnto you this day: that ye commaunde them vnto your children to obserue and doo all the wordes of this lawe. For it is not a vayne worde vnto you: but it is your lyfe, & thorowe this worde ye shall prolonge your dayes in the land: whither ye go ouer Jordan to conquere it.

And the Lord spake vnto Moses, the same daye,saying: get the vp in to this mountayne Abarim, vnto mount Nebo, whiche is in the lande of Moab ouer agaynst Jericho: and beholde the lande of Canaan whiche I gyue vnto the chyldren of Israel to possesse.And dye in the mounte whiche thou goest vpon, and be thou put vnto thy people: As Aaron thy brother dyed in mounte Hor, and was put vnto his people.For ye trespased against me among the chyldren of Israel at the waters of stryfe, at Cades in the wildernesse of Zin: bicause ye halowed me not amonge the children of Israel.Thou shalt se the land before the,but thou shalte not goo vnto the lande whiche I gyue the chyldren of Israel.

Moses goeth vp vnto mount nebo.

CAPI. XXXIII.

A This is the blessynge wherwith Moses Gods man blessed the chyldren of Israel before his deathe, sayinge:

Moses blessynge.

The Lorde came from Sinai, and shewed his beames from Seir vnto them, and appeared gloryouslye frome mounte Pharan. And he came with thousandes of sayntes, and in his ryght hande a lawe of fyre for them. How loued he the people?

*Al his sayntes are in his hande. They that ioyne them selues vnto this fote,shall receyue his wordes. Moses gaue vs a lawe whiche is the enheritaũce of the congregacion of Jacob. And he was in Israel kynge,and gathered the heades of the people and the trybes of Israel togyther.

*Sapi.iii.a.

B Ruben shall lyue and shal not dye: but his people shall be fewe in nombre. This is the blessynge of Juda: Heare Lorde the voyce of Juda, and brynge him vnto his people, lette his handes fight for him,but be thou his help agaynst his enemyes.

And vnto Leui he said: thy perfectnes and thy lyght be after thy mercyfull man whome thou temtedst at Masah with whom thou striuedst at the waters of stryfe. He that sayth vnto his father and mother,I saw him not, and vnto his brethren, I knewe not/ and to his sonne,I wote not/ for they haue obserued thy wordes,and kepte thy testament. They shall teache Jacob thy iudgementes,and Israel thy lawes. They shal put incense before thy nose,
C and hole sacrifices vpon thyne aulter. Blesse Lorde theyr power,and accepte the workes of theyr handes/ smyte the backes of them that ryse agaynst them,and of them that hate the: that they ryse not agayne.

That is, this prestes seruice be acceptable afore the lord both in prayer & preachyng as was Moses.

Unto BenJamin he sayde. The Lordes derlynge shall dwell safelye with him/ and kepe him selfe in the chambre by hym contynually, and shall dwell bytwene his shoulders.

And vnto Joseph he sayde: blessed of the Lorde is his lande, with the goodly fruites of heuen, with dewe and with sprynges that

lye benethe: and with frutes of the encrease of the sonne, and with rype frute of the monethes, and with the toppes of mountaynes that were frome the begynnynge, and with the daynteyes of hylles that laste euer, and with goodly frute of the earth, and of the fulnesse therof.

And the good wyll of him that dwelleth in the * bushe, shall come vpon the heed of Ioseph, and vpon the toppe of the heed of hym that was separated frome his brethren, his beaute is as a firstborne ore, and his hornes as the hornes of an vnycorne. And with them he shall pusshe the nations togither, euen vnto the endes of the worlde. Those are the manye thousandes of Ephraim, and the thousandes of Manasses,

* Exodi.iii.a

And vnto Zabulon he sayde: Reioyce Zabulon in thy goynge oute, and thou Issachar in thy tentes. They shall call the people vnto the hyll, and there they shall offre offerynges of ryghteousnes. For they shall sucke of the rychesse of the see, and of treasure hydde in the sande.

And vnto Gad he sayde: Blessed is the ꝓ rowme maker Gad. He dwelleth as a lyon and caughte the arme and also the toppe of the heed. He sawe his dominion that in his part there was a teacher hyd, and came with the heedes of the people, and executed ꝯ righteousnes of the Lorde, and his iudgementes with Israel.

ꝓ Rowme maker because he made rowme for he was a valiant werryer.

And vnto Dan he sayde: Dan is a lyons whelp, he shall flow plentiously from Basan.

And vnto Nephthali he sayd: Nephthali he shall haue abundance of pleasure, and shal be filled with the blessyng of the Lorde, and shal haue his possessions in the southwest.

And of Aser he sayde: Aser shall be blessed with chyldren: he shal be acceptable vnto his brethren, and shal dyp his fote in oyle: Yron and brasse shall hange on thy shoes, and thyne age shall be as thy youth.

There is none lyke vnto the God of Israel he that sytteth vpon heuen, shal be thyne helpe whose glory is in the cloudes, that is the dwellyng place of God from aboue, and vnder the armes of the worlde: he hath caste out thyne ennmyes before the and sayd: destroy. And Israel shall dwell in safetye alone. And the eyes of Jacob shall loke vpon a lande of corne and wyne. Moreouer his heuen shall droppe with dewe. Happy arte thou Israel, who is lyke vnto the? A people that art saued by ꝯ Lorde, thy shylde and helper, and a swerde of thy glorye. And thyne ennemyes shal hyde themselues frome the, and thou shalte walke vpon theyr hyghe hylles.

¶ Moses dyeth. Israel wepeth. Iosua succedeth in Moses rowme.

CAPI. XXXIIII.

AND Moses wente frome the feldes of Moab vp, in to mounte Nebo, whiche is the toppe of Phasgah, ouer agaynste Jericho. And the Lorde shewed him al the land of Galaad, euen vnto Dan, and al Nephthali and the lande of Ephraim and Manasse, and all the land of Juda: euen vnto the vttermost see, and the south, and the region of the playne of Jericho the citye of palme trees, euen vnto Zoar. And the Lord sayd vnto him. * This is the land which I sware vnto Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, sayinge: I wyll gyue it vnto thy seed. I haue shewed it the, before thyne eyes: but thou shalt not go ouer thyther.

So Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde dyed there in the lande of Moab, at the commaundement of the Lorde. And he buryed hym in a valey in ꝯ lande of Moab beside Bethphegor: but no man wyste of his sepulchre vnto this daye. And Moses was an hundred and twentye yere olde when he dyed, and yet his eyes were not dymme, nor his chekes abated. And the chyldren of Israel wepte for Moses in the feldes of Moab thirtye dayes. And the dayes of weppynge and mournynge for Moses were ended.

And Josua the sonne of Nun was ful of the spirite of wysdome: * for Moses had put his hand vpon him. And all the chyldren of Israel herkened vnto him, and dyd as the Lorde commaunded Moses. But there arose not a Prophete sith that tyme in Israel lyke vnto Moses: whom the Lorde knew face to face in all the myracles and wonders whiche the Lorde sent him to do in the lande of Egypt vnto Pharao and all his seruauntes, and vnto all his lande: and in al the myghtye dedes, and greate wonderfull thynges which Moses did in the syght of all Israel.

¶ The Lorde courageth Josue to inuade the lande or promysse, and commaundeth him contynually to reade deuteronomye.

CAPI. I.

AFter the deth of Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde: the Lorde spake vnto Josua the sonne of Nun, Moses seruaunt, saying: Moses my seruaunt is deed. Nowe therfore aryse & go ouer Jordan, bothe thou and all this people vnto the lande whiche I gyue vn to the chyldren of Israel. * All the places that the soles of your fete shall treade on, haue I gyuen you, as I said vnto Moses: from the wyldernesse & Libanon, vnto the great ryuer Euphrates: and all the land of the Hethites euen vnto the greate see towarde the goynge downe of the sonne, shall be youre boundes. There shall not a man be hable to withstande the, all the dayes of thy lyfe. * For as I was with Moses, so wyll I be with the * and wyl neyther leaue the, nor forsake the * Be strong and bold: for vnto this people shalt thou dispose the land by lot, which I sware vnto their fathers to gyue them.

Be stronge, and harden thy selfe to obserue and to do, accordynge to all the lawes which Moses my seruaunte commaunded the. * Tourne from them neyther to the ryght hand nor left: that thou mayst haue vnderstanding in all thou takest in hande, * let not the boke of this lawe departe out of thy mouthe: But studye therin daye and nyght, that thou mayst performe and kepe al that is wrytten therin. For then shalte thou make thy waye prosperous, and then thou shalte haue vnderstandyng. Beholde, I haue sayd vnto the, be strong and bolde: neyther feare nor dreade. For the Lorde thy God is with the, whyther so euer thou goest.

Then Josua commaunded the officers of the people, sayinge. Go thorowe the myddes of the hoste, and commaunde the people, saying: prepare you vitayles: for after thre dayes ye shall passe ouer this Jordan, to go and enioye the lande, which the Lorde your God gyueth you to possesse it.

And vnto the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the tribe of Manasses spake Josua, sayinge: Remembre that, whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded you sayinge. the Lorde your God hath gyuen you rest, and all this lande. Let your wyues, your chyldren and your catell remayne in the lande whiche Moses gaue you on this syde Jordan: But go ye before your brethren armed, all that be men of warre, and fyghte for them, tyll the Lorde haue gyuen your brethren rest, as he hathe you, and tyll they also haue obteyned the lande which the Lorde your God gyueth them. And then returne vnto the lande of youre possession and enioye it, whiche Moses the Lordes seruaunte gaue you on this syde Jordan, towarde the sonne rysynge. And they answered Josua, sayinge: * All that thou byddest vs we wyll doo, and whyther so euer thou sendest vs, we wyll go. Accordyng as we obeyed Moses in all thynges, so we wyll obeye the. Onely the Lorde thy God be with the, as he was with Moses. And who so euer disobeye thy mouthe, and wyll not herken vnto thy wordes in all thou commaundest hym, lette him dye. Onely be stronge and of good courage.

Obedyence owyne to Iesus.

¶ Josua sendeth searchers or spyes to Jericho, whi che were lyfte of Rahab and is eskaped the handes of the pursuars. Rahab beseeth and confesseth the God of Israel.

CAPI. II.

THen Josua the sonne of Nun sent oute of Setim two spyes secretly, saying: Go and vewe the lande, and also Jericho. And they went and came in to a vitelyng house of a woman named Rahab, and lodged there. And it was tolde the kynge of Jericho, saying: Beholde there came men in hyther to nyght of the chyldren of Israel, to espye out the countrey. And the kynge of Jericho sente vnto Rahab, saying: bryng forth the mē that are come to the, which are entred in to thyne house: they be spyes, for they be come to serche out all the lande.

And the woman toke the two men and hyd them. And sayd, in dede there came men vnto me, but I wote not frome whence they were. And aboute the tyme of the shuttynge of the gate when it was darcke they went out, whyther I wote not: but folowe after them quickly and ye shal ouertake them. And she brought them vp vnto the rofe of the house, and * hyd them vnder flare (yet in the stalkes) which she had spunge abrode vpon the rofe. And the men pursued after them the waye to Jordan euen vnto the ꝯ passage, and as sone as they whiche pursued after them were gone forthe, they shut the gates.

* Josue.vi.b

ꝯ Or ferye.

And or euer they were a slepe, she came vp vnto them vpon the rofe, and sayde vnto the men. I knowe that the Lorde hath giuen you the lande, bothe because that the feare of you is fallen vpon vs, and because that the inhabitantes of the lande faynt at your hyther resort: for we haue herd how the Lorde * dryed vp the water of the red see before you, when you came out of Egypt, and what you dyd vn to the two kynges of the Amorytes on the other syde Jordan * Sehon, and Og whiche ye vtterly destroyed. And as sone as we had herd these thynges, our hertes dyd faynt. And there remayned no more courage in anye man for feare of youre commynge. For the Lorde youre God is the God in heuen aboue, and on the erthe benethe.

And the men answered her, oure lyues for you to dye, so thou do not betraye vs. And so when the Lorde hath gyuen vs the lande, * we wyll deale mercyfully and truly with the. Iosue.vi.c And then she let theym downe with a coorde thorowe a wyndowe. For her house was annexed to the townes walle. And she sayde vnto them: get you in to the mountaynes, leest the pursuers mete with you, and hyde your selues there thre dayes, vntyll the pursuers be returned, and then maye ye go your wayes.

And the men sayde vnto her, we wyl be discharged of this othe, whiche thou hast made vs sweare, when we come in to the lande, excepte thou bynde this purple threden corde in the wyndowe, whiche thou lettest vs downe by. And thou shalte bynge thy father, thy mother, thy brethren, and all thy fathers household, euen in to the house to the. And then who so euer go out at the dores of thy house in to the streate, his bloude shall be vpon his owne heed, and we gyltelesse. And who so euer shall be with the in the house, his bloude D be on oure heedes yf anye mannes hande be vpon hym: But yf thou disclose vs or bryng these oure wordes, we wyll be quyte of thy othe whiche thou hast made vs sweare. And she sayde, accordynge vnto youre wordes, so be it: and so sente them awaye, and they departed. And she bounde the purple corde in the wyndowe.

And they departed and got them in to the mountaynes, and there abode thre dayes, tyll the pursuers were retourned. And the pursuers soughte thorowe oute all the waye, and founde them not. And the two men returned and descended from the mountaynes, and passed ouer, and came to Iosua the sonne of Nun, and tolde hym all that hadde chaunsed them. And they sayde vnto Iosua, the Lorde hath delyuered in to oure handes all the lande, for al the inhabitaunes of the countrey thinke for feare of vs.

¶ The water of Iordan dryeth vp, and Iosua with the people passe ouer.

CAPI. III.

A And Iosua rose early: and they remoued from Sethim, and came to Iordan, both he and the chyldren of Israel, and sourned there thre dayes before they wet ouer. And after the dayes the heroldes went thorowe out the hoste, and commaunded the people, sayinge: when ye se the arcke of the testament of the Lorde your God, and the preestes that are Leuytes bearynge it: then departe ye from your places and folowe after it. So yet that there be a space betwene you and it, aboute a two thousande cubytes by measure. And come not nye vnto it, that ye may knowe B the waye by whiche ye muste goo: for ye haue not gone by it in tymes past. And Iosua sayde vnto the people, * purifye youre selues, for to morowe the Lorde shall shewe wonders amonges you.

Then Iosua spake vnto the preestes, sayinge. Take vp the arcke of the couenaunt, and goo before the people. And they toke vp the arcke, and went before the people. xcvii.a

And the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua: this daye wyll I begyn to auaunce the in the syghte of all Israel, that they maye knowe that as I was with Moses, so wyll I be with the. And commaunde thou the preestes that beare the arcke of the testament, sayinge: when ye are entred a litle in to the water of Iordan, stande styll in it.

Then spake Iosua to the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: come hyther, and heare the wordes of the Lord your God. And Iosua sayd: Herebye ye shall knowe that the lyuynge God is amonges you, and that he wyll vndoubtedly caste oute before you the Chananytes, the Hethites, the Hyuites, the Pherezites, the Gergesites, the Amorites, and the Iebusytes. Beholde, the arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde of all the worlde shal go before you in to Iordan. And nowe take you twelue men of the chyldren of Israel, of euery tribe a man. And as soone as the soles of the fete of the preestes that beare the arcke of the omnipotent Lorde of all the worlde, treade in the water of Iordan, the water of Iordan shall deuyde it selfe: and the waters that come frome aboue, shall stande vpll vpon an heape.

And when the people were departed frome theyr tentes to go ouer Iordan (* the preestes bearyng the arcke of the couenaunt before the people) as soone as they that bare the arcke came vnto Iordan, and the fete of the preestes that bare the arcke were dypped in the brym of the water, * Iordan beynge full ouer al his bankes, al the tyme of haruest: the water that came downe frome aboue dyd stoppe, and stode vpon an heape, a greate waye from Adam, a citye beside Zarthan. And the water that went downe, vanyshed in to the see of the wyldernesse, called the salte see, as soone as it was diuided: and the people * went right ouer agaynste Iericho. And the preestes that bare the arcke of the appoyntmēt of the Lorde stode styll vpon drye lande in the myddes of Iordan, tyll all the people were cleane ouer Iordan.

¶ Twelue stones are reared vp for a remembraunce that Iordane was dryed, and it retourneth agayne to his course.

CAPI. IIII.

And as sone as the people were al gone ouer Iordan, the Lord spake vnto Iosua sayinge. Take twelue men oute of the people, of euery tribe a man, and commaunde them, sayinge: Take you hence oute of the myddes of Iordan, euen oute of the place where the preestes stode, twelue harde stones. And

And take ye theym awaye with you and put them in the place where you pytche your tentes this nyght. And Iosua called vnto the.xij. men which he had prepared of the chyldren of Israel, of euery tribe a man, and sayde vnto them: * get you before the arcke of the Lord your God euen into the myddes of Iordan, & take vp euery man a stone vpon his shoulder, accordinge to the nombre of the tribes of the chyldren of Israel, that this maye be a signe amonges you. And when your children aske you in tyme to come, sayenge: What meane these stones: saye vnto them, that the water of Iordan shronke backe at the commynge of the arcke of the appoyntement of the Lorde: B euen whyle it went ouer Iordan. And these stones shalbe a token of remembraunce vnto the children of Israel for euer.

And the children of Israel dyd as Iosua cōmaunded, and toke vp twelue stones forth of the myddes of Iordan, as the Lorde sayd vn to Iosua, accordynge to the nombre of the tribes of the children of Israel, and caryed the awaye with them, vnto the place where they lodged, & layde them downe there. And therto Iosua set vp twelue stones in the myddes of Iordan in the place where the fete of the preestes whiche bare the arcke of the testament, stoode.

And there they be vnto this daye. For the preastes which bare the arcke stoode in ỳ myddes of Iordan, tyll all was accomplyshed ỳ the Lorde commaunded Iosua to saye vnto the people, accordyng to all that Moses charged Iosua. And the people hasted and went C ouer. When all the people were cleane ouer, then wente ouer the arcke of the Lorde, and also the preestes before the people. And the chyldren of Ruben, and the chyldren of Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses went before the chyldren of Israel armed, as Moses charged theym. Fourtye thousande trymmed for warre, wente before the Lorde vnto bataple vnto the playnes of Iericho. That daye the Lord magnified Iosua in ỳ sight of al Israel and they feared him as they feared Moses al dayes of his lyfe.

And the Lorde spake vnto Iosua, sayinge: commaunde the preestes that beare the arcke to come forth of Iordan. And Iosua commaūded the preestes, sayinge, Come forthe of Iordan. And when the preestes that bare the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde were ascended out of Iordan: as soone as the soles of the preestes fete were brought to drye lande, the water of Iordan returned agayne vnto his place, and went ouer all his bankes as he dyd before. And the people came vp out of Iordan the tenthe daye of the first moneth, and pitched in Galgal, euen in the easte borders of Iericho.

And the twelue stones, whiche they toke out of Iordan, Iosua pitched in Galgal. And he spake vnto the chyldren of Israel, sayinge: when your chyldren aske you in tyme to come what meane these stones? shewe your children and saye: Israel came ouer this Iordan on drye lande. For the Lord your God dryed vp the water of Iordan before you, tyll ye were ouer, as the Lorde youre God dyd vnto the red see, whiche he dryed vp before vs, tyll we were ouer / that all the people of the worlde may know the hand of the Lorde how mighty it is, and that ye myghte feare the Lorde your God for euer.

The Canaanytes be aferde. The seconde circumcision of Iosua.

CAPI. V.

A And when all the kynges of the Amorytes whiche are on this syde Iordan to the seewarde, and all the kynges of the Canaanytes, whiche lye on the see, herde how the Lorde hadde dryed vp the water of Iordan before the chyldren of Israel, Iosua.xx.a tyll they were ouer, theyr hertes faynted in them. And there was no spirite in them any more for feare of the commynge of the children of Israel.

That same tyme the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua: Make the knyues ỳ of stone, and go to Circumcision B agayne, and circumcise the chyldren of Israel the seconde tyme. And Iosua made hym knyues of stone, and circumcised the chyldren of Israel in the hyll of foresckynnes. And this is the cause why Iosua agayne circumcised. All the people that came out of Egypt that were males, all that were men of warre, dyed in ỳ wyldernesse, by the waye after they came out of Egypt. Now all the people that came out were circumcised. But all the people ỳ were borne in the wyldernesse by the waye after they came out of Egypt, they circumcised not. For the chyldren of Israel walked forty yeres in the wildernesse, tyll all the people of men of warre that came out of Egypte were consumed, which harkened not vnto the voyce of God, to that the Lorde sware, that he wolde not shewe them the lande, whiche he sware vnto theyr fathers that he wolde gyue vs, euē a lande * that floweth mylke and honny. And when all the people were circumcised, C they abode styll in theyr places in the hoste, tyll they were hole. And the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua, this daye I haue taken awaye ỳ shame of Egypte frome you: and called the name of the same place Galgal vnto this day. And the chyldren of Israel pitched theyr tentes in Galgal, and helde the feast of Passeouer the fourtene daye of the moneth at euen in the playne of Iericho. And Josua fell on his face to the erthe and dyd reuerence, and sayde vnto hym, what sayth my Lorde vnto his seruaunt. And the capitayne of the Lordes hoste sayd vnto Josua, * put thy shoes of thy fete, for the place wherein thou standest is holye. And Josua dyd so.

¶ The walles of Jericho fall, and it is taken.

CAPI. VI.

AND Jericho was shut & kept for feare of the children of Israel, so þ no man was so hardy to go out or in. And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua: beholde, I haue gyuen in to thyne hande, Jericho and her kynge and the men of warre. And ye shall compasse the cite all that ye men of warre, and go round about it ones a daye, and so shall you doo sex dayes. Upon the seuenth day seuen preestes shal beare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes, & shall go before the arcke. And the seuenth daye, ye shall compasse the cite seuen tymes, and the preestes shall blowe with theyr trompettes. And when there is a longe blaste blowen, as sone as ye heare the sounde of the horne, let all the people showte a myghtye showte. And then shall the walles of the cite fall downe, and the people shal ascend, euery man streyght before hym.

þ After the hebrue the cõmon translacion of the yere of mabely

And Josua the sonne of Nun, called the preestes and sayd vnto hym: take vp the arcke of the appoyntment, & let seuen preestes beare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde. And he sayd vnto the people, go and compasse the cite, and let the men of armes go before the arcke of the Lord. And when Josua had spoken vnto the people the seuen preestes that bare the seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde went forthe and blewe the hornes, and the arcke of the testament of the Lorde folowed after them. And the men of armes went before the preestes that blewe with the hornes, and the common people came after the arke: and as they went, they blewe the hornes. And Josua commaunded the people, sayinge, showte not, nor let youre voyce be herde, or anye worde procede oute of youre mouthes, tyll the daye I byd you showte: and then showte.

And so the arcke of the Lorde compased the cite, and went aboute it ones: and then they returned in to the hoste and lodged there. And Josua arose early in the mornynge, and the preestes toke vp the arcke of the Lorde, and seuen preestes bare seuen trompettes of rammes hornes before the arcke of the Lorde, and as they went blewe the hornes. And the men of armes went before them and the common people came after the arcke of the Lorde, and as they went, they blewe the hornes. And the seconde daye they compassed the cite ones, and returned agayne in to the host, and so they dyd sixe dayes.

And the seuenth daye they rose early: euen with the dawnynge of the daye, and compased the cite after the same maner seuen tymes.

And at the seuenth tyme the preestes blewe the hornes, and Josua sayde vnto the people, showte, for the Lorde hath gyuen you the cite. But the cite shall be cursed, bothe it and all that is therin vnto the Lorde: onely Rahab the harlot shall lyue, bothe she and all that is with her in the house, bycause she * hyd the messengers that we sent. And in any wyse beware that ye touche nothynge at all, that is forbyd you, lest ye be founde transgressours, and cause all the hoste of Israel to be vnder curse and myshortune. But the syluer, golde, vessels of brasse and yron, shall be holye vnto the Lorde, and shall go in to his treasury.

And the people cryed, and blewe with hornes: for when the people herde the sounde of the hornes, they showted a great showte: and the * walles fell downe, and the people went vp in to the cite, euery man forth ryght, and toke the cite. And they vtterly destroyed all that was in the cite, bothe man and woman, yonge and olde, oxe, shepe and asse, with ƀ edge of the swerde.

Then Josua sayde vnto the two men that went to espye out the countrey: * go in to the harlottes house, and bringe out thence, bothe the woman, and all that pertayneth to her, * as ye sware to her. And the yonge men that were espyes, wente in and broughte oute Rahab, and her father, and mother, and all her brethren, & all that she had. And they brought out all her housholde, and put them without the house of Israel.

And they burnt the cite with fire, and all that was therin. Onely the syluer, the golde, and the thynges of brasse and yron, they put vnto the treasure of the house of the Lorde. * And Josua sauyd Rahab the harlot, her fathers housholde, and all that pertayned vnto her, and she dwelt in Israel tyll vnto this day, bycause she hyd the messengers whiche Josua sent to espye out Jericho.

And Josua cursed at that tyme, sayinge: Cursed be the man before the Lorde, that ryseth vp, and buyldeth this cite Jericho: so that he laye the foundacion with the dethe of his eldest sonne, and with the deth of his yongest, set vp the gates. And the Lord was with Josua, and his fame was herde, thorowe outs all landes.

¶ Achi is spyed out. Achan is stoned because he toke of the excommunicate thynges.

CAPI. VII.

BVt yet the children of Israel trespased in the cursed thynges: For * Achan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareh, of the tribe of Juda, toke of the cursed thynges. And the wrathe of the Lorde waxed hoote agaynste the children of Israel.

Then

Then Josua sent men frome Jericho to Ai, whyche is beside Bethauen, on the east syde of Bethel, and spake vnto them, sayinge / get you vp, and vewe the countrey. And the men went vp and spyed out Ai, and returned vnto Josua, and sayde vnto hym, let not the people goo vp, but let as it were two or three thousande men goo vp and destroye Ai, and make not all the people to laboure thyther, for they are but fewe.

and so there wente vp thyther aboute a thre thousande men, whyche fledde before the men of Ai. And the men of Ai smote of them vpon a thirty and sixe men, and chased them before the gates, euen vnto Sabarim, and smote them downe the waye. And the herte of the people, were discouraged and melted lyke water. And Josua rente his clothes and fell to the earthe vpon his face before the arcke of the Lorde tyll the euen tyde, bothe he and the elders of Israel, and put erth vpon theyr heades.

And Josua sayde: Ah, Lorde almyghtye wherfore hast thou brought this people ouer Jordan, to delyuer vs in to the handes of the Amorytes to destroye vs: Wolde God that as we began, so we hadde aduentured and dwelte on the other syde Jordan. Oh Lorde what shall I saye, when Israel turneth their backes before theyr ennemyes. Moreouer the Canaanytes, and all the inhabitantes of the lande, shall heare it / and shall come aboute vs, and destroye the name of vs oute of the worlde. And then what wylte thou doo vnto thy myghtye name.

And the Lorde sayd vnto Josua, get the vp wherfore lyest thou thus vpon thy face? Israel hathe synned, and also transgressed myne appoyntment whiche I commaunded them, and haue taken of the cursed thinges, & haue stolen and hyd them amonges theyr owne stuffe. And therfore the children of Israel can not stande before theyr ennemyes. They shall tourne theyr backes before theyr ennemyes, bycause they be cursed. Neyther wyll I be with you anye more, excepte ye destroye the cursed amonges you.

Aryse and ƀ sanctifye the people, and bydde them sanctifye them selues agaynste the morowe: for so sayth the Lorde God of Israel, the curse is amonges you Israel, and therfore ye can not stand before your ennemyes, tyll ye haue put to deathe hym that hathe taken of the damned spoyles, amonges you. To morowe morynge ye shall come by your tribes. And the tribe whiche the Lorde shall fynde giltye, shall come by kynredes. And the kynrede whiche the Lorde shall fynde giltye, shal come by houseolds. And the houseolde which the Lorde shall fynde fautye, shall come man by man. And he that is found in the curse, shal be burnte with fire, bothe he and all his goodes, bycause he hath transgressed the couenant of the Lorde, and bycause he hathe wrought folye in Israel.

And so Josua rose vp early in the mornynge and broughte Israel by theyr tribes: and the tribe of Juda was attached. Then he brought the kynredes of Juda, and founde the kynred of the Zarehites gyltie. And he brought the kynred of the Zarehites by householders, and Zabdi was caught. And he brought his housholde mã by man, and Achan the sonne of Carmi, the sonne of Zabdi, the sonne of Zareh, in the tribe of Juda was founde gylty.

And Josua sayd vnto Achan: my sonne, grue glory to the Lorde God of Israell, and grue him prayse, and shew me what thou hast wone and hyde it not from me. And Achan answered Josua and sayde: of a truthe I haue synned against the Lorde God of Israell / and so and so haue I wone. I sawe amonge the spoyle a goodly skarlet cloke, and two hundred sicles of syluer, and a rule of golde of fyfty sycles weyght: and I coueted them, & I toke them. And behold they lye hydde in the earth in my tente, and the syluer vnder them.

And then Josua sent messengers which ran vnto the tent. And beholde, it was hyd in his tent, and the syluer vnder it. And they toke them out of the myddest of his tẽt, & brought them vnto Josua and vnto all the children of Israell, and powred them, oute before the Lorde.

And Josua toke Achan the sonne of Zareh, & the syluer, and the garment, and the rule of golde, and his sonnes and his doughters, his oxen, asses, shepe, his tente, and all that he hadde, and all Israell with hym, and brought them vnto the valeye of Acor.

And Josua sayde: forasmoche as thou hast troubled vs: the Lorde shall trouble the this daye. And all Israell stoned him with stones, and burnt all that he had with fyre. And they cast vpon hym a great heape of stones that remayneth vnto this day. And so the Lorde turned frome his fearce wrathe. Wherfore the name of the place is called the valeye of Acor vnto this daye.

Achã is stoned

¶ The seege and wynnyng of Ai. The kynge therof is hanged. Josua setteth vp an aultee on which is written the boke of Deuteronomye. He blesseth the people.

CAPI. VIII.

AND the Lorde sayde vnto Josua: feare not, ne drede? but take all the men of warre with the, and aryse and get the to Ai. Beholde I haue gruen into thy hande, the kynge of Ai, and his people, his cytie and his lande. And thou shalt do to Ai & her kyng as thou diddest vnto * Jericho and her kyng. Neuertheles the spoyle and catell therof, ye shall take vnto your selues. But laye a watch vnto the towne on the backsyde therof.

* Josua.vi.b and.xii.c

Then Josua arose, & all the men of warre, to go vp vnto Ai. And Josua chose out thyrty thousand men of warre, & sent them by night. And commaunded them, sayenge: Se ye lye awayte vnto the towne on the backsyde therof. Go not verye farre frome the cytie, and se ye be all redye. As for me and all the people that are with me, we wyll approche vnto the cytie on the other syde. And when they come forth

*Iosue.viii.a for the agaynst vs, *as at the first tyme, then b wyll we lie before them. And they wyll come out after vs, tyll we haue plucked the a good space frome the cite, for they wyll saye they flee before vs, as at the fyrste tyme: therefore when we flee, and they pursue after, then shall ye ryse vp from your prayer watche, and slaye out the inhabitauntes of the cite. For the Lorde your God wyl delyuer in to youre handes. As sone therefore as ye haue taken the cite, se ye set it on fyre. According to the commaundement of the Lorde, se ye do/beholde,
I haue charged you.

And Iosua sent them forthe, and they went to the place of their prayer watche, and laye betwene Bethel and Ai, on the weste syde of Ai. But Iosua lodged that nyghte amonges
the people, and he rose vp early in the morning and arayed his companye and went vp, both he and the auncientes of Israel in the forefrõt
of the hoste, with a garrison of fyghtyng mẽ.
And al the men of warre that were with him
wente vp and drue nye, and came before the cite, and pitched on the northe syde of Ai, a c valleye betwene them and Ai. And he toke vpon a fyue thousande men, and put thẽ to lye in awaite betwene Bethel and Ai, on the west syde of the cite. And he set in order all the hoste on the northy syde of the cite, and the rereward watche on the weste. And Iosua went the same nyght in to the myddes of the valleye.

And when the kynge of Ai sawe that he hasted and rose vp early, and with all the hoste of the cite, wente forwarde agaynste
Israel to battayle, euen before the playne/
and wyste not that there were anye that laye
in awayte on the backe syde of the city.

Iosua and Israel drouke backewarde, as they had ben afrayde, and fledde towarde the wyldernesse. And all the people of the towne cryed to folowe after them/ and they folowed after Iosua, tyll they were drawen away
d from the cytye: So that there was not a man left in Ai, or in Bethel, that went not out after Israel. And they lefte the citye open, and folowed after Israel.

Then the Lorde sayd vnto Iosua reache
out the speare that is in thyn hande towarde Ai, for I haue geuẽ the it. And Iosua stretched out the speare that was in his hand, toward the cite. And the rereward watche rose quickelye out of theyr places, and ranne / as soone as Iosua had shaken his speare, and they entred
in to the citye, and toke it, and set it on fyre.
And when the men of Ai loked back after thẽ
and sawe: Beholde, the smoke of the citye ascended vp to heuen. And they had no place to flee eyther this waye or that, for the people that fleade to the wyldernesse turned backe
vpon the folowers and fiersly fought.

And when Iosua and all Israel sawe that e they that lay awayte had taken the citie and that the smoke of it ascended: They tourned and layed on the men of Ai, And the other issued out of the citye agaynst theym. And so were they in the myddes of Israel, these be-yuge on the one syde of them, and the reste on the other. And they layde vpon them, so that they let none eyther remayne or escape.

The kyng of Ai they toke a lyue & brought him to Iosua. And when Israell hadde made an ende of slayenge all the inhabitours of Ai
who chased theym ouer the feldes and in wil-dernes. So when they were all slayne in the same place, Israel returned vnto Ai: & smote
it. And there was slayne that daye, of men &
wemen, twelue thousande, all men of Ai.

For Iosua plucked not his hande backe a-gayne wherwith he held vp his speare, tyll
they had vtterly destroyed all the inhabiters
of Ai. * Onely the catell & spoyle of the sayd cytie, Israel toke vnto them selues, according to the worde of the Lorde, which he cõmaun ded Iosua. And Iosua set Ai on fyre, & made it an heape and a wyldernesse for euer, euen vnto this daye. And the kynge of Ai he hanged on a tree, vntyll euen. And assone as it was sonneset, at the commaundement of Iosua they toke the carkas downe of the tree, &
cast it in the enterynge of the gate of the cite,
and *cast theron a great heape of stones, that remayneth vnto this daye.

Then Iosua buylded an aultare vnto the Lord God of Israel, in mount Ebal, as Mo ses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded
children of Israel, as it is written in the boke
* of the law of Moses: an altare of rought
stone, ouer which no toole of yron was lyfte.
And they sacrificed thereon burntsacrifice, and offred peaxofferinges. And he wrote thereupon the stones the * seconde lawe of Moses, whiche he wrote in the presence of the childzen of Israell.

And all Israell and the elders therof, and their officers and Iudges stode parte on this syde the arcke, and parte on that syde, before the preestes: that were Leuytes whiche bare the arcke of the Testament of the Lorde: as well the straunger, as they that were borne amonge them: halfe on the forefronte of the mount of Garizim, and halfe on the forefront of mount Ebal: as Moses the seruaunt of Lorde commaunded, and Iosua first blessed the people Israell. And after that, he red all the wordes of the lawe, both the blessinge & cursinge, according to all that is written in the boke of the lawe: so that there was not one worde of all that Moses commaunded,
whyche Iosua red not, before all the congregacion of Israell, with wemen and children,
and the straungers that were amonge them.

¶ The Gabaonites obtayne peax of Iosua by subtelye, but are after accursed.

CAPI. IX.

AND when all the kynges that dwell on this syde Iordan, in the hylles and ba leyes, and a longe by al the costes of great see, euen vnto Libanon, the Hethites,
the Amorites, the Cananites, the Pherezites
the Heuites, and the Iebusytes, herde of this they gathered them selues together to fight against Iosua and Israell, with one accorde.

But

But when the inhabitoures of Gabaon herd what Iosua had wone vnto Jericho, and Ai, they played wylylye, and went and sente ambasadours, and toke old sackes vpon their asses, and wyne bottelles olde and rent and knyt together agayne, and olde clouted shoes
b vpon their fete, and olde rayment vpon them
and all their prouysion of vyzed was dryed vp and hozed. And they came vnto Iosua into hoste, to Galgall and sayde vnto him & vnto
the men of Israell: we be come frome a farre countreye, nowe therfore make a peax with vs. And the men of Israell sayde vnto the He uites, peraduenture you dwell amonge vs,
and then howe shoulde we make peaxe with you.

And they sayde vnto Iosua, we are thy sernauntes. And Iosua sayde vnto them, what are ye: and whence come ye. And they answered him. Frome a very farre countreye thy seruauntes are come in the name of the Lorde
thy God: for we haue herde the fame of him, and all that he dyd in Egypte, and al that he dyd to the two * kynges of the Amorites beyonde Iordan, Sehon kynge of Hesbon, and Og kynge of Basan, which dwelt at Astaroth.
Wherfore our elders and all the inhabitours
of our countrey spake to vs, sayenge: take vi
tayles with you to serue by the waye, and go against them, & saye vnto them, we are youre seruauntes. Now therfore make a couenaunt of peax with vs. This our prouision of vyzead
we toke with vs out of our houses, hote, the day we departed to come vnto you. And now beholde, it is dryed vp and hozed. And these bottelles of wyne which we fylled were new:
and se they be broken. And these our garmentes and shoes are waxen olde by reason of the exceadynge longe Iourneye.

c * And the men toke of their vitayles, and counseled not with the mouth of the Lorde.
And Iosua made peax with them, and *made a leage with them, to saue their lyues: & the chefe lordes of the aempe sware vnto them.
But thzee dayes after they hadde made peax
with them, they herde that they were neyghboures vnto theym, and that they dwelte amonges them. For the childzen of Israel toke their iourneye, and came vnto their cyties the thirde daye: and their cyties were Gabaon, Caphira, Beeroth, and Kariath Iarim. And the childzen of Israel slewe them not, because the Lordes of the companye had swozne vnto theym by the Lorde God of Israell. And therfore all the commons murmured against the Lordes. But the Lordes sayde vnto all congregation: We haue swozne vnto theym
d by the Lorde God of Israell, and therfore
we maye not hurte theym. But this we wyll vnto them let them lyue: & so shall no wzath be vpon vs, because of the othe whiche we sware vnto them: but let them haue their ly-ues, that they maye be * hewers of woode
and drawers of water vnto all the congrega-cion.

The Iosua sent for them, and talked with them, and sayde: wherfore haue ye beguyled
vs wheras in dede ye dwel amonges vs? now therfore cursed be you, & there shall not cease to be of you, bondmen and hewers of woode
and drawers of water vnto the howse of my God.

And they answered Iosua, and sayde: it was told thy seruauntes, that the Lorde thy God had commaunded his seruaunt Moses to gyue you all the lande, and to destroye all
the inhabitoures therof out of youre syghte,
and therfore we were sore afrayed of our ly-ues because of you, and now beholde, we are in thyne hande, as it semeth good, and right
in thyne eyes to do vnto vs, so do.

And he dealte as it is sayde, with them, &
eydde them out of the handes of the childze of Israel, that they slewe them not. And Iosua made them that same daye hewers of woode
and drawers of water vnto the company and vnto the aulter of God vnto this day, in the place which God shulde chose.

¶ The amozites are ouercome of Iosua it rayneth stones. The sonne standeth styll and the daye to leng thened. The fyue kynges are hanged.

CAPI. X.

A
AND when Adonizedec kynge of Jerusalem had herde, howe Iosua had taken Ai, and had destroyed it, and howe as *Iosue.vi.c. * he had done to Jericho and her kynge, euen and.viii.a so he had done to Ai and her kynge, and howe
the inhabitours of Gabaon hadde made peax
with Israell and dyd remayne amonges thẽ:
they feared exceadigly, for Gabaõ was a great
cytie, as any cytie of the kyngdome, and ther-
to greater then Ai, & al her men were mighty.

Wherfore Adonizedec kynge of Jerusalem
sent vnto Hoham kynge of Hebzon, and vn-
to Pharam kynge of Jermoth, and vnto Ja
phia kynge of Lachis, and vnto Dabir kynge of Eglon, sayenge. Come vp vnto me & helpe me, that we maye smyte Gabaon: for they haue made peax with Iosua and the childzen of Israel. Then the. v. kynges of the Amozites, the kynge of Jerusalem, the kynge of He bzon, the kynge of Jermoth, the kynge of La chis, the kynge of Eglon gathered theym sel-ues together, both they and all their hostes & went vp and beseged Gabaon, & made warre against it.

But the men of Gabaon when they were beseged sent vnto Iosua, vnto the host to Gal
gal, sayenge: withdrawe not thy handes frõ
thy seruauntes, but come vp to vs: and rescue vs: for all the kynges of the Amozites which dwell in the mountaynes are gathered togy-ther against vs.

The faythful nes of Iosua. And Iosua ascended frome Galgall, he and all the people of warre with him, and all the men of myght, and the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua, feare them not, for I haue delyuered thẽ into thyne hande, there shal not a man of the stande before the. So Iosua came vpon them sodenly, for he had iourneyed frome Galgall all nyght. And the Lorde toke their spyrte awaye before Israel, and slew of them a great slaughter at Gabaon, and chased them a log

the

C the waye that goeth vp to Bethoron and slewe them, tyll they came to Esaka and Makeda. And as they fledde frome Israell, euen in the goynge downe to Bethoron, the Lorde caste downe great stones frome heauen vpon them tyll they came vnto Esaka, that they dyed. And there were mo that dyed with hayle stones, then the chyldren of Israell slewe with the swerde.

Stones from heauen.

Then spake Iosua vnto the Lorde, the day when the Lorde gaue ouer the Amorites before the chyldren of Israell, and sayde in the syght of all Israell: Sonne, stande thou styll vpon Gabaon, and thou Mone, in the valey of Aialon. And the sonne abode, and the mone stode styll, tyll the people had auenged them selues vpon their ennemyes. Is not this wrytten in the booke of the ryghtwyse, howe the sonne abode in the myddes of heauen and hasted not to goo downe by the space of a hole daye. And there was no daye so longe as that before it, or after it, that the Lorde obeyed the voyce of a man: and all because the Lorde fought for Israell.

Eccle. xliiii. a The Sonne & mone stande styll.

And Iosua returned & all Israel with him, D vnto the hoste to Galgall: but the fyue kynges fled and hyd them selues in a caue at Makeda. And it was tolde Iosua, sayenge: The fyue kynges are founde hyd in a caue at Makeda. And Iosua sayde, rowle greate stones vnto the mouth of the caue, and appoynt hardy men therto, to kepe theym. And stande ye not styll, but folowe after youre ennemyes, & smyte the hyndermost of them. And suffre thē not to entre into their cyties, for the Lorde youre God hath delyuered them into youre handes. And when Iosua and the chyldren of Israel had made an ende of slayeng them with a gret slaughter, tyl they were wel nere wasted yet there remayned a certen of them, that had escaped Israels handes and entered into the walled cytyes.

The kynges be hyd

And all the people returned to the hoste, to Iosua at Makeda in peace, hole and without losse of one man so that no man durste moue his tonge against the children of Israel. Thē sayde Iosua: open the mouth of the caue, and bringe oute these. v. kynges vnto me forth of the caue. And they dyd so, and brought those fyue kynges vnto him, out of the caue? The kynge of Ierusalem, the kynge of Hebrō, the kynge of Ierimoth, the kynge of Lachis, and the kynge of Eglon.

And when they had brought out those kynges vnto Iosua: Iosua called for all the mē of Israell, and sayd vnto the captaynes of the men of warre, whiche came with him, come nere and put your fete vpō the neckes of these kynges. And they came nere and put their fete vpon the neckes of them. And Iosua sayde vnto them feare not, ne drede: But be stronge & plucke vp youre hertes, for so shall the Lorde serue al your enemyes against which ye fyght. C

And then Iosua smote them and slew them and hanged them on fyue trees tyl euen. And at the goyng downe of the sonne, Iosua gaue commaundement, and they toke them downe of the trees, & caste them into the caue, where they hyd them selues, and layde great stones on the caues mouthe, whiche remayne vnto this daye.

The fyue kinges be slayne.

And that same daye Iosua toke Makeda & smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynge therof also, and vtterly destroyed them and al the soules that were therein, & not one escaped. And he dyd to the kynge of Makeda; as he dyd to the kynge of Iericho.

Then Iosua went frome Makeda, and all Israell with him vnto Libna, and fought agaynst Libna. And the Lorde delyuered it also in their handes, with the kynge also, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and all the soules that were therin, and let noughte remayne in it, and dyd vnto the kynge therof as he dyd vnto the kynge of Iericho.

After that Iosua departed frome Libna, & all Israell with him, vnto Lachis, and besieged and assaulted it rounde aboute. And the Lord delyuered into the handes of Israel Lachis, that they toke it the second day, & smote it with the edge of the swerde, & al the soules that were therin, accordyng to all that he dyd to Libna.

Then Horam kynge of Geser came vp to helpe Lachis: But Iosua smote him and his people, tyl he left him naught remaynynge.

And frome Lachis Iosua departed, vnto Eglon, and all Israell with him, and there beseged, and assaulted it, and toke it the same daye, & smote it with the edge of the swerde and all the personnes that were therin: and vtterly destroyed them the same daye, accordynge to all that he dyd to Lachis.

Then Iosua departed vp from Eglon and all Israell with him, vnto Hebron. And they fought against it, and toke it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and the kynge therof, and all the townes that belonged to it, and all the sowles that were therein, so that they left nought remaynynge: but in all thinges as they dyd to Eglon, so they destroyed it vtterly.

Then Iosua returned and all Israell with him to Dabir, and they fought against it, and toke it, and the kynge therof and al the townes that appartayned therto. And smote thē with the edge of the swerde, and vtterly destroyed all the soules that were therein, & let nought remayne. And as he dyd to Hebron, so he dyd to Dabir and the kynge therof, and as he dyd to Libna and her kynge.

And Iosua smote all the hill contreyes and the southe countreyes, and the valeyes, & the sprynges of water, with all their kynges and let nought remayne, but vtterly destroyed all that * breathed, as the Lorde God of Israell commaunded, frome Cades barne, vnto Gasah, and all the countrey of Gosan, euen vnto Gabaon. And all those kynges and their lande, Iosua toke at one tyme: because the Lorde God of Israell fought for Israell. And then Iosua returned and all Israel with him vnto the host to Galgall.

¶ The battayle of Iosua with diuers kynges, whiche God gyueth in to his handes.

CAPI. XI.

A And when Iabin kynge of Hazor herde hereof: he sent to Iobab kynge of Madon, and to the kynge of Someron, and to the kynge of Acsaph. And vnto the kynges that are by northe in the mountaynes, and playnes, on the south syde of Ceneroth, and in the lowe countreyes, and in the regions of Dor vpon the see, & vnto the Cananites both by Easte and weste: and vnto the Amorites, Hethithes, Pheresites, and Iebusites in the mountaynes: and vnto the Heuites vnder Hermon in the lande of Mazphah: whiche came oute and all theyr hostes with theym a multitude of folke, euen as the sandes of the see in nombre, with horsses and charettes a wonderous sorte. And all these kynges mette to gyther, and came and pitched to gyther vpon the water of Merom, to fight with Israell.

And the Lorde sayde vnto Iosua: be not afrayde of theym: for to morowe aboute this tyme, I wyll delyuer them all sore wounded, before al Israel: and thou shalt houghe their horsses, and burne their charettes with fyre.

And Iosua came and all ỷ men of warre with B him against them, vnto the water of Merom sodenly, and fell vpon them. And the Lorde delyuered them into the handes of Israel: & they smote them and chased them, vnto great Sidon, and vnto the * hote waters, and vnto the valeye of Mazphah eastwarde, & smote them tyll they had none lefte of theym. And Iosua serued them as the Lorde bad him, houghed their horsses, and burnt their charettes with fyre.

Then Iosua at that tyme turned backe and toke Hazor and smote her kyng with ỷ swerd for Hazor before tyme was the head of all those kyngdomes. And they smote all the soules that were therin and left not one alyue in it, vtterly destroyenge them, that no breathe was let remayne. And burnt Hazor with fire, and all the cyties round about, whose kynges Iosua toke and smote them with the edge of C the swerde, and vtterly destroyed them * as Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde commaunded.

But Israell burnt none of the cyties that stode vpon hilles, saue Hazor onely, that Iosua burnt: but all the spoyle of the sayde cyties & the catell, the children of Israel caught vnto theym selues: But the men onely they smote with the edge of the swerde vntyll they had destroyed them, and had left no breth remaynynge. As the Lorde commaunded Iosua and euen so dyd Iosua * and mynysshed no worde of all that the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And so Iosua toke al that lande, the hylles and all the south contreye, and all the lande of Gosan, and the lowe countrey, and ỷ west countrey, the playnes, and the mountayne of Israel, with the lowe countreye of the same, euen frō mount Halak that goeth vp to Seir vnto Baal Gad in the valeye of Libanō, vnder mount Hermon. And all the kynges of ỷ same he toke and smote them, and slewe thē.

Iosua made warre longe tyme with those D kynges: for there was no cytie that had not yelded her to the children of Israel, saue those Hethites that enhabited Gabaon: All other they toke with batayle: for it was the Lordes wyll to harden theyr hartes, that they shulde come agaynste Israel in battayle: euen to destroye them vtterly, that they shulde haue no mercy, but to bryng them to nought As the Lorde commaunded Moses.

And that same season, Iosua went and destroyed the * Enakites out of the mountaynes, and out of Hebron, Dabir, and Anab, & out of all the mountaynes of Iuda, and oute of all the mountaynes of Israell, And Iosua destroyed them vtterly with their cyties, So that there was not one Enakite left in ỷ land of the children of Israel: only in Asah, Geth and Asdod, there remayned of them.

* Iud. i. b

And Iosua toke the hole lande, accordynge to all that the Lorde sayde vnto Moses, and gaue it a possession vnto Israell euery mā his parte in their trybes: and the lande ceased frō warre.

¶ What kynges Iosua and the chyldren of Israel kylled, whiche were in nombre. xxxi.

CAPI. XII.

These are the kynges of the lande which the children of Israell smote, and conquered their landes, on the other syde Iordan eastwarde, from the ryuer Arnon, vnto mounte Hermon, and all the playne eastwarde: Sehon kynge of the Amorites, that dwelt in Hesbon, and ruled frō Aroer, which lyeth on the brym of the ryuer of Arnon, and to the myddell of the ryuer, and halfe Galaad vnto the ryuer Iabock, the border of the children of Ammon: And in the playne vnto ỷ see of Ceneroth eastwarde, & vnto the see in ỷ wyldernesse called the salt see eastwarde, the waye to Beth, Iesymoth and by south vnder the sprynges of Phasgah. A

And the costes of Og kynge of Basan whiche was of the remnaunt of the Raphaites & B dwelt at Astharoth, & Edrai: and raygned in mount Hermon, and in Selecah, and thorow out all Basan, vnto the borders of the Gesurites, and the Macathites and halfe Galaad vnto the borders of Sehon kynge of Hesbon. * Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde and the children of Israell smote them, and Moses ỷ seruaunt of the Lorde, gaue their landes a possession vnto the Rubenites, Gaddites, and halfe the trybe of Manasses.

* Num. xxi. f. and g

These are the kynges of the countrey whiche Iosua and the children of Israell smote on this syde Iordan, westwarde, frome Baal Gad in the valeye of Libanon, euen vnto mount Halak that gothe vp to Seir. And Iosua gaue the lande vnto the trybes of Israell to possesse, euery man his parte: in the vpper lande, & nether lande, in playnes, & sprynges C of water, in the wyldernesse, and south countrey, the Hethites, the Amorites, the Canaanites, the Pherezites, the Heuites, and the Jebusytes.

¶ Josua is commaunded to diuyde the lande to the chyldren of Israel.

CAPI. XIII.

A When Josua was ware olde, and stryken in yeres, the Lorde sayd vnto him / thou art olde and stryken in yeres, and there remayneth yet exceadinge moche lande to be possessed / This is the lande that remayneth / all the coostes of the Philistines / and all the Gesurites / frome Nilus in Egrypte vnto the borders of Aharon northwarde, which lande was counted to pertayne vnto the Canaanites, euen to ꝑ fyue Lordes of the Philistines, the Asathytes, Asdadites, Ascalonites, Gethites, Akaronites, with the Euites, frome the southe All the lande of the Cananites, and Maara that appertayneth to the Sidons, cuē vnto Aphek, and to the borders of the Amorites. And the lande of the Giblytes, and all Libanon towarde the sonne rysinge, frome Baal Gad vnder mount Hermon, tyll thou come to Hemath, all the enhabitoures of the hyll countrey, frome Libanon vnto the hote waters euen all the Sidons. I wyl cast them
B out frome the face of the chyldren of Israell, and se thou in any wyse diuyde it by lot vnto the chyldren of Israel to enherete, as I haue cō maunded the. Now therfore dyuide this land to enherete, vnto the nyne trybes / and the halfe trybe of Manasses. For the other halfe with the Rubenites and the Gadites, haue
* Nu.xxxii.f. Deut.iiii.b receyued their enheritaunce alredy, * whiche Moses gaue them beyonde Jordan eastward euen as Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde gaue theym / frome Aroer that lyeth on the brym of the ryuer Arnon / with the cytie in ꝑ myddes of the valleye.

And all the playne of Medba vnto Dibon / and all the cyties of Sehon, kynge of the Amorites which raygned in Hesbon, euen vnto the borders of the chyldren of Ammon / and Galaad, and the landes that border vpon the Gesurites and the Machathytes, & all mount Hermon and all Basan vnto Salcah, euen al the kyngdom of Og in Basan which raygned in Astharoth and Edrai whiche same remayned yet of the rest of the Raphaites. But Moses smote them and destroyed them.

Neuertheles the chyldren of Israel expelled not the Gesurites nor the Machathytes: But the Gesurites & the Machathytes dwelt amonge the Israelites euen vnto this daye. Onely vnto the trybe of Leui, he gaue none enheritaunce: * for the offringe of the Lorde God of Israel is their enheritaunce as he sayde vnto them.

And Moses gaue ceasyn vnto the trybe of ℓ the children of Ruben by their kynredes. And their boundes were frome Aroer that lyeth on the banke of the ryuer Arnon, and the cytie that lyeth in the myd valley of the ryuer, and all the playne aboute Medba, Hesbon, and all her townes that lye in the playne: Dibon * Bamothbaal, and Bethbaalmeon: Jahazah, Kedemoth and Mephaath Kiriathaim, Sabamah and Zarath Zahar in mount Emah: and Bethpheor and the sprynges of Phasgah, and Bethiesimoth: and all the cyties in the playne. And all the kyngdome of Sehon kynge of the Ammorites which raygned in Hesbon, whome Moses smote * with the Lordes of Madian, Eui, Rekem, Zur, Hur and Reba, the Lordes of Sehon, and ꝑ inhabitauntes of the countreye. And Balam also the sonne of Beor the sothesayer, the chyldren of Israel slewe with the swerde, amonges other that were slayne. And the borders of the children of Ruben was Jordan with ꝑ contreye that lyeth thereon. This is the enheritaunce of the children of Ruben in their kynredes, with the cyties and villages pertayninge therto.

And Moses gaue vnto the trybe of Gad, euen vnto the children of Gad an enheritaūce by kynredes, and their coostes were Jazer, and all the cityes of Galaad, and halfe the lande of the chyldren of Ammon vnto Aroer that lyeth before Rabah: and frome Hesbon vnto Ramoth Maspha, and Betonim: and from Mahanaim vnto the borders of Dabir. And in the valleye they hadde Betharam, Bethnimra, Socoth and Zaphon / the reste of the kyngdom of Sehon kyng of Hesbon, and Jordan, and the coostes that lye theron, euen vnto the edge of the see of Cenereth on the other syde Jordan Estwarde.

This is the enheritaunce of the children of Gad in their kynredes, the cityes with their villages.

And Moses gaue vnto the halfe trybe of Manasses, and to his sonnes an enheritaunce by their kynredes. And their coostes were frome Mahanaim, euen all Basan, the kyngdome of Og, kynge of Basan, and all the townes of Jahir whiche lye in Basan, euen thre score cityes, and halfe Galaad and Astaroth, and Edrai, cityes of the kyngdome of Og in Basan, * whiche pertayne vnto the
* children

chyldren of Machir the sonne of Manasses, and that vnto halfe the chyldren of Machir by their kynredes.

These are they to whom Moses gaue enheritaūce in the feldes of Moab, on the other syde Jordan by Jericho eastwarde. But vnto the trybe of Leui, Moses gaue none inheritaunce, for the Lorde God of Israel is their inheritaunce, * as he sayde vnto them.

¶ Caleb requyreth the heritage that was promysed him, and Hebron was gyuen him.

CAPI. XIIII.

A And these are the countreyes which the chyldren of Israel inhereted in ꝑ lande of Canaan, vnto whiche Eleazar the preest, and Josua the sonne of Nun and the auncient heades of the trybes of the children of Israel, gaue them their enheritaunce by lot as the Lorde commaūded by the hande of Moses, to gyue vnto the nyne trybes, and vnto the halfe trybe of Manasses. For Moses had gyuen enheritaunte vnto two trybes and an halfe on the other syde Jordan: But vnto the Leuytes he gaue none enheritaunse amōges theym. For the children of Joseph were two trybes, Manasses and Ephraim. And therfore they gaue no parte vnto the Leuites in the lande, saue cyties to dwell in and the suburbes of the same, for their beastes and catell.
B As the Lorde commaunded Moses: euen so ꝑ children of Israell dyd when they deuyded ꝑ lande.

B And the children of Juda came vnto Josua in Galgall. And Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesyte sayde vnto him: thou wottest what the Lorde sayde vnto Moses the man of God, concerninge me and the in Cades Barne. * Fourtye yere olde was I when Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde sent me frō Cades Barne to espie out the lande. And I brought him worde agayn euen as I thought in myne hert. Neuertheles my brethren that went vp with me discouraged the hertes of the people. But I followed ꝑ Lorde my God euen vnto the ende.

C And Moses sware the same season, sayeng * the lande wheron thy fote haue trode, shalbe thyne enheritaunce and thy children for euer because thou hast followed the Lorde my God continually. And now beholde, ꝑ Lord hath lent me lyfe (as he sayde) * this fourty and fyue yeares, euen sythens the Lord spake vnto Moses, whyle the children of Israell wandered in the wyldernesse. And nowe se I am this daye foure skore and fyue yeres: and yet am as stronge at this tyme, as I was whē Moses sent me: loke how stronge I was thē, so stronge I am nowe, to warre and to iourneye.

D Nowe therfore gyue me this mountayne whiche the Lorde at that tyme promysed, for thou herdest at that tyme, howe the * Enakims were there, and howe the cyties were greate and walled. I trust the Lorde will be with me, and I shall dryue theym oute as the Lorde sayde. And Josua blessed Caleb the sonne of Jephune, and gaue him Hebron to enheret. And Hebron became the enheritaūce of Caleb the sonne of Jephune the Kenesite, vnto this daye: because he followed the Lord God of Israel perpetually. And the name of * Hebrō was called in olde tyme, Kariath Arbe which was a huge man among the Enakims And the lande ceased frome warre.

¶ The lot of the chyldren of Juda and the names of the cities and vyllages of the same.

CAPI. XV.

A And the lot of the trybe of the children of Juda in their kynredes was the wildernesse of Zyn that stretcheth to the coostes of Edom southwarde, and is the vttermost part of the south coostes. And their south coostes were from the brinke of the salt see and frome a certen poynte of the see that leaneth southwarde. And it wēt out on the south syde of the goynge vp to Acrabim, and went a long to Zimma, and ascended vp on the south side of Cades Barne, and went alonge to Hezron and wente vp to Adar, and fet a compase to Karca, and went a longe to Azmon, & it went out to the ryuer of Egypt: so that the ende of that coste is the see. And these are their southe coostes.

And their east coostes are the salt see euē vn- B to the edge of Jordan. And their borders in the north quarter were frome an other poynt of the see where Jordan endeth. And went vp to Bethhagla and went a longe by the north syde of Betharabah and went vp to the stone of Boben the sonne of Ruben. And then went vp to Dabir frome the valeye of Achor, and so northwarde, turnynge towarde Galgal that lyeth before the goynge vp to Adonim, which is of the south syde of the ryuer. And then wēt a longe to the water of Ensemes, and ended at the well of Rogell. And then went vp to the valeye of the sonne of Hennō, euen vnto the south syde of the Jebusytes the inhabitours of Jerusalem. And then went vp to the toppe of the hyll that lyeth before the valeye of Hennō westward, and by the edge of the valeye of Raphaim northwarde: And then it drayweth frome the same hyll vnto the fountayne of water called Nephthoah, and goeth out at the cyties of mount Ephron: and drayweth to Balah, otherwyse called Kariathiarim: and then it compaseth from Balah westwarde, vnto Seir, and then goethe alonge vnto the syde of mount Jarim, otherwyse called Chesalon, on the northe syde therof. And cō- C meth downe to Bethshames and goth to Thānah, and goeth oute on the syde of Akaron northwarde: And then drayweth to Sicron & goeth a longe to mount Balah, and goth out at Jabniel / and the ende of the borders is the see. And the west borders are the great se and the coostes that lye therein. And these are the coostes of the chyldren of Juda rounde aboute in their kynredes.

* And vnto Caleb the son of Jephune was Iudic.i.d

there a part allotted amonge the chyldren of Juda, by the mouthe of the Lorde to Josua, euen the citie of Kattatharbe father of Enack whiche Cytie is called Hebzon. And Caleb dzoue thence the thre sonnes of Enack, Sesai Ahiman, and Thalmai, the sonnes begotten of Enack. And he went vp thence, to the inhabitours of Dabir, whose name in the olde tyme was Kariath Iepher. And Caleb sayde, *He that smyteth Kariath Iepher and taketh it: to hym wyl I gyue Achsah my daughter to wyfe. And Othniel, the sonne of Kenes, the brother of Caleb toke it. And he gaue him Achsah his doughter to wyfe. And as she went she moued him, to aske of her father a felde. And she alyghted of her asse. And Caleb sayde vnto her, what ayleth the. And she sayde, gyue me a blessinge: for thou hast gyuē me a southwarde and dzye lande: gyue me also spzinges of water. Then he gaue her spzinges of water, both aboue and beneethe. This is the enheritaunce of the tribe of the childzen of Juda in their kynredes.

And the cyties of the tribe of the childzen of Juda in all quarters, towarde the coostes of Edom southwarde, were: Kabzeel, Eder, and Jagur: Kinah, Dimonah, and Adada: Kedes, Hazor, and Ithnan: Ziph, Telem, and Baloth: Hazor, Hadattah, & Kerioth: Hesron, otherwyse called Hazor, Eman, Sema, and Moladah: Hazargadah, Hasmon, and Bethpheleth: Hazarsual, Berseabe, and Baziothiah: Baalah, Iim, and Azem: Eltholad Chesil, and Hozma: Ziklag, Madmenah, and Sansannah: Lebaoth, Selhim, Ain and Remon: all these cyties are. xxix. with theyr dilages. And in the lowe countreye they had Eshtaol, Zarcah, and Asnah: Zanoah, Engannim, Thaphuah & Enam: Jermoth, Adullam, Socoh, and Azekah: Saarem, Adithaim Gederah, and Gederothaim: fourtene cyties with their villages.

Zenan, Hadasah, and Magdalgad: Dilean, Mizpah, and Jokthеel: Lachis, Bazcath, and Eglon: Cabon, Lahamam, and Kithlis: Gaderoth, Bethdagon, Naamah, and Makkedah: Sixteene cyties with their villages.

Libnah, Ether, and Asan: Iephthah, Asnah, and Nezib: Keilah, Kahezib, and Maresah: nyne cyties with their villages.

Akron with her townes and villages. And frome Akron out to the see, all that lye about Asdod with their villages. Asdod with her townes and villages. Azah with her townes and villages, euen vnto the ryuer of Egypte: and the greate see, with the coostes that lye thereon.

And in the mountaynes, they had Samir Jathir, and Socoh: Danah, and Kariath sepher, whiche is Dabir: Anab, Eshemoh, and Anim: Gozen, Holon, and Giloh: all euen cyties with their villages. Arab, Dumah, and Eshean: Janim, Bethtaphuah, and Aphekah: Humatah, and Kariath Arbe: which is Hebzon and Zior: nyne cyties with their villages. Maon, Carmel, Siph, and Iutah: Jesreall, Jokdeam, and Zanoch: Cain, Gibeah and Thamnah: ten cyties with their villages. Halhul, Bethzur, and Gedor: Maarath Bethanoth, and Eltheon: sixe cyties with their villages. Kariath Baal which is Kariath Jarim, and Harabba two cyties with their villages.

And in the wylderneſſe they had Bethareabah, Middin and Secacah: Nebson, the cytie of salt, and Engadi: sixe cyties with their villages. But the Jebusites that were then habiters of Jerusalem / the childzen of Juda coulde not cast out. Wherefore the Jebusites dwel amōg ꝑ childzen of Juda vnto this day.

¶ The Lotte or part of Ephzaim.

CAPI. XVI.

AND the lotte of the childzen of Joseph fell frome Jozdan by Jericho, vnto the water of Jericho eastwarde, and the wylderneſſe that goth vp frome Jericho throwe mounte Bethell / and then gothe oute frome Bethel to Lus, and runneth a longe vnto the bozders of Ataiataroth: and gothe wowne westwarde, to the coostes of Japhleti, and vnto the coostes of Bethhozon the nether, and gothe vp by the see syde to Gasor, & the endes of their coostes came to the greate see. And so the childzen of Joseph Manasses and Ephzaim toke their enheritaunce.

And the childzen of Ephzaim toke their coostes by kynredes. And the coostes of their enheritaunce eastwarde were, Ataroth Adar, euen vnto Bethhozon the vpper, and their marches went out westwarde to Machmathah that lyeth on the Northsyde, and set a compas eastwarde vnto Thaanath Silo, and passeth frō the eastsyde vnto Janoah, and wente downe frome Janoah to Ataroth and Naarath, and met at Jericho, and went out at Jozdan. And their bozders went frō Thaphuah westwarde vnto the ryuer Kanah, and the endes were ꝑ salt see. This is the enheritaunce of the tribe of the childzen of Ephzaim by their houshoides. The childzen of Ephzaim, had their cyties and villages skattered amonge the enheritaunce of the childzē of Manasses: Notwithstandinge the childzen of Ephzaim slewe not the Cananites that dwelt in Gasor: but the Cananites dwelt among the Ephzaites vnto this daye, and paye tribute.

¶ The pozcion of the half tribe of Manasses. The Canaanites become tributaryes to the Israelites. Manasses and Ephzaim requyze a greater pozcion of heritage.

CAPI. XVII.

AND the tribe of Manasses which was the eldeſte sonne of Joseph receyued a lot. And Machir the eldeſt son of Manasses which was the father of Galaad (and a man of warre) had to his enheritaunce Galaad and Basan. And the rest of the childzē of Manasses receyued by their kynredes / which were the childzen of Abiezer / the childzen of Helek / the childzen of Asriel / the childzen of Sichem, the chyldzen of Hepher: the chyldzen of Semida. These are the male chyldzen of Manasses the sonne of Joseph in theyr kynredes. * But Zelaphead the sonne of Hepher the sonne of Galaad, the sonne of Machir, the sonne Manasses had no sonnes but onely daughters. And these are the names of his daughters: Mahela, Noa, Hagla, Melcha, & Thirza: which came before Eleazar the preest, and before Josua the sonne of Nun, & before the lozdes, sayinge: * the Lozde commaunded Moses to gyue vs an enheritaunce amonges oure bzethren. And he gaue theym at the mouth of the Lozde, an enheritaunce amonges the bzethren of their fathers. And there fell ten pozcyons to Manasses beside ꝑ lande of Galaad and Basan which are on thother syde Jozdan: because the wughters of Manasses dyd enherit amonge his sonnes. And Manasses other sonnes had the lande of Galaad.

And the bozders of Manasses reached from Aser to Machmathah that lyeth before Sichem, and went a longe on the right hand, euen vnto the enhabyters of the fountayne Thaphuah, and the lande of Thaphuah belonged to Manasses, which Thaphuah laye in the bozders betwene Manasses & the childzen of Ephzaim. And the coostes descended vnto the ryuer of Kede, on whose southsyde Ephzaim hath cyties that lye amonge the cyties of Manasses. For the coostes of Manasses were on the northsyde of the ryuer and the endes of them was the see: so that the south pertayned to Ephzaim, and the northe to Manasses, and the see is both their bozders. And they met together in Aser northwarde, and in Issacar eastwarde. And Manasses had his enheritaunce in Issacar and in Aser, Bethsean, & her townes: and Jeblaan with her townes: and the enhabitours of Dor, with the townes pertayninge to the same: and the enhabitours of Endor with the townes of the same: and the enhabitoures of Thaanath with her townes & the enhabitours of Mageu with the townes of the same, and the third part of the cytie Nophet, yet the childzen of Manasses coulde not ouer come those cyties: But the Cananites began to dwell in the same lande. Neuertheleſſe allone as the childzen of Israel were waxed stronge, they put the Cananites to tribute, but they slew them not.

And the chyldzen of Joseph spake vnto Josua sayenge: Why hast thou gyuē vs but one lot and one pozcion to enherit, seynge we be moche people, and for almoche as the Lozde hath blessed vs so: and Josua answered thē: yf ye be moche people then get you vp to the wode countreye, and pzepare for your selues there in the land of the Pherezites and of the * Raphaites, yf mount Ephzaim be to natowe for you. Then the childzen of Joseph sayde agayne, the hill wil not be goten of vs: for all the Cananites that dwell in the lowe countreye haue chyarettes of yzon, and so haue they that enhabite Bethsean, and the townes of the same, and they also that dwell in the valeye of Jezrael. And Josua answered the house of Joseph, Ephzaim and Manasses sayenge: ye be moche people and haue great power and shall not therfore haue one lot. But the hyll shalbe yours, thou shalt hew downe the wode, and make a space to buylde vpon, for it shalbe yours euen vnto the endes of it, ye shalbe hable to cast out the Cananites for all their yzon charettes, and for all they be so stronge.

¶ Certayne are sente to dinyde the lande to the other seuen trybes. The Lott of the chyldzen of Ben Jamin.

CAPI. XVIII

AND the hole congregatiō of the childzē of Israel came togyther at Siloh, and set vp the tabernacle of wytnesse there, and the lande was in subiection before them. But there remayned amonge the childzen of Israel seuen trybes which had not their enheritaunce deuyded out. And Josua sayde vnto the childzen of Israell, howe longe are ye so slacke to go and possesse the lande whiche the Lozde God of your fathers hath gyuen you? chose ye of euery trybe three men that I maye sende them. And that they may ryse and walk thozow the land and vew it after the inhabitantes therof & come agayn to me. Deuide it into vij. partes. For Juda shal abyde by their coostes in the south, & the house of Joseph shal stande to their coostes in the northe. Describe ye the lande therfore into. vij. partes, & bryng the description to me hyther, that I maye cast lottes for you here before the Lozde our God. The Leuites haue no parte amonge you for ꝑ preasthyp of the Lozde is their enheritaunce. And Gad, Ruben, and halfe the trybe of Manasses haue receyued their enheritaūce beyōd Jozdan eastwarde, which Moses the seruaūt of the Lozde gaue them.

Josue.xiij.b and.xxij.a Josue.xiij.b

And the men arose and went their waye. And Josua charged them that went to describe the land sayeng: hence & go thozow ꝑ land & describe it, & come agayne to me hyther: and I will cast lottes for you before the Lozde in Siloh. And the men departed, & walked thorow the lande and described it by cyties into seuen partes in a boke, and retourned to Josua into the host at Siloh. And Josua cast lottes for theym in Siloh before the Lozde, and there he deuyded the lande vnto the childzen of Israell, into seuen partes to eche their pozcion. And the first lot of the tryde of the chyldzen of Ben Jamin came vp accozdynge to their kynredes. And the coostes of their lotte came out betwene the childzen of Juda, and the childzen of Joseph. And their northy coostes were frome Jozdan and went vp to the syde of Jericho on the northsyde, and went vp throw the mountaynes westwarde, and they ended at the wylderneſſe of Bethauen: & went frome thence to the southsyde of Lus, otherwyse called Bethel: and descended to Ataroth Adar vpon the hil that lyeth on the southsyde of the nether Bethozon. And the weste coaste drayweth and compaseth southwarde, euen frome the hyll that lyeth before Bethozon, &

gothe out at Kariathbaal which is Kariath-Jarim, a cytie of the children of Juda: & this is the West quarter: towarde the see and the south coste goeth frome the edge of Kariathiarim westwarde, and goeth out to the waterwell, of Nephthoah and commeth downe to the edge of the hyll that lyeth before the va-
D leye of the sonnes of Hennon, which is in the valeye of Raphaim Northwarde, and descendeth thorow the valeye of Hennon vnto the syde of Jebusi southwarde, and goeth downe to the well of Rogell. And compaseth frome the north and goth forth to Ensames, that is the sonnes well: and to the heapes that lye before the goynge vp vnto Adomim: and goth downe to the stone of Bohan the sonne of Ruben: and then goth alonge towarde the syde of * the playne, northwarde: and goth down into the playne: and goth a longe to the syde of Bethhaglah northwarde, & endeth at the poynte of the salt see north therfrome, and at the ende of Jordan south therfrome. This is the southcoste.

And Jordan is their easte coste, this is the enheritaunce of the children of BenJamin w their costes roundeabout and by their kynredes. And these are the cyties of the trybes of the children of BenJamin in their kynredes: Jericho, Bethhaglah, and the valeye of Kaziz: Betharabah, Zamarim, and Bethel: Auim, Pharah, and Ophrah: Chepar Ammonai, Ophni, and Gabai, twelue cyties with their villages. Sabaa, Ramah, and Beroth: Mazphah, Caphairah, and Mozah: Rekem, Jarephel and Tharelah, Zela, Eleph, & the cytie of the Jebusites which is Jerusalē, Gabaath, and Kariath, fourten cyties with their villages. This is the enheritaunce of the children of BenJamin in their kynredes.

¶The lottes or partes of Zabulon, Isachar, Aser, Nephthali, Dan, and Josua.

CAPI. XIX.

A And the seconde lotte came oute vnto the trybe of the chyldren of Symeon by their kynredes. And theyr inheritaunce felle in the middes of the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Juda. And their inheritaūce
I.Parali.iv.a
was, Bersabe, Sabe, and Moladagh, Hazorsula, Belagh, and Azem, Eltholad, Bethul, and Hormagh, Zikelag, Bethmarcaboth and Hazersusagh, Bethlebaoth, & Saruhen thertene Cities with theyr villages. Aim, Remon Ether, and Asan, foure Cities with theyr vyllages: and therto all villages that lye round aboute these Cities, euen vnto Balasath, Beor, and Ramath, southwarde. This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the children of Simeon in theyr kinredes out of the porcion of the chyldren of Juda, came the inheritaunce of the children of Simeon. For the part of the children of Juda was to moch for them: and therfore the children of Simeon had theyr inheritaunce in the inheritaunce of them.

B And the thyrde lotte came vnto the chyldren of Zabulon accordynge vnto theyr kynredes. And the costes of theyr inheritaunce came to Sarid, and went vp to the see, and to Marialah, and touched at Dabaseth, and met at the ryuer that lyeth before Jokneum: and turned frome Sarid Eastwarde towarde the sonne rysynge, vnto the border of Chisloth in mounte Thabor: and then goeth out to Dabereth and goeth vp to Japhia: and frome thence goeth alonge Eastwarde towarde the sunne rysynge, to Geth, Hepher, and Tacasin, and goeth to Remon, Methoar and Neah. And compasseth it on the Northe syde, and goeth to Nathan, and endeth in the valleye of Jephthahel. And Careth, Nahalol, and Semron, Jedalah, and Bethleem: twelue cities with theyr villages This is the enherytaunce of the chyldren of Zabulon, in theyr kynredes. The sayde cityes with theyr villages.

And the fourthe lot came oute to the chyldren of Isachar by theyr kynredes. And their costes were Jesraelah, Casuloth, Sunem, Hapharaim, Sion, Anaharath, Rabboth, Kision, and Abez. Rameth, Enganim, Enhadah, and Bethphazez. And his costes met at Thabor, Sahazimah and at Bethsames, & endeth at Jordan, sixtene cityes with their villages. This is the inheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Isachar by theyr kynredes the cytyes and theyr villages.

And the fifte lot came out vnto the tribe of E
the chyldren of Aser by theyr kynredes. And their costes were Helkath, Hali, Beten, and Achsaph: Alamalech, Amaad and Miseal: and met at Carmel on the see, and at Sihor, and at Labanath, and turneth towarde the sunne rysing to Bethdagon, and met at Zabulon, and in the valleye of Jephtael, and towarde the north syde of Bethemek and Negel, and goeth out on the left side of Cabul: and Abran Rohob, Hamon, and Kanah, euen vnto great Sidon. And then the cost turneth to Ramah and to the strong citye of Tire, and turneth to Hosah, and endeth at the see: by the possession of Achzibah: Amah, Aphek, and Rohob: Twentye and two cityes with their villages. This is the inheritaunce of the tribe of the children of Aser by theyr kynredes. These cityes with their villages.

And the sixte lotte came oute vnto the chyldren of Nephthali by theyr kynredes. And theyr costes were frome Heleph, and frome Elon in Zaananim, and Adami, Nekeb and Jabneel, euen to Lakum, and goo oute at Jordan. And then the coste turneth Westwarde to Asanoth in mounte Thabor, and then goeth oute frome thence to Hukokah, and meteth with Zabulon on the southe syde, and with Aser on the West, and at Juda vpon Jordan towarde the sunne rysynge. And their strong cityes are Zidim, Ser, Hamath, Racath, and Cenereth, Adamah, Hermah, and Hazor: Kedes, Edrai, and Enhazor: Jeron, Magdelel: Horem, Bethanah, & Bethsames: nynetene cityes with theyr villages. This is the enheritaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Nephthali by theyr kynredes: these cityes and theyr villages.

And

D And the seuenth lot fell to the trybe of the chyldren of Dan by theyr kynredes. And the costes of their inheritaunce was Zaraah, Esthaol, ᵠ Irsames, Saelabin, Aialon, and Jethlah: Eglon, Themnathah, and Akaron: Eltheken, Gibethon, and Baalath: Jehud, Banebarak, and Gatherman, and the waters of Jercon and Harcon, with the countreye that lyeth before Joppe, and there it hath an ende. And the chyldren of Dan wente vp and fought against Lesen and toke it, and smote it with the edge of the swerde, and conquered it, and dwelt therin, and called it Dan, after the name of Dan their father.

This is the inherytaunce of the trybe of the chyldren of Dan in their kynredes: these cityes with theyr villages. When they hadde made an ende of diuydynge the lande to euerye trybe by lotte, then the chyldren of Israel gaue an enherytaunce vnto Josua the sonne of Nun amonge them: at the mouthe of the Lorde they gaue him the citie whiche he asked, euen Thamnath Serah in mounte Ephraim. And he buylte the citye and dwelte therin.

These are the enheritaunces whiche Eleazar the Preeste and Josua the sonne of Nun, and the auncient fathers of the trybes of the children of Israel diuyded by lotte in Siloh before the Lorde, in the dore of the tabernacle of wytnesse, and so made an ende of diuydynge the countreye.

¶The Cytyes of refuge or Santuaryes.

CAPI. XX.

A Then the Lorde spake vnto Josua, sayinge: commen with the chyldren of Israel and saye: * Appoynte oute free cytyes, of whiche I spake vnto you by Moses, that the slear that kylleth anye person vnwares, and vnwittyngly, maye flee thither. And those cityes shall be youre refuge frome the auenger of bloude. And the slear shall flee vnto one of those cityes, and shall stande in the entrynge of the gate of the citye, and shall shewe his cause in the eares of the elders of the sayd citye, that it was no wylful murder. & they shall take him in to the city vnto them, and shall gyue him a place that he may dwell amonge them.

And when the auenger of bloude foloweth after him, they shall not delyuer the slear in to his hande, bycause he smote his frende ignorātly, and that can not be proued that he bare him malyce of two or thre dayes afore.

And he shall dwell in the sayd citye vntyll he stande before the congregacion in iudgement, layinge for his discharge, and vntyl the deth of the hyghe Preest that shall be in those dayes. And then shall the slear retourne and come vnto his owne citye, and vnto his owne house, and vnto the citye frome whence he fledde.

C And they appoynted Kedes in Galile, in mounte Nephthali, and Sichem in mounte Ephraim, and Kariatharbe, whiche is Hebron in the mountaynes of Juda. And on the other syde Jordan ouer agaynst Jericho Eastwarde, they gaue Bozor in the wyldernesse, Deuter.iiii.g
vpon the playne wyldernesse out of the trybe of Ruben and Ramoth in Galaad out of the trybe of Gad, and Golam in Basan out of the trybe of Manasses.

These were the cityes appoynted for all the D
chyldren of Israel, and to the straungers that soiourned amonge them that who so euer killed anye person ignorantly, the same myght flee thyther and sholde not dye by the hande of the auenger of bloude, vntyl he stode before the congregacion.

¶The Cityes giuen to the Leuites, in nombre fortye and eyght. The promyses of gyuynge the lande of Canaan are fulfylled. The Israelites are at rest.

CAPI. XXI.

And then came the pryncipall heedes of A
the Leuytes vnto Eleazar the preeste, and vnto Josua the sonne of Nun, and vnto the auncient heedes of the trybes of the children of Israel, and spake vnto them at Siloh in the lande of Canaan, sayinge: * the Lorde commaunded by Moses, to gyue vs *Nu.xxxv.a Deuter.xix.b Josu.xx.a
cityes to dwell in, and the feldes about them for oure catell.

And the chyldren of Israel gaue vnto the Leuites out of theyr inheritaunces, at the bidding of the Lorde, these cities folowing with theyr suburbes.

And the lotte came oute vnto the kynredes of the Cahathytes: and the chyldren of Aaron the Preeste whiche were of the Leuytes hadde gyuen them by lotte, oute of the trybe of Juda, oute of the trybe of Symeon, and oute of the trybe of BenJamin thirtene cityes. And the reste of the chyldren of Cahath hadde by lotte oute of the kynredes of the trybe of Ephraim, oute of the trybe of Dan, and out of the halfe trybe of Manasses ten cityes.

And the chyldren of Gerson hadde by lotte oute of the kynredes of the trybe of Isachar oute of the trybe of Aser, oute of the trybe of Nephthali, and out of the other halfe tribe of Manasses in Basan, thirtene cityes. And the chyldren of Merari by theyr kynredes, hadde oute of the trybe of Ruben, out of the trybe of Gad, and oute of the trybe of Zabulon, twelue cityes. And the chyldren of Is- B rael gaue by lot vnto the Leuites these cityes with their suburbes, as the Lorde commaunded by Moses.

And they gaue oute of the trybe of the chyldren of Juda, and out of the trybe of the children of Symeon, these cityes by name: whiche the chyldren of Aaron beinge of the kynredes of the Cahathites, & of the chyldren of Leui, obtayned: for theirs was the first lotte. And they gaue them Kariah Arbe of the father of ᵠEnacke, whiche is Hebron in the hyll countreye of Juda, with the suburbes of the same rounde aboute it. But the countrey that pertayned to the citye and the villages therof the

ᵠ Arba was the father of Enack. Josua.xiiii.d. I.Paral.vii.d

they gaue to Caleb the sonne of Jephune, to be his possession.

And thus they gaue to the chyldren of Aaron the preeste, the fraunchesed citees of the spear, Hebron with her suburbes: and Libna with her suburbes, and Jathir with her suburbes, and Eshtemoa with her suburbes, and Holon with her suburbes, and Dabir with her suburbes, and Ain with her suburbes, and Juttah with her suburbes, and Bethsames with her suburbes: nyne citees oute of those two tribes.

And oute of the tribe of Benjamin they gaue Gabaon with her suburbes: Gaba with suburbes: Anatoth with her suburbes: Almon with her suburbes, foure citees. All these cities of the chyldren of Aaron preestes were, thyrteene citees with theyr suburbes.

And the kynredes of the children of Cahath that were Leuytes / that is to saye the other chyldren of Cahath had the cities of their lot, oute of the tribe of Ephraim. And they gaue them the free citye of the spear: Sichem with her suburbes in mounte Ephraim / and Gazer with her suburbes / and Kabzaim with her suburbes / Bethhoron with her suburbes / foure citees.

And oute of the tribe of Dan: Eltheke with her suburbes, Gibthon with her suburbes, Aialon with her suburbes, and Gathrimmon with her suburbes, foure citees. And out of the halfe tribe of Manasses: Thanach with her suburbes, Gathrimmon with her suburbes, two citees. So that all the citees which were geuen vnto the kynredes of the other chyldren of Cahath, were ten with their suburbes.

And vnto the chyldren of Gerson, whiche were of the kinredes of the Leuites, they gaue out of the other halfe tribe of Manasses, the citye of refuge for the slear, Golan in Basan and Bosram with her suburbes: Beesthera with her suburbes, two citees. And oute of the tribe of Jsachar, Kision with her suburbes, Dabcrath with her suburbes, Jarmoth with her suburbes, Engannim with her suburbes, foure citees. And out of the tribe of Aser Misheal with her suburbes, Abdon with her suburbes, Helkath with her suburbes, Rohob with her suburbes, foure citees.

And out of the tribe of Nephthali, the citye of refuge of the slear, Kedes in Galile, with her suburbes: Hamothdor, with her suburbes Karthan with her suburbes: three citees. So that all the citees of the Gersonytes in theyr kynredes were thirteene with their suburbes.

And vnto the kynredes of the chyldren of Merari the rest of the Leuites, they gaue out of the tribe of Zabulon: Jecnam with her suburbes, Carthah with her suburbes: Damna with her suburbes, and Nahalal with her suburbes, foure citees. And oute of the tribe of Ruben, they gaue Bozor with her suburbes: Jahesah with her suburbes / Kedmoth with her suburbes/and Mephaath with her suburbes, foure citees.

And out of the tribe of Gad, they gaue the fraunchesed citye of the slear, Ramoth in Galaad with her suburbes, Mahanaim with her suburbes, Hesbon with her suburbes, and Jaser with her suburbes, foure citees in all, so that all the citees of the chyldren of Merari in their kynredes, whiche were the rest of the kynredes of the Leuites, were by theyr lotte, twelue citees. And all the citees that the Leuites had in the possession of the chyldren of Jsrael were fortye and eyght with their suburbes. And these citees hadde eche their suburbes rounde about her thorowe oute all the sayd citees.

And the Lorde gaue vnto Jsrael, all the lande whiche he sware to giue vnto theyr fathers. And they conquered it, and dwelte therin. And the Lorde gaue them reste rounde about, accordynge to all that he sware vnto theyr fathers. So that there stode not a man of all theyr ennemyes before theym. But the Lorde delyuered all theyr ennemyes into theyr handes. There shaped nothynge of all the good thynges whiche the Lorde hadde sayde vnto the house of Jsrael. But all came to passe.

¶ Ruben, Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses are lende agayne to theyr possessions. They buylde an altare for a memoryall.

CAPI. XXII.

THen Josua called vnto the Rubenites, & the Gaddites, and to the halfe tribe Manasses, and sayde vnto them: * ye haue kepte all that Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde commaunded you, and haue obeyed my voyce in all that I commaunded you: Ye haue not lefte youre brethren of a longe season vnto this daye, but haue kepte the commaundement of the Lorde youre God. And now the Lorde hathe geuen reste vnto youre brethren, as he promysed them. Wherfore returne and goo vnto youre tentes, and vnto the lande of youre possession, whiche Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde gaue you on the other syde Jordan.

But in anye wyse take exceadynge good hede that ye do the commaundement and lawe whiche Moses the seruaunte of the Lorde charged you / whiche is, that ye loue the Lorde youre God, and walke in his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, and cleaue vnto him, and serue him with all youre hertes, and all youre soules. And so Josua blessed theym, and sente them awaye. And they wente vnto theyr tentes.

¶ Vnto the one halfe of the tribe of Manasses Moses gaue possession in Basan/and vnto the other halfe therof gaue Josua with theyr brethren on this syde Jordan westwarde. And also when Josua sent them awaye vnto theyr tentes and blessed them, he sayde vnto them, returne with moche rychesse vnto youre tentes and with very moche catell, with syluer, golde, brasse, yron, and with rayment aboue measure and diuide the spoyle of youre ennemyes with youre brethren.

And the chyldren of Ruben the chyldren of Gad

Gad, and halfe the tribe of Manasses, returned and departed from the chyldren of Jsrael out of Silo, whiche is in the lande of Canaan, to go vnto the countreye of Galaad, and to the lande of theyr possession, wherin they were possessed at the mouthe of the Lorde by the hande of Moses. And when they came vnto the hylles of Jordan that lye in the lande of Canaan: there the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses, buylte an aulter faste by Jordan, and that a great aulter to se to. And when the chyldren of Jsrael herde saye: beholde, the chyldren of Ruben, the childrē of Gad, and the halfe tribe of Manasses haue buylt an aulter in the lore fronte of the lande of Canaan in the borders of Jordan on the syde of the chyldren of Jsrael: the hole congregacion of the chyldren of Jsrael gathered them togither to Silo to go vpon them with batayle.

And the chyldren of Jsrael sente vnto the chyldren of Ruben, to the chyldren of Gad, & to the halfe tribe of Manasses in to the lande of Galaad, Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preeste, and with him tenne lordes, of euerye chyefe house a lorde, thorowe oute all the trybes of Jsrael, whiche heades of theyr fathers housholdes were ouer the thousandes of Jsrael. And they went vnto the children of Ruben, of Gad, and to the halfe trybe of Manasses, vnto the lande of Galaad, and spake with them sayinge.

Thus saye the hole congregacion of the Lorde: what trāsgression is this that ye haue transgressed agaynste the God of Jsrael, to turne awaye this daye from after the Lorde, and to buylde you an aulter for to rebell this daye agaynst the Lorde? Is the wycked dede of Belphegor to lytle for vs, wherof we are not cleensed vnto this daye, and moche people were slayne, but that ye also sholde tourne awaye this daye frome folowynge the Lorde? Ye shall rebell to daye agaynste the Lorde, & to morowe he shall be wroth with all the congregacion. Notwithstandynge yf the lande of your possession be vncleane, then come ouer vn to the lande of the possession of the Lorde, where the Lordes tabernacle dwelleth, and be possessed amonges vs. But rebell not agaynste the Lorde, nor agaynste vs, to buylde you anye other aulter, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God. Dyd not Achan the sonne of Zareh transgresse the commaundement of the Lorde, and wrath fell on all the congregacion of Jsrael, so that he alone perysshed not for his wyckednesse?

Then the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad, and halfe the trybe of Manasses, answered and sayde vnto the heades ouer the thousandes of Jsrael. The myghtye God, the almyghtye Lorde he knoweth, and Jsrael shall knowe yf it be to rebell or transgresse agaynst the Lorde, then spe Lorde saue vs not this daye.

Or elles yf we haue buylte vs an aulter to turne from folowynge the Lorde, or to offre theron burnt offeryngs or meat offeryngs, or to offre praye offeryngs theron, let the Lorde requyre it: And haue not rather doone it for feare of this, leest in tyme to come youre chyldren shoulde saye vnto oures: What haue ye to doo with the Lorde God of Jsrael, seynge that the Lorde hathe made Jordan a border betwene vs and you ye chyldren of Ruben and of Gad: ye haue no parte therfore in the Lorde / and so shall youre children make oure thyldren cease frome fearynge the Lorde.

Therfore we thoughte it better, and sayde: Lette vs cause an aulter to be made, not for burnt offeryngs, nor sacrifyces, but it shall be a token betwene vs and you, and oure generacyons after vs, that we shoulde serue the Lorde, with oure offeryngs, sacrifyces, and peace offeryngs: and that youre chyldren shoulde not saye to oures in tyme to come: ye haue no parte in the Lorde. Geneli.xxxi. Deuter.xxx.d Josue.xxiiii.k

And we thought, yf they sholde so saye to vs, or to oure generacions in tyme to come, that we wolde saye agayne: Beholde the facyon of the aulter whiche oure fathers made, neyther for burnt offeryngs, nor sacrifyces, but that it sholde be a wytnesse betwene vs and you. God forbyd that we sholde rebell agaynste the Lorde, and that we sholde turne this daye frome after him, and buylde an aulter for burnt offeryngs or sacrifices, saue the aulter of the Lorde oure God that is before his tabernacle.

And when Phinehes the Preeste and the Lordes of the congregacyon, and heades ouer the thousandes of Jsrael whiche were with hym, herde the wordes that the chyldren of Ruben, the chyldren of Gad, and the chyldren of Manasses spake, they were well content.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preeste sayde vnto the chyldren of Ruben, of Gad and of Manasses, this daye we perceyue that the Lorde is amonge vs, because ye haue not doone this trespace agaynste the Lorde. And nowe ye haue rydde the chyldē of Jsrael oute of the handes of the Lorde.

And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar the Preeste and the Lordes returned frome the chyldren of Ruben and of Gad out of the lande of Galaad vnto the lande of Canaan, to the chyldren of Jsrael, and broughte them worde agayne. And the answere pleased the chyldren of Jsrael well, and they praysed God, and dyd not intende to goo agaynste them in battayle, to destroye the lande whyche the chyldren of Ruben and Gad dwelte in. And the chyldren of Ruben and the chyldren of Gad called the aulter ❊ Ed, because it is a wytnesse betwene vs, that the Lorde is God.

¶ Josua exhorteth the people to the kepynge of the law. He dyeth. The bones of Joseph are buryed. Eleazar dyeth.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A And Josua gathered all the trybes of Israel to Sichem, and called for the elders of Israel, and for theyr heedes Judges and offycers, whiche presented them selues before God. And Josua sayde vnto all the people: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel. * Youre fathers dwelte on the other syde of the floude in olde tyme, euen Thareh the father of Abraham and Nachor, and serued straunge goddes. But I toke your father Abraham frome the other syde of the floude and broughte him in to the lande of Canaan, and multiplyed his seed, and gaue him Isaac. And I gaue vnto Isaac, Jacob, and Esau. And I gaue vnto Esau mounte Seir to possesse it. But Jacob and his chyldren wente downe in to Egypt.

* Then I sente Moses and Aaron. And I stroke Egypte in manye signes and wonders, and after y I brought you your fathers out of Egypte. And ye came vnto the see, and the Egyptians folowed after your fathers with charettes and horsmen, vnto the redde see. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde. And he put darkenesse bytwene you and the Egyptians, and broughte the see vpon them & couered them.

And your eyes haue sene what I haue done in Egypte. And ye dwelte in the wyldernesse a longe season. And I broughte you in to the lande of the Amorites, whiche dwelte on the other syde Jordan. And they foughte agaynste you: and I gaue them in to your handes. And ye conquered theyr countrey, and ye destroyed them.

Then Balak the sonne of Ziphor, kynge of Moab, arose and warred agaynste Israel, and sente and * called Balam the sonne of Beor for to curse you. But I wolde not agree to harken vnto Balam and therfore he blessed you: And so I delyuered you oute of his hande. And when he wente ouer Jordan, and came vnto Jericho, the citizyns of Jericho foughte agaynste you: the Amorytes, Pherezites, Canaanites, Hethites, Girgesites, Heuytes, Jebusites, whiche I delyuered into your handes.

And I sent * hornettes before you and ye caste oute before you: euen the two kynges of the Amorytes, but not with youre owne swerde, or with your owne bowe. And I gaue you a lande in whiche ye dyd no laboure, and cityes whiche you buylte not, and ye dwelte in them. And vynes, and olyue trees whiche ye planted not.

And now feare the Lorde and serue hym in purenesse and truthe. And put awaye the goddes whiche youre fathers serued in Mesopotamia, and in Egypte, and serue the Lorde. But if it seme euyl vnto you to serue the Lord then chose you this day whom you will serue whether the Goddes, whiche youre fathers serued serued that were on the other syde of y floude, eyther the Goddes of the Amorites, in whose lande ye dwelt, and I and my house wyl serue the Lorde.

And the people answered and sayde, God forbyd that we sholde forsake the Lorde and serue straunge goddes. For the Lorde our God he it is that brought vs and our fathers oute of the lande of Egypte, the house of bondage, and whiche dyd those myracles in our syghte, and preserued vs in all the waye we went and amonge all the nacions whiche we came thorowe. And the Lorde dyd cast out before vs all the nacions with the Amorytes whiche dwelt in the lande, wherfore we wyl serue the Lorde for he is our God.

But Josua sayd vnto the people: ye can not C serue the Lorde, for he is an holye God, myghtye and gelous, and can not beare your transgression and synne. But when ye haue forsakē the Lorde, and haue serued straunge goddes, he wyl turne and do you euyll and consume you, after that he hathe doone you good. And the people answered Josua: not so / but we wyll serue the Lorde.

Then Josua sayd vnto the folke, ye are witnesses vnto your selues that ye haue chosē you the Lorde to serue hym: and they sayd we are witnesses. Then put away, sayd he, y straunge goddes which are amonge you, and bowe your hertes vnto the Lord God of Israel. And the people answered Josua: the Lorde oure God we wil serue, and his voyce we wil obeye. And so Josua made a couenaunt with the people the same daye, and set ordinaunces and lawes before them in Sichem.

And Josua wrote these wordes in the boke of the lawe of God, and toke a great stone and pytched it on ende in the sayd place / euen vnder an ooke that stode in the sanctuarye of the Lorde. And Josua sayd vnto all y people: Beholde, this stoone shall be a wytnesse vnto vs, for it hathe herde all the wordes of the Lorde whiche he spake with you. It shall be therfore a wytnesse vnto you, leest y after this tyme ye wyll denye and lye vnto your God. And so Josua let the people depart euery man vnto his enheritaunce.

And after these thynges the tyme came that Josua the sonne of Nun and the seruaunte of the Lorde dyed, being an hundred and ten yeres olde. Whom they buryed in the border of his inheritaunce, euen in Thamnath Sareh, which is in mount Ephraim, on the north syde of the hyll of Gaas.

G Jud.ii. Josue.xix.b

And Israel serued the Lorde all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that ouer lyued Josua, and which had sene all the workes of the Lorde that he had done to Israel. And the bones of Joseph whiche the children of Israel broughte oute of Egypte, they buried in Sichem, in a parcel of groūde which Jacob bought of the sonnes of Hemor, the father of Sichem, for an hundred shepe hogges, whiche parcell became the inheritaunce of the chyldren of Joseph. And Eleazar the sonne of Aaron died, whom they buryed in Gabaath that pertayned to Phinehes his son, and was gyuen hym in mounte Ephraim.

Josue.xxiii.a

After the deathe of Josua, the chyldren of Israel asked the Lorde sayinge: Who shall go vp first vnto the Canaanites to fyghte agaynst them? And ꝑ Lord sayde: Juda shall goo vp: beholde, I haue delyuered the lande in to his handes. Then Juda sayde vnto ꝙ Simeon his brother: come with me in to my lot, and let vs fight against the Canaanites. And I lykewyse wyll go with the in to thy lot. And so Simeon went with him.

ꝙ Simeon for the trybe of Simeon.

And Juda went vp, and the Lorde delyuered the Canaanytes and the Pherezites in to theyr handes. And they slewe of them in Bezek ten thousande men. And they founde Adonibezek in Bezek. And they fought against him and slewe ꝑ Canaanites and Pherezites. But

B

Adonibezek fled, and they folowed after him/ and caught him. And cut of his thombes and his greate toes. Then Adonibezek sayde: lxxx Lorde and ten kynges, haynge their thombes and great toes cut of, gathered their meat vnder my table: wherfore as I haue done, so god hath reacquited me. And they brought him to Jerusalem. And there he dyed.

that is the citye of lernynge.

And Caleb sayde: he that smyteth Kariath Sepher and taketh it, to him wil I gyue Achsah my doughter to wyfe. And Othoniel the sonne of Kenez Calebs younger brother toke it: to whome he gaue Achsah his doughter to wyfe, and as they wente her husbande counseyled her to aske of her father a felde.

And then she lyghted of her asse: and Caleb sayde vnto her: What ayleth the? She sayde vnto him: gyue me a blessynge, for thou hast gyuen me a Southwarde and drye lande gyue me also sprynges of water. And Caleb gaue her sprynges bothe aboue and benethe. And the chyldren of the Kenite Moses wyues father wente vp out of the citye of palme trees, with the chyldren of Juda, in to the wylderneste of Judas lotte that lyeth in the Southe of Arad, and dwelte amonge the people.

And Juda went and Simeon with him, and d they slewe the Canaanites that inhabited Zephath, and vtterly destroyed it, and called the name of the citye Hormah, that is a curse. And Juda toke Azah with ꝑ coostes therof, & Askalon with the coostes therof, and Akaron with the costes therof. And the Lorde was with Juda that he conquered ꝑ mountaynes, but they couldo not dryue out the inhabiters of the valleys, bicause they hadde charettes of yron. And they gaue Hebron vnto Caleb, as Moses sayd. And he expelled thence the thre sonnes of Enack.

And the chyldren of Ben Jamin dyd not e caste oute the Jebusites that enhabited Jerusalem, but the Jebusites dwell with ꝑ chyldren of Ben Jamin in Jerusalem, vnto this daye.

And in lyke maner the house of Joseph f went vp to Bethel, and the Lord with them, and when they besieged the citye which before tyme was called Lus, and sawe a man come out of the citye, they sayde vnto hym, shewe vs the waye in to the citye, and we wil shewe the mercye. And he shewed them the waye in to the citye, they smote it with the edge of the swerde, but they dyd let the man and all his houshold goo free. And the man went in to the lande of the Hethites, and buylte a citye and called the name therof Lus, which is the name therof vnto this daye.

Neyther dyd Manasses expelle Bethsean g with her townes / neyther Thaanach with ꝑ her townes, neither the inhabitours of Dor, with her townes/ neyther the inhabitours of Jeblaem with her townes / neyther the inhabitours of Magedo, with her townes/ and so the Canaanites went to and dwelt amonges them. But as sone as Israel was waxed mighty, they put the Canaanites to tribute, but expelled them not.

In lyke maner Ephraim expelled not the Canaanites that dwelt in Gazer, but the Canaanites dwelt styll in Gazer amonge them.

Neither did Zabulon expel the enhabitours of Ketron, neither the enhabitours of Nahalol. But the Canaanites dwelt amonge them and became tributaryes.

Neither dyd Aser caste out the enhabitours of Acho, neyther the inhabitours of Zidon, of Ahalab, Achzib, Halbah, Aphek, nor of Rehob, but the Aserites dwelte amonge the Canaanites the inhabitoures of the lande, and dyaue them not out.

Neyther dyd Nephthalim dryue oute the enhabitours of Bethsames, nor the enhabytoures of Bethanath, but dwel amongest the Canaanites the inhabitoures of the lande. Neuertheselle the enhabitours of Bethsames and of Bethanath became tributaryes vnto them.

And the Amorites kepte the chyldren of Dan in the mountayns, and suffered them not to come wyne to the valeyes. And so the Amorytes wente to and dwelled in mounte Heres that is to saye a witnesse in Halon and in Gabim. Neuertheselater the hande of Joseph ware heuye vpon them, so that they became tributaryes. And the coostes of the Amorytes was from the goyng vp to Acrabim, and from the rocke vpwarde.

CAPI. II.

And the aungell of the Lorde came vp from Galgall to Bocim, and sayde/ I broughte you out of Egypte, and haue brought you vnto the lande which I sware vnto your fathers. And I sayd that I wold neuer breke myne appoyntment with you, so that ye sholde make no couenaunt with ꝑ inhabitours of this lāde, but breke down their aulters: But ye haue not obeied my voice, why haue ye this done? wherfore I haue lykewyse determined that I will not call them out before you / but they shall be your ennemyes, and theyr goddes shall be your destruction. And when the aungell of the Lorde hadde spoken these wordes vnto all the chyldren of Israel, the people cryed oute and wepte. And called the name of the sayd place Bocim, and offered there vnto the Lorde.

And when Josua hadde sente the people awaye, the chyldren of Israel went euery man in to his inheritaunce to possesse the lande.

And the people serued the Lord all the dayes of Josua, and all the dayes of the elders that out lyued Josua, and hadde sene all the great workes of the Lord that he did to Israel. And Josua the sonne of Nun, the seruaunt of the Lorde dyed when he was an hundred and ten yeres olde: whome they buryed in the costes of his enheritaunce: euen in Thamnath Hares in mount Ephraim, on the northe syde of the hyll Gaas. And euen so al that generacion were put vnto theyr fathers/ and there arose an other generacion after them, which neither knewe the Lorde, nor yet the workes whiche he dyd vnto Israel.

And then the chyldren of Israel dyd wyckedly in the sight of the Lorde, & serued Baalim, and forsoke the Lorde God of theyr fathers, which brought them out of the lande of Egypt, and folowed straunge goddes. euen of the goddes of the nacions that were rounde about them, and bowed them selues vnto them and angred the Lorde. And so they forsoke the Lorde and serued Baal and Astharoth. Wherfore the Lorde ware angrye with Israel, and delyuered them in to the handes of raueners to spoyle them, and solde them in to the handes of their ennemyes rounde aboute them. so that they had no power any longer to stande before theyr ennemyes/ but vnto what so euer thynge they wente, the hande of the Lorde was vpon them with euyl lucke / euen as the Lorde promysed them. And as he sware vnto them. And they were sore vexed.

Neuertheselle, the Lorde rayled vp Judges whiche delyuered them out of the handes of their oppressers, and yet for all that they wold not herken vnto theyr Judges: But wente a hoorynge after straunge goddes, and bowed them selues vnto them, and turned quyckelye out of the waye whiche theyr fathers walked in obeyinge the commaundementes of the Lorde, and dyd not so.

Exodi.iii.d

And when the Lorde rayled them vp Judges in theyr dayes, he had compassion of them, and herde the lamentacion of the oppressed, and delyuered them out of the handes of their ennemyes/ yet for all that, as sone as ꝑ Judge was ded, they tourned and dyd worse then theyr fathers in folowynge straunge goddes, and in seruynge them, and ceased not frome theyr inuencions, nor frome theyr malicious wayes.

D

Jud.iii.b

Wherfore the Lorde was angrye with Israel and sayd: bicause this people hath transgressed my couenaunte whiche I made with theyr fathers, and haue not obeyed my voice, therfore henceforthe I wyll not caste oute one man before them of the nacions which Josua lefte when he dyed, and that to proue Israel thrughe them whether they wyll kepe the waye of the Lorde to walke therin as theyr fathers dyd or not. And so the Lorde left those nacyons alone, and dryue them not oute immediatly, neyther delyuered them in to the handes of Josua.

These are the nacions whiche the Lorde lefte to scourge Israel: euen as manye of Israel as had not knowen warres of Canaan: Onely for the lernynge of the generacion of the chyldren of Israel: which before knewe nothyng of warre, he left the fiue lordes of the Philistines, and all the Canaanites, the Sidonites, the Heuites ꝑ dwelt in mounte Libanon, euen frome mounte Baal Hermon vnto Hemath. Those God suffered to remayn to proue Israel by, & wete whether they wolde harken vnto the commaundementes of the Lorde, whiche he commaunded their fathers by the hande of Moses, or no.

And as the chyldren of Israel dwelte amonge the Canaanytes, Hethytes, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuytes, and Jebusites, they toke the doughters of them to be their wyues, and gaue theyr owne doughters to theyr sonnes, and serued theyr goddes. And so the chyldren of Israel dyd wyckedly in the syghte of the Lorde, and forgat the Lord theyr God and serued Baalim and Aseroth. Therfore the

ꝑ That is delyuered. his hande was myghtye ouer Chusan Rasathaim, and the lande hadde reste fourtye yeres. And Othoniel the sonne of Kenes dyed. And then the chyldren of Israel wente to agayne, and commytted wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde. And then the Lorde hardened Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, agaynste the chyldren of Israel, bycause they hadde commytted wickednesse before the Lorde. And this Eglon gadvered vnto him the chyldren of Ammon and the Amalekites, and went and smote the chyldren of Israel, and conquered the cytye of palme trees. And the chyldren of Israel Deuter.xxx.c serued Eglon the king of the Moabites.xviij. yeres. And then they cryed vnto the Lorde/ and the Lorde stered them vp a sauer, Ahud the sonne of Gera, the sonne of Jemini, a man that coulde doo nothynge handsomlye with his syght hande.

¶ By whome the chyldren of Israel sent a present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Ahud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte lengthe, and he dyd gyrde it vnder his cote vpon his syght thygye and carryed the present vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Eglon was a verye fatte man. And when he hadde presented the presente, he sente the people that bare it awaye, but he him selfe tourned agayne frome the ydolles by Salgall, and sayde: I haue a secrete vnto the, o kynge: and the kynge commaunded him to holde his peace, vntyll all that stode aboute hym, were gone oute frome hym.

And Ahud came in vnto him in to a sommer

And the hafte stopped in the fat, for he drewe not the dagger out of his bely, but as he stroke him, so lefte he the dagger in the wounde tyll that by the priuye partes of nature the dyrte came out. And Ahud gat him out at a posterne wore, and shut the dores of the parlour vpon him, and locked them. The kynges seruauntes came and loked, and se the wores of the parlour were locked, they sayde: A, he is a doyng of his easement in his sommer chamber. And when they had taried tyl they were ashamed, for no man dyd the wores of the parlour open, then they toke a kepe and opened them. And beholde, their Lord was fallen downe dead vn to the erth. But Ahud escaped whyle they tareyed, and was gone beyonde the quarryes, and Nume.x.a escaped into Seirath.
Iudi.vi.a

And when he was come, he blewe a trompet in mounte Ephraim. And the chyldren of Israel went down with him, e he before them, and sayd vnto them: folow me/ for the Lorde hathe delyuered your enemyes the Moabites in to youre handes. And they descended after hym, and stopped the ferryes of Jordan frome the Moabites, and suffered not a man to passe ouer. And they slewe of the Moabites ꝑ same tyme vpon a ten thousande men, all fat, and men of myghte: that there scaped not a man, and so the Moabites were subdued that daye vnder the handes of Israel/ and the lande had reste foure score yeres.

And after him came Samgar the sonne of Anath, whiche slewe of the Philistines fyue hundred men with an oxe gode, and delyuered Israel also.

¶ Israel is commyted in to the handes of Jabin, because they were returned to Idolatrye. Debora and Barak delyuer them: Sisara is kylled of Jael.

CAPI. IIII.

AND the chyldren of Israel began again to wickedly in the syght of the Lord when Ahud was deed. And the Lorde ꝑ solde them in to the handes of Jabin kynge of Canaan, that raygned in Hasor/ whose Capitayne of warre was Sisara, whiche dweite in Haroseth of the Gentyles. And the chyldren of Israel cryed vnto the Lorde/ for he had nyne hundred charettes of yron/ he oppressed the chyldren of Israell with powre twentye yeres.

And Debora a Prophetesse, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Israel the same tyme, and dweite vnder the palme tree of Debora, bytwene Ramath and Bethel, in mounte Ephraim.

And the chyldren of Israel came to her for iudgement. And she sent and called Barak the sonne of Abinoam, out of Kedes Nephthalim and sayd vnto him.

The Lorde God of Israel commaundeth the that thou goo and leade an hoost vnto mounte Thabor, and take with the ten thousande men, of the chyldren of Nephthalim, and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And I wyll bring vnto the at the ryuer of Kison, Sisara the Capitayne of warre vnto Jabin, with his charettes and his people, and wyll delyuer them in to thyne handes. And Barak sayd vnto her, yf thou wylt go with me, I wyll go: but and yf thou wylt not go with me, then I wyll not go. And she answered/ I wyll surely goo with the, but then the prayse shall not be thyne in ꝑ waye which thou goest, for the Lorde shal sell Sisara in to the handes of a woman. And she arose and went with Barak to Kedes/ and Barak called Zabulon and Nephthalim, out vp with ten thousande men: & Debora wente with him.

But Haber the Kenyte went oute of kynde frome the other Kenites his brethren, the chyldren of ꝑ Hobab who was father to Moses wyfe, and pitched his tente vntyl he was come to the oke of Zaanaim, by Kedes.

And then it was shewed vnto Sisara how that that Barak the sonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mounte Thabor. And Sisara called for all his charettes, euen. ix. hundred charettes of yron, and all for the people that he had frome Haroseth of the Gentyles, vnto the ryuer of

a. Kison. Then sayd Debora vnto Barak: vp, for this is the daye in whiche the Lorde hath delyuered Sisara in to thyne handes/ for the Lord
E is gone oute before the. And so Barak wente downe frome mounte Thabor, and ten thousande men after him.

But the Lorde trounsed Sisara and all his charettes, and all his hoste with the edge of the swerde before Barak. And Sisara lyghted downe of his charet, and fledde a fote. But Barak folowed after the charettes, and after the hoste, euen vnto Haroseth of the Gentyles. And all the hoste of Sisara fell vpon the edge of the swerde, that there was not a man lefte. How be it Sisara fledde a fote to the tent of Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite/ for there was peax bitwene Jabin the kynge of Hasor, and the housholde of Haber the Kenyte.

And Jael wente oute agaynste Sisara and sayde vnto hym: tourne in my Lorde, tourne in to me, and feare not. And he turned in to her in to her tent: & she couered him with a mantel. And he sayd vnto her: gyue me a lytel water to drynke, for I am thirsty. And she opened a bottell of mylke, and gaue him drynke and couered him. And he sayd vnto her, stande in ꝑ
D dore of thy tent, and yf any mā come and aske the, or enquyre of the whether there be anye man here, saye naye.

Then Jael Habers wyfe toke a nayle of the tent, and an hammer in her hande, & went softlye vnto him, and smote the nayle with the hammer thorowe the temples of his heed in to the grounde, and as he slombered beyng werye, he dyed.

And beholde as Barak folowed after Sisara, Jael came oute agaynste him, and sayde vnto him: Come, and I wyll shewe the the man whome thou seekest. And when he came in to her tent: Beholde Sisara laye deed, and the nayle thorowe his temples. And so God broughte Jaben the kynge of Canaan in to
F subiection that daye before the chyldren of Israel. And the hande of the chyldren of Israel prospered, and was sore vpon Jaben the kynge of Canaan, vntyll they hadde brought him to nought.

Where as the charettes were broken a peces, where the hoste of oure aduersaries was choked, there shall they tell of the iustice of the Lorde, & how gracious was the stronge God of Israel: then the people of the Lorde went downe vnto the gates, & wan the maistrye.

Vp vp Debora, vp vp and synge a songe, vp Barak and take thy praye, thou sonne of Abinoam. Then they that had escaped, vnder Israel paigned ouer the prouesse of the people. The Lorde fought amonges the stronge.

¶ Iſrael is oppꝛeſſed of the Madianites, becauſe he returned agayne into Idolatrye. Gedeon is ſent of God to be theyr delyuerer. The aulter of Baal is ouerthꝛowen.

CAPI. VI.

A Nd the chyldꝛen of Iſrael commytted wyckednes in the ſyghte of the Lo⁊de. And the Lo⁊de delyuered theym in to the handes of the Madianites ſeuen peres. And when the hande of the Madianites was ſo⁊e vpon Iſrael, the chyldꝛen of Iſrael made them dennes in the mountaynes, and caues, and ſtronge holdes. Fo⁊ when Iſraell had ſowen, thē came the Madianites, the Amalekites, and they of the Eaſte countreye vpon them, and pitched their tentes agaynſte them, and deſtroyed the encreaſe of the erth euen vn to Azah, and left no ſuſtinaunce in Iſrael, neither ſhepe, oxe, o⁊ aſſe / fo⁊ they came with their cattell and houſholdes, euen as greſſhoppers in multitude / ſo that bothe they and alſo their camels were without nombꝛe, and waſted all that euer they layde handes on. And they entꝛed the lande to deſtroy it. And ſo was Iſrael exceedyngly impouerliſhed by the Madianites, and cryed vnto the Lo⁊de. And when the chyldꝛen of Iſrael cryed vnto the Lo⁊de bycauſe of B the Madianites, the Lo⁊de ſent a pꝛophet vnto them, and ſayd vnto them. Thus ſayeth the Lo⁊de God of Iſrael, I fet you from Egypte and brought you out of the houſe of bondage, and I ryd you out of ỹ hand of the Egyptias, and out of the handes of al that oppꝛeſſed you, and caſt them out before you, & gaue you theyr landes. And I ſayd vnto you, I am the Lo⁊de your God, and therfo⁊e feare not the Goddes iiii.Mo.xxiii.g of the Amo⁊ites in whoſe land you dwel. But Iere.v.g you wolde not obeye my voyce. And the aungell of the Lo⁊de came and ſate vnder an oke in Ephꝛah that pertayned vnto Joas the fa⁊ther of the Eſerites. And his ſonne Gedeon pꝛeſſed out whete oute of the eares in a pꝛeſſe, fo⁊ to flee from the Madianites. And the aun geil of the Lo⁊de appeared vnto him, and ſaid: C the Lo⁊de is with the, thou man of myght. And Gedeon anſwered him: Oh my Lo⁊de, if the Lo⁊de be with vs, why is all this come vpon vs: ye and where be his myꝛacles which our fathers tolde vs of, and ſayde: the Lo⁊de b⁊ought vs out of Egypt. But now the Lo⁊d hathe fo⁊ſaken vs, and delyuered vs in to the handes of the Madianites. And the Lo⁊de lo ked vpon him, and ſayd: Go hence in this thy myght, and delyuer Iſrael out of the handes of the Madianites: Behold, I haue ſent the. And he anſwered him. Oh Lo⁊de, wherwith ſholde I ſaue Iſrael? Beholde my kynred is the poo⁊eſt in Manaſſes, and I am the leaſt in my fathers houſe. But then the Lo⁊de ſayde vnto hym: I wyl be with the / and thou ſhalt ſmyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he anſwered him, yf I haue founde grace in thy ſyghte, then ſhewe me a ſygne, that thou art the Lo⁊de that talkeſt with me. Departe not hence, vntyll I come agayne vn D to the, and b⁊ynge myne offe⁊ynge, and haue ſet it before the.

And he ſayd, I wyll tarye vntyll thou come agayne. And Gedeon wente and made rea⁊e a kydde, and ſwete cakes of an Epha of flour, & put the fleſſhe in a baſket, and the b⁊othe in a pot, and b⁊ought it out vnto him vnder ỹ oke and pꝛeſented it. And the aungell of God ſaid vnto him: take the fleſh and the ſwete cakes and put them vpon this rocke, and poure out the b⁊othe. And he dyd ſo. Then the aungel of the Lo⁊de put fo⁊th the ende of the ſtaffe that was in his hande, and touched the fleſſhe and the cakes. And there aroſe vp fyꝛe oute of the E rocke and conſumed the fleſſhe and the cakes, and the aungell of the Lo⁊de vaniſſhed oute of his ſyght. And whē Gedeon pe⁊ceyued that it was an aungell, he ſayd: alas my Lo⁊de almighty, that I haue ſene an aungell of the Lo⁊de face to face. And the Lo⁊de ſayde vnto him, peax be with the, and feare not / fo⁊ thou ſhalte not dye. Then Gedeon made an aulter there vnto the Lo⁊de, and called it ỹ Jehouah, Halom, which vnto this day is yet in Ephꝛah that pertayneth vnto the father of the Eſerites. And the ſame nyght the Lo⁊d ſayd vnto him, take an oxe of thy fathers, and an other of ſeuen peres olde, and deſtroye the aulter of Baal that belongeth vnto thy father, and cut downe the groue that is aboute it, and make an aulter vnto the Lo⁊de thy God vpon the top of this rocke and furniſſhe it. And take the ſeconde oxe and offre burnte ſacrifyce with the wodde of the groue whiche thou ſhalte haue cut downe. Then Gedeon toke ten men of his ſeruaunces, & dyd as the Lo⁊de bad him. But bycauſe he durſte not do it by daye, fo⁊ feare of his fathers houſholde, and of the men of the citye, he dyd it by nyght.

When the men of the citye were vp erly in the mo⁊nynge: Beholde, the aulter of Baal was b⁊oken, and the groue that ſtode aboue it cut downe. And the ſeconde oxe offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they ſayd one to an other: Who hathe done this thing, and they enquyꝛed and aſked fo⁊ him that ſholde haue wone ỹ dede. It was tolde them that Ge ꝛon the ſonne of Joas hadde doone it. Then the men of the citye ſayde vnto Joas, b⁊ynge oute thy ſonne that he maye dye, bycauſe he hath b⁊oken the aulter of Baal, and cut d⁊wn the groue that was aboute it. And Joas ſayde vnto all ỹ ſtode by him / will ye fyght fo⁊ Baal, o⁊ wil ye be his defenders? he that ſtryueth fo⁊ him, ſhall dye afo⁊e to mo⁊ow. Yf he be a God let him reuenge his quarel vpon him that caſt dwne his aulter. And he called Gedeon Jero baal the ſame time ſaying: let Baal reacquyte him, bycauſe he hath b⁊oken dwne his aulter.

G When all the Madianites, the Amalekites and they of the Eaſt were gathered togyther, and had gone and pitched in the valeye of Je zrael, the ſpirite of the Lo⁊de entred in to Ge don. And he blewe a trompet and called togy ther the houſe of Abiezer to folowe him, and ſent meſſengers thoꝛow out al Manaſſes, and called them vp to folow him alſo. And he ſent other meſſengers vnto Aſer, Zabulon & Neph thalim, whiche came alſo to mete him.

And Gedeon ſayd vnto God: yf thou wilt ſaue Iſrael by my hande, as thou haſte ſayde. Beholde, I wyll put a flece of wolle in the threſſhynge place. And yf the dewe be on the flece onely, and dꝛye vpon all the earth beſyde: then I ſhal be ſure that thou wylt ſaue Iſrael by my hande, as thou ſaydeſt. And it came ſo to paſſe. And he roſe vp erly on the mo⁊owe, and he pꝛeſſed the flece togither, & wꝛong the dewe therout, and filled a dyſſhe full of water. And Gedeon ſayd vnto God, be not angry with me that I ſpeake ones mo⁊e, let me pꝛoue onely ones agayne with the flece. Let it be dꝛye onely vpon the flece, and dew vpon al the ground aboute. And God dyd ſo that ſame nyght: ſo that it was dꝛye vpon the flece onely, and on all the grounde aboute, dewe.

¶ The ſouldyars that ſholde goo with Gedeon to battayle are proued by takinge them vp water. Gedeon with thꝛe hundred men ouercōmeth the Madianites. Oꝛeb and zeb are ſlayne.

CAPI. VII.

THen Jerobaal, otherwiſe called Gedeon roſe eꝛlye, and all the people that were with him & pitched beſide the well of Ha rad, ſo that the hoſte of the Madianites were in a baley on the north ſyde of the hyll Hamo reh. And the Lo⁊de ſayd vnto Gedeon, the peo ple that are with the, are to manye fo⁊ me to gyue the Madianites in to their handes, leeſt Iſrael make their vaunt to my diſhonour, and ſay / our owne hande hath ſaued vs. Now ther fo⁊e make a pꝛoclamation in the eares of the people, and ſaye: whoſoeuer man dꝛede or be a fꝛede, let him ꝛeturne, and get him ſone fro⁊me mounte Galaad / and there departed and re turned of the people xxij. thouſande, and there abode ten thouſande.

And the Lo⁊de ſayd vnto Gedeon the peo- D ple are yet to many, b⁊ynge them downe vnto the water, and I wyll tꝛye them vnto the there. And of whome I ſaye vnto the, this ſhall goo with the, the ſame ſhall goo with the. And who ſo euer I ſaye vnto the, this ſhal not go with the / the ſame ſhall not goo. And when he hadde b⁊oughte wyne the people vn to the water. The Lo⁊de ſayde vnto Gedeon: as manye as lappe the water with theyr tonges, as dogges do, them put by them ſelues / and ſo who them that knele downe vpon theyr knees to dynke. And the nombꝛe of them that put their handes to their mouthes and lap ped, were thꝛe hundꝛed men / and all the remnaunt of the people kneled downe vpon their knees to dynke water. And the Lo⁊de ſayde vnto Gedeon, with the thꝛe hundꝛed men that lapped water wyl I ſaue you, and delyuer the Madianites in to tꝛyne handes / and all the other people ſhall goo euery man to his owne E home.

And they toke vitayles with them fo⁊ the folke, and theyr trompettes / and he ſente all the reſte of Iſrael, euery man vnto his tente, and kept the thꝛe hundꝛed with him / and the hoſte of Madian was benethe him in a valey. And the ſame nyght the Lo⁊de ſayd vnto him vp, and goo downe vnto the hoſte, fo⁊ I haue delyuered it in to thyne hande. But & yf thou feare to go downe alone, then go thou downe vnto the hoſte, and Pharah thy lad, and herke wyat they ſaye, and ſo ſhall thyne handes be ſtronge, and then thou ſhalte ſafely go dwne vnto the hoſte.

Then he went downe with Pharah his lad euen hard vnto the warethe men of armes that were in the hoſte. And the Madianites, the Amalekites, and all they of the Eaſte, laye a longe in the valeye lyke vnto greſſhoppers in multitude, and theyr camels were without nombꝛe, euen as the ſande by the ſee ſyde. And when Gedeon was come. Beholde, there was a man that tolde a dꝛeame vnto his felowe, and ſayd on this maner. Beholde I dꝛeamed a D dꝛeame, and me thoughte that an harthbakte lofe of barleye bꝛead tombled in to the hoſt of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and ſmote it that it fel, and ouerturned it, that the tent lay alonge. And his felowe anſwered and ſayde, this is nothyng els ſaue the ſwerde of Gede on the ſonne of Joas a man of Iſrael. in to whoſe handꝛ the Lo⁊de hathe delyuered Ma dian and all the hoſte.

When Gedeon herde the tellynge of E the dꝛeame, and the meanynge therof, he bo wed him ſelfe to the erthe, and returned vnto the hoſte of Iſrael, and ſayde: vp, fo⁊ ỹ Lo⁊d hathe delyuered in to youre handes the hoſte of the Madianites. And he diuyded the thꝛe hundꝛed men in to thꝛe compaynes, and gaue euꝛye man a trompet in his hande, with an empꝛye pytcher, and lampes therin, and ſayde vnto them: loke on me, and do lyke wyſe / and beholde, when I come to the ſyde of the Judi.g.d hoſte / euen as I doo, ſo do you. And when I blowe with a trompet and all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes alſo on euꝛye

And then the chyldren of Jſrael cryed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde ſtered them vp Jud.i a ſauer, and ſaued them: one Othoniel the ſonne of Kenes, and Calebs yonger brother. And the ſpirete of the Lorde came vpon hym/ and he iudged Jſrael, and wente oute to ꝓ That is de- lyuered. his hande was myghtye ouer Chuſan Raſathaim, and the lande hadde reſte fourtye yeres. And Othoniel the ſonne of Kenes dyed. And then the chyldren of Jſrael wente to agayne, and commytted wyckednelle in the ſyghte of the Lorde. And then the Lorde hardened Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, agaynſte the chyldren of Jſrael, bycauſe they hadde commytted wickednelle before the Lorde. And this Eglon gathered vnto him the chyldren of Ammon and the Amalekites, and went and ſmote the chyldren of Jſrael, and conquered the cytye of palme trees. And the chyldren of Jſrael Deuter.xxx.c ſerued Eglon the king of the Moabites.xviij. yeres. And then they cryed vnto the Lorde/ and the Lorde ſtered them vp a ſauer, Ahud the ſonne of Gera, the ſonne of Jemini, a man that couldo doo nothynge handſomlye with his ryght hande.

L By whome the chyldren of Jſrael ſent a preſent vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Ahud made him a dagger with two edges, of a cubyte lengthe, and he dyd gyrde it vnder his cote vpon his ryght thygye and caryed the preſent vnto Eglon the kynge of the Moabites, whiche Eglon was a verye fatte man. And when he hadde preſented the preſente, he ſente the people that bare it awaye, but he him ſelfe tourned agayne frome the ydolles by Galgall, and ſayde: J haue a ſecrete vnto the, o kynge: and the kynge commaunded him to holde his peace, vntyll all that ſtode aboute hym, were gone oute frome hym.

And Ahud came in vnto him in to a ſommer
ii.Regū.iiij.e chamber, where he ſate alone, and ſayde: J haue a meſſage vnto the frome God. And he arose out of his ſeate/ and Ahud put forth his lefte hande, and toke the dagger frome his ryghte thyghe, and thruſte it ſo harde in to his belye, ſo that the hafte went in after the blade.
D And the hafte ſtopped in the fat, for he drewe not the dagger out of his belye, but as he ſtroke him, ſo lefte he the dagger in the wounde tyll that by the priuye partes of nature the dyrte came out. And Ahud gat him out at a poſterne wore, and ſhut the dores of the parlour vpon him, and locked them. The kynges ſeruaunces came and loked, and ſe the wores of the parlour were locked, they ſayde: A, he is a doyng of his eaſement in his ſommer chamber. And when they had taried tyl they were aſhamed, for no man dyd the wores of the parlour open, then they toke a keye and opened them. And beholde, their Lord was fallen downe dead vn to the erth. But Ahud eſcaped whyle they taryed, and was gone beyonde the quarryes, and Numer.x.a eſcaped into Seirath.

And when he was come, he blewe a trompet in mounte Ephraim. And the chyldren of Jſrael went down with him, & he before them, and ſayd vnto them: folow me/ for the Lorde hathe delyuered your enemyes the Moabites in to youre handes. And they deſcended after hym, and ſtopped the ferryes of Jordan frome the Moabites, and ſuffered not a man to paſſe ouer. And they ſlewe of the Moabites ꝑ ſame tyme vpon a ten thouſande men, all fat, and men of myghte: that there ſcaped not a man, and ſo the Moabites were ſubdued that daye vnder the handes of Jſrael/ and the lande had reſte foure ſcore yeres.

And after him came Samgar the ſonne of
E Anath, whiche ſlewe of the Philiſtines ſixe hundred men with an oxe gode, and delyuered Jſrael alſo.

¶ Jſrael is commyted in to the handes of Jabin, becauſe they were returned to Idolatrye. Debora and Barak delyuer them: Siſara is kylled of Jael.

CAPI. IIII.

AND the chyldren of Jſrael began again to do wickedly in the ſyght of the Lord when Ahud was deed. And the Lorde ꝓ ſolde them in to the handes of Jabin kynge of Canaan, that raygned in Hazor/ whoſe Capitayne of warre was Siſara, whiche dweite in Haroſeth of the Gentyles. And the chyldren of Jſrael cryed vnto the Lorde/ for he had nyne hundred charettes of yron/ he oppreſſed the chyldren of Jſraell with power twentye yeres.

And Debora a Pzopheteſſe, the wyfe of Lapidoth iudged Jſrael the ſame tyme, and dweite vnder the palme tree of Debora, bytwene Ramath and Bethel, in mounte Ephraim.

And the chyldren of Jſrael came to her for iudgement. And ſhe ſent and called Barak the ſonne of Abinoam, out of Kedes Nephthalim and ſayd vnto him.

The Lorde God of Jſrael commaundeth the that thou goo and leade an hoofte vnto mounte Thabor, and take with the ten thouſande men, of the chyldren of Nephthalim, and of the chyldren of Zabulon. And J wyl bring vnto the at the ryuer of Kiſon, Siſara the Capitayne of warre vnto Jabin, with his charettes and his people, and wyll delyuer them in to thyne handes. And Barak ſayd vnto her, if thou wylt go with me, J wyll go: but and if thou wylt not go with me, then J wyll not go. And ſhe anſwered/ J wyll ſurely goo with the, but then the prayſe ſhall not be thyne in the waye which thou goeſt, for the Lorde ſhall deliuer Siſara in to the handes of a woman. And ſhe arose and went with Barak to Kedes/ and Barak called Zabulon and Nephthalim, out of with ten thouſande men: & Debora wente with him.

But Haber the Kenyte went oute of kynde from the other Kenites his brethren, the chyldren of ꝓ Hobab who was father to Moſes wyfe, and pitched his tent vntyl he was come to the oke of Zaanaim, by Kedes.

And then it was ſhewed vnto Siſara how that that Barak the ſonne of Abinoam was gone vp to mounte Thabor. And Siſara called for all his charettes, euen. ix. hundred charettes of yron, and all for the people that he had frome Haroſeth of the Gentyles, vnto the ryuer of a Kiſon. Then ſaid Debora vnto Barak: vp, for this is the daye in whiche the Lorde hath delyuered Siſara in to thyne handes/ for the Lord

L is gone oute before the. And ſo Barak wente downe frome mounte Thabor, and ten thouſande men after him.

But the Lorde trouſled Siſara and all his charettes, and all his hoſte with the edge of the ſwerde before Barak. And Siſara lyghted downe of his charet, and fledde a fote. But Barak folowed after the charettes, and after the hoſte, euen vnto Haroſeth of the Gentyles. And all the hoſte of Siſara fell vpon the edge of the ſwerde, that there was not a man lefte. Yow be it Siſara fledde a fote to the tent of Jael the wyfe of Haber the Kenite/ for there was peax bitwene Jabin the kynge of Hazor, and the houſholde of Haber the Kenyte.

And Jael wente oute agaynſte Siſara and ſayde vnto hym: tourne in my Lorde, tourne in to me, and feare not. And he turned in to her
g in to her tent: & ſhe couered him with a mantel. And he ſayd vnto her: gyue me a lytel water to drynke, for J am thirſty. And ſhe opened a bottell of mylke, and gaue him drynke and
D wore of thy tent, and yf any mā come and aſke the, or enquyre of the whether there be anye man here, ſaye naye.

Then Jael Habers wyfe toke a nayle of the tent, and an hammer in her hande, & went ſoftlye vnto him, and ſmote the nayle with the hammer thorowe the temples of his heed in to the grounde, and as he ſlombered beyng werye, he dyed.

And beholde as Barak folowed after Siſara, Jael came oute agaynſte him, and ſayde vnto him: Come, and J wyll ſhewe the the man whome thou ſeketh. And when he came in to her tent: Beholde Siſara laye deed, and the nayle thorowe his temples. And ſo God broughte Jaben the kynge of Canaan in to ſubiection that daye before the chyldren of Jſrael. And the hande of the chyldren of Jſrael proſpered, and was fore vpon Jaben the kynge of Canaan, vntyll they hadde brought him to nought.

God chooſe new factions of warre, for when
b they had warre at their gates/ there was not ſene amonge fourtye thouſande, eyther ſheide or ſpere in Jſrael. Myne hert loueth the mainteners of the lawe in Jſrael, ye that willingly haue put youre ſelues in aduenture, bleſſe ye the Lorde, ye that ryde on goodly aſſes, and dwell beſyde Aziodin. And ye ꝑ walke by the wayes, make dities. Where as the charettes were broken a peces, where the hoſte of oure aduerſaries was choked, there ſhall they tell of the iuſtice of the Lorde, & how gracious was the ſtronge God of Jſrael: then the people of the Lorde went downe vnto the gates, & wan the maſtrye.

Vp vp Debora, vp vp and ſynge a ſonge, vp Barak and take thy praye, thou ſonne of Abinoam. Then they that had eſcaped, vnder Jſrael raigned ouer the prouēce of the people. The Lorde fought amonges the ſtronge.

Ephraim was the fyrſt that deſtroyed Amalek. And after hym Ben Jamin, amonge the people.

Of Machir came lerned men in the lawe, Judi.iij.b
and of Zabulon that well couide conueye an hoſte to warre.

The Lordes of Iſakar were with Debora. L
And as Barak, euen ſo was Iſakar ſente in to the valeye a fote, and put his life in auenture. But in the diuiſions of Ruben were great imaginations of herte.

Wherfore abodeſt thou amonge the theype foldes, to heare the bleatynges of the flockes. In the diuiſyons of Ruben greate were the ymaginations of herte. Galaad abode on the other ſyde Jordā, and caryed Dan in thyppes. And Aſer ſate in the hauens of the ſee, and abode ſtyll in his owne coaſtes. But Zabulon is a people that put their lyues in leopardye of deathe, and Nephthalim in lyke maner, euen vnto the toppe of the feldes, kynges came and fought. Then fought the kynge of Canaan at Thanach, vpon the water of Magedo. But the ſyluer that they coueted, they caryed not awaye.

Frome heuen came batayle: for the ſterres beyng in their courſe, fought agaynſt Siſara. The ryuer of Kiſon caught them awaye: that auncient riuer, the riuer Kiſon.

Oh ſoule, treade thou the myghtye vnder fote. Then their horſes ſtombled as they fledde, that their mighty courſers lefte praunſynge.

Curſe ye Meroz, bad ꝑ aungell of the Lorde curſe, curſe ꝑ inhabitours therof, bicauſe they D

Betwene her fete he ſprauled and laye deed
lyke a wretche.

Thorow a wyndow loked Siſaras mother
and houled out of her chambre, why abideth
his charet ſo longe that it commeth not, why
tary the wheles of his waggans? The wyſeſt

¶ Iſrael is oppreſſed of the Madianites, becauſe he returned agayne into Idolatrye. Gedeon is ſent of God to be theyr delyuerer. The aulter of Baal is ouerthrowen.

CAPI. VI.

A And the chyldren of Iſrael commytted
wyckednes in the ſyghte of the Lorde.
And the Lorde delyuered theym in to the handes of the Madianites ſeuen yeres.
And when the hande of the Madianites was ſore vpon Iſrael, the chyldren of Iſrael made them dennes in the mountaynes, and caues,
and ſtronge holdes. For when Iſraell hadde ſowen, the came the Madianites, the Amale-kites, and they of the Eaſte countreye vpon
them, and pitched their tentes agaynſte them,
and deſtroyed the encreaſe of the erth euen vn
to Azah, and left no ſuſtinaunce in Iſrael, neither ſhepe, oxe, or aſſe / for they came with their cattell and houſholdes, euen as grethoppers
in multitude / ſo that bothe they and alſo their camels were without nombre, and waſted all that euer they layde handes on. And they en-tred the lande to deſtroy it. And ſo was Iſrael exceedyngly impoueriſched by the Madianites, and cryed vnto the Lorde. And when the chyldren of Iſrael cryed vnto the Lorde bycauſe of B the Madianites, the Lorde ſent a prophet vnto them, and ſayd vnto them. Thus ſayth the Lorde God of Iſrael, I fet you from Egypte
and brought you out of the houſe of bondage,
and I ryd you out of ꝑ hand of the Egyptiās,
and out of the handes of al that oppreſſed you,
and caſt them out before you, & gaue you theyr
landes. And I ſayd vnto you, I am the Lorde your God, and therfore feare not the Goddes iiii.Re.xvii.g. of the Amorites in whoſe land you dwel. But Jere.v.b you wolde not obeye my voyce. And the aun-gell of the Lorde came and ſate vnder an oke
in Ephrah that pertayned vnto Joas the father of the Eſerites. And his ſonne Gedeon pzelled out whete oute of the eares in a preſſe,
for to flee from the Madianites. And the aun
C gell of the Lorde appeared vnto him, and ſaid:
the Lorde is with the, thou man of myght.
And Gedeon anſwered him: Oh my Lorde, if the Lorde be with vs, why is all this come vpon vs: ye and where be his myracles which our fathers tolde vs of, and ſayde: the Lorde brought vs out of Egypt. But now the Lord hathe forſaken vs, and delyuered vs in to the handes of the Madianites. And the Lorde loked vpon him, and ſayd: Go hence in this thy myght, and delyuer Iſrael out of the handes
of the Madianites: Behold, I haue ſent the.
And he anſwered him. Oh Lorde, wherwith ſholde I ſaue Iſrael? Beholde my kynred is the pooreſt in Manaſſes, and I am the leaſt in my fathers houſe. But then the Lorde ſayde vnto hym: I wyl be with the / and thou ſhalt
ſmyte the Madianites, as they were but one man. And he anſwered him, yf I haue founde grace in thy ſyghte, then ſhewe me a ſigne,
that thou art the Lorde that talketh with me.
D Departe not hence, vntyll I come agayne vn
to the, and brynge myne offerynge, and haue ſet it before the.

And he ſayd, I wyll tarye vntyll thou come agayne. And Gedeon wente and made redye a kydde, and ſwete cakes of an Epha of floure, & put the fleſche in a baſket, and the brothe in a pot, and brought it out vnto him vnder ꝑ oke
and preſented it. And the aungell of God ſaid vnto him: take the fleſh and the ſwete cakes
and put them vpon this rocke, and poure out the brothe. And he dyd ſo. Then the aungel of the Lorde put forth the ende of the ſtaffe that was in his hande, and touched the fleſhe and the cakes. And there aroſe vp fyre oute of the rocke and conſumed the fleſhe and the cakes,
and the aungell of the Lorde vaniſhed oute
of his ſyght. And whē Gedeon perceyued that it was an aungell, he ſayd: alas my Lorde al-mighteye, that I haue ſene an aungell of the Lorde face to face. And the Lorde ſayde vnto him, peax be with the, and feare not / for thou ſhalte not dye. Then Gedeon made an aulter
there vnto the Lorde, and called it ꝑ Jehouah, Halom, which vnto this day is yet in Ephrah
that pertayneth vnto the father of the Eſe-rites. And the ſame nyght the Lord ſayd vnto him, take an oxe of thy fathers, and an other
of ſeuen yeres olde, and deſtroye the aulter of Baal that belongeth vnto thy father, and cut downe the groue that is aboute it, and make an aulter vnto the Lorde thy God vpon the top of this rocke and furniſche it. And take the ſeconde oxe and offre burnte ſacrifyce with the wodde of the groue whiche thou ſhalte haue cut downe. Then Gedeon toke ten men of his ſeruauntes, & dyd as the Lorde bad him. But becauſe he durſte not do it by daye, for feare of his fathers houſholde, and of the men of the citye, he dyd it by nyghte.

When the men of the citye were vp erly in the mornynge: Beholde, the aulter of Baal
was broken, and the groue that ſtode about it cut

it cut downe. And the ſeconde oxe offered vpon the aulter that was made. And they ſayd one to an other: Who hathe done this thing, and they enquyred and aſked for him that ſholde haue wone ꝑ dede. It was tolde them that Ge don the ſonne of Joas hadde doone it. Then the men of the citye ſayde vnto Joas, brynge oute thy ſonne that he maye dye, becauſe he hath broken the aulter of Baal, and cut down
the groue that was aboute it. And Joas ſayde vnto all ꝑ ſtode by him / will ye fight for Baal,
or wil ye be his defenders? he that ſtryueth for him, ſhall dye afore to morow. Yf he be a God let him reuenge his quarel vpon him that caſt downe his aulter. And he called Gedeon Jerobaal the ſame time ſaying: let Baal reacquyte
him, becauſe he hath broken downe his aulter.

When all the Madianites, the Amalekites
and they of the Eaſt were gathered togyther,
and had gone and pitched in the valeye of Je-rael, the ſpirite of the Lorde entred in to Ge-
don. And he blewe a trompet and called togy ther the houſe of ✕Abiezer to folowe him, and ſent meſſengers thorow out al Manaſſes, and called them vp to folow him alſo. And he ſent other meſſengers vnto Aſer, Zabulon & Nephthalim, whiche came alſo to mete him.

And Gedeon ſayd vnto God: yf thou wilt ſaue Iſrael by my hande, as thou haſte ſayde.
Beholde, I wyll put a fleece of wolle in the threſſhynge place. And yf the dewe be on the fleece onely, and drye vpon all the earth beſyde:
then I ſhal be ſure that thou wylt ſaue Iſrael by my hande, as thou ſaydeſt. And it came ſo to paſſe. And he roſe vp erly on the morowe, and he preſſed the fleece togither, & wronge the dewe therout, and filled a dyſche full of water. And Gedeon ſayd vnto God, be not angry with me that I ✕ſpeake ones more, let me proue onely ones agayne with the fleece. Let it be drye one-ly vpon the fleece, and dew vpon al the ground
aboute. And God dyd ſo that ſame nyghte: ſo that it was drye vpon the fleece onely, and on all the grounde aboute, dewe.

¶ The ſouldyars that ſholde goo with Gedeon to battayle are proued by takinge them vp by water. Gedeon with three hundred men ouercōmeth the Madianites. Oreb and Zeb are ſlayne.

CAPI. VII.

THen Jerobaal, otherwiſe called Gedeon
roſe erlye, and all the people that were
with him & pitched beſide the well of Ha rad, ſo that the hoſte of the Madianites were in a valey on the north ſyde of the hyll Hamo-
reh. And the Lorde ſayd vnto Gedeon, the people that are with the, are to manye for me to gyue the Madianites in to their handes, leeſt Iſrael make their vaunt to my diſhonoure, and ſay / our owne hande hath ſaued vs. Now ther fore make a proclamacion in the eares of the people, and ſaye: ✕ yf anye man drede or be afrede, let him returne, and get him ſone from mounte Galaad / and there departed and returned of the people xxij. thouſandes, and there abode ten thouſande.

And the Lorde ſayd vnto Gedeon the peo- B
ple are yet to many, brynge them downe vnto
the water, and I wyll trye them vnto the there. And of whome I ſaye vnto the, this ſhall goo with the, the ſame ſhall goo with
the. And who ſo euer I ſaye vnto the, this ſhal not go with the / the ſame ſhall not goo. And when he hadde brought wowne the people vn
to the water. The Lorde ſayde vnto Gedeon:
as manye as lappe the water with theyr ton-
ges, as dogges do, them put by them ſelues /
and ſo do them that knele downe vpon theyr knees to drynke. And the nombre of them that put their handes ſo their mouthes and lap-ped, were thre hundred men / and all the remnaunt of the people kneled downe vpon their knees to drynke water. And the Lorde ſayde vnto Gedeon, with the thre hundred men that lapped water wyl I ſaue you, and delyuer the Madianites in to thyne hande / and all the other people ſhall goo euery man to his owne C home.

And they toke vitayles with them for the folke, and theyr trompettes / and he ſente all the reſte of Iſrael, euery man vnto his tente,
and kept the thre hundred with him / and the
hoſte of Madian was benethe him in a valey.
And the ſame nyght the Lorde ſayd vnto him
vp, and goo downe vnto the hoſte, for I haue delyuered it in to thyne hande. But & yf thou feare to go downe alone, then go thou downe
vnto the hoſte, and Pharah thy lad, and herke
what they ſaye, and ſo ſhall thyne handes be ſtronge, and then thou ſhalte ſafely go downe
vnto the hoſte.

Then he went downe with Pharah his lad
euen hard vnto the warche me of armes that were in the hoſte. And the Madianites, the A-malekites, and all they of the Eaſte, laye a-longe in the valeye lyke vnto grethoppers in multitude, and theyr camels were without nombre, euen as the ſande by the ſee ſyde. And when Gedeon was come. Beholde, there was a man that tolde a dreame vnto his felowe, D and ſayd on this maner. Beholde I dreamed a dreame, and me thoughte that an harthabte lofe of barleye breed tombled in to the hoſt of Madian, and came vnto a tente, and ſmote it that it fel, and ouerturned it, that the tent lay alonge. And his felowe anſwered and ſayde,
this is nothyng els ſaue the ſwerde of Sede-on the ſonne of Joas a man of Iſrael, in to whoſe handē the Lorde hathe delyuered Ma-
dian and all the hoſte.

When Gedeon herde the tellynge of the dreame, and the meanynge therof, he bo- E
wed him ſelfe to the erthe, and returned vnto
the hoſte of Iſrael, and ſayde: vp, for ꝑ Lorde
hathe delyuered in to youre handes the hoſte of the Madianites. And he dyuyded the thre hundred men in to thre compaynes, and gaue euerye man a trompet in his hande, with an emptye pytcher, and lampes therin, and ſayde
vnto them: loke on me, and do lykewyſe / and beholde, when I come to the ſyde of the hoſte / euen as I doo, ſo do you. And when I Judi.vii.d blowe with a trompet and all that are with me, blowe ye with trompettes alſo on euerye

lyde the hoste and saye: here be the Lorde and Gedeon.

And so Gedeon and the thre hundred men that were with him, came vnto the lyde of the hoste in the begynnyng of the myddell watche and rayled vp the watche men. And they blew with their trompettes, and brake the pitchers F that were in theyr handes. And all thre companyes blewe with trompettes and brake the pytchers, and helde the lampes in theyr lefte handes, and the trompettes in theyr ryght, to blowe with all. And they cryed, the swerde of the Lorde and of Gedeon. And they stode styll euerye man in his place rounde aboute the hoste / and all the hoste ranne and cryed and fledde.

And as the thre hundred blewe with trom- 1.Regū.xiiii.c pettes, the Lorde sent his swerde thorow all ii.Para.xx d. the hoste, so that euerye one slewe other. And the hoste fled, vntyll they came to Bethsitah, to Zererath, and to the edge of Abelmeholah beside Tabath. And the men of Israel gathered togyther of the trybe of Nephthalim, of G Aser, and of all Manasses, and folowed after the Madianites. For Gedeon had sent messengers thorowe out all mount Ephraim, sayng: come downe against the Madianites, and take from them the waters bothe of Bethbarath and also of Jordan.

Then all the men of Ephraim gathered togyther, and came downe and toke the waters bothe of Bethbarath, and also of Jordan. And they toke two capitaynes of the Madianites, Horeb, and Zeb, and slewe Oreb vpon the rocke Oreb, and Zeb at the presse Zeb, and folowed after Madian / and brought the heedes of Oreb and Zeb to Gedeon on the other syde Jordan.

¶ Ephraim maketh insurrection agaynst Gedeon, but is sone pacifyed. The inhabiters of Socoth refuse to gyue Gedeon and his armye breed. The towre Phanuel is destroyed. Gedeon is constitute rular ouer the Israelites. He hathe thre score and ten sonnes. He dyeth.

CAPI. VIII.

A AND the men of Ephraim said vnto him. Why haste thou serued vs thus, þ thou calledst vs not when thou wentest to fyghte with the Madianites / and they chode with him a good, and were welnygh at daggers drawyng. And he said vnto them: What dede haue I doone lyke vnto you: are not the clusters of Ephraim better then the wyne haruest of Abiezer? God hathe delyuered in to your handes the Lordes of Madian, Oreb, & Zeb. And what was I able to doo lyke as Iudi.viii.f you haue doone? And then their spirites were pacified, and they well content with him, whe he hadde sayd that. And then Gedeon came to Jordan and passed ouer bothe he and the thre hundred men that were with hym very fayne and yet folowed the chase.

And he sayd vnto the men of Socoth: giue B I praye you cakes of breede vnto the people that folow me: for they be fainty, that I may folowe after Zebah and Zalmona kynges of Madian. And the Lordes of Socoth sayd, are the hādes of Zebah and Zalmona now in thyne handes that we shulde gyue bred vnto thy companye? And Gedeon sayde, therfore when the Lorde hath delyuered Zebah and Zalmona in to myne hande, I wyll teare the fleshe of you with the thornes of the wyldernesse and with breers. And he went thence to Phanuel, and spake vnto them lykewise. And the men of Phanuel answered, as dyd þ men of Socoth. And he sayde also vnto the men of C Phanuel, when I come agayne in peax I will breake down this towre. Zebah and Zalmona were in Arkar, and their hoostes with them, vpon a fyftene thousande, whiche were all that were lefte of all the hoostes of them of the East. And they that were slayne, were a hū dred and twentye thousande men that drewe swerde.

And Gedeon went thorow them that dwel in tabernacles on the East syde of Nobah and Jebahah, and smote the hoste: for the hoost dyd cast no perys. Zebah and Zalmona fled. But he folowed after them, and toke the two kynges of the Madianites, Zebah and Zalmona, and discomforted all the hoste.

And Gedeon the sonne of Joas retourned frome batayle, the sonne beynge yet vp, and caught a lad of the men of Socoth, and enquyred of him the names of the chiefe lordes and elders of Socoth. And he wrote the lordes and elders of Socoth, thre score and seuētene men. Then he came vnto the men of So- D coth and sayde: Beholde Zebah and Zalmona, with whiche he caste me in the reche, sayinge: are the handes of Zebah, and Zalmona alredye in thyne hande, that we shulde gyue breed vnto thy fayntye men. And he toke the elders of the cytye, and thornes of the wyldernesse and bryers, and all to tare theym therwith. And he brake downe the towre of Phanuel, and slewe the men of the cytye.

And then sayd vnto Zebah and Zalmona, what maner men were they which ye slewe at Thabor? & they answered: they were moche lyke the in fauoure / and one of them eyen as he were a kynges sonne. And he sayde: They were my brethren, euen my mothers chyldren, E and as truly as the Lorde lyueth, yf ye had saued their lyues, I wolde not slee you. And he sayd vnto Jether his eldest sonne, vp and slee them, but the ladde drewe not his swerde / for he feared, bycause he was yet ponge. Then Zebah and Zalmona sayd. Ryse thou, and fall vpon vs, for as the man is, so is his strengthe. and Gedeon arose and slewe them: & he toke awaye the trapurey and chaynes that were on their camels neckes.

Then the men of Israel sayde vnto Gedeon. Raynge ouer vs, bothe thou, thy sonne, and thy sonnes sonne / for thou hast delyuered vs oute of the handes of the Madianites. And Gedeon sayde vnto them / I wyll not raynge ouer you, neyther shall my chyldren raynge ouer you, but the Lorde shall raigne ouer you.

Neuerthelater Gedeon sayde vnto them / F I wolde desire a certayne request of you, euen that that you wolde gyue me euery mā the earrynges of his prayse. For they had golden earrinGes, because they were Ismaelites. And they sayde we will wyll it. And they spred a mantell and dyd cast there into euery man the earrynges of his prayse. And the weyght of the golden earrynges was a thousand and seuen hundred sycles of golde, besydes brouches, ouches and garmentes of scarlet that were of þ kynges of Madian, and beside the chaynes, that were about their camels neckes. And Gedeon made an Ephod therof, and put it in his cytie Ephrah. And all Israel went a horynge after him there, which thinge was the ruyne of Ge- Iudi.viii.h deons house. Thus were the Madianites brought lowe before the children of Israell, so that they lyft vp their heddes no more. And the contreye was in quyetnesse fourty yeres in the dayes of Gedeon.

G And Jerobaal the sonne of Joas went and Iudi.viii.a dwelte in his owne house. And Gedeon had. lxx. sonnes of his body begotten, for he had many wyues. And his concubyne that dwelt in Sichē bare him a sonne also, whose name he called Abimelech. And Gedeon the sonne of Joas dyed, when he was of a good age, & was buryed in the burial of Joas his father, euen in Ephrah that pertayned vnto the father of the Ezrites.

But as sone as Gedeon was deed, þ children of Israell turned awaye and went a horynge after Baal, and made Baal a promyse that he shulde be their God, and thought not on the Lorde their God which had delyuered them out of the handes of all their enemyes on euery syde. Neyther shewed they mercy on the house of Jerobaal, otherwyse called Gedeon, accordinge to all the goodnesse whiche he shewed them.

And when it was tolde Joatham, he went and stode in the coppe of mount Garizim, and lyfte vp his voyce and called, and sayde vnto B them: Herken vnto me you cytezens of Si- ii.Para.xxv.c chem, that God maye herken vnto you. The xiii.Chro.xiii.b trees went to annoynt a kynge ouer them, & sayde vnto the olyue tree, rayne ouer vs. But the olyue tree sayde vnto theym: shoulde I leaue my fatnesse whiche both God and man prayseth in me, and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayde the trees to the fygge tree, come thou and be kynge ouer vs. And the fygge tree answered them, shoulde I forsake my swetnes and my good frute, & shulde go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then sayd the trees vnto the vyne, come thou & be kyng ouer vs. And the vyne answered, shoulde I leaue my wyne that cheereth both God & man and go to be promoted ouer the trees? Then * In sem pla sayde all the trees vnto the * thorne bushe: ces it is called come thou and raygne ouer vs. And the thorn Gozle. bushe sayde vnto the trees: yf it be true that ye will annoynt me kynge ouer you, thē come and rest vnder my shawwe, and yf ye wyl not ye shall se that a fyre shall come oute of the thorne bushe and waste the Cyper trees of Libanon.

And euen so now, yf ye haue wone truly and C vncorruptlye to make Abimelech kynge. And yf ye haue dealt well with Jerobaal and his house, and haue wone vnto him accordinge to the deserupnge of his handes, for as moche as my father fought for you, and aduentured his lyfe, And rydd you out of the handes of the Madianites. And that there come a fyre oute of the cytezens of Sichem, and out of the house of Mello and consume Abimelech. And Joatham when he had sayde thus, ran away and fled and wente to Beer and dwelte there, for feare of Abimelech his brother. chem set men to laye awayte for him in the toppe of the mountaynes and whiles they awayted his commynge they robbed all that came a longe the waye by them. And it was tolde Abimelech.

Gen.xxxiiii.a

And Gaal the sonne of Obed and his brethren came and gat them to Sichem. And the men of Sichem put theyr confidence in him. And they went out in to the feldes and gathered in theyr grapes and troade them, and made merye: and went in to the house of their God, and dyd eat and drynke and cursed Abimelech. And Gaal the sonne of Obed sayd: what is Abimelech? and what is Sichem? y we shulde serue him, is he not the sonne of Jerobaal? and Zebul is his officer? serue suche as come of Hemor the father of Sichem, for what reason is it that we shulde serue hym? wolde God this people were vnder my hãde then I wolde put downe Abimelech. And one sayde vnto Abimelech, make thyne hoste greater and goo out. And when Zebul the ruler of the cytie herde the wordes of Gaal the son of Obed, he was wroth and sent messengers vnto Abimelech priuelye, sayenge: Beholde Gaal the sonne of Obed and his brethren be come to Sichem: and beholde they set the cytie against the. Now therfore aryse by nyght both thou and all the people that is with the and lye in wayte in the feldes. And ryse early in the mornynge as sone as the sonne is vp, & come vpon the cytie. And when he and the people that is with him come forth against the, do to him what thyne handes shalbe able. And Abimelech rose vp, and all the people with him, by nyght. And they layde awayte to the cytie in foure companyes. And Gaal the son of Obed went out and stode in the enteeye of the gate of the cytie. And Abimelech rose vp, and the folke that were with him, frome lyenge awayte. Now when Gaal sawe the people, he sayde to Zebul: Beholde, there come people downe frome the toppe of the mountaynes. And Zebul sayde vnto him: the shadowe of the hylles seme men vnto the, and so thou arte deceyued. And Gaal aunswered agayn and sayd: Se, there come folcke downe by the myddle of the lande and an other companye come a longe by the Mirchoke. Then sayde Zebul vnto him: Where is nowe thy mouthe that sayde, what felow is Abimelech that we shulde serue him? These are the people that thou so despysedest. Go out now and fight with theym. And Gaal went forthe before the cytezes of Sichem, and fought with Abimelech. And Abimelech chased him so that he fled before him, and many were ouerthrowen and slayne, euen vntyll they came vnto the enterynge of the gate. And then Abimelech wente and dwelte at Arumah. And then Zebul thrust out Gaal and his brethren, and wolde not suffer them to dwell in Sichem.

And on the morowe the people went forth in to the felde. And it was tolde Abimelech. And he take his people & dyuyded them into three companies, and laye awayte in the feldes. And wt on he sawe that the people were come out of the cytie, he ran vpon theym and slayne vpon them.

And Abimelech & the companyes that were with him, ran and stode in the enteringe of the gate of the cytie. And the twoo other companyes ran vpon all the people that were in the feldes and slue theym. And then Abimelech fought against the cytie all that daye, & toke it, and slewe the people that was therin, and destroyed the cytie & sowed salt in the place.

And when all the men of the towre of Sichē herde that, they entered in to a stronge holde of the house of their God Baal Berith, when they made a conuenaunt to him and the place had Berythes name and was strongly fensed.

And when it was tolde Abimelech, that all the men of the towre of Sichem, were gathered togither, he gat him to mount Zelmon, bothe he and all that were with him, & toke axes with him and cut downe an arme of a tree, and toke it vp, & put it on his shoulder, and sayde vnto the folcke that were with him, what so euer ye se me do: spede your selues and do lykewyse. And all the people cut downe also euery man a bough, and folowed Abimelech, and put them into the holde, and set the holde a fyre vpon them: so that all the men of the towre of Sichem were slayne, about a thousand personnes what of men and wemen.

Then went Abimelech to Thebez and besieged it, and toke it. But there was a strong towre in the myddes of the cytie, and thither ran all the men and wemen, and all the cytezens of the cytie, and shut it to them, and got them vpon the toppe of the towre, and stode vpon the battelmentes. Then came Abimelech vnto the towre and fought against it, & went harde vnto the enteringe of the gate, to set it on fire. But a woman cast a pece of a mill stone vpō his heed and al to brake his brayne panne.

Then Abimelech called hastelye vnto the younge man that bare his harneys, and sayd vnto him: drawe thy swerde and slē me, that men saye not of me, a woman slewe him. And his lad thrust him thorow and he dyed.

And when the men of Israel sawe that Abimelech was deed, they departed, euery man vnto his owne house. And thus all the wyckednesse of Abimelech which he dyd vnto his father, in slaynge his. lxx. brethren, & therto all the wyckednes of the men of Sichem, god dyd brynge vpon their heddes: And vpon them came the curse of Joathan the sonne of Jerobaal.

¶ Thola and Jair Judges of Israel. Israel sinneth and after cryeth on God for remission.

CAPI. X.

After Abimelech, arose to defende Israel one Thola, the sonne of Phuah, the sonne of Dodo, a man of Issakar, whiche dwelt in Samir, in mount Ephraim, who iudged Israel. xxiij. yere, and then dyed and was buryed in Samir. And after him arose Jair a Galaadite, who iudged Israell. xxij. yere yere. And he had thirtye sonnes that * rode on thirtye Asse coltes, and hadde thirty cities for thē, which are called the townes of Jair vnto this daye, and are in the lande of Galaad. And Jair dyed, & was buryed in Kamon.

* And the children of Israel wrought wickednesse yet agayne, in the syght of the Lorde and serued Baalim and Astaroth, and the goddes of Syria, and the goddes of Sidon, the goddes of Moab, the goddes of the chyldren of Ammō, and the goddes of the Philistines, & forsoke the Lord and serued him not, wherfore the Lorde was wroth with Israel, and gaue them vp into the handes of the Philistines, and in to the handes of the chyldren of Ammon: whiche pylled and oppressed y children of Israell in those dayes. xviij. yere, all that were on thother syde Jordan in the land of the Amorites in Galaad. Moreouer y children of Ammon went ouer Jordan to fyghte against Juda, Ben Jamin, and the house of Ephraim: so that Israel was sore encombred. Then the children of Israell, cryed vnto the Lorde, sayenge: We haue synned against the: for we haue forsaken our owne God, & haue serued Baalim. And the Lorde sayde vnto the children of Israel: dyd not the Egyptiās, the Amorites, the children of Ammon, the Philistines, the Sidonites, the Amalekites, and the Maonites, oppresse you? And ye cryed to me, and I delyuered you forth of their handes. And this notwithstandinge ye haue forsaken me, and serue straunge goddes, wherfore I will helpe you no more. But go and crye vnto the goddes which ye haue chosen, and let them helpe you in the tyme of your affliction. But the children of Israel sayde vnto y Lord we haue synned: do thou vnto vs whatsoeuer please the, and delyuer vs onely at this tyme. And they put awaye the straunge goddes frō them, and serued the Lorde. And he was sorowfull for the mysery of Israel.

Then the children of Ammon assembled & pytched in Galaad. And the children of Israel gathered them togither and pytched in Maspha. And the company of the Lordes of Galaad sayde one to an other, who so euer will begynne the battel against the children of Ammon, shalbe heed ouer all the inhabitauntes of Galaad.

¶ Jephthah the sonne of a harlot delyuereth Israel frome the Ammonites after they asked forgyuenes, of the vowe of Jephthah.

CAPI. XI.

And there was one Jephthah a Galaadite, a stronge man, who was the son of an harlot: How be it Galaad begat Jephthah. But Galaades wyfe bare hym sonnes, which whē they were come to age, thrust out Jephthah, & sayde vnto him: Thou shalt not enherete in our fathers house, for thou art the sonne of a straunge woman. Then Jephthah fled frome his brethren and dwelt in the lande of Tob. And vile people and robbers assembled them selues to Jephthah, and wēt out with him. But it chaunced in processe of tyme, that the childrē of Ammon made warre against Israel, then the elders of Galaad wēt and fet Jephthah out of the lande of Tob, & sayde vnto him: come and be our capitayne, & let vs fight with the children of Ammon. And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad. Dyd not ye hate me, and chased me oute of my fathers house? howe happeneth it then that you come vnto me now in tyme of youre tribulation? And the elders of Galaad answered Jephthah. Therfore we turne agayne to the now, that thou go with vs, and fighte against the children of Ammon, and be our hed ouer all the enhabitauntes of Galaad. And Jephthah sayde vnto the elders of Galaad: Yf ye bryngе me home agayne, to fight with the children of Ammon, then yf the Lord delyuer them before me, I shalbe your heed. And the elders of Galaad sayde to Jephthah, the Lorde that heareth these wordes be wytnesse betwene vs, yf we w not accordynge to thy wordes. Then Jephthah went with the elders of Galaad. And the people made him heed and ruler ouer them. And Jephthah rehersed all his wordes before the Lorde, in Maspha.

Then Jephthah sent messengers vnto the kynge of the children of Ammon, sayenge: What ayleth the with me, that thou comest vpon me to fight against my lande? And the kynge of the children of Ammon aunswered the messengers of Jephthah, because Israell toke awaye my lande, when they came forthe of Egypte: euen frome Arnon: vnto Jabok, & frome thence vnto Jordan: Now therfore restore these landes agayne by faire meanes. Numeri.xxi.c

And Jephthah sent messengers agayne vnto the children of Ammon, and sayde vnto hym: thus sayth Jephthah. Israel toke not awaye the lande of Moab, nor the lande of the children of Ammon. But when Israel came forth of Egypte, they walked thorow the wyldernesse, euen vnto the red see, and came to Cades, and sent messengers vnto the kynge of Edom, sayenge: let vs (we praye the) go thorow thy lande. But the kynge of Edom wold not assent therto. And in lyke maner they sent vnto the kynge of Moab, but he wolde not consent. And so Israell abode styll in Cades. And then they went a longe thorow the wyldernesse, and compased the lande of Edom, & the lande of Moab, and came a longe by the East syde of the lande of Moab, and pytched their tentes on thother syde the ryuer of Arnon, and came not within the coostes of the Moabites: for Arnon was their furthest border. And then Israel sent messengers vnto Sehon kynge of the Amorites, and kyng of Hesbon, and sayd vnto him: Let vs haue passage thorow thy lande vnto our countreye. But Sehon trusted not Israel, to go thorowe his costes: but gathered all his people togither & pytched in Jazah, and fought with Israel. But the Lorde God of Israel delyuered Sehon and all his folke into the handes of Israel. And so Israel smote theym, and conquered all the lande of the Amorites, the inhabitaun- Deute.ii.a Numeri.xx.b

tauntes of the sayde contrey. And they conquered all the costes of the Amorites, frome Arnō vnto Jaboh, & frō the wyldernes vnto Jordā. So now forasmoche as the Lorde God of Israel hath caste out the Amorites before his people, shuldest thou enioye the lande? Naye, but what people Camos thy God dispoyle out, that lande possesse thou. But whatsoeuer nations the Lorde oure God chaseth oute, ỹ lande oughte we to enioye. And therto, arte thou better then Balack the sonne of Zephor kynge of Moab? or canst thou shewe vs, that he dyd stryue with Israel, or fyghte agaynste them? all the whyle Israel dwelt in Hesbon and her townes, and in Aroer and her townes and in all the cityes that be a longe by the costes of Arnon thyree hundred yeres? why dydest thou not recouer them in al that space? Wherfore I haue not offended againste the, but thou wilt me wronge, to warre vpon me. The Lorde therfore be iudge this daye, betwene the children of Israell, and the children of Ammon. Neuertheles the kynge of ỹ children of Ammon harkened not vnto the wordes of Jephthah which he sent him.

Then the spirite of the Lorde came vpon Jephthah. And he passed ouer Galaad & Manasses, and came to Maspha, that lyeth in Galaad, and frome thence vnto the children of Ammon. And Jephthah vowed a vowe vn to the Lorde, and sayde: Yf thou shalt delyuer the children of Ammon into my handes, then that thinge that commeth out of the wres of my house against me, whē I come home in peax, frome the children of Ammon, shalbe the Lordes, and I will offer it vp for a burnt offringe. And so Jephthah went vnto the children of Ammon to fight with them. And the Lorde delyuered them into his handes. And he smoote them frome Aroer vnto Menith, twenty cyties. And so forthe to the playne of the vyneyardes, and made an exceadinge great slaughter. And thus the children of Ammon were brought vnder, before the children of Israell.

Then Jephthah came to Maspha vnto his house. And beholde his doughter came out against him, with tymbereles and daunses, whiche was his onely childe: so that beyde her, he had neyther sonne nor daughter. And when he sawe her, he rent his clothes & sayd: Alas my doughter, thou hast made me stoupe and art one of them that vexe me: for I haue opened my mouth vnto the Lorde, and cā not go backe. And she sayde vnto him: my father, yf thou haue opened thy mouth vnto ỹ Lord, then do with me accordynge to that proceded out of thy mouth, for as moche as the Lorde hath aduenged the of thyne ennemyes ỹ children of Ammon. And she sayde vnto her father, do this moche for me: let me alone for the space of two monethes, that I maye goo downe to the mountaynes, and bewayle my virginite with my felowes. And he sayd: go, and so he sent her awaye for two monethes. And she went with her companyons and lamented her maydenhed vpō the mountaynes. And after the twoo monethes, she turned a-

¶ The battayle of Jephthah agaynste Ephraim. After the deeth of Jephthah succedeth Elon. After Elon Abdon.

AND the men of Ephraim made an insurrection, and went Northwarde, & sayd vnto Jephthah: Wherfore wentest thou to fight with the children of Ammon, & dyddest not call vs to goo with the? we will therfore burne thyn house vpon the, with fire. And Jephthah sayde vnto theym: I and my people were at great stryfe with the children of Ammon. And I called you to haue ayded me, but ye wolde not come. And when I sawe that ye delyuered me not, I put my lyfe in my handes, and wente vpon the children of Ammon. And the Lorde delyuered them into my handes. Wherfore then are ye come vpon me to fyght with me?

And Jephthah gathered togither all ỹ men of Galaad, and fought with the Ephraites. And the men of Galaad smote the Ephraites because they sayde: Ye Galaadites are but runagates of Ephraim amonges the Ephraites and the Manassites. Moreouer the men of Galaad toke the passages of Jordan where the Ephraites shulde come homewarde. And when those Ephraites that were escaped, sayd let vs go ouer: then the men of Galaad sayd vnto them: Ye are Ephraites, and they sayd, naye. Then the other aunswered: Then saye Sibboleth. And they sayde Sibboleth, & could not so pronounce, wherevpon the other toke them and slewe them at the passages of Jordan. And there were ouerthrowen at that tyme of the Ephraites. xlij. thousande. And when Jephthah had iudged Israell sixe yere, he dyed, and was buryed in one of the cyties of Galaad. After this man, iuged Israell one Abzan of Bethlehem, who had thirty sonnes and thirty doughters, and sent also his thirty doughters out to marriage, and toke thirty other in, for his sonnes. And when Abzā had iudged Israell. vi. yeres he dyed, & was buryed at Bethlehem.

And after him, Elon a Zabulonite iudged Israell ten yeres, and he dyed and was buryed in Aialon, in the countreye of Zabulon.

And after him, Abdon the sonne of Hellel, a Pharathonite iudged Israell. And he hadde fourtye sonnes, and thirty neuewes, that rode on threscore and ten asse coltes. And whē Abdon the sonne of Hellel the Pharathonite hadde iudged Israel eyght yere, he dyed, and was buryed in Pharthon, the lande of Ephraim, in the mount of the Amalekites.

CAPI. XIII.

AND the chyldren of Israel beganne agayne to do wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde. And the Lorde delyuered theym in to the handes of the Philistines. xl. yere. And there was a man in Zaraah of the kynrede of the Dannites, named Manoah, whose wife was barrē and bare not. And the Angell of the Lorde appeared vnto his wyfe, and sayde vnto her: Beholde, thou art barren and beareste not: But thou shalt conceyue and beare a sonne. And now beware, and dyrynke no wyne, ne stronge dyrinke, neyther eate any vncleane thinge: for lo, thou shalt conceyue, and beare a sonne. And there maye no ✕ raser or cheres come on his heed: for the childe shal be a ✠ Nazare vnto God, euen from the tyme of his byrth. And he shall begyn to delyuer Israel out of the handes of the Philistines. Thē the wyfe went and tolde her husbande, saying A man of God came vnto me, and the facyon of him was lyke the facyon of an aungell of God exceadynge fearefull. But I asked him not whence he was, neyther tolde he me his name. And he sayde vnto me: ✕ Behold, thou shalt be with childe and beare a sonne, & now dyrynke no wyne nor stronge dyrynke, neyther eate any vncleane thinge: for the childe shalbe ‡ an abstepner to God euen from his birth to the daye of his death.

Then Manoah made intercession to the Lorde, and sayde: I praye the (my Lorde) let the mā of God which thou sendest come ones more vnto vs, and teache vs what we shall do vnto the childe, whē he is borne. And God herde the voyce of Manoah, and the aungell of God came agayne vnto the wyfe as she sat in the feldes: But Manoah her husband was not with her. Then the wyfe made haste, and ran and shewed her husband and sayd to him: Beholde, the man hathe appeared vnto me, that came the other daye vnto me.

Then Manoah arose, and wente after his wyfe and came to the man and sayd vnto him Art thou the man that spakest vnto my wyfe? And he sayde, yea. Then Manoah sayd, now when thy worde is come to passe: what shall be the maner of the childe, and what shall he do? And the aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto Manoah: thy wyfe must abstayne from al that I sayde vnto her: she maye eate of nothinge that cometh of the vyne tree, ne dyrinke wyne or stronge dyrynke, nor eate any vnclene thinge: but must obserue all that I bad her. Then sayde Manoah vnto the aungel of the Lorde: Graunt vs to tary tyll we haue made redy a kyd, and haue set it before the. And the Aungell of the Lorde sayde vnto Manoah: thoughe thou make me abyde I will not eate of thy meat. And moreouer yf thou wilt prepare a burntofferinge, that thou must offer vnto the Lorde. For Manoah wist not that it was an aungell of the Lorde. And Manoah sayde vnto the aungell of the Lorde: What is thy name, that when thy sayenge is come to passe, we maye do the some worshyp? And the aungell of the Lorde sayd vnto him: why askest thou after my name? when it is marueilouse.

Genes.xxxii.e Exo di.iii.e The name of the Aungel is wonderfull.

And Manoah toke a kydde with a meatoffringe, and offred it vpon a rocke vnto the Lorde which worketh wōders, Manoah & his wyfe loked vpon. And when the flame came vp out of the aultare, the angell of the Lord ascended vp in the flame of the aultare. And Manoah and his wyfe loked theron, and fell flat on their faces vnto the grounde: But the aungell of the Lord dyd no more appeare vn to Manoah and his wyfe. And then Manoah knewe that it was aungell of the Lorde: and sayde vnto his wyfe: We shal surely dye because we haue sene God. But his wyfe said vnto him: Yf the Lorde woulde kyll vs, he wolde not haue receyued a burntoffringe and a meatoffringe of our handes, neyther wolde he haue shewed vs al these thinges, nor wold haue tolde vs as he hath of thinges to come.

¶ The marryage of Samson. He kylleth a Lyon. He propoundeth a ryddle. He kylleth thirtye men. His wife forsaketh him and taketh an other.

CAPI. XIIII.

SAmson went downe to Thamnath, and sawe a woman in Thānath of the doughters of the Philistines, and came & tolde his father and mother, and sayd: I haue sene a woman in Thamnath of the doughters of the Philistines. And now gyue her me to wyfe Then his father and mother sayde vnto him, is there neuer a woman of the doughters of thy brethren, amonge all my people: but that thou must go and fet a wyfe of the vncircumcysed Philistines? And Samson sayde vnto his father, gyue me this woman, for she pleaseth me well. Now his father & mother wist not that it was the Lordes worckynge, & that he sought an occasion vpon the Philistines, which at that tyme raygned ouer Israel. Thē wente Samson, and his father and mother, downe to Thamnath. So when they came to the vyneyardes of Thamnath: Beholde, a younge Lyon rored vpon him. And the spirite of the Lord came vpon Samson. And he tare him, as a man wolde rent a kyd, and yet had nothinge in his hande. Neuertheles he told not his father and mother what he had done, but went downe and talked with the womā whiche semed beautyful in the syght of Samson.

Deuter.vii.a

And within short space after, as he repayred thyther agayne to take her to wyfe, he turned out of the waye, to se the carkasse of the Lyon. And beholde, there was a swarme of bees in the carkasse of the Lyon, and hony: & ye

he toke of the honye in his handes, and went eatynge, and came to his father and mother & gaue them of the same. And they dyd eate. But he tolde not them, that he had taken the honye forth of the carkasse of the Lyon. And when his father was come vnto the woman: Samson made there a feast, for so vsed the young men to do. And when her frendes saw him, they brought thirtye companyons to beare him companye. And Samson sayde vnto them: I wyl put forth a ryddle vnto you. And yf ye can declare it within seuen dayes of the feaste and fynde it oute, I will gyue you thyrtye sheetes and thirtye chaunge of garmentes. But yf ye cannot declare it me, then shall ye gyue me thyrty sheetes and thirtye chaunge of garmentes. And they answered him, put forth thy ryddle and let vs heare it. And he sayde vnto them. Oute of the eater came meate: and out of the strong came swetnesse. And they couldе not in thre dayes expounde the ryddle. So when the seuenth day was come, they sayde vnto Samsons wyfe. Flatter thyne husbande, that he maye declare vs thy ryddle, or elles we wyll burne the and thy fathers house with fyre, haue ye called vs to make vs beggers? Then Samsons wyfe wept vnto him and sayd, it cānot be but that thou hatest me and louest me not, sythe thou hast purposed a ryddle vnto the children of my folke and wylt not tell me what it meaneth. And he sayde: Beholde, I haue not tolde it my father ne yet my mother, and Iud.xiiii.b shulde I tell it the? And she wepte vnto him seuen dayes, whyle the feaste lasted. So the seuenth daye he tolde her, because she laye so sore vpon him. And she agayn tolde it to the children of her folke. And then the men of the citye sayde vnto him the seuenth daye before the sonne went downe. What is sweeter then hony, and what is stronger then a Lyon? thē sayde he vnto them: Yf ye had not plowed wt my heifer, ye had not founde out my ryddle. Then the spyrite of the Lorde came vpon him. And he went downe to Askalon, and slew.xxx men of them, and dispoyled theym, and gaue their garmentes vnto them which expounded the ryddle. And he was wrothe, and wente vp to his fathers house. But Samsons wyfe was gyuen in mariage to one of his companyons that accompanyed him.

CAPI. XV.

A But it chaunced within a whyle after, in the tyme of whete hervest, that Samson visited his wyfe with a kydde. And whē he thought to haue gone in vnto his wyfe into the chamber, her father wolde not suffre him to go in: But sayde: I thought thou had vtterly hated her, and therfore gaue I her to one of thy companyons. How be it, her younger sister is fayrer then she. Take her in stede of the other. Then sayde Samson vnto theym: Now I am blameles concernynge the Philistines, though I wo theym displeasures. And Samson went forth and caught thre hundred Foxes, and toke fyrebrandes, & fastened tayle to tayle, and put a fyre brande in the myddes betwene two tayles. And he set the fire brandes on fyre, and put them into the corne of ꝑ Philistines, & burnt vp bothe the reped corne and also the standinge, with vynes and olyues. Then the Philistines asked, who hadde wone that dede. And it was tolde theym that B Samson the sonne in lawe of the Thamnite, because he had bereued him of his wyfe & gyuen her to one of his companyons. And the Philistines came and burnt bothe her and her father with fyre.

And Samson sayde vnto them: shoulde ye so? I will surely be auenged of you, & then I will cease. And he smote them legge & thygh with a myghty plage. And then he went and dwelt in the toppe of the rocke Etam.

Then the Philistines came vp and pitched against Juda and laye in Leht. And the men of Juda sayde. Why are ye come against vs? And they answered to bynde Samson are we come, euen to w vnto him, as he hathe wone to vs. Then thre thousande men of Juda went vp to the toppe of the rocke Etam, and sayde to Samson: wotteth thou not, that the Philistines are rulers ouer vs? Wherfore thē hast thou handled vs thus? And he answered thē, as they serued me, so haue I serued them.

Then sayde they vnto him, we are come to bynde the, and to delyuer the into the handes of the Philistines. And Samson sayde vnto them: swere vnto me, that ye shall not hurte me your selues. And they sayde, we will not hurte the, saue onely bynde the, and delyuer the vnto their handes: But we will not kyll the. And so they bounde him with two newe cordes and brought him downe from ꝑ rocke. And whē he cam to Lehi, the Philistins showted against him. And the spyrite of the Lorde came vpon him, and the cordes that were vpō his armes, became as flaxe that was burnt w fire, and the bandes lowsed frome his handes And he founde a Jaw bone of a rotten asse, & put forth his hande and caught it, and slew a thousande men therwith. And Samson sayde: with the Jawe of an asse, haue I put theym backe: with the Jaw of an asse haue I slayne a thousande men. And when he had left spraknynge, he cast awaye the Jaw out of his hād and called the place Ramath Lehi. But he was sore a thirste, and called on the Lorde, & sayde. Thou Lorde hast gruen this great victory, thorow the hande of thy seruaunt. And now I must dye for thirst, and fall into ꝑ handes of the vncircumcysed. But God brake a great tothe that was in the Jawe, and there came water forth of it. And when he had dronken, his spyrite came agayne, and he was refreshed, wherfore the name thereof was called, * the well of the caller on, whiche is in Lehi, vnto this daye. And he iudged Israell in the dayes of the Philistines twenthe yeres.

¶ Sam-

¶ Samson lyfteth vp the gates of Gaza and caryeth them vp in to the mountayne. He was deceyued by Dalilah and made blynde. He pulleth downe the house vpon the Philistines and dyeth with them.

CAPI. XVI.

A Then went Samson to Gaza, and sawe there an harlot & lay w̄ her. And it was tolde the Gazites, that Samson was come thither. And they went about, and layd awayt for him all nyghte in the gate of the cytye, and were still abydynge for him all the nyght sayinge: tarye tyll the morynge that it be daye, and then let vs kyll hym as he cōmeth forth of the cytye. And Samson toke his rest tyll midnight, and arose at mydnight and toke the dores of the gate of the cytye, and the two syde postes, and rent theym of, barres and all, and put them vpon his shoulders, and caryed them vp to the toppe of an hyll that lyeth before Hebron.

And after that, he loued a woman, vpon ꝑ ryuer of Sorek, called Dalilah, vnto whom came the Lordes of the Philistines, and sayde vnto her. Flatter him and se wherin his great strength lyeth, and by what meanes we may haue power ouer him, that we may bynde him and bynge hym vnder, and eche of vs shall gyue the .xi. hundred siluerlinges.

And Dalilah sayde to Samson. Oh, tel me where thy great strength lyeth, and what it is wherwith men myght bynde the and beate the. And Samson sayde vnto her. Yf men bounde me, with seuen grene withythes, that were neuer dryed, I shulde be weake, and as an other man. And thē the Lordes of the Philistines brought her seuē withythes that were yet grene and neuer dryed, and she bound him with theym. Notwithstandinge she had men lyenge in wayte with her in the chambre. And she sayde vnto him: the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And he brake the cordes as a threde of towe breaketh, when it feleth fyre. And so it was not knowen wherin his strēgth laye.

Then sayde Dalilah to Samson: He, thou C hast mocked me and tolde me lyes. Now yet tell me I praye the, wherewith thou myghtest be bounde. And he sayde: Yf I were bounde with newe ropes, that neuer were occupyed, then shulde I be weake, and as an other mā. And Dalilah toke newe ropes and bounde him therwith, and sayde vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. And there were lyers awayte in the chaumber, and he brake them frome of his armes, as they hadde bene but a threde. And Dalilah sayde vnto Samson, hytherto thou hast mocked me and tolde me lyes: I praye the yet tell me wherewith men maye bynde the. And he sayde vnto her. Yf thou bynde seuen lockes of my heed with an hearre lace and fasten them with a nayle, I shall be weake. And Dalila dyd so, and sayde vnto him, the Philistines be vpon the Samson. But he awaked out of his slepe, & plucked and went away with the nayle that was in the plattynge, and with the hearre lace.

D Then she sayde vnto him: Howe canste thou sayе thou louest me, when thyne herte is not with me: for thou hast mocked me this thyre tymes, and hast not tolde wherein thy chiefe strength lyeth. And as she lay vpon him with her wordes continually veringe of him, his soule was encombred euen vnto the deathe. And he tolde her all his herte, and sayde vnto her: there neuer came rasor nor sheres vpon Numeri vi.a. Iudi.xiii.a myne heed, for I haue bene a Nazare to God euen frome my mothers wombe. Yf myne heatre were cut of, my strength wolde go frō me, and I shuld become, and be lyke all other men. And when Dalilah sawe he had vttered vnto her all his hert, she sent for the Philistines, sayenge: come vp yet this ones, for he hath shewed me all his hert.

Then the lordes of the Philistines came & brought the moneye in their handes. And she made him slepe vpon her lappe, and sente for a barbar, & cut of the seuen lockes of his heed and began to vexe him, and to thrust him frō her, for by and by his strength was gone from him. And she sayde, the Philistines vpon the Samson. And he awoke out of his slepe, and Samson is taken. thought to go out as at other tymes before & shake him selfe, and wiste not that the Lorde was departed frome him. Then the Philistines toke him and put out his eyen, & brought him downe to Gaza, and bounde him with fetters. And he was made to grynde in the prison house, all be it the hearre of his hed began to growe agayne after that he was shorne. The F the lordes of the Philistines gathered theym togither, to offer a solemne offringe vnto Dagon their God, and to reioyse: for they sayde our God hath betaken Samson our enemy into our handes. And when the people sawe him, they magnified their God: for they sayd, our god hath gruen into our handes our enemy, which destroyed our countrey and slew many of vs. And when their hertes were merey, they sayde: sende for Samson and let him playe before vs. So they set Samson oute of the pylonhouse, who played before theym, & they set him betwene the pyllers. And Samson sayde vnto the ladde that led him by the hande: set me that I may touche the pyllers G that the house stande vpon, and that I maye leane to thē. And the house was ful furnished with men and women. And there were all the lordes of the Philistines, and vpon the rouse there were about thre thousand men and wemen, that beheld how Samson played.

Then Samson called vnto the Lorde, and sayde my Lorde almyghty thinke on me, and restore me myne olde strength, at this tyme O God, that I maye be auenged of the Philistines for my two eyen. And Samson caught the two myddell pyllers on whiche the house stode, the one in his ryghte hande, and the other in his lefte, and sayde: my lyfe perisshe with the Philistines, and bowed them with myght. And ꝑ house fell vpon ꝑ lordes, & vpō all the people ꝑ were therein. And so the dede which he slew at his deth, were mo then they which he slew in his life. And then his brethrē & all ꝑ house of his father came downe, & toke him vp, & brought, and buryed him, betwene Zarah and Eſthaol, in the buryenge place of Manoah his father. And he iudged Iſraell twenty yeres.

¶ Of Michas whose mother made him an Idoll of syluer. Of the younge preest of the lynage of Leui of Bethlehem.

CAPI. XVII.

A THere was a man in mounte Ephraim, named Michas, whiche sayde vnto his mother: the .xi. hundred syluerlynges that were taken from the, about which thou cursedst in myne eares: Beholde the syluer is with me, for I toke it awaye. Then sayd his mother, blessed be thou my son in the Lorde. And so he restored .xi. hundred syluerlynges to his mother agayne. And his mother sayde: I vowed the syluer vnto the Lorde that my sonne shulde take it, of myne hande: to make a grauen Image and an Image of metall. Nowe therfore I render it the agayne. And he restored the money agayne vnto his mother.

B Then his mother toke two hundred syluerlynges and put them to a goldsmith, to make therof a grauen ymage and a molten ymage, which remayned in the house of Michas, who also made a chapell of gods, and made an Ephod and ymages, and filled the hand of one of his sonnes which became his preest. For in those dayes there was no kynge in Iſraell, but euery man dyd as he thought beu.

Ephod is a preestes apparell.

Iudi.xviii.a and.xxi.d

And there was also an other a younge man of Bethlehem Juda, amonges the kynredes of Juda: and he was a Leuite and solourned there. And the yonge man departed out of the cyte of Bethlehem Juda, to go dwell where myght be most commodyous for him. And he came to mount Ephraim, and to the house of Michas as he tourneyed. And Michas sayde vnto him, Whence comest thou? and the Leuite answered him: I am of Bethleh Juda and go to dwell where I maye fynde a mooste mete place. And Michas sayde vnto him: dwell with me, and be vnto me a father and a preest. And I will gyue the ten syluerlynges by yere and double apparell and meat and drinke.

So the Leuite went and dwelled with the man, and was vnto him as dere as one of his owne sonnes. And Michas fylled the hande of the Leuite, and the younge man became his preaste, and contynued in his house, and sayde now I am sure that the Lorde will be good vnto me, sythens I haue a Leuite to my preest.

¶ The children of Dan take the goddes & the preest of Michas awaye. They destroye Lais, and buylde it agayne, and name it Dan.

CAPI. XVIII.

A IN those dayes there was no kynge in Iſraell. And in those dayes the tribe of Dan sought them an enheritaunce to dwell in, for yll that tyme there fell none enheritaſice vnto them amonges the tribe of Iſraell. And the children of Dan sent forthe of their kynredes fyue men of actiuite, out of their coostes euen out of Zarah and Eſthaol, to bewey lande and searche it out, and sayde vnto the: go and searche out the lande. And they came to moūt Ephraim, vnto the house of Michas and lodged there. And when they were come vnto his house, they knewe the voyce of the younge man the Leuite, whose lodgyng they vsed, and sayde vnto him: Who brought the hyther? what maketh thou in this place? why arte thou come hyther? And he sayd vnto the, thus and thus dealeth Michas with me, and hath hyred me to be his preest. And they sayd vnto him: Aske of God we praye the, that we maye knowe whether the waye we goo, shalbe prosperous, & whether the thinge shall take effecte. And the preest sayde vnto them: go in peax, the Lorde regarderh your waye & the iourney whiche ye go.

Dan.

Josue.x.d

Then the fyue men departed and came to Lais, and sawe the people there dwellynge carelesse, and after the maner of the Sidons, stille, and without castinge of parelles, & that no man made any trouble in the lande or vexed any wyninton, and howe they were farre from the Sidons and had no medlynge with any nacion. And they came vnto their brethr to Zarah, and Eſthaol. And their brethren sayde vnto them: what tydinges bring you?

And they sayde, aryse and let vs goo vnto them, * for we haue sene the lande, and it is verye good. Hasten you therfore, and be not slouthfull to departe, and to come & conquere the lande: ye shall come vnto a people that reſteth no parels, and vnto a large countrey: for God hath gyuē into your hādes a place where is no lacke of any thinge in the worlde.

Then departed thence of the kynred of the Danites, out of Zarah and Eſthaol .vi. hūdred men appointed w habilimētes of warre. And they went and pytched in Kariath Jarim in Juda. Wherfore the place is called Mahanay Dan vnto this daye, which is on ꝑ backsyde of Kariath Jarim. So they wente thence vnto mounte Ephraim, and came to Michas house. Then answered the fyue men that went to espye out the countrey of Lais, and sayde vnto their brethren: wot ye not that there is in these houses an Ephod and Images, and a grauen Image, and a molten Image? Now therfore consydre, what ye haue to do.

And they turned thytherward and came to the house of the young man the Leuite in the house of Michas, and salued him peasably. And the .vi. hūdred men wel fensed with weapons of warre which were of the children of Dan, stode in the enteringe of the gate. And the fyue men that went to espye our the land went in thyther and toke the kerued Image, & the Ephod, and the molten Image. And the preest stode in the enteryng of the gate with the sixe hundred men, that were armed vnto battayle, whyle the other went to Michas house, and fet the kerued Image, the Ephod the kerued Image, and the Image of metall. Then sayde the preest vnto them: what doo ye? and they answered him, kepe sylence, & * put thyne hande vpon thy mouthe, and come come with vs, and be vnto vs a father and a preest, whether is it better for the to be a preest vnto the house of one man, or to be preest vnto a tribe or kynred in Iſraell? And the preest was glad and toke the Ephod and the Images, and the grauen Image, and went with the people. And they turned and departed, & put the children, the cattell and their coſtlye thinges before them.

When they were a good waye frome the house of Michas, the men that were in the houses that were by Michas house, made an outcrye, and pursued after the children of Dā and called vnto theym. And they turned their faces, and sayde vnto Michas, what ayleth the, that thou makeſte this outcrye? And he sayde, ye haue taken awaye my goddes which I made and also the preest, and go your wayes with theym: And what haue I more, howe then saye ye vnto me, what ayleth the? And the children of Dan sayde vnto him, let not thy voyce be herde amonges vs, lest angry fe-lowes run vpon the, and thou lose thy lyfe, with the lyues of all thyne houshold also. And so the children of Dan wēt their wayes. And when Michas sawe they were to strong for him, he retourned vnto his house agayne. And they toke the thinges which Michas had made, and the preest which he had, and went vnto Lais, euen vnto a people that were at rest and without mystrust, and smote them w the edge of the swerde, & burnt the cytie with fyre. And there was no man to helpe, because it was farre frome Sidon, and they had none affaires with any other nacyon. And the cytie stode in the valleye that lyeth by Bethzehob. And they buylt the cytie and dwelt therin.

* And called it Dan, after the name of Dan their father which was sonne vnto Iſraell. Howbe it in dede the name of the cytie was Lais at the begynninge.

And the children of Dan set theym vp the grauen Image. And Jonathan the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Manasses and his sonnes were the preestes vnto the tribe of the Danites, tyll they were caried awaye out of the lande pyslonners. And they set theym vp the kerued Image whiche Michas made, all the whyle that the house of God was in Silo. In those dayes was no kynge in Iſraell.

¶ Of the Leuite whose wyfe was vyllanously kylled in Gabaah. She is diuyded in to .xii. partes and ofher sent to euery tribe of Iſrael a pece.

CAPI. XIX.

A AND a certen Leuyte dwellynge on the syde of mount Ephraim, toke to wyfe a concubyne out of Bethlehem Juda: which concubine played the hore in his house and went awaye frome him, vnto her fathers house to Bethlehem Juda, and there contynued foure monethes. And her husband arose and went after her, to speke frendly vnto her and to bringe her home agayne, and his lādes with him & a couple of Asses. And she brought him vnto her fathers house, and when the father of the damosell sawe him, he reioyced of his comminge. And the Leuite abode with his father in lawe thre dayes and so they ate and dranke and lodged there.

B The fourth daye the younge man arose early in the morning, and wolde haue departed. But the damosilles father sayd vnto his son in lawe, comforte thyne herte with a morsell of breed, and then goo youre waye. And they sate downe and dyd eate and drinke bothe of them togyther. Then sayde the damosilles father vnto the man, goo to, I praye the and tary all nyght and let thyne herte be merye.

Genes.xviii.a Psalm.civ.b.

Howbe it the man rose vp to departe: but his father in lawe compelled him to turne agayne and to tarye all nyght there. And he arose vp early the fyfth daye to departe. Then sayde the damosilles father, comforte thyne herte: and so made him tarye tyll after myddaye: & they dyd eate both of them togither.

And then the mā arose to departe with his wyfe and his ladde. But his father in lawe the damosilles father sayde vnto him, behold the daye goeth fast awaye and draweth towarde nyghte, tary all nyghte: at least tarye this daye here, and let thyne herte be merye.

C

And to morowe get you early on your waye and get ꝑ to thy tent. Neuertheleſſe the man wolde not tary, but arose and departed, and came as ferre as Jebus, which is Jeruſalem and his two asses laden, and his concubyne, and his lad with him. And when they were fast by Jebus, the daye was sore spent and ꝑ younge man sayde vnto his master, come I praye the and let vs turne into this cytie of ꝑ Jebusytes and lodge all nyght there. But his master sayde vnto him, we will not turne into a straunge cytie that are not of the children of Iſraell: we will go forth to Gabaah, and we shall come to one place or other, and shall lodge all nyghte in Gabaah or in Ramah.

D

And they went forth on their iourney, and the Sonne wente downe vpon theym when they were fast by Gabaah which is in Ben Jamin. So they turned thitherward to go and lodge all nyght in Gabaah. And when they came in they sat them downe in a strete of the cytie, for no man wolde take theym in, to lodge. But beholde, there came an olde man frome his worke, out of the feldes at euen whiche was also of mount Ephraim, and but a straunger in Gabaah, for the men of the place, were of the children of Jemini. And when he had lift vp his eyen, and sawe a wayefaringe man in the stretes of the cytie, he sayd: whether goeſt thou? And whence commeſte thou? And the other answered him, we come frome Bethlehem Juda towarde the syde of mount Ephraim: frome thence am I, and went to Bethell Juda, and go now to the house of God. But there is no man that receyueth me to house: yet I haue strawe and prouender for our asses and bred and wyne for me and thy handmayd and thy lad that are with thy seruaunte, and lacke nothinge but lodgynge.

E

The olde man sayde, peax be with the, all that thou lackeſt shalte thou fynde with me:

F only remayne not in ẏ streates all nyght, and
he brought him into his house, and gaue fodder vnto his asses, And they wasshed theyr fete, and dyd eate and drynke. And as they were makynge good chere, the men of the cytye whiche were wycked, set the house rounde aboute, and thrust at the dore, and spake to the good man of the house, sayinge: brynge
forthe the man that came in to thyne house,
that we maye playe buggery with him.
But the man of the house went out to thē,
Gene.xix.b and sayde vnto them: Oh, naye my brethren
do not so wyckedly, sythens this man is come into myne house: do not this abhominacion.
Beholde, my doughter a mayden and this mās
concubyne, them I wyll bringe out vnto you,
and throw them downe, and take your pleasure of them, but vnto this man, do not this folye against nature, I beseche you. But the men wolde not herken to him. Neuerthelesse
the man toke his concubyne and brought her forth vnto them, and they had to do with her and entreated her shamefully, all the nyght euen vnto the morninge. And when the daye began to springe, they let her go.
And then came the woman in the dawning
G of the daye, and fell downe at the dore of the mans house, where her Lorde was. And her
The scripture calleth the husband the wyues Lorde. Lorde arose vp in the mornynge and opened the dores of the house, and came forthe to go his waye. And beholde, his concubyne laye a-longe before the dore of the house, & her hand
vpon the thresholde. And he sayde vnto her:
aryse and let vs be goynge. But she answered not. Then he toke her vp vpon an Asse & rode vp, and gat him vnto his owne home. And when he was come vnto his house, he toke a threshinge knyfe, and caught his concubine &
deuided her thorowe the bones into twelue
peces, and sent her into all quarters of Israel.
And all that sawe it sayd: there was no suche
dede done or sene sythens the children of Isra
ell came out of Egypte vnto this daye, consider the matter, gyue counsell and saye youre aduyses.

¶ The battayle of all the Israelites agaynste the trybe of Beniamin for the Leuites wyfe kylled.

CAPI. XX.

Osee.x.c A THen all the chyldren of Israell wente
out, and there gathered a company to-gyther, as it hadde ben but one man, euen frome Dan to Bersaba, and oute of the lande of Galaad, vnto the lande of Mar-phah / and there stode folke oute of all quarters of all the trybes of Israell in the assemble of the people of God, four hundred thou sande foote men that drewe swerdes. And the chyldren of BenJamin herde that the chyldren of Israel were gone vp to Marphah.
Then sayd the chyldren of Israel, tell vs how this wickednesse happened. And the Leuyte the slayne womans husbande answered and sayd: I came in to Gabaah in BenJamin wt
my concubyne to lodge all nyght. And the cy-tezens of Gabaah arose against me, and beset
the house roūdabout me by nyght, & thought to haue slayne me: but they caught my concu bine and forced her, that she dyed. Wherfore
I toke my concubine and cut her in peces, and sent her thorow out all the landes of the en-heritaunce of Israell. For they haue done abominacion and folly in Israell. Beholde, ye are all children of Israell. Consydre therfore, and gyue youre aduyse in the case. Then all the people arose, as it had bene one man, say-
enge: there shall not one of vs go to his tent, ne turne in to his house. And now this is it ẏ
we wil do to Gabaah and cast lottes against
it. And we will take ten men of the hundred thorow out all the trybes of Israell, and an B hundred of the thousande, and a thousande of the ten thousande, to fet vitayle for the people, to make that they maye goo against Gabaah BenJamin, accordinge to all the folye, that they haue wrought in Israell. And so all the men of Israell assembled vnto Gabaah, as it had bene but one man. And the trybes of Israell sent men thorow al the trybe of Ben Jamin, sayenge: What wyckednesse is this,
that is happened amonges you? Now therfore delyuer vs the men, those wycked wretches of Gabaah to thintent we maye sley thē
and put awaye euell frome Israell.
Neuerthelesse the children of BenJamin wolde not herken vnto the voyce of their bre thren the children of Israell: but mustered out of the cyties vnto Gabaah, to come oute in batayle against the children of Israel. And the children of BenJamin were recounted at that tyme, oute of the cyties. xxvi. thousande
men that drewe swerdes besyde the inhabitauntes of Gabaah, which were nombred seuen hundred pyked men. And amonges all these folkes were seuen hundred nymble han ded men, which euery one could slynge stones at an heare bredth, and not mysse. And the children of Israell besyde the children of Ben C Jamin, were nombred at foure hundred thou sande men that drew swerdes, and all men of warre.
And the children of Israell arose and went vp to Bethell, and asked of God, who shuld begyn the battell against the children of Ben Jamin, and the Lorde sayd Juda shalbe youre capitayne. And the children of Israell stode vp early and beseged Gabaah. And the mē of Israell went out to battell against BenJamin, and put theym selues in araye againste them, to fight against Gabaah. And the children of BenJamin came out of Gabaah and destroyed in Israell that daye. xxij. thousande men, and brought them to the grounde. And the folke of the children of Israell plucked vp their hertes, and yet eftsones made battell in the same place where they dyd the first daye:
but they went firste vp and wepte before the Lorde vnto euen, and asked of the Lorde, say
enge: shall we go agayne to battell against ẏ children of BenJamin our brethren? And the Lorde sayde: go vp vnto them, when the chil dren of Israell were come to the children of D
BenJamin the seconde daye, the children of Beniamin went agaynste theym out of Gabaah,

baah, the second day, and destroyed to the erth
of the chyldren of Israel ones agayne. xviij.
thousande men that drewe swerdes euerye
man of theym.
Then the chyldren of Israel and all the people went vp and came vnto goddes house and wept and sat there before the Lorde, and fasted the same daye vnto euen, and offered burnt offerynges and peax offerynges before the Lord. And they asked the Lord: for there was the arcke of the apoyntment of God, in those dayes. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar, the sonne of Aaron attendinge vpon it
at that tyme: and they sayde, shall we go out
any more to battel against the children of Bē Jamin our brethren, or shall we cease? And E the Lorde sayde go: for to morowe I wyll de-lyuer them into your handes. And Israell set a pryuy watche against Gabaah roundabout
And the children of Israell went againste the children of BenJamin the thirde tyme, and put them selues in araye agaynst Gabaah, as they hadde done twyse before. Then came the children of BenJamin againste the people of Israell, tyll they were drawen a great waye frome the cytie, And they began to smyte of the people and wounded theym (as they dyd
twyse before, so that Israell fled by two hye wayes of which one goeth vp to Bethell and the other to Gabaah thorowe the felde) and slewe vpon a thirtye men of Israell. For the childrē of BenJamin thought that the other
had bene beaten before theym, as at the firste tyme. But the children of Israell sayde, let vs flee and plucke theym awaye frome the cytie,
vnto the hyghe wayes.
And then all the men of Israel rose vp out of theyr standynge, and put them selues in aray at Baal Thamar. And lykewise the lyers in awayte of Israel came forth oute of their places, out of the medowes of Gabaah, and came before Gabaah: ten thousande chosen men out of al Israel, & there was a strong bat tayle. But the other wyst not that euyll was so nygh theym. And the Lorde plaged Ben-Jamin before Israel, so that the chyldren of Israel destroyed in Beniamin the same daye
xxv. thousande and a hundred men, that drew swerdes euery one of theym. The chyldren of F Beniamin when they did se that they shulde be beaten downe began to fle. And the men of Israel gaue rome to BenJamen, because they trusted vnto the layers in wayte whiche
they had layd agaynst Gabaah. And the layers in wayte hasted and ran out of their holes
vpon Gabaah, and went and smote al the citye with the edge of the swerde. And they of Israel gaue the preuye watche theyr watcheworde that as sone as they hadde taken the Cytye they shulde fyre it, that by the smoke
they shulde shew that the cytye was wonne.
And the men of Israel fled in the battayle.
And BenJamin begā to smyte deed of the chil dren of Israell, aboute thirtye personnes, for they supposed that the other had ben put to ẏ worse before them, as in the first battell. The began to aryse out of ẏ cytie a pyller of smoke
And the BenJamites loked backe: & beholde
the wastynge of the hole citye began to as-cende to heuen.
Then the men of Israel turned agayne, and the men of BenJamin were abasshed / for they sawe that euyl approched them. And they fled before the men of Israel vnto the way that lea
deth to the wyldernes, the other folowing thē
at the harde heles. And beside that their perta- G kers of their cities aboute them were slayne in the same place. And they compassed BenJami and chased them to Menuah / and ouerranne
them before Gabaah on the east syde / and there were slayne of BenJamin. xviij. thousande, and all men of might. And they turned and fledde towardes the wyldernesse, and vnto the rocke ɸ of pomegarnettes. And the other slewe by the waye of the reste of them, fyue thousande ɸ Hebr. Remō men / and stycked vnto them vntyll they came to Gadaam, and slewe two thousande moo
of them / so that al that were slayne that same daye of BenJamin, were. xxv. thousande men
that drewe swerdes / and all men of myghte;
onely sixe hundred men tourned and fledde to the wyldernesse, vnto the rocke of pomegar-nettes, and abode there foure monethes. And then the men of Israel tourned backe agayne
vnto the chyldren of BenJamin / and smote
them with the edge of the swerde in the cities
bothe man and beaste, and all that came to hande / and moreouer sette all the cityes they coulde come by on fire.

CAPI. XXI.

AND the men of Israell sware in Maz- A phah, saying / there shal none of vs giue his doughter vnto any of BenJamin to wyfe. And the people came to Bethel & abode The prayers of the people.
there tyll euen before God / and lyfte vp their voyces, and wepte sore, and sayd. O Lord God of Israel, why is this chaunced in Israel, that there sholde be this daye one tribe lackynge in Israell? And on the morowe the people arose erly, and made there an aulter, & offered burnt offerynges and pearofferinges.
And ẏ children of Israel asked who are they amonges al the tribes of Israel that came not with the congregacion vnto the Lord / for they had made a great othe concernynge them that came not vp to the Lord to Mazphah, sayinge they sholde surely dye. And the children of Israel had pitye on BenJamin their brethrē, and sayd / there is one tribe cut of from Israel this day: what shal we do vnto the rest of them, to get thē wiues, for as moch as we haue sworne
by the Lorde, that we wil not gyue them any B of our doughters to wyues. Then they sayde / what are they of the tribes of Israel that came not vp to Mazphah to the Lord? And beholde
there came none of thinhabitantz of Jabes Ga
laad vnto the cōgregacion. So when ẏ people were vewed / beholde there were none of thinhabitantes of Jabes Galaad there. And the congregacion sent thyther. xij. thousande men of the strongest of them, and commaunded thē,

sayenge: Go and smyte the enhabitauntes of *Num.xxxi.c Jabes Galaad, with the edge of the swerde
as well womcn as chyldren, * And this is that ye shall do: vtterlye destroye all the males and al the women that haue lyen by men.
And they founde amonge the inhabitantes of Jabes Galaad foure hundred damselles virgynes that hadde knowen no man by lyinge
with any male. And they brought them vnto the host to Silob which is in the lande of Canaan. And the hole congregacion sent & spake Judi.xx.c with the children of Benjamin that were in the rocke of Pomgarnettes, and called peasa-
bly vnto them, and Benjamin came agayne
at that tyme, and they gaue them the wemen
which they had saued a lyue of the wemen of Jabes Galaad. But they so sufficed them not.
And the people had compassion on Benjamin because that God had made a gappe in the try bes of Israell. And then the elders of the con gregacion sayde: What shall we vs to the remnaunt of them, to get them wyues, seing
all the wyues of Benjamin are destroyed?
And they sayde there must be an enheritaunce
for them that be escaped of Benjamin that a tryde be not destroyed oute of Israell: howe be it, we maye not gyue theym wyues of our doughters. For the children of Israell hadde made an adiuracion, sayeng: cursed be he that gyueth a wyfe to Benjamin. Then they said
D Beholde, there is a feaste of the Lorde yerely
in Silob which is on the northside of Bethel
and on the eastside of the waye that goeth from Bethel to Sichem, and south from Libanon. And they commaunded the childre of Benjamin, sayenge: go and lye in awayt
in the vyneyardes. And when ye se the dough
ters of Silob come forth to daunce in a rewe,
then come ye out of the vyneyardes, & catche
you euery man a wyfe of the doughters of Si
lob, and get you vnto the land of Benjamin.
And yf their fathers or brethren come vnto vs
to complayne, we will saye vnto them, haue pytie on theym, because we reserued not to eche man his wyfe in tyme of warre, & more-
ouer because ye gaue them none in due tyme, ye were to blame. And the childzen of Ben-Jamin dyd accordyngly: and toke them wynes after the nombre of the daunces whiche
they caught. And that done they went and re tourned vnto their enheritaunce, and buylte
there cyties and dwelt in them.

And the childzen of Israell went thence at that tyme euery one to his tryde, and to his kynred, and departed thence euery man to his enheritaunce. In those dayes there was no
kynge in Israell:
but euery man dyd what semed hym

THE BOOKE OF RVTH.

¶ Elimelec goth with his wyfe and chyldren in to the lande of Moab. After his death his wyfe Noemi returneth agayn in to her countrey, and with her Ruth her daughter in lawe.

CAPI. I.

1 IN the tyme when the Judges iudged, there felle a derth in the lande. Wherfore a certayne man of Bethlehem Juda went to soiourne in the countreye of Moab with his wyfe and two sonnes. The name of the man was Elimelec, and his wyfe Noemi / and the names of his two sonnes were Mahalon and Chilion, and were Ephzaites of Bethlehem Juda. And when they came in to the lande of Moab, they abode there. And Elimelec Noemis husbande dyed, and she remayned with her two sonnes, whiche toke them wyues of the nations of the Moabites: the ones name Orphah, and thothers Ruth. And when they had dwelled there aboute the space of ten yeres, Mahalon and Chilion dyed, so that the wyfe was bereued of her two sonnes, and of
B her husbande also. Then she rose vp with her doughters in lawe, and returned from the countrey of Moab / for she had herde saye, being in the countrey of Moab, how the Lorde had visited his people, and gyuen them fode. Wherfore she departed forthe of the place where she was and her two doughters togy-ther with her. And as they wente by the waye returnynge vnto the lande of Juda, Noemi sayd vnto her two doughters in lawe: Goo and returne eyther of you vnto your mothers house, the Lorde deale as kyndlye with you, as ye haue dealte with the ded, and with me. And the Lorde graunte you maye fynde reste eyther of you in the house of youre husbande: and so she kyssed them.

Then they cryed and wepte, and sayd vnto her, we wyll go with the vnto thy folke. But Noemi sayd, turne agayne my doughters / for what cause wolde ye goo with me? thynke
C you there be any more chyldren in my bowels to be your husbandes? Tourne agayne (my doughters) and go: for I am to olde to haue an husbande / also yf I toke a man this night: yea, thoughe I hadde alredye borne sonnes / wolde ye tarye for them, tyll they were of age? or wolde ye for them so longe refrayne from takynge of husbandes? Not so, my doughters: for then ye shoulde be to olde to marye, and it greueth me moche for youre sa-kes, that the hande of the Lorde is gone oute agaynste me.

Therewith they cryed and wepte agayne / how be it, Orphah kyssed her mother in lawe and departed / but Ruth abode styll by her, then she sayde / le, thy syster in lawe is gone backe agayne vnto her people, and vnto her God: returne thou after her. But Ruth sayde: entreate me not to leaue the, and to retourne from the / for whyther thou goest, I wyll goo / and where thou dwellest, there I wyll dwell: thy people are my people, and thy God is my God. Where thou dyest, I will dye, and there wyll be buryed. The Lorde do so and so to me / excepte that deathe onely departe the and me a sonder.

When she sawe she wolde nedes goo with D her, she lefte speakynge vnto her / and so they went bothe togyther, tyll they came to Bethlehem. And when they were come to Bethlehem, it was noysed thorow all the cite, and the women sayde: is not this Noemi? But she sayd vnto them / call me not ✠Noemi / call me ✠Mara, for the almyghtye hath made me verye bytter. I wente oute full, but the Lorde hathe brought me home emptye. Why holde ye then call me Noemi, seinge the Lorde hath brought me low, & the almighty hath brought me vnto aduersitie. And the tyme when Noe-mi with Ruth the Moabitesse her doughter Tobye.ii.a in lawe returned oute of the countrey of Moab and came to Bethlehem, was in the begin-nynge of barley haruest.

✠ Noemi is sayde.
✠ Mara bytter.

¶ Ruth leseth corne in the feldes of Booz and fin deth fauoure in his syght.

CAPI. II.

1 AND Noemi had a kynsman of her hus-bandes, a man of myghte, of the kynred of Elimelec, named Booz. And Ruth the Moabitesse sayd vnto Noemi / let me goo to the felde and lease and gather eares, after whome so euer I kynde grace in his syghte. And she sayde vnto her: goo my doughter And she wente, and came and gathered after the haruest men, and her chaunce was to ga-ther in the felde that pertayned vnto Booz, which was of the kynred of Elimelec. And be-holde, Booz came from Bethlehem and sayde vnto the haruest men, the Lorde be with you. And they answered him, the Lorde blesse the. Then sayd Booz vnto the yonge man that had the ouersyght of the haruest men. Whose da-mosell is this? And the yonge man that was set to ouerse the haruest men answered & sayd:
B It is the Moabitysh damosel that came with Noemi oute of the countreye of Moab / and she sayde: lette me I praye the, lease and ga-ther after the haruest men the eares that re-mayne. And so she came and hathe contynued euen from the mornynge vnto nowe / & wente not ones home.

Then sayd Booz vnto Ruth: hearest thou my doughter: goo to none other felde to ga-ther, neyther go from hence, but abyde by my maydes. Thyne eyes are on a felde that shall be reped: goo after the maydens therfore / for I haue charged the younge men that they touche the not. Moreouer when thou arte a-thyrst, go vnto thy vessels and drynke of that whiche the ladres haue drawen. Then she fell on her face, and ✠ bowed her selfe to ꝑ ground Gene.xxxiii.a

and sayde vnto him: howe is it / that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, to knowe me, sythens I am an alien.

C And Booz answered and sayd vnto her: all is tolde me that thou hast done to thy mother in lawe sence the deathe of thyne husbande, howe thou haste lefte thy father and thy mother, and the land where thou wast borne, and arte come vnto a nation whiche thou knewest not in tyme passed. The Lorde reacqupte thy worke, and a full rewarde be gyuen the of the Lorde God of Israel, vnto whome thou arte come, to trust vnder his wynges. Then she sayde vnto hym / lette me fynde fauoure in thy syght (my Lorde) for thou hast comforted me, and hast spoken iuetely vnto thy mayde, whiche yet can not be lyke vnto one of thy maydes. And Booz when tyme of repaste was come, sayde vnto her: come hyther and eate of the breed, and dyppe thy soppe in the vynegre. And she sate downe by the reapers, and he raught her * parched corne. And so she dyd eate and was fylled, and lefte parte. And when she was ryssen vp to gather, Booz sayde to the ponge men, sayinge: let her gather the eares that remayne, and do her no dyspyte. And therto pull out of the sheues for her, and let it lye, that she may gather it vp, and rebuke her not. And so she gathered tyll euen, and then threshed that she hadde gathered, and it was vpon an Epha of barleye. And she toke it vp and went to the cite, and shewed her mother in lawe what she hadde gathered. And therto she plucked oute and gaue to her that she had reserued when she had eaten ynough. Then said her mother in law vnto her, where gatheredst thou to daye? and where wroughtest thou? blessed be he that knewe the. And she shewed her mother in lawe with whome she hadde wrought, and sayde: the mans name with whome I wrought to daye, is Booz. Then sayd Noemi vnto her doughter in law, blessed be he, for he ceaseth not to do the same goodnesse to the dead, that he did to the liuing. And Noemi sayd vnto her: the man is nye vnto vs, euen of our nexte kynne. And Ruth the Moabyte said: he bad me also ꝑ I shold continue with his ponge men, vntyl they had ended all the haruest he hath. Then sayd Noemi vnto Ruth her doughter in lawe, it is best my doughter that thou goo oute with his maydens, and that no man mete the in anye other felde. And so she kepte her by the maydens of Booz, to gather vnto the ende of barleye haruest and of whete haruest also, and retourned to her mother in lawe.

D Epha is three bushels.

C Ruth sleapeth at Booz fete, and is knowen his kynswoman.

CAPI. III.

A Then Noemi her mother in lawe sayde vnto her: my doughter I wyll seke reste for the, that thou mayste be in better state. For nowe this Booz our kynsman, with whose maydens thou waste, wynoweth his barleye to nyghte in the threshynge floure: walsche thy selfe therfore and anoynte the, and put thy rayment vpon the, and get the to the threshynge floure. But lette not the man be ware of the, tyll he haue lefte eatynge and drynkynge. And when he goeth to slepe, marke the place where he layeth hym downe, and then goo and lyfte vp the clothes that are on his fete, and laye the downe / and so shal he tel the what thou shalt do. And she answered her / all that thou byddest me, I wyll doo. So she went vnto the floure, and dyd all that her mother in lawe bad her. And when Booz hadde eaten and dronken, and made hym merye, he went and lay downe by the syde of the heape, and she came softlye and lyfte vp the clothes of his fete, and layde her downe / and at mydnyght the man was afrayde and groped / and beholde, a woman laye at his feete. Then he sayd, what art thou? and she answered, I am Ruth thyne handmayde / sprede thy mantell ouer thyne handmayde, for thou arte the nexte of the kynne. And then he said, blessed be thou in ꝑ Lorde (my doughter) for thou hast shewed more goodnesse in the latter ende, then at the begynnynge / in as moche as thou folowedst not ponge men, whether they were poore or ryche. And now (my doughter feare not, I wyll do to the all that thou requyrest / for al within the gates of this cite knowe that thou arte a woman of vertue. And it is true that I am of thy nexte kynne / how be it, there is one nere then I. Tarye all nyght, and when morning is come, yf he will mary the, wel and good / let him so do. But if he wil not haue the, as sure as the Lord lyueth, I wil haue the / lye styl tyl the morninge / and so she laye at his fete tyll ꝑ morning. And she arose vp before one coulde know an other. And he said / let no man know that there came any woman in to ꝑ threshing floure. And he sayd bringe the mantell ꝑ thou hast vpon the, and holde it vp / and she helde it vp. And he met in sixe measures of barleye and layde it on her. And she gat her in to the cite, and came to her mother in lawe whiche sayd / what tydynges, my doughter? And she tolde her all that the man had done to her. And said moreouer, these sixe measures of barleye gaue he me, and sayd: thou shalt not go emptye vn to thy mother in law. The said she, my doughter sye styll, vntyll thou knowe how the mater wyl procede. For the man wil not be in rest tyl he haue ended the mater this same daye.

C Booz taketh Ruth to wyfe, of whome he begetteth Obed.

CAPI. IIII.

A Then wente Booz vnto the gate, and sat him downe there: and beholde, the kynsman of whiche Booz spake came by. Vnto whome he sayd: come and syt downe here, and called him by his name. And he turned in and sate downe. Then he toke tenne men of the elders of the cite, and sayd / syt ye downe here. And they sat downe. Then he sayd vnto the kynsman: Noemi that is come agayn out of the countreye of Moab, wyll sell a parcell

of lande whiche was our brother Elimelecs. And I thought to doo the to were, and bydde the bye it before the inhabytoures and elders of my people / yf thou be disposed to calenge it, for thou arte nexte of kynred: but yf thou wylt not purchase it, then tell me, that I may were it. For there is none to calenge it, saue thou, and I next the. And the other answered I wyll purchase it.

B Then sayd Booz / what daye thou byest the felde of the hande of Noemi, thou muste take also Ruth the Moabite the wyfe of the deed, to stere vp the name of thy sted kynsman vpon his inheritaunce. Then sayd the kynsman / I can not purchase it for marrynge of my owne name: take thou my ryghte to the, for I am content to lese my ryght here. Now this was the maner of olde tyme in Israel concernynge purches and chaungynge, for to stablysshe all thynge: that a man muste plucke of his shoo and gyue it his neyghboure, and this was a wytnesse in Israel. Ruth. iiii.

C And the kynsman said to Booz / bye it thou: and so dyewe of his shoo. Then sayd Booz vn to the elders, and vnto all the people, ye are wytnesses this daye, that I haue boughte all that was Elimelecs, and all that was Chilions and Mahelons, of the hande of Noemi. And moreouer Ruth the Moabyte the wyfe of Mahelon, doo I take vnto me to wyfe, to stere vp the name of the deed vpon his inheritaunce, that his name be not put forth among his brethren, and frome the gate of his cite: ye are wytnesses this daye.

And all the people that were in the gate, ꝑ the elders sayd, we are wytnesses: the Lorde make ꝑ woman that is come in to thyne house lyke Rachel ꝑ Lea, whiche twayne did buylde the house of Israel, that the maye wo vertuously in Ephrathah, and be famous in Bethlehem, and that thyne house be lyke the house of Pharez, whome Thamar bare vnto Iuda, euen of the seed whiche the Lorde shall gyue the of this ponge woman. And so Booz toke Ruth, and she was his wyfe. And he lay with her, and the Lord gaue that she conceyued and bare a sonne. And the women sayd vnto Noemi: blessed be the Lorde, whiche hath not left the without an heyre this daye, that shal haue a name in Israel, and that shall bryng thy lyfe agayne, and cherysshe thyne olde age. For thy doughter in law which loueth the, hath borne him that is better to the then seuen sonnes. And Noemi toke the childe and layde it in her lappe, and became nourse vnto it. And her neyghboures gaue her a name, sayinge / there is a childe borne to Noemi, ꝑ called it Obed: he is the father of Iesse, the father of Dauid.

And the sayd man went out of his citye euery

And it fell on a daye as Elkanah had offered

all her sonnes and doughters portions. But vnto Hannah he gaue an honourable portion with a merye cheere, for he loued her/ neuertheles the Lorde had made her bareyn. And ther to her enemye Phenennah vexed her sore, casting her in the teethe how the Lorde had made her bareyn. And so dyd she yere by yere as ofte as she went vp to the house of the Lorde. And so chafed her, wherfore Hannah wept, and ate
not. Then sayd Elkanah her husbande to her.
16 Hannah, why wepest thou? and why eatest
thou not? and why is thyne hert so troubled?
am not I better to the then ten sonnes? Then Hannah rose vp after that they had eate, and dronke in Siloh. And Eli the Priest sate vpon
a stole by one of the syde postes of the temple of the Lorde. And she was troubled in her spirites, and prayed vnto the Lorde ⁊ wept sore/and vowed a vowe and sayd. Lorde of hostes yf thou wylt loke on ꝯ wretchednesse of thyne

and there shall neyther rasor or sheres come vpon his heed. And she continued prayinge before the Lorde, Eli marked her mouthe. For Hannah she spake in her herte, and her lyppes dyd but moue only, but her voyce was not herde. And therfore Eli toke her for dronken and sayd vnto her/ howe longe wylte thou be dronken? put awaye from the, the wyne that thou haste. Hannah answered and sayde: not so my Lorde / I am a woman sorowfull in mynde herte, and haue dronke neyther wyne
nor ange stronge drynke / but I haue poured out my soule before the Lorde. Counte not thyne handemayde to be lyke a doughter of vnthryftynesse / for oute of the aboundaunce

of my meditacion and grefe haue I spoken hitherto.

Eli answered and said: go in peace, the God of Israel shall graunt ꝯ thy petition that thou hast asked of him. Then the sayde/ lette thyne handemayde fynde grace in thy syght. And so the woman went her waye, and dyd eat and loked no more so sadde. And they rose by erly and bowed them selues before the Lord, and then returned and went to their house to Ramath. And Elkanah laye by his wyfe Hannah, and the Lorde remembred her. And in v.b processe of time she conceyued and bare a son, and called his name ✳ Samuel: because she had asked him of the Lorde. And Elkanah and all his house wente vp to offer vnto the Lorde bothe the offerynges due for the fraile
and also his vowes: but Hannah went not vp for she sayde vnto her husbande: I wyll tarye vntyll the chylde be wened, and then I wyll bringe him, that he may appeare before the Lorde, and there abyde for euer. And Elkanah her husbande sayd to her: do what se meth the beste: tarye tyl thou hast wened him, onely the Lorde make good his sayinge. And so the women abode and gaue her sonne suck, tyll she wened him. And then she toke him with her, when she had wened him, with thre
bullockes and an Epha of floure and a bottel of wyne, and brought him vnto the house of the Lorde in Siloh howbeit the chylde was yet younge. And they slewe the bullockes and brought the chylde to Eli, ⁊ then she sayd:
Oh my Lorde: as trulye as thy soule lyueth
my Lorde: I am the woman that stode by the here, prayinge vnto the Lorde and for this chylde I prayed, and the Lorde hath gyuē me my desyre whiche I asked of him: and therfore I also lend him the Lorde, as longe as he maye be lent the Lorde. And so they prayed there vnto the Lorde.

¶ The songe of Hannah. The offence of the sonnes of Eli. Eli is rebuked for the vnmeasurable sufferaūce of his chyldren.

CAPI. II.

ANd Hannah prayed and sayde: myne
hert reioyseth in the Lord, myne horne is hyghe in the Lorde, and my mouthe is wyde open ouer myne enemyes/ for I reioyce in that thou hast deliuered me. There is none so holye as the Lorde: no there is none saue thou. Neither is there any strengthe like vnto our God. Talke not so mocheproudlye, let olde thynges depart out of your mouthes,
for the Lorde is a God of knowlege, and by him are the workes. The bowes of the stronge are broken: and the weake are endued with strengthe. They that were full haue ben glad to serue for bread, and they that were hongrye be satisfied / in so moche that the bareyn
hathe borne seuen / and she that hadde manye children is waxed feble. The Lorde killeth and maketh aliue / bringeth downe to helle,
and fetcheth vp againe. The Lorde maketh poore, and maketh ryche/ bringeth lowe, and heaueth vp on hye. He rayseth vp the poore out of the dust, and lyfteth vp the begger from
the donge hylle, to set them amonge princes,
and to enherite them with the seate of glory.
For the pyllers of the erthe are the Lordes, ⁊
he hathe sette the rounde worlde vpon them.
He wyll kepe the feete of his holye, but the wycked shall kepe silence in darknesse. For in his owne myghte shall no man be stronge.
The Lordes aduersaryes shall be made to feare him/ and oute of heuen he shall thunder vpon them. The Lorde shall iudge the borders of the worlde, and shall gyue myght vnto his kyng, and exalte the horne of his anoynted. And Elkanah wente to Ramath to his house, ⁊ the chylde did minister vnto the Lord
before Eli the preest.

But the sonnes of Eli were the sonnes of Belial, and knewe not the Lorde. For the ma ner of the preestes with the people was/ when so euer anye man offered anye offerynges, the preestes lad came whyle the flesh was sething,
and a fleshe hoke with thre teethe in his hande,
and thrulle it in to the panne, kettle, caldron, or potte. And all that the flesshe hoke brought vp, the preest toke awaye. And so they dyd vn to all Israel that came thyther to Siloh. Yea and moreouer before they had offered the fat,
the preestes lad came and sayd to the man that offred: gyue flesshe to roste for the preest/ for
he wyl not haue sodden flesh of the but rawe.
And yf any man sayd vnto him, let the fat be offred accordynge to the custome of the daye, and then take as moche as thyne herte desyreth. The lad wolde answere him, thou shalte gyue it me now, or els I wil take it parforce. And the synne of the ponge men was verye greate
before the Lorde. For they hyndred the peoples deuocion from offerynge vnto the Lorde.

But the chyld Samuel ministred before the Lorde gyrded about with a lynnen Ephod.
Moreouer his mother made him a lytle cote,
and broughte it to him from yeasse to yeasse
when she came vp with her husbande to offre
the offerynge of the sayde feast. And Eli bles sed Elkanah and his wyfe, and sayde: the Lorde gyue the seed of this woman, for that she hathe lente the Lorde. And they went vn to their owne house. And the Lorde vysyted Hannah, so that she conceyued and bare thre
sonnes and two doughters. But the chylde Samuel grewe, dwellynge styll with the Lorde.

Eli was verye olde and herde all that his sonnes dyd vnto al Israel, and how they slept with the women that wayted in the doze of ꝯ tabernacle of witnesse, ⁊ sayd vnto them/ why doye suche thynges? For I heare youre wyc

¶ After the Lord had left to appeare by open vision in Siloh for a loge season: he yet calleth Samuel.iiii. tymes, and sheweth him what shulde befall on Heli.

CAPI. III.

AND the chylde Samuel ministred vnto
the Lorde before Hely/ and the worde
of the Lorde was dyrke in those dayes,
for there was none open vision. And it chaun
ced at that tyme that Hely laye in his place,
and his eyen beganne to waxe dymme that he coulde not se. And er the lampe of God went out, Samuel layde him downe to slepe in the temple of the Lorde, where the arcke of God was. And the Lorde called Samuel / and he sayd, here am I / and he ran vnto Hely ⁊ sayd/
here am I, for thou calledst me. But he sayde
I called the not: go agayne and slepe. And he went and layde him downe to slepe. And the Lorde called ones agayne Samuel / and Samuel

Samuel arose and went to Heli and said: I am here, thou diddest call me. And he answered I called the not, my sonne/go agayn and take thy rest/but as yet Samuel knew not ꝑ Lorde neither was the worde of the Lord opened vn to him. And the Lord proceeded and called Samuel the third time. And he arose and went to Heli and saide: I am here, for thou hast called me. Then Heli perceyued that the Lorde had called the chylde, and sayd vnto him/go & lye downe, and yf he call the agayne, then say speake on Lord, for thy seruaunt heareth. And Samuel went & layd him downe in his place. And the Lord came and stode and called as afore, Samuel Samuel. And Samuel sayde/ speke on, for thy seruaũt heareth the. And the Lorde sayd to Samuel: beholde, I wyll do a thyng in Israel, that the eares of as many as heareth it, shall tingle. In that daye I wil performe to Heli all that I haue spoken concernynge his house: I wyll begyn it and ende it. For I haue told he him that I wyll iudge his house for euer. For the wyckednes whiche he knoweth howe his sonnes are vngracyous/ and he chastised theym not. And therfore I haue sworne vnto the house of Heli, that the wyckednesse of his house shall not be purged with sacrifice nor offeryng, whyle the worlde standeth. And Samuel laye tyll the mornynge, and then opened the wores of the house of the Lorde.

t.Regum.ii.g.

But Samuel feared to shewe Heli the vysyon. Then Heli called Samuel and sayde: Samuel my sonne. And he answered, here I am. And he sayd what is it that the Lord hath vnto the? Se thou hide it not from me. * The Lorde do so and so to the, yf thou hyde anye thyng frõ me of all that he sayd vnto the. And Samuel told him euery whyt, and hid it not from him. And he answered: it is the Lord, let him do what semeth him good.

* Ruth.i.c

And Samuel grewe, and the Lorde was with him, and left none of his wordes vnperformed. And all Israel from Dan to Berlabe wyst that the faythfull Samuel was truely made the Lordes Prophete. And the Lorde appeared agayne in Siloh/for the Lorde opened him selfe to Samuel in Siloh, thorow the worde of the Lorde.

¶ The battel of the Philistines. Israel fleeth. The Arche of the Lorde is taken. Elies children dye and he him self also.

CAPI. IIII.

A AND Samuel spake vnto al Israel. And Israel wente oute agaynste the Philistines to battayle, and pytched beside the helpe stone. But the Philistines pytched in Apheck, and put them selues in aray agaynst Israel. And in the battayle Israel was put to the worse before the Philistines. For the Philistines slewe alonge by the feldes, about four thousande men.

i.Regũ.vii.c.

And when the people were come in to their tentes, the elders of Israel sayde: wherfore hath the Lorde beaten vs this daye before the Philistines? let vs fetche the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde oute of Siloh vnto vs, and let it come amonge vs and saue vs out of the handes of our ennemyes. And ꝑ people sent to Siloh, and fet from thence the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lord of hostes which dwelleth betwene the Cherubyns. And there were the two sonnes of Heli, Hophni, & Phinehes, wt the arcke of the appoyntmẽt of God. And when the arcke of the appoyntmẽt of the Lord came in to the hoste, all Israel shouted a mighty shout, so that the erth rang agayne.

When the Philistines herde the noyse of the shout, they sayd: What meaneth the soud of this mightye shout in the hoste of the Hebrues? And they vnderstode that the arcke of the Lorde was come in to the hoste. And the Philistines were afrayde / when it was tolde that God was come in to the hoste, and sayde. Wo vnto vs, for it was neuer so before this. Wo vnto vs, who shall delyuer vs out of the hande of this myghtye God? this is the God that smote the Egyptians with all maner plages in the wyldernesse. Be stronge and quyte your selues lyke men ye Philistines, that ye be not seruantes vnto the Hebrues, * as they haue bene to you. Be men therfore and fyght. And the Philistines foughte, and Israel was put to the worse and fled euery man in to his tent. And there was a mighty great slaughter, so that there were ouerthrowẽ of Israel thirtye thousande fotemen. And the arcke of God was taken, & the two sonnes of Heli, Hophni and Phinehes were ded. And there ran a man of Benjamin out of the araye and came to Siloh the same daye, with his clothes rente and erthe vpon his heed. And when the man came in, Heli sate vpon a stole by the wayes syde lokynge: for his herte feared for the arcke of God. And the man came in and tolde it in the citye. And all the city cryed.

When Heli herd the noyse of the crying, he asked what the noyse of ꝑ rumoure ment. And the man hasted, and came in and tolde Heli. Heli was foure score and eyghtene yere olde, & * his sight fayled him that he could not se. And the man said vnto Heli, I am he that ran forth from the araye, and fled oute of the hoste this day. And he said, how is it forttuned my sonne? And the messenger answered and sayd: Israel is fledde before the Philistines / and there is a great slaughter chaunced among the people/ and thy two sonnes, Hophni and Phinehes are ded/and therto the arcke of God is taken. And when he hadde ones named the arcke of God, Heli fell frome his stole backwarde towarde the gate / and his necke brake, and he dyed / for he was olde and vnweldye, and he iudged Israel fourtye yeres.

And his doughter in lawe Phinehes wyfe was with childe, and nye the byrth. And when she herde these tidynges of the takynge of the arcke of God/and that her father in lawe and her husbande were ded, she bowed her selfe and travayled, for her paynes came vpon her. And aboute the tyme of her deathe / the women that stode aboute her, sayd vnto her/feare not, for thou hast borne a sonne. But she answered not, nor regarded it. And she named the chylde Ichabod, sayinge: honoure is departed from Israel. Bicause the arcke of God was taken, and her father in lawe and her husbande were ded. And therfore she sayd: Israel hathe lost his honour, bycause the arcke of God was taken.

¶ Dagon the God of the Philistines is cast flat before the arcke. The Philistines are plaged in the secrete places. Thinhabitentes of Azaron refuse to receyue the arcke.

CAPI. V.

A AND the Philistines toke ꝑ arke of God and caryed it from the helpe stone vnto Asdod, and brought it in to the house of Dagon, and set it by Dagon. And whẽ they of Asdod were risen in the mornynge, beholde Dagon laye grouelynge vpon the erthe before the arcke of the Lorde. And they toke Dagon and set him in his place agayne. And whẽ they rose vp erlye in the next mornyng, beholde Dagon laye grouelynge vpon the grounde before the arcke of the Lorde, and his heed & his two handes cut of vpon the thresshold, that ꝑ body onely was left on him. Wherfore neither the preestes of Dagon, ne any man that commeth in to Dagons house might treade on ꝑ thresholde of Dagon in Asdod, vnto this daye.

But the hand of the Lorde was heuy vpon them of Asdod, and he destroyed them & smote them with Emerodes, both Asdod and al the coostes therof. And when the men of Asdod saw that so, they sayd: the arke of the God of Israel shal not abyde here with vs/for his hand is sore vpon vs, & vpon Dagon our God. And so they sente and gathered all the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them and said: what shal we do with ꝑ arcke of the God of Israel. Then sayd they of Geth, let the arcke of the God of Israel be caryed about. And they caryed ꝑ arck of the God of Israel about. And when they hadde caryed it about, the hande of the Lorde was in the citye with a mighty great plage, & he smote the men of the citye both smal and great / and they were imperen in their secrete places with the Emerodes. Then they sent the arcke of God to Akaron. and as soone as the arcke of God came to Akaron, the Akaronites cryed oute, sayinge: they haue brought the arcke of the God of Israel to vs: to slee vs and oure people.

Then they sente and set all the Lordes of the Philistines vnto them and sayde: sende awaye the arcke of the God of Israel, and let it goo home agayne vnto his owne place, that it slee vs not with oure people. For there was a plage of deth throwe oute all the citye, and the hande of God was exceedyng sore there, in so moche that they which died not, were smitten with the Emerodes: so that the crye of the citye reached vp to heuen.

¶ The heyfers bringe home the arcke with the rewardes. The Bethsamites were plaged after they had sene the arcke.

CAPI. VI.

A AND so when the arcke of the Lord had ben in the countrey of the Philistines seuen monethes/the Philistines called for the preestes and the sothe sayers, sayinge: what shall we do with the arcke of the Lord? tell vs wherwith we shall sende it home agayne. They answered, yf you send the arcke of the God of Israel home agayne, sende it not emptye: But rewarde it with a tresspace offeryng / and then ye shall be hole / and it shall be knowen to you why his hande departeth not from you.

Then sayd they, what shall be the tresspace offeryng, whiche we shall rewarde him with? And they answered: fyue golden arses with Emerodes, and fyue golden myce, accordynge to the nombre of ꝑ Lordes of the Philistines. For it was one maner of plage ꝑ was on you all, and on your Lordes to. Wherfore ye shall make ymages lyke to youre arses with Emerodes, and ymages like to youre myce that destroyed your lande, and shall gyue glorye vnto the God of Israel: that he may take his hand from you, and from youre goddes / and frome your lande. Wherfore sholde ye harden youre hertes, as the Egyptians and Pharao hardened theyr hertes, whiche for all that (when he was well scourged) was fayne to let the people goo and depart.

Exod.xii.d

Now therfore make a newe carte and take two mylche kyne, on whose necke neuer came yoke. And tye the kyne in the carte / and kepe theyr calues at home frome them. Then take the arcke of the Lorde, and put it in the carte/ and put the Jewels of golde (which ye reward him with, for a tresspace offeryng) in a foxcer by the syde therof, and sende it awaye and let it go. And marke, yf he goeth vp by the waye that leadeth vnto his own coost to Bethsames, then it is he that dyd vs this great euyll. But yf he do not, then it is not his hand that smote vs, but it was a chaũce that happened vs. And the men did euen so: they toke two kyne that gaue mylke and tied them in the carte, & kepte the calues at home; and they layde the arcke of the Lorde vpon the carte, and the foxcer with the myce of golde, & the ymages of their arses with Emerodes. And the kyne toke ꝑ streyght waye to Bethsames, both one waye/ and as thee went, cryed/turnyng neyther to the right hande ne to the lefte. And the Lordes of the Philistines went after them, tyll they came to the borders of Bethsames.

And they of Bethsames were reppynge their whete in the valey. So they lyft vp their eyes and espied the arcke, and reioyced when they saw it. And the cart came into the grene of one Josua a Bethsamite, and stode stil there. There was there also a greate stone. And they cleue the wodde of the carte, and offered the kyne a burnt offeryng vnto the Lorde. And the Leuites toke downe the arcke of the Lorde, & the foxcer that was therby, wherin the Jewels of golde were, and put them on the greate stone. And the men of Bethsames sacrificed burnt sacrifice, and offered offerynges that same daye vnto the Lorde. And when the true Lords of the Philistines had sene it, they retourned to Akaron the same daye. These are the golden arises with Emerodes, whiche the Philistines gaue to amendes for a trespace offeryng, to the Lorde / for Asdod one / for Gaza one / for Askalon one / for Geth one / and for Akaron one. And the golden myce were accordynge to the nombre of all the cityes of the Philistines thorowe the fyue lordshyppes / bothe of walled townes, and of townes vnwalled, euen vnto the great stone wheron they sette downe the arcke of the Lorde: whiche remaynech vn to this daye in the feldе of Josua the Bethsamyte. And the Lorde plaged the men of Bethsames, bycause they hadde sene the iewels that were in the arcke of the Lorde. And he slewe of the people fifty thousande, and thre score & ten persons. And the people lamēted bycause the Lord had made so great a slaughter of thē. And the men of Bethsames said, who is able to stande before the Lorde so holy a God, and to whom shall he go from vs? And they sente messengers to the inhabitantes of Kariath Iarim, saynge: The Philistines haue brought home agayne the arcke of the Lorde: come downe and feet it vp to you.

¶ The arcke is brought to kariathiarim. The people wepe, for whiche Samuel maketh intercession to the Lorde. The Philistines are smytten.

CAPI. VII.

A Nd the men of Kariathiarim came and
*ii.Reg.vi.a fet vp ꝑ arcke of the Lord, & *brought it in to the house of Abinadab in Sabaah, and sanctified Eleazar his sonne to attende vpon the arcke of the Lorde. And while the arcke abode in Kariathiarim, the dayes grewe so, that it was twentye yeres, and all Israel lamented after the Lorde.

And Samuel spake vnto all Israel, saynge
ꝑ ye be come agayne vnto the Lorde with all
*Ios. xxiiii.c Deute.vi.e Matth.iii.b. your hertes, then *put away the straūge goddes from you, Baalim, and Astaroth / and prepare your hertes vnto the Lord, and serue him alone, and so shal he eyd you out of the handes
B of the Philistines. And then the children of Israel did put away ꝑ Baalim and Astaroth, and b Of this ye haue. Iud.x.c serued the Lord onely. Then said Samuel / gather all Israel to Masphah, that I may praye for you vnto the Lord. And they assembled at Maspha, and drewe water and poured it out before the Lorde, and fasted the same daye, and sayd there: we haue synned against the Lord. And Samuel iudged the causes of the children of Israel in Maspha. When the Philistines herde that the children of Israel were assembled at Maspha, the Lordes of the Philistines went vp against Israel, which when the children of Israel herde, they were afrayde of the Philistines, and sayd to Samuel / cease not to C crye vnto the Lorde oure God for vs, that he maye kepe vs out of the handes of the Philistines. And Samuel toke a sucking lambe and offered it hole for a burnt offeryng vnto the Lorde, and cryed vnto the Lorde for Israel: & the Lorde herde him. And as Samuel offered the burnt offeryng / the Philistines came to fyght agaynst Israel. But the Lorde thondered a greate thunder that same daye vpon the Philistines, and turmoyled them, that they were beaten before Israel. And the men of Israel issued oute of Maspha, and pursued the Philistines, and slewe them tyl they came vnder Bethcar. And then Samuel toke a stone, & pitched it betwene Maspha and Sen, and called the name therof ✕ the stone of help, saying / thus farre hath the Lord holpē vp. And so the Philistines were broughte vnder ꝑ they came no more in to the costes of Israel / for the hand of the Lorde was vpon the Philistines al the dayes of Samuel. Then the cityes whiche the Philistines hadde taken from Israel, came agayne to Israel, from Akaron to Geth, with the coostes of the same, whiche Israel pluckt out of the handes of the Philistines. For there was peax betwene Israel and the Amorites. And Samuel iudged Israel all the dayes of his lyfe, and went about yere by yere to Bethel, Galgal, and Maspha, and iudged Israell in all those places / and came agayne to Ramath, for there was his house / and there he iudged Israel / and there he buylte an aulter vnto the Lorde.

¶ Because Samuelles sonnes dyd mynyster euyll, the people requyre a kynge: and to them is delyuered the maner of a kynge.

CAPI. VIII.

When Samuel was olde, he made his sonnes Iudges ouer Israell. The name of his eldest sonne was Joel, and the name of the seconde Abiath, whiche were Iudges in Berlsabe. Neuertheless his sonnes folowed not his steppes / but tourned aside after lucre, and ✕ toke rewardes, and peruerted iudgement. Then all the elders of Israel gathered them togyther and came to Samuel vnto Ramath, and sayd vnto hym / beholde, thou arte olde, and thy sonnes folowe not thy wayes. Now therfore ✕ make vs a kynge to iudge vs, as all other nacions haue. But that thyng displeased Samuel, when they sayde: Gyue vs a kyng to iudge vs. And Samuel prayed vnto the Lorde. And the Lorde sayd vnto Samuel, heare the voyce of the people in all that they saye vnto the. For they haue not caste the away, but me: that I sholde not raygne ouer them. And as they haue euer doone sithens I brought them out of Egypt vnto this daye, & haue forsaken me and serued other goddes, euen so do they vnto the. Now therfore harken vnto theyr voyce / howbeit yet testifye vnto them, and shewe them the power of the kynge that shal raygne ouer them. And Samuel told all the wordes of the Lorde vnto the people that asked a kynge of hym / and he sayde: this shall be the ✕ power of the kynge that shall B raygne ouer you: he shall take your sonnes and put them to his charettes, and make his horsemen of them / and they muste runne before his charet, and shal make him capitaynes of them ouer thousandes, and ouer hundredes, and wil set set them to eare his grounde / and to gather in his haruest, and to make ordinaunce of warre, and apparell for his charettes. And he wyll take your doughters & make them the dressers of his oyntmentes, & his cookes & bakers. And he shall take the best of your feldes / & of your vynegardes, and of your olyue trees, and gyue them to his seruauntes. And he shall take the tenth of your seed, and of your vines, and giue it to his lordes, and to his seruauntes. And he shall take the best of your menseruauntes and maydseruauntes, and yonge men, and of your asses, and wo his worke with them. And he D shall take the tenth of your sheepe, and ye shall be his seruauntes. And when ye crye oute at that tyme vpon youre kynge whiche ye shall haue chosen vnto you, the Lord shal not heare you at that daye.

Neuertheless the people wolde not heare the voyce of Samuel, but dyd saye: naye not so: But there shall be a kynge ouer vs, and we wyll be lyke all other nacions. And oure kyng shall iudge vs, and go out before vs, and fight our battayles for vs. And Samuel herd all the wordes of the people, and rehersed the in the eares of the Lorde. And the Lorde sayd to Samuel / harken vnto theyr voyce, & make them a kyng. Then sayd Samuel vnto ꝑ men of Israel, go euery man vnto his city.

¶ Saul the sonne of Cis seketh his fathers Asses and is chosen kynge.

CAPI. IX.

A NOw there was a mā of Ben Jamin named Cis, the sonne of Abiel, the sonne a Reg.ix.a of Zeror, the sonne of Bechorah, the son of Aphiah, the sonne of a mā that was a Jeminite, a man of strengthe, the same had a sonne called Saul, a goodly yonge man, so ꝑ among the chyldren of Israel there was none goodlyer then he / and was therto from the thoulders vpwarde hyer then all the other people. And it chaunsed ꝑ the asses of this Cis Sauls father were strayed. Then sayde Cis to Saul his sonne / take one of the seruātes with the, & go thy waye and seke the asses. And they went thorow mount Ephraim, & thorow the lande of Salisa, and founde them not. Then they went thorowe the lande of Salim, and there they were not. Then they went also thorowe the land of Jemini, and they found them not. Then when they were come to the lande of Zuph, Saul sayd to the yonge man that was with him: come let vs returne, lest my father leaue caryage for the asses, and take thought for vs. And he answered him / beholde, there is in this citye a worshypfull man of God, and all that he sayth, commeth to passe. Now then let vs go thyther / peraduenture he shal shewe vs what waye we may goe. Then sayd Saul to his seruaunt, ꝑ we go, what shal we bring the man? For our breed is all spent out of our
B dampers, and there is none other presente to bringe the man of God, what haue we? And the yonge man answered to Saul agayne and sayde: I haue founde about me the fourthe parte of a sicle, that wyll we gyue the man of God to tell vs the waye.

Before tyme in Israel when a man went to seke an answere of God, thus wyse he spake / come and let vs go to the Sear. For he that is now called a Prophet, was in ꝑ olde time called a Sear. Then said Saul to his yong man, well said of the / come let vs goo. And so they went vnto ꝑ city where the man of God was. And as they were going vp in to the city, they met with damosels that came oute to drawe water, & said vnto them: is there here a Sear? And the maydens answered them / yea, beholde he goeth before you. Make haste now, for he came this day to the city, for the people must offre this day in ꝑ hye place. When ye be come into the city, incontinent ye shal fynde him, er he go vp to the hyl to eate / for the people wil not eate vntyll he come, bicause he must bielle the offeryng. And then eate they that be redye to the feast. Now therfore get you vp, for euen nowe shall ye fynde hym. And they wente vp in to the citye / and when they were come in to the myddes of the citye / behold Samuel came out agaynst the, to go vp to the hye place. But
C Actu.xiii.c i.Regū.xv.a. the Lorde had tolde Samuel the daye before Saul came, saynge: to morowe this tyme I wyll sende the a man out of the lande of Ben Jamin, hym shalte thou annoynte capitayne ouer my people Israel, that he maye saue my people from the hande of the Philistines / for I haue loked vpon my people / and their crys is come vnto me. When Samuel sawe Saul, the Lorde sayde to him: se, this is the man whom I spake to ꝑ of. This same shal raygne ouer my people.

Then went Saul to Samuel in the middle of the gate, and said / tell me I pray the where is the Sears house? And Samuel answered Saul, and sayd: I am the Sear, go vp before me vnto the hyll, for ye shall eate with me to daye. And to morow I wil let the go erly / and wil tel the all that is in thyne hert / and as concerning thyne asses that were lost thre dayes a go, care not for them, for they are found. And
D Jud.xx.a i.Regū.xv.c moreouer who shall haue the beautifull thinges of Israel? belonge they not to the, and vnto all thy fathers house? But Saul answered and said: am not I the sonne of a Jeminite of the smallest tribe of Israel, and my kinred the lest of all the kinredes of the tribe of Ben Jamin? wherfore then speakest thou so to me?

And Samuel toke Saul and his seruaunt and brought them in to the parlour and made them sytte in the chyefe place amonges them that were bydden / whiche were vpon a thirtye personnes. Then sayde Samuel vnto the cooke: Bryng for the that meate whiche I gaue the, and of whiche I sayde, reserue this to an other tyme. And the cooke toke vp the shoulder and broughte it, and set it before Saul. And Samuel sayd: Beholde, that is left set it before the, and eate / for I kepte it for the vnto this tyme, when I called the people. And so Saul did eate with Samuel that daye. And whē they were come downe from ꝑ hyll in to the citye, Samuel communed with Saul in the gallerye: and they arose erly. And about the spynge of the daye Samuel called Saul in the galerye, saying / aryse that I may sende the awaye. And Saul arose. And they went out at the wres, bothe he and Samuel. And when they were come almost to the townes ende / Samuel sayd to Saul: byd thy seruaunt go before vs, and he went / but stande thou styll a lytle space, that I maye shewe the what God sayth.

Then thou shalt go forth thence and come to the oke of Thabor. And there shalt thou mete thre men going to God to Bethel / one carynge thre kyddes, an other thre loues of breed / and the thyrde a bottel of wyne. And they shall grete the, and giue the two loues of breed whiche thou shalte receyue of theyr handes. After this thou shalte come to the hylle of God, where the Philistines kepe theyr watche. And when thou arte come thyther to the cite, thou shalte mete a companye of Prophetes commynge downe frome the hylle, with a psalter, a tymbrell, a pype, and a harpe before them / and they prophesienge. And the spirite of the Lorde shall rest vpon the, and thou shalte prophesie with theym, and shalte be tourned in to an other man. And when these signes are chaunsed the, then do what thou hast to do / for God is with the. And thou shalt also go before me to Galgal. And beholde I will come vnto the / for thou shalte sacrifyce burnt sacrifyce and peax offerynges. ✳ Tarye for me seuen dayes, tyll I come and shew the what thou shalt do. And as sone as he had turned his shoulder to goo from Samuel, God gaue him an other maner of herte, and all those tokens toke effecte that same day. When they came to the hyl, beholde the companye of Prophetes met him, and the ✳ spirite of God came vpon him, and he prophesied amonges them. And al that knew him before, when they sawe he prophesied among the prophetes, said eche to other: what is happened vnto the sonne of Cis? Is Saul also amonge the Prophetes? And one of the same place answered and sayde: who is theyr father? And therof sprange a prouerbe: is Saul also among the Prophetes? And whē he had made an ende of prophesienge, he came to the hyll. to seke the asses, and when we sawe them no where, we went to Samuel. Then said Saules vncle: tell me what Samuel sayde vnto you. And Saul answered his vncle: he tolde vs the asses were founde. But of the kyngdome wherof Samuel spake, told he him not. After that Samuel called the people togither vnto the Lorde to Maspha, and sayde vnto the chyldren of Israel: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: I brought you out of Egypt, and deliuered you forth of the hande of the Egyptians, and forth of the handes of all kingdomes ꝑ oppressed you. And ye haue this daye cast awaye your Lorde God that by him self holpe you out of al your aduersitties and tribulacions / and ye haue said vnto him: ✳ make a kyng ouer vs. Now therfore stande before the Lorde by youre tribes and youre houses. And when Samuel had brought all the trybes of Israel, the tribe of Ben Jamin was take forth by lot. When he had brought the tribe of Ben Jamin by their kinredes, the lot fel vpon ꝑ kinrede of Metri / and so went ꝑ lot thorow vnto it came to Saul ꝑ son of Cis. And they sought him, but he could not be found. Then they asked the Lorde further, whether the man shold come thither or no. And the Lorde answered / beholde, he hath hid him self among the stuffe. And they ran and fet him thence. And when he stode among the people, he was hyer then any of the people, frome the shoulders vpwarde. And Samuel sayde to all the people: seye, whome the Lorde hathe chosen, and howe there is none lyke hym among all the companye. And the people shouted and sayde: God lende the kynge lyke.

Then Samuel tolde the people the law of the realme, and wrote it in a boke / and layd it vp before the Lorde / and so sent all the people awaye, euery man to his house. And Saul also went home to Gabaah. And there went with him an hoste, suche as God had touched their hertes. But the children of vnthryftynesse sayd: how shall he saue vs? and despysed hym, and brought hym not presentes. And he made as though he had not herde it.

¶ The people beinge deliuered frome the tyranny of Nahas, renueth the kyngdome of Saul.

CAPI. XI.

THen Nahas the Ammonyte came and besieged Jabes in Galaad. And all the people of Jabes sayde vnto Nahas: make a couenaunt with vs, and we will be thy seruauntes. And Nahas the Ammonyte sayde: to this will I make a couenaunt with you, euen to thruste oute all your eyght eyes, that I maye make all Israel ashamed of you. Then sayde the elders of Jabes: Giue vs seuen dayes respyte, that we maye sende messengers vnto all the costes of Israel. And then yf there come no man to helpe vs, we will come oute to the. Then came the messengers to Gabaah where Saul dwelte, and tolde this tidynges in the eares of the people. And all the people lyfte vp their voyces and wept. And

And beholde Saul came folowynge his oxen from the felde, and asked what ayled the people to wepe. And they tolde him the tidynges of the men of Jabes. Then came the spirite of God vpon Saul, when he herde those tydynges, and he was exceedyng angry. And toke a yoke of oxen and hewed them in peces, and sent them thorowe oute all the coostes of Israel by the handes of messengers, saying: who so euer commeth not forth after Saul and after Samuel, so shall his oxen be serued. Then the feare of the Lorde fell on the people, and they came out as it had ben but one man. And when they were nombred in Bezek, the chyldren of Israel were thre hundred thousande / and the men of Juda thirtye thousande. And they sayde vnto the messengers that came: so saye vnto the men of Jabes in Galaad: to morowe by that tyme the sonne be hoote, ye shal haue helpe. And the messengers came and shewed the men of Jabes, and they were glad. And then the men of Jabes said / to morow we will come out vnto you, that ye may doo with vs al ꝑ pleaseth you. And on the morow Saul put the people in thre partes. And they came in vpon the hoste in the morning watche, & slewe the Ammonites tyll the heat of the daye. And they that remayned, scattered: so that two of them were not lefte togyther. Then sayde the people to Samuel: what are they that sayde, shall Saul raygne ouer vs? bryng them that we maye slee them. But Saul sayd: there shal no man dye this daye / for to daye the Lorde hath saued Israel.

Then sayd Samuel vnto his people: come and lette vs goo to Galgall, and renewe the kyngdome there. And the people went to Galgall, and made Saul kynge there before the Lorde in Galgall. And there they offred peax offerynges before the Lorde. And there Saul and all the people reioyced hyghly.

¶ Samuel being an innocēt Judge, (the people them selues to witnesse) argueth the people of vnkyndnes because they demaunded a kynge. Yet that repenteth and beleueth, God forgyueth, because of his promyse.

CAPI. XII.

THen sayd Samuel vnto all Israel / beholde, I haue obeyed youre voyce in all ye sayd vnto me, and haue made you a kynge. And loo, youre kynge goeth before you. But I am olde and grey headed: and beholde, my sonnes are with you, and I haue lyued amonges you from my chyldhode vnto this daye. Beholde, here I am: answere me before the Lorde, and before his anoynted / whose oxe haue I taken? or whose asse haue I taken? whome haue I done wronge to? or whome haue I oppressed? And of whose hande haue I receyued anye bryde to bynde myne eyes therwith? and I will restore it you again. And they sayde, thou hast done vs no wronge, nor oppressed vs, nether hast thou taken ought of anye mannes hande. Then sayde he to them: the Lorde is witnesse vnto you, and his annoynted is witnesse this daye, that ye haue founde nought in my handes. And they answered: we are witnesses. Then sayde Samuel vnto the people / it is the Lorde ꝑ that made Moses and Aaron, whiche brought your fathers oute of Egypte. Now therfore stande styll / and lette me reason with you before the Lorde, of all the mercyes of the Lorde, which he shewed bothe vnto you and youre fathers. After that Jacob was come in to Egypt, your fathers cryed vnto the Lorde, and the Lorde sent Moses and Aaron, and brought your fathers oute of Egypte, and made them dwell in this place. Neuertheles they forgate the Lorde theyr God. And he solde them in to the hande of Sisara chyefe capitayne of Jabin kynge of Hazor, and in to the handes of the Philistines, and in to the handes of the kynge of Moab whiche fought agaynst them. Then they cryed vnto the Lorde and sayd: we haue synned, because we haue forsaken the Lorde, and haue serued Baalim and Astharoth. But nowe delyuer vs out of the handes of oure ennemyes, and we wyll serue the. And the Lorde sente Jerobaal ꝑ Badan, Jephthah, and Samuel, and delyuered you oute of the handes of youre ennemyes on euery syde, so that ye dwelled without feare. And for all this when you sawe that Nahas the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon came agaynst you, ye said vnto me: not so, a kynge shal raygne ouer vs, when yet the Lord your God was your king. Now therfore beholde the king whom ye haue chosen, and whome ye haue desyred: se / the Lorde hathe gyuen you a kynge. Oh that he wolde feare the Lorde and serue him, & heare his voyce, and not disobeye the mouthe of the Lorde: and that bothe ye and the kynge that raygneth ouer you wolde folowe the Lorde youre God. For yf ye shall not hearken vnto the voyce of the Lorde, but shall disobeye the Lordes mouthe / then shall the hande of the Lord be vpon you, and on your fathers. Now also stande and se this greate thynge whiche the Lorde will do before youre eyes: is it not nowe whete harueste? And yet for all that, I wil call vnto the Lorde, and he shal send thunder and rayne. Whereby perceyue and vnderstande, how that youre wyckednesse is greate, whiche ye haue done in the sight of the Lord, in askynge you a kynge. And when Samuel called vnto the Lorde, the Lorde sente thunder and rayne the same daye. And all the people feared the Lorde and Samuel exceedyngly. Then sayd all the people vnto Samuel: praye for thy seruauntes vnto the Lorde thy God, that we dye not: for we haue synned in askynge vs a kynge, besyde all the synnes that euer we dyd.

Then sayd Samuel vnto the people: feare not. And thoughe ye haue wone all this wyckednesse, yet depart not from the Lorde in any case: But serue hym with all youre hertes. Neyther turne ye after vayne thynges whiche shall not profyte you nor be able to delyuer you, for they are but vanities. And the Lorde will not forsake his people, because of his greate names sake: because the Lorde hathe

¶ The Philistines are smytten of Saul and Jonathas. Saul beynge dysobedient to Goddes commaundement is shewed of Samuel that he shall not raygne.

CAPI. XIII.

A IT was nowe an hole yere after that Saul had begon to raygne. And when he hadde rayned two yeres ouer Israel, he chose him thre thousande men out of Israel. Two thousande were with Saul in Machmas & mount Bethell / and a thousande with Jonathas in Gabaah / Ben Jamin. And the rest of the people he sente home, euerye man to his house. So Jonathas slew the Philistines in an hold that they had in Gabaah / and it came to the Philistines eares. And Saul caused the trompet to be blowen thorowe oute all the lande, sayinge / let ỹ Ebrues heare. And all Israel herd saye how that Saul had destroyed an holde of the Philistines, and that Israel stanke afore ỹ Philistines. And all the people cryed after Saul to Galgal.

Then the Philistines gathered them selues togyther to fyghte with Israel, thyrtye thousande charettes, and sixe thousande horsse men, with other people lyke the ✳sand by the ✳Claye.x.f

And when the men of Israel saw them selues in a straynte / and that the people were discomforted, they hyd them selues in caues, in preuye holes, in rockes, dennes, and pyttes. And the Ebrues went ouer Jordan vnto the lande of Gad and Galaad. But Saul was yet in Galgal / and all the people that folowed him were dismayed. And he tarved seuen dayes, as

And he offered burnt sacrifyce. And as soone as he had ended his burnt offerynges / beholde Samuel came. And Saul wente agaynste him to grete hym. Then sayde Samuel to Saul: what haste thou wone? And Saul sayde, bycause I sawe that the people scattered frome me / and that thou camest not within the dayes appoynted / and that the Philistines gathered theym selues togyther to Machmas: then sayd I, the
C Philistines shal come down vpon me to Galgal er I haue made my prayer vnto the Lord. And therfore when they enforced me, I offered burnte offerynges. Then sayde Samuel to Saul / thou haste wone folysshly, and hast not kepte the commaundement of the Lorde thy God, whiche he commaunded the / whiche thynge yf thou haddest not wone at this time wolde the Lorde haue stablysshed thy kyngdome vpon Israel for euer. But nowe thy kyngdome shall neuer florysshe agayne. The

And Samuel arose and gat him frome Galgal to Gabaah Ben Jamin. And Saul nombred the people that were founde with him, aboute a sixe hundred men. And Saul and Jonathas his sonne, and the people that were founde with them, hadde their abydynge in Gabaah Ben Jamin. But the Philistines had pytched
D in Machmas. And there came out of the hoste of the Philistines thre companyes, to reskop / one company turned vnto the waye that leadeth to Ephrah vnto the lande of Saul / an other company turned the way to Bethoron / and the thyrde companye turned to the waye of the coste that turneth to the valeye of Zeboim towarde the wildernesse. But there was no smyth thorowe out all the lande of Israel. For the Philistines were ware that ỹ Ebrues sholde not make them selues neither swerdes nor speres. And therfore muste all Israel goo downe to the Philistines to mende euerye man his share, his mattocke, his axe, or his sickle / as ofte as the edges of the sickles, mattockes, dongforkes, and axes were blunt, and muste be had vnto the sethye to be amended. And so in tyme of battayle, there was neyther swerde nor spere founde in the handes of anye of the people that were with Saul and Jonathas: saue for Saul and Jonathas his sonne was there somwhat found. And the armye of the Philistines came out and stode on the other side before Machmas.

¶ Jonathas companyed with his esquyre putteth the Philistines to flight. He eateth the hony which his father vnknowing to him, had forbidden the hole holt, for which he shulde haue bene slayne, but the people delyuered him.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND it fell on a daye that Jonathas the sonne of Saul sayde vnto his younge man that bare his harnesse / come and let vs goo ouer to the watche men of the Philistines that are ponder on the other syde, and tolde not his father. But Saul tarved in the vttermoste parte of Gabaah vnder a pomegarnet tree that was in Magron / and the people that were with him were aboute sixe hundred men. And Ahiah the sonne of Ahitob Ichabodes brother, the sonne of Phinehes, the sonne of Heli was the Lordes preest in Silo, and bare an Ephod. But the people wyste not that Jonathas was gone.

And in the way by which Jonathas sought to goo ouer vnto the garrison of the Philistines, were there two sharpe rockes, thone on the one syde, and an other on the other syde: the one called Bozez, and ỹ other Seneh. And the one leaneth northwarde towarde Machmas, and the other southwarde towarde Gabaah. Then sayde Jonathas to the younge man his harneysbearer: come and let vs go ouer vnto the standyng of these vncircumcised, paraduenture the Lorde will worke with vs: for the Lord is able to saue eyther with manye or with fewe. And his harneysbearer sayd vnto him do all that is in thine herte: set the forwarde: & se, I am with the, as thine herte lusteth. Then sayd Jonathas: beholde, whē we go ouer vnto the men, and shewe oure selues vnto them: yf they saye on this wyse to vs: tarye tyll we come to you, then we wyll stand styll where we be and not goo vp vnto them. But yf they so saye vnto vs: come hyther vnto vs, then we will goo vp, for the Lorde hath delyuered them into our handes. And this shall be a signe vnto vs. And when they had both shewed theym selues vnto the garrison of the Philistines, the Philistines sayde: se, the Hebrewes come oute of the holes were they had hyd them selues in. And the men of the garrison answered Jonathas and his harnesbearer and sayde: come vp to vs, & we will shewe you a thynge. Then sayde Jonathas vnto his harnesbearer: come after me, for the Lorde hath delyuered them into ỹ handes of Israell. And Jonathas clame vpon hāds and fete, and his harnesbearer after him.

Then they fell before Jonathas: and his harnesbearer slewe them after him. And the firste slaughter which Jonathas and his harnesbearer made, was vpon a twenty men, within ỹ compasse as it were aboute an halfe aker of lande. And there was a feare in the hoste that was in the felde, and amonge all the people: in so mocke that they that kept the holde, and they that were gone to robbe, were afrayd also: and the earth trembled, and there was a feare sente of God. And the watche men of Saul in Gabaah Ben Jamin, sawe. And beholde, the people scattered and ran hyther and thyther. Then sayde Saul vnto the people ỹ was with him: nōbre & se who is gone away frome vs. And when they had tolde: behold, Jonathas & his harnesbearer were not there. And then Saul sayde vnto Ahia: brynge hyther the Arcke of God. For the arcke of God was at that tyme with the children of Israel. And whyle Saul talked vnto the preaste, a lowde skremysshe beganne in the host of the Philistines, and it encreased and was harde with a great noyse, And Saul sayde vnto the preast: withdrawe thyne hande. And Saul assembled all the people that were with him, and went to the holde. And se, euery mannes swerde was against his felowe, & there was great slaughter wone. Moreouer the Ebrewes that were with the Philistines before ỹ tyme, and were come with them in all partes of the host, turned to the children of Israell that were with Saul and Jonathas. And they also which had hyd them selues in mōt Ephraim, hearinge that the Philistines were fled, put them selues in preace with Sauls men, & pursued the Philistines, and so God holpe Israell that daye. And the battayle continued tyll they came to Bethauen. And the men of Israell ioyned them selues togither that day: and Saul adiured the people sayeng: Cursed be he that eateth any fode vntyll nyght, that I maye be auenged of myne ennemyes. And so there was none of the people that tasted any fode. And all the land came to a wood, where hony laye vpon the grounde. And when the people were come into the wod: Beholde, ỹ hony dropped. Howbe it there was no man that moued his hande to his mouth, because that the people feared the curse. But Jonathas herde not when his father adiured the people, wherfore he put forth the ende of the staffe that was in his hand and dypte it in an hony combe, and put his hande to his mouth and forthwith his eyen receyued their old bertue and courage. Then spake one of the people and sayde: thy father adiured the people, sayenge: Cursed be the man that eateth any fode this daye, and yet the people were fayne. Then sayde Jonathas: my father hath troubled the lande: for beholde my eyen haue recouered their power and strength, because I tasted a lytle of this hony: how then yf all ỹ people had eaten of the spoyle of their ennemyes which they founde, had there not bene then a mocke greatter slaughter amonge the Philistines? And they layde on the Philistines that daye, frome Machmas to Aialon.
E But the people were excedynge fayntie.

Then the people gat them to the spoyle, & Deute.xii.
toke shepe oxen and calues, and slewe theym on the geounde, and dyd eate with the blond. Then men tolde Saul, sayenge: Beholde ỹ people synne against the Lorde, in that they eate with the blonde. And he sayde: ye haue trespased, But rowle a greate stone vnto me now, and go abrode amonge the people and byd them bryng euery man his oxe, and euery man his shepe, and slay them here, & synne not against the Lorde / in eatynge with the blonde. And the people broughte euery man his oxe in his hande by nyght and slewe them there. And Saul made an aultare vnto the Lorde, And that was the firste aultare that he made vnto the Lorde. And Saul sayde: Let vs go downe after the Philistines by nyght / and let vs make hauoke amonge them tyll it be daye in the mornyng, and let vs not leaue one of them. And the people answered, do what soeuer thou thinkest best. Then sayde ỹ preaste: Let vs come hyther vnto God. And Saul asked of God: Shall I goo downe after the Philistines? and wylt thou gyue them
F into myne handes? But he answered him not at that tyme. Then sayde Saul, let the people come hyther out of all quarters, & knowe and se, in whome this synne is chaunced this daye: for as truly as the Lorde lyueth, whiche hath saued Israell, thoughe it be in Jonathas my sonne, he shall dye for it. But no man answered him of all the people.

Then he sayde vnto all Israell: Be ye on one syde, and I and Jonathas my sonne wyll be on an other. And the people sayde vnto Saul: What thou thinkest best that do. And Saul sayde vnto the Lorde God of Israell: gyue perfect knowledge. And Saul and Jonathas nathas were apprehended by the lotte, and the people escaped free. Then sayde Saul: caste lottes betwene me and Jonathas my sonne. Jonathas was taken by the lot. Then Saul sayde to Jonathas: tell me what thou hast done. And Jonathas told him and sayd: I tasted a lytle honye vpon the ende of my staffe that was in myne hande, and se, I must dye.

Then sayde Saul God deale so and so with me, but yf thou dye Jonathas. But the people sayde vnto Saul: shall Jonathas dye whiche hath so myghtely holpe Israel? God forbyd. As truelye as the Lorde liueth, there shal not one heare of his hed fal to the grounde: for he hathe wroughte with God this daye. And so the people delyuered Jonathas, that he dyed not. And then Saul ceased from folowynge the Philistines. And the Philistines retourned to theyr owne place. And so Saul toke the kyngdome ouer Israell, and foughte against all his enemyes on euery syde: against the Moabites: against the childzen of Ammon: against the Edomites: against the kynges of Zobah, and against the Philistines. And whether so euer he turned him self, there he wanne, and demeaned him selfe valiauntly, and slewe the Amalechites, and ryd Israell oute of the handes of theym that spoyled them. The sonnes of Saul were Jonathas, Jesui, and Melchisua. And his two doughters were thus named: the elder Merob, and the younger Michol. And the name of Saules wyfe was Ahinoam, the doughter of Ahimaas. And the name of his chief captayne was Abner the sonne of Ner Saules vncle. And * 1.Reg 14.a. 1.Para.viii.d * Cis was Saules father. And Ner the father of Abner was the sonne of Abiel. And there was sore warre with the Philistines, al the dayes of Saul. For where so euer Saul sawe a stronge man, and an actiue, he toke him vnto him.

The people relesse Jonathas that he dye not.

¶ Saul is commaunded to slay Amalech. He is disobedient to the voyce of God, and saueth the spoyle for whiche the Lorde forsaketh him. Samuel mourneth for Saul.

CAPI. XV.

1.Regum.xv.c Then sayde Samuel vnto Saul: ꝑ Lord sent me to annoynt the, kynge ouer his people Israell. Nowe therfore obeye thou the voyce of the wordes of the Lorde. Thus sayth the Lorde of hostes: I haue called to remembraunce all that euer Amalecke hath wrought to Israel * how they laye in wayte for them in the waye, as they came out of Egypte. Now therfore go and smyte the Amalechites, and destroye ye only all that pertayneth vnto them, and se thou haue no compassion on them. But slay man and woman, infant and sucklinge, oxe, sheepe, camell, & asse. And Saul assembled the people, and nombred them in Telaim two hundred thousande fote men, and ten thousande men of Juda. And Saul came vnto a cyte of the Amalechites, & fought in a valey. But Saul sayde vnto ꝑ Kenites: go & departe & get ye away from the Amalechites, leest I destroy you with them for ye shewed mercy to Israell when they came out of Egypte. And the Kenites departed from the Amalechites. And Saul slewe the Amalechites frome Heuila to Sur that lyeth before Egypte, and toke Agag the kynge of the Amalechites a lyue, and vtterly destroyed all the people with the edge of the swerde. But Saul and the people spared Agag, and the beste of the shepe and of the oxen and fat thynges and the lambes and all that was good, & wolde not destroye theym. But all that was nought worth and raggye, that they destroyed vtterly. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto Samuel, sayeng: it forthinked me that I haue made Saul kynge. For he is turned frome me and hath not fulfilled my commaundements, wherfore Samuel was euyl apayd and cryed vnto the Lorde all nyght. And Samuel arose earely, to mete Saul in the morninge. And it was tolde Samuel that Saul was come to Carmel, and hadde set him vp a pylle of triumphe. And was turned and departed and gone to Galgal.

And when Samuel was come to Saul, Saul sayde vnto him: Blessed be thou in the Lorde. I haue wrought the commaundement of ꝑ Lorde. And Samuel answered: What meaneth then the bleatinge of the shepe in myne eares, and the noyse of the oxe which I heare? And Saul sayde: they haue brought theym frome the Amalechites. For the people spared the best of the shepe and of the oxen, to sacrifice vnto the Lorde thy God. And the rest we haue destroyed. But Samuel sayde to Saul: cease, and let me tell the what the Lord hath sayde to me this nyghte. And he sayde vnto hym: saye on. And Samuel sayd, when thou were lytle in thyne own sight, were thou not made the heed of the tribes of Israell? And ꝑ Lorde annoynted the, kyng ouer Israel. And then the Lorde sent the on a viage, and sayde vnto the, se thou vtterlye destroye those synners the Amalechites and fight against them, tyll ye haue vtterly destroyed them, wherfore then hast thou nowe not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: But dydest turne to the praye and hast wrought wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde?

And Saul sayde vnto Samuel: I haue obeyed the voyce of the Lorde, and wente the waye which the Lord sent me, & haue brought Agag the kynge of the Amalechites. And haue vtterlye destroyed the Amalechites. And the people toke of the spoyle, sheepe, oxen, and the cheefest of the thinges which shuld haue bene destroyed, to offer vnto the Lorde thy God in Galgal. Then sayde Samuel, requireth the Lorde burntsacrifices and offeringes, and not rather that thou shuldest obaye his voyce? Beholde, to obaye is better then offering, and to gyue hede, is better, then the fat of Rammes. For rebellyousnesse is as the synne of wytchecraft: and stubburnesse is wyckednesse and Idolatrye. Because therfore thou hast cast awaye the worde of the Lorde, therfore hath the Lorde cast awaye the also / frome beynge kynge. Then sayde Saul to Samuel: I haue synned, for I haue offended the mouthe of the Lorde, and thy wordes, because I feared the people and they obayed theyr voyce. But now take awaye my synne, and turne agayne with me, that I maye worshippe the Lorde. Then sayd Samuel vnto Saul: I wyl not returne with the: for thou hast cast awaye the commaundement of God, and therfore the Lorde hath cast awaye the also, that thou shalte not be kynge ouer Israel. And as Samuel turned to goo awaye, he caught the lappe of his coote, and it rente. Then Samuel sayde, the Lorde hath rent the kyngdome of Israel frō this daye, and hath gyuen it to a neyghboure of thyne that is better then thou. And therto, he that gyueth victorye to Israell, will not beguyle nor repent, for he is not a man, that can repente. Then he sayde: I haue synned. But yet honoure me before the elders of my people, and before Israell, and turne agayne with me, that I maye praye vnto the Lorde thy God. And Samuel turned agayn & folowed Saul. And Saul prayd vnto ꝑ Lord. Then sayde Samuel: Bringe ye hyther to me Agag the kyng of the Amalechites. And Agag came vnto him tremblynge. And Agag sayde: truely ꝑ bytternesse of death commeth on. And Samuel sayde: As thy swerde hath made wemē childlesse, so shall thy mother be childlesse amonge other wemen. And so Samuel hewed Agag in peces before the Lorde in Galgal. And then Samuel departed to Ramath. And Saul wēt home to his house to Gabaah Saul. But Samuel came no more to se Saul tyll the day of his deathe. Neuertheless Samuel mourned for Saul, because the Lorde repented that he had made him kynge ouer Israell.

Looke not on his facyon nor on the heyght of his stature, for I haue refused him. Because it is not as man seeth. For man loketh on the outwarde appearaunce: but the Lorde beholdeth the herte. Then Jsai called Abinadab, & made him come before Samuel. And he sayd: Neyther hathe the Lorde chosen this. Then Jsai made Samah come, and he sayde: neyther yet hathe the Lorde chosen this. Then made Jsai seuen of his sonnes come before Samuel. And Samuel sayd, the Lorde hath chosen none of these.

Then sayde Samuel to Jsai: Are here all thy childzen? And he sayde: The youngest is yet behynde: Beholde, he keepeth the sheepe. Then Samuel sayde vnto Jsai: sende and fet him for we will not sit downe to meat tyll he be come hyther. And he sent and brought him in. And he was ruddy and a goodly creature of makynge, and of a pleasaunt countenaunce. And then the Lorde sayde aryse and annoynt him: for this is he. And Samuel toke ꝑ horne with the oyntement and annoynted him in ꝑ presens of his brethren. And the spyrite of ꝑ Lorde came vpon David, from that daye forwarde. Then Samuel arose vp and went to Ramath. But the spirite of the Lorde departed frome Saul, and an euyll spyrte sent of ꝑ Lorde, vexed him. Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him: Behold, an euyll spyrte sent of God vexeth the, let our Lorde therfore cōmaunde his seruauntes to seke a mā that is a conning player with an harpe. And then when the euil spirite sent of God, cōmeth vpon the, he may playe with his hand, and thou shalt be eased. And Saul sayde vnto his seruauntes: seke me a man that can well playe, and bringe him to me. Then aunswered one of his seruauntes & sayde: Beholde, I haue sene a sonne of Jsai the Bethlehemite, that can playe vpon instrumentes, and is an actiue felow, and a man of warre, and wyse, and well made, & ꝑ Lord is with him, wherupon Saul sent messengers vnto Jsai, and sayde: Sende me David thy sonne which is with the sheepe. And Jsai toke an asse laden with bred, and a flacket of wyne and a kydde, and sente theym by David his sonne vnto Saul. And David went to Saul, and came before him, and he loued him very well, so that he was made his page. And Saul sente to Jsai, sayenge: Let David remayne with me, for he hath founde fauour in my sight. And when the spirite of God came vpon Saul, David toke an harpe and played with his hande, and so Saul was refreshed/ and dyd amende, and the euyll spirite departed frome him.

¶ The battayle of the Philistines agaynste Jsrael. Lytell David ouercommeth great Goliath.

CAPI. XVII.

THe Philistines gathered their hoste to battayle, and assembled at Socoh in Juda, and pytched betwene Socoh and Azekah, in the ende of Dommim. And Saul and the men of Jsraell came and pytched in Ockedale dale, and put them selues in arayе, to fyghte agaynste the Philistines. And the Philistines stode on an hyl on the one syde, and Israel on an hyl on the other syde, and a baley betwene them. And then came a man and stode in the myddes, oute of the tentes of the Philistines named Goliath, of Geth, syxe cubites and an handbreedth long, and had an helmet of brasse vpon his heed, and a coote of mayle aboute him. And the weyght of his coote of mayle was fyue thousande sycles of brasse. And he hadde harnesse of brasse vpon his legges, and a swylde of brasse vpon his shoulders. And the shaft of his spere was lyke a weuers beame. And his spere heed waged syxe hundred sycles of yron. And one bearynge a swylde went before him. Goliath.

And he stode and called vnto the hoste of Israel, and sayde vnto them: what neadeth that ye shuld come out in arayе to battayle? am not I a Philistine, and you seruauntes to Saule? chose you a man, and lett hym come downe to me, yf he be hable to fight with me and to beate me, then we wyll be youre seruantes. But if I can ouercom hym and beate hym: ye shall be our seruantes and serue vs. B And the Philistine sayde: I haue defyed the hoste of Israel this daye, gyue me a man and let vs fyght to gyther. When Saul and al Israel herd those wordes of the Philistine, they were discouraged and greately afrayed. Now Dauid was ye son of an Ephrathite of Bethlehem Juda, named Jsai, whiche Jsai hadde eyghte sonnes. And was an olde man in the dayes of Saule amonge the people. And the thre eldeste sonnes of Jsai went and folowed Saul to battayle. And the names of his thre sonnes that went to battayle, were: Eliab ye eldest, and the mydlemost Abinadab, and the thyrde Samah, and Dauid was the youngest. And when ye thre eldest were gone after Saul, Dauid went and departed from Saul, to kepe his fathers shepe at Bethlehem. And the Philistine came forthe euery mornynge and euenynge, and continued thus fourtye dayes.

And Jsai sayde vnto Dauid his sonne: take for thy brethren this Epha of parched corne, and these ten loues, and run to the hoste to thy brethren, and carye these ten kreesshe cheses vnto the capitayne / and loke how thy brethren fare, and fet out their pledges. And Saul and they and al the men of Israel were in oke valeye fyghtyng with the Philistines. And Dauid arose vp erlye in the mornynge, and lefte the shepe with a keper, and toke and went as Jsai had commaunded him, and came where C the hoste laye. And the hoste was goynge out in arayе, & shouted in ye batayle / for Israell & the Philistines had put them selues in arayе, the one agaynst the other. Then Dauid put ye panier from him, vnto the handes of the keper of the vessels, and ranne in to the host & came and greted his brethre. And as he talked with them. Beholde, there stode a mā in the middes Goliath the Philistyne, by name, of Geth / whiche came out of the arayе of the Philistines, and spake in the maner aboue rehersed, that Dauid herde it. And all the men of Israel when they sawe the man, ranne awaye from him, and were sore afrayde. And euery man of Israel sayd: Se ye this mā that is come forth euen to reuyle Israel is he come. And to hym that beateth him wyll the kyng gyue great ryches, and wil gyue hym his doughter therto: yea and make his fathers house free in Israel. Then spake Dauid to the men that stode by and sayde: What shall the man haue that beateth this Philistine and taketh awaye the shame frome Jsrael? for what is this vncircumcysed Philistine, that he shuld reuyle the hoste of the lyuynge God? And the people answered as is rehersed, sayenge: thus shall he be rewarded that ranne vaynquysshe him. And Eliab his eldeste brother herde when he spake vnto the men, and was angrye with Dauids sayde: Why camest thou awaye? and with whome hast thou left those fewe shepe in the wildernesse? I knowe thy pryde and the malice of thyne herte, that thou arte come to se the battel. And Dauid answered, what haue I now wone? is there any more saue a worde? And departed frome him into an other ronte, and spake in the same mancr, and the people answered him agayne, as before. And they that herde the wordes which Dauid spake, rehersed them before Saul, whiche caused hym to be fet. And Dauid sayde to Saul: Let no mans herte faynt, for dede of hym. Thy seruaunt will go and fight with this Philistine. And Saul sayde to Dauid agayne, thou arte not hable to go vnto this Philistine, to fight with him. For thou arte but a childe, and he hath bene a man of warre euē from his youth. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul, as thy seruāt kept his fathers shepe, there came a Lyon, & lykewyse a Beare, and toke a shepe out of the flocke. And I went out after him, and smote him and toke it out of his mouth. And when he arose against me, I caught him by ye beарde and smote him, and slewe him. For bothe a Lyon and also a Beare hathe thy seruaunte slayne. And this vncircumcysed Philistine shalbe as one of them, for his raylinge on the hoste of the lyuynge God. And Dauid spake moreouer, the Lorde that delyuered me oute of the handes of the Lyon and out of the handes of the Beare, shall delyuer me also out of the handes of the Philistine.

Then sayde Saul to Dauid goo, and the Lorde be with the. And Saul put his raymēt vpon Dauid, and put an helmet of brasse vpō his heed, and put a coote of mayle vpon him, and gyrded Dauid with his owne swerde vpō his rayment. And he assayed howe he coulde go, for he neuer proued it. Then sayde Dauid vnto Saul: I can not go in these, for I haue not bene vsed therto, and put them of him, & toke his staffe in his hand, and chose him fyue smothe stones oute of a broke, and put them in a shepeherdes bagge whiche he hadde, and toke his slynge in his handc, and went to the Philistine.

And the Philistine came and drue nere to Dauid, with the man that bare a shylde before him. And when the Philistine loked and sawe Dauid: he disdayned him, for he was but a younglynge, roudye and goodly to loke vpon. And the Philistine sayde vnto Dauid: F am I a dogge, that thou commest to me with a staffe? and he cursed Dauid in the name of his Godes. And he sayd to Dauid: come to me & I wyll gyue thy flesshe vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the feld. Then sayd Dauid to the Philistine: thou commest to me with a swerde a speare and a shilde: But I come to the, in the name of the Lorde of hoostes, the God of the hoste of Jsrael on whom thou haste rayled. This daye shall the Lorde gyue the into my handc, and I shall smyte the and take thyne hed frome the, and I wil giue the carkales of the host of the Philistines this daye vnto the fowles of the ayre, and to the beastes of the earth, and all the worlde shall knowe, that there is a God in Jsrael, And all this companye shall knowe, that the Lorde saueth not with the swerde and speare. For the battayle is the Lordes, and he shall gyue you in to our handes.

And when the Philistine arose and came and drewe nygh vnto Dauid, Dauid hasted & ranne to fyght agaynste the Philistine. And Dauid put his hand in his poke and toke out a stone and slange it, and smote the Philistine in his forhed that the stone sonke in to his forhed, and he fell grouelynge to the earth. And G so Dauid ouercam the Philistine with a sling and a stone, and smote the Philistine and slew him. And because Dauid had no swerde in his handc, he ran and stode vpon the Philistine, & toke his swerde and drewe it out of his sherhe and slewe him and cut of his hed therwith. And when the Philistines sawe their champion deed, they fled. And the men of Jsrael and of Juda arose and showted and folowed after the Philistines, tyll they came to the valeye and vnto the gates of Akaron. And the Philistines fell downe deed by the wayе to Samraim euen vnto Geth and Akaron. And then the children of Jsrael returned from chasinge after the Philistines, and spoyled their tentes. And Dauid toke the hed of the Philistine, and brought it to Jerusalem: But he put his armoure in his tent. But when Saul sawe Dauid ysshe forth against the Philistine, he sayd vnto Abner the capitayne of his host: Abner, whose sonne is this yonge man? And Abner answered, as truely as thy soule lyueth, O kynge, I can not tell. Then sayde ye kynge: Enquere thou, yf he be some noble mans sonne. And so when Dauid was returned frome the slaughter of the Philistine, Abner toke him and brought him before Saul, with the heed of the Philistine in his handc. And Saul sayde vnto him: Whose sonne arte thou, thou young man? And Dauid answered the sonne of thy seruaunte Jsai the Bethlehemite.

¶ The loue betwene Dauid and Jonathas. Saul seeth a boar to slee Dauid. Dauid marieth Michol the daughter of Saul.

CAPI. XVIII.

AND when he had made an ende of spekynge vnto Saul, the soule of Jonathas was knyt with the soule of Dauid. In so moche, that he loued him, as his owne sowle. And Saul toke him that daye & wold let him go no more home to his fathers house. And Jonathas and Dauid bound them selues the one to the other, for Jonathas loued him as his owne syke. And Jonathas put of his owne cote that was vpon him, & gaue it Dauid, and therto his mantle, his swerde, his bowe, and his gyrdle. And Dauid went out to all that Saul sent him, and behaued him selfe wysely. And whē Saul had set him ouer his men of warre, he pleased all the people, and especyally them that were Sauls seruauntes. A Jonathas. B

And it happened as they went, when Dauid was returned frome the slaughter of the Philistine, that wemen came out of all cyties of Jsrael syngynge & daunsynge, against Saul, with tymbrelles, with ioye, and with fydilles. And the wemen that played, sange therto, and sayde: Saul hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid his ten thousande. Then was Saul excedynge wrothe and the sayenge displeased him, and he sayd: They haue ascribed vnto Dauid ten thousande, and to me but a thousande, and what can he more haue saue the kyngwme? wherfore Saul loked a wrye on Dauid frome that daye forwarde. And it happened on the morowe, that the euyl spryte sent of God came vpon Saul, so that he prophesyed in the myddes of the house. And Dauid played on the instrument with his handc, as he was dayly wōt. And Saul had a speare in his handc, and hourlde it, intendinge to haue nayled Dauid to the wall. But Dauid auoyded out of his presence two tymes. For Saul was afeарde of Dauid, because ye Lorde was with him, and was departed from Saul. And then Saul put Dauid frome him & made him a capitayne ouer a thousande, and he wēt out and in before the people. And Dauid was wyse in all his wynges, and the Lorde was with him. Wherfore when Saul sawe he was so excedynge wyse, he was afrayde of him. Ecclesiasticus. D

But all Jsrael & Juda loued Dauid, because he went out and in before them. Then sayde Saul to Dauid. Beholde my eldest doughter Merob, her I will gyue the to wyfe: Onely play the man and fight the Lordes batayles. For Saul thought myne handc shall not be vpon him, but the handc of the Philistines. And Dauid answered Saul: * what am I? E and what is my lyfe or the kynred of my father in Jsrael, that I shulde be sonne in lawe to the kynge? But when the tyme was come that Merob Sauls doughter shulde haue ben gyuen to Dauid, she was gyuen vnto Adriel a Meholathite, to wyfe. How be it Michol an other of Sauls doughters loued Dauid. And when it was shewed Saul: the thinge pleased him well. And he sayde: I will gyue him her, that she maye be a snare to him, to bring the handc of the Philistines vpon him. And * ii. Reg. xi.

Saul

Saul sayde to Dauid: thou shalte this daye be my sonne in law agayne. And Saule commaunded his seruauntes, to comen with Dauid secretelye and saye: Beholde the Kynge hath a fauoure to the, and all his seruauntes lone the, be therfore the Kynges sonne in lawe.

f And Sauls seruauntes spake those wordes in the eares of Dauid. But Dauid answered: semeth it to you a lyght thynge to be the kinges sonne in lawe, when I am a poore man and of small reputacion? And Sauls seruaūtes tolde him agayne, saying: in this maner answered Dauid. Then sayd Saul: this wise saye to Dauid: the kynge careth for no nother dowrye but for an hundred foreskynnes of the Philistines to be auenged of the kynges enemyes. For Saul thought to make Dauid fall in to the handes of the Philistines. Then his seruauntes tolde Dauid these wordes, and it pleased Dauid well to be the kynges sonne in lawe. And shortly after Dauid arose with his men, and went and slewe of the Philistines, two hundred men, and brought their foreskynnes, and nombred theym vnto the kynge for to become his sonne in lawe.

*li.Reg.iii.c. * And so Saul gaue him Michol his wyghter to wyfe. And when Saul sawe and vnderstode, that the Lorde was with Dauid, & that Michol his wyghter loued him, he was the more afrayde of Dauid, and became Dauids ennemye for euer. And when the Philistines went out to warre, Dauid behaued him selfe more wysely then all the seruauntes of Saul: so that his name was moche set by.

¶ Saul commaundeth to slee Dauid. Michol his wyfe sauyth him by a proper feat, and reconcyleth her father. Saul is also amonge the Prophetes.

CAPI. XIX.

A THen Saul communed with Jonathas his sonne, and with all his seruauntes, that they shulde kyll Dauid. * But Jo-
Ki.Re.xviii.a nathas Sauls sonne had a great fauoure to Dauid, and tolde Dauid sayenge: Saul my father goeth about to slee the. Now therfore take hede to thy selfe in season, and abyde in some secret place and hyde thy self. And I will go out e and stande by my father in the felde where thou art, and will comen with my father of the, and yf I can perceyue ought, I will tell the.

And Jonathas spake good of Dauid vnto Saul his father and sayde vnto him: let not the kynge synne against his seruaunt Dauid/ for he hath not trespased against the, and his workes are towardes the very good. For he dyd put his lyfe in his hande and slewe ỹ Philistine, and the Lorde gaue a great victory to Judi.xii.a all Israell. And thou sawest it, and thou reioysedest, wherfore then wouldest thou synne against innocent bloude, and slee Dauid for nought? And Saul harkened vnto the voyce of Jonathas and sware: as truly as ỹ Lorde lyueth, he shall not dye. Then Jonathas called Dauid and shewed him all those wordes, and brought him to Saul. And he was in his presence as in tymes paste. And the warre began agayne, and Dauid went out and fought with the Philistines and made a great slaughter, and put them to flyght. And the cuyl spyrite of the Lorde was vpon Saul as he sat in his house haumge a Jauelynge in his hande, and Dauid played with his hande. And Saul entended to nayle Dauid to the wall with the Jauelynge: But Dauid eyd him selfe oute of Sauls presence, and so he smote the speare in to the wall. But Dauid fled and saued him selfe that nyght. Then Saul sent messengers vnto Dauids house, to lye in awayte of hym and to slay him in the morninge. But Michol his wyfe tolde it him, sayenge: Yf thou sauest not thy selfe this night, to morow thou arte a deed man. And so Michol let Dauid downe thorow a wyndow, and he went and fled and saued him selfe. And then she toke an Image and layde it in the bed, and put a pyllow stuffed with gotes heare vnder the heed of it, & couered it with a cloth. And when Saul sent messengers to fetche Dauid, she sayde that he was sicke: Then Saul sent the messengers ase Dauid, sayenge: bringe him to me, bed and all, that he maye be slayne. And when ỹ messengers were come in: Beholde, there lay an Image in the bed, with a pyllowe of gootes heare vnder the heed of it. Then sayd Saul to Michol: Why haste thou mocked me so/ and sent awaye myne ennemy that he is escaped? And Michol answered Saul: He sayde vnto me, let me go, or els I will kyll the. And so Dauid fled and escaped and wēt to Samuel to Ramath and told him al that Saul had wone to him. And he, and Samuel went and dwelt in Naioth.

And it was tolde Saul sayenge: Beholde, 19
Dauid is at Naioth in Ramath, then Saul sent messengers to fet Dauid. And when they saw a companye of Prophetes prophesyenge, and Samuel teachinge theym, the spyrite of God fell vpon the messengers of Saul, & they prophesyed to. And when it was tolde Saul, he sent other messengers, and they prophesyed lykewyse. And Saul sent messengers yet agayne the thirde tyme whiche prophesyed also. Then went he him selfe to Ramath, and when he came to a greate well that is in Sechoh, he asked and sayde: Where are Samuel and Dauid? And they sayde: Se they be at Naioth in Ramath, and as he wente thither to Naioth in Ramath the spyrite of God came vpon hym also, and he wente Prophesyenge, tyll he came to Naioth in Ramath. And he sleyghte of his clothes and prophesyed before Samuel in lyke maner, and fell naked all ỹ daye and all that nyght, wherfore it is a co-men sayenge: Is Saul also amonges ỹ Prophetes?

¶ Dauid beynge in ieopardye complayneth vnto Jonathas. Jonathas delyuereth him. A policy deuysed betwene them: by which Dauid shulde know the intente of Saul.

CAPI. XX.

And

g ANd Dauid fled frome Naioth in Ramath and went before Jonathas, and sayd: What haue I done? wherin am I faultye? what is the synne that I haue cōmitted agaynste thy father that he seketh my lyfe? And Jonathas answered hym: God forbyd, thou shalte not dye. For se, my father wyll do nothynge neyther great ne small, but that he wyll shewe me. For why shulde my father hyde this thynge frome me? I knowe not. And Dauid sware agayne and sayde: thy father knoweth that I haue founde grace in thyne eyes and therfore he thynketh, Jonathas shal not knowe it, lest he be sory. For in dede, as truly as the Lorde lyueth, and as truely as thy soule lyueth, there is but a stey betwene me and death. Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid, what so euer thy soule desyreth, I will do vnto the. And Dauid sayde vnto Jonathas: Beholde, to morowe be the Kalendes, and I shulde sit with the kynge at meat. But let me goo that I maye hyde my selfe in the feldes vnto this daye thre dayes at euen.

18 Yf thy father mysse me, saye: Dauid asked leaue of me, that he myght go to Bethlehē to his owne cytte, for there is holden a yerely feast for all his kynne. And yf thy father say thus: It is well wone, then thy seruaunt shall haue peax. But yf he be angrye: be sure, wyckednesse is vtterlye concluded of him. And then thou shalt shewe mercy vnto thy seruaūt, for thou hast made with me thy seruaunt a bonde in the Lorde. Notwithstandinge yf there be in
1.Re.xx.b me any trespace, slay me thy selfe, for what nede thou to bringe me to thy father? And Jonathas aunswered: God kepe frome the, that I shoulde knowe, that wyckednesse were concluded of my father, to come vpon the: and shoulde not tell it the. Then sayde Dauid, who shall tell me, yf thy father aunswer cruelly? Jonathas sayde to Dauid: Come and let vs go forth into the feldes. And they wēt both of them into the feldes. Thē Jonathas sayde vnto Dauid: O Lorde God of Israell, 21
when I haue groped my fathers mynde, at one tyme or other, within this three dayes, that it stande well with Dauid: and I then sende not vnto the, and shew it the, the Lord do so and so vnto Jonathas. And in lyke maner, yf euyll towardes the be appointed of my father, I will shew the, and sende the away/ that thou mayst go in peax. And the Lorde be with the, as he hath bene with my father.
And thou shalte performe vnto me the mercy of the Lorde, not onely whyle I lyue, but also when I am deed, plucke not thy mercye away frome my house for euer: No, not whē the Lorde hathe destroyed the ennemyes of Dauid euery one frome the face of the earth. And so Jonathas made a bonde with ỹ house of Dauid, desyringe that the Lorde shoulde seke out of the handes of Dauids ennemyes their wyckednesse. And with other wordes Jonathas adiured Dauid, because he loued him. For as his owne soule he loued hym.

b Then sayde Jonathas to Dauid: to morowe shall be the Kalendes. And thou shalt be missed, because the place shall appeare emptye. But on the thyrde daye come in any wyse vn-
to the place where thou shalt hyde thy selfe, when it is worke daye: euen by the stone Ezell. And I will shote three arowes by the one syde therof, as thoughe I shoote at a marke, and will sende after, a lad, and byd him goo seke the arowes. Yf I saye vnto the lad: Se the arowes are on this syde the, bringe them: then come thou: for it is peax, and nothinge to w, as sure as the Lorde lyueth, But yf I saye thus vnto the ladde, Beholde, the arowes are beyounde the, then flee, for the Lord hath sent the awaye. And of this which thou and I haue spoken/ beholde, the Lorde is witnesse betwene the and me for euer. And so Dauid hyd him selfe in the felde. And when the Kalendes came, the kyng sat hym downe at meate, to thintent to eate. And the kynge sat him downe after the accustomed maner, in his seate by the wall. And Jonathas arose, & Abner sate by Sauls syde, and Dauids place was emptye, but yet Saul sayde nothinge at all that daye. For he thoughte, some thynge hadde chaunced him, whereby he was not cleane. But on the morowe after the Kalendes, when Dauids place appeared emptye, Saul sayde vnto Jonathas his sonne, wherfore commeth not the sonne of Jsai to meate, neyther yesterdaye nor to day. And Jonathas answered vnto Saul. Dauid asked lycence of me to go to Bethlehem sayenge/ let me go I praye the, for our kynrede holde an offring in the cytte, and my brother hath sent for me. Nowe therfore yf I haue founde fauoure in thyne eyes, let me go, and se my brethren. And for this cause he cōmeth not vnto the kynges table. Then was Saul angrye with Jonathas and sayde vnto him/ O frowarde and rebellious childe, thinkeste thou I know not how thou hast chosen the sonne of Jsai vnto thyne owne rebuke, and vnto the rebuke and shame of thy mother? For as longe as ỹ son of Jsai lyueth vpō the erth, thou shalte not be stablysshed, nor yet thy kyngdome, wherfore now sende and fet him vnto me, * for he is 1.Re.xvi.c. ii.Reg.iii.a the childe of death.

But Jonathas answered Saul his father and sayde to him/ wherfore shulde he dye? what hath he done? Then Saul cast a speare at him to hyt him, whereby Jonathas wiste well, that it was vtterlye determined of his father, to slay Dauid. Then Jonathas arose frome the table in a great anger, and dyd eate no meate the seconde daye of the Kalendes, for he was sory for Dauid, because his father had done him shame. On the nexte morynge Jonathas wente oute in to the felde, at the tyme appoynted with Dauid, and a lytle lad with hym. And he sayde vnto the boye, run and fynde oute myne arowes whiche I shote. And as the boye ranne, he shote an arowe be-younde him. And when the ladde was come to the place whether Jonathas hadde shote the arowe, Jonathas cryed after him, & sayd/ the arowe is beyonde the. And he cryed after the lad/ haste, make spede and stande not stil. And Jonathas ladde gathered vp the arowe and came to his master. But the lad wiste no-

thinge of the matter: Onely Jonathas and Dauid wist it. Then Jonathas gaue his weapons vnto the Lad, and sayd vnto him: goo and carye theym to the towne. And as soue as the lad was gone, Dauid arose oute of a place that was towarde the south and fell on his face to the grounde, and bowed him selfe thre tymes. And they kyssed eyther other and wept togither, but Dauid more abundantly. And Jonathas sayde to Dauid: go in peax of suche thinges as we haue swozne eyther of vs in the name of the Lozde, sayenge: The Lozde be betwene the and me, and betwene thy sede and myne foz euer. And he arose and departed. And Jonathas went in to the towne.

¶ Dauid flyeth in to Nob to Achimelech the preest, and getteth thewe bread to sanctifye his honger. Ieter he flyeth to kynge Achis, and there fayneth him selfe mad.

CAP I. XXI.

THen came Dauid to Nob to Achimelech the preast: And Achimelech was astonied at his commynge and went to mete Dauid and sayde vnto him: Why commeste thou thy selfe alone, and no man with the? And Dauid sayde to Achimelech the preast: ℔ kynge hath commaunded me to do a certayne thyng and sayde vnto me, lette no man knowe whereabout I send the and what I haue commaunded the to doo. And therfore I haue appointed my seruauntes to suche and suche places. And nowe what haste thou vnder thyne hande? gyue me fyue loues of bred oz what cõmeth to hande. And the preast answered Dauid and sayde: There is no comen bzed vnder myne hande, but there is halowed bred, yf the younge men haue abstayned onely from wemen. And Dauid answered the preest and sayd vnto him: Of a truthe wemen hath bene locked vp from vs about a thre dayes, when we came out: and the vessels of the younge men were holy. How be it yf we haue taken anye vnclennesse by the waye this daye, it shall be halowed in the vesselles. And so the preast gaue him halowed bzed, foz there was none other bzed there saue thew bzedes, that were taken from before the Lozde, to put freshe bzed there.

And there was the same daye a certen man of the seruauntes of Saul within the tabernacle of the Lozde named Doeg an Edomite, the chiefest of Sauls herde men. And Dauid sayde vnto Achimelech: is not here vnder thyn hande eyther speare oz swerde? foz I haue neyther brought my swerde noz myne harnes wt me, because the kynges busynes requried hast. Then the preast answered: the swerde of Goliath the Philistine whome thou slewest in Okedale, that is here wzapt in a cloth behynde the Ephod, yf thou wilte take that, take it: foz there is none other saue that here. And Dauid sayde: there is none to that, gyue it me.

And Dauid arose and fledde the same daye fro̅m the presence of Saul, and went to Achis the kynge of Geth. And the seruauntes of Achis sayde of him: Is not this Dauid the kynge of the lande? dyd they not synge vnto this felowe in daunces, sayenge: Saul hath slayne his thousande, and Dauid his ten thousand? And Dauid put those wordes into his hert and was soze afrayde of Achis the kynge of Geth. And he chaunged his countenaunce before theym, and raued in their handes, and scrabled on the wzes of the gate, and let his spittell fall wowne vpon his bearde. The sayd Achis vnto his seruaunt. Lo ye saw that this man was beside him selfe, wherfoze then haue ye brought him to me? lacke I mad men, that ye haue brought this felowe to playe the mad man in my presence? he shal not come into my house.

¶ Dauid flyeth in to the caue Odollam, and then in to Mizphah to the kynge of Moab, And there in to Hareth. Doeg betrayeth Dauid. Achimelech is accused of treeson and slayne, and foure score and foure preastes mo with hym: because they receyued Dauid. Nob is destroyed of Saul. Abiathar flyeth to Dauid.

CAP. XXII.

SO Dauid departed thence and escaped, & came vnto the caue Odollam, whyther whe his brethren & all his fathers house herde of, they went thyther to him. And there resorted vnto him all suche as were in distresse and in det and troubled in their herres, & he was made their capitayne, and there were with him aboute foure hundzed men. And Dauid went thence to Mizphah in the land of Moab, and sayde vnto the kynge of Moab: Let my father and mother (I praye the) haue their abydynge with you, tyll I know what God will do with me. And he brought theym afore the kynge of Moab, and they dwelte with him all the whyle that Dauid kept him selfe in holdes. And the prophete Gad, sayde vnto Dauid: Abyde not in holdes, but departe and go to the lande of Juda. Then Dauid departed and came into ℔ forest Hareth. And Saul herde of it: for Dauid was knowen and also the men that were with him. And as Saul sat in Gabaah vnder a greue vpon an hyghe banche with his speare in his hande, and all his men rounde about him, he sayde vnto his seruauntes that were about him. Heare me, ye sonnes of Jemini: Wyll the sonne of Jsai also gyue euerye one of you feldes and vynyardes, and make you all graunde capitaines and petye capitaines, that ye haue all conspired against me, so that there is none that wil shewe me any thinge, in so moche that my sonne hath made a confederacie with the sonne of Jsai? There is none of you that bewayleth my chaunce oz sheweth it in myne eare: because my sonne hath set vp my seruaunt to lye in a wayte agaynste me, as appeareth this daye.

Then answered Doeg the Edomite, whi che was chiefe of the seruauntes of Saul and sayde: I sawe the sonne of Jsai, when he came to Nob, to Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, whiche sought counsell of the Lozd foz him, and gaue him vitayles, & the swerde of Goliath ℔ Philistine also. Then the kinge sent to call Achimelech the preaste the sonne of Achitob, and all his fathers house: that is to saye, the preastes that were in Nob. And they came all to the kynge. Then Saul sayd: heare thou sonne of Achitob. And he sayde: here I am my Lozd. Then sayd Saul to him: why haue ye conspired againste me, thou and the sonne of Jsai, in so moche that thou hast gyue̅ him vytayle and a swerde, & hast sought counsel of God foz him, that he should aryse agaynst me, and lye awapt as appeareth this daye? And Achimelech answered the kynge & sayd: who is amonge all thy seruauntes as the faythfull Dauid and the kynges sonne in lawe, and goeth at thy byddynge, and is had in honoure in thyne house? haue I this daye begõne fyrst to aske counsell of God foz him? be this farre fro̅me me: lette not the kynge suspect agaynst his seruaunt any suche thinge in all the house of my father. Foz thy seruaũt knoweth nothinge of all this, eyther lytle oz moche.

But the kynge sayde: thou shalt surely dye Achimelech, bothe thou and all thy fathers house. Then sayde the kynge vnto his fotemẽ that stode about him: turne and slay the preestes of the Lozde, bothe because their hande is with Dauid, and because they knewe when Dauid fled and shewed it not to me. But the seruauntes of the kyng would not moue their handes, to run vpon the preastes of the Lozd. Then sayde the kynge to Doeg: tourne thou and smyte the preastes. And * Doeg the Edomite turned and ranne vpon the preastes and slewe that same daye foure skoze and fyue persones that dyd weare erthe man a lynnen Ephod. And Nob the cytte of the preastes he smote with the edge of the swerde, both man and woman, chylde and sucklynge, with oxe asse and shepe. Yet one of the sonnes of Achimelech the sonne of Achitob, named Abiathar escaped and fled to Dauid, and shewed hym that Saul had slayn the Lozdes preastes. The Dauid sayde vnto Abiathar: I wist it ℔ same daye, that whẽ Doeg the Edomite was there, he would surely tell it Saul. I am cause of ℔ death of all the soules of thy fathers house. Abyde with me and feare not: he that seketh thy soule, shall seke myne, and with me thou shalt be in sauegarde.

¶ Dauid delyuereth Keilah, and flyeth in to the wildernesse of ziph. Iets comforted of Jonathas. The ziphiens would haue betrayed him.

CAPI. XXIII.

THen they tolde Dauid, sayenge: Beholde, the Philistines fight against Keilah, and spoyle the barnes. Dauid therfore asked the Lozdes aduyse, sayenge: shall I goo and smyte the Philistines? And the Lozde sayde vnto Dauid: Go and smyte the Philistines, and saue Keilah. Then sayd Dauids men vnto him: Se, we be afrayde here in Juda. What shall we then be, when we come to Keilah, to the host of the Philistines? Then Dauid asked the Lozde agayne. And ℔ Lozde answered him and sayde, aryse, and go to Keilah, foz I wyll gyue the Philistines into thyne handes. So Dauid and his men wẽt to Keilah, and fought with the Philistines / and dzaue awaye their catel and made a great slaughter of theym. And so Dauid saued the inhabitauntes of Keilah. Nowe it chaunced, when Abiathar the sonne of Achimelech, had fled to Dauid to Keilah, that he brought an Ephod in his hande.

And it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was come to Keilah. Then sayd Saul: God hath gyuen him into myne hande. Foz he is shut in sythe he is come into a towne where be bothe gates and barres. And Saul called all ℔ people to warre, foz to goo to Keilah, to besyege Dauid and his men. But Dauid had knowledge that Saul pryuely imagined mischiefe against him, and sayde to Abiathar the preast: * Bynge the Ephod. Then sayde Dauid, O Lozde God of Jsraell, thy seruaunt heareth, that Saul is about to come to Keilah to destroye the cytte foz my sake: wyll the elders of Keilah delyuer me into his hande? oz will Saul come as thy seruaunte heareth saye? Lozde God of Jsrael tell thy seruaunt. And ℔ Lozde sayde: He will come. Then sayde Dauid: Will the men of Keilah delyuer me and my men into the hande of Saul? & the Lozd sayd: they will delyuer you.

Then Dauid and his men which were vpõ a fyre hundzed, arose and departed out of Keilah, and went here and there, they knew not whether. And when it was tolde Saul, that Dauid was fled frome Keilah, and so in sauegarde, he let the tourneye alone. And Dauid abode in the wyldernesse in stronge holdes, & in a mountayne in the wyldernesse of Ziph. And Saul sought him all his lyfe, but God delyuered him not into his hande. And Dauid saw that Saul was come out, to seke his lyfe but Dauid was in the wyldernesse of Ziph in a couert. And Jonathas Sauls sonne arose & went to Dauid to the couert, and strengthed him in God, and sayde vnto him: Feare not, foz the hand of Saul my father shal not fynde the, but thou shalt be kynge ouer Jsrael, and I muste be next vnto the. Yea, and Saul my father knoweth that it shall be so. And they made * a bonde togyther before the Lozde, & Dauid taryed styl in the wood, but Jonathas went to his house.

Then came the Ziphites to Saul vnto Gabaah, sayenge: Dauid hydeth him selfe faste by vs in stronge holdes that are in a couert in the hyll of Hachilah on the eyghteside of the wildernesse. Nowe therfore syr kynge, come downe with all the lust that thy soule hath to come. And it shalbe our partes to delyuer him into the handes of ℔ kynge. Then sayd Saul: Blessed are ye in the Lozde: foz ye haue compassion on me. Goo, I praye you, and marke moze narowly, and knowe and se his haunte,

D where his fote hath bene, and who hath sene him there: for it is tolde me he is very wyly. He therfore and knowe all the lorkynge places where he lourketh, and come agayne to me with the certentye, And I will goo with you. Yea and if he will vyde him selfe in the grounde, yet I will hunt him out, with all the thousandes of Juda. And they arose and went to Ziph before Saul. But Dauid and his men were in the wildernesse of Maon, in the wylde felde, on the eyght hande of the wyldernesse. For when Saul was gone with his men to seke, it was tolde Dauid. And therfore he went vnto a rocke and dwelt in the wilternesse of Maon, whiche when Saul hearde, he pursued after Dauid in to the wildernesse of Maon. But Saule and his men went one the one syde of the mountayne, and Dauid and his men on the other. And Dauid as a man amased, made haste to gette frome Saul. For Saul and his men had compalled Dauid & his men round about, to take them. Then there came a messengre to Saul, sayinge: Haste the and come, for the Philistines haue inuaded & do dispoyle the lande. Wherfore Saul returned frome persecutynge Dauid, and made agaynste the Philistines. And therfore the place is called * Hela Mahelecoth. And then Dauid went thence and dwelt in stronge holdes at Engaddi.

* That is the rock of partiō

¶ Dauid flyeth into Engaddi and there hideth him. Saul cometh in thyther to do his eallment and Dauid cutteth of the bozder of his mātel. Dauid goeth out of the caue after Saul and speaketh to him.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A When Saul was come agayne frome the Philistines, there were that tolde him, sayenge: beholde, Dauid is in the wylderneste of Engaddi. Then Saul toke thzee thousande chosen men oute of all Israel, and went to seke Dauid and his men in the rockes, where nothinge haunted but wylde gootes. And he came to the flockes of shepe, by a wayes syde where was a caue. And Saul wēt in couer his fete. And Dauid and his men sat a longe by the sydes of the caue. And the men of Dauid sayde vnto him: se, the daye is come of which the Lozde sayde vnto the: Beholde, I will delpuer thyne ennemye into thyne hād, and thou shalt do with him what it pleaseth the. Then Dauid arose and cut of a lappe of Sauls cote pzyuely. And forthwith Dauids hert smote him, because he had cut of a lappe of Sauls cote. And he sayde vnto his men: ꝑ Lozde kepe me frome doynge that thinge vnto B my master that is the Lozdes annointed, to laye myne hande vpon him, sythe he is ꝑ Lozdes annointed. And so Dauid kept of his seruauntes with wozdes, and suffred theym not to set vpon Saul. And when Saul was ryssen out of the caue, and went forward on his iourneye, Dauid arose and went out of ꝑ caue and cryed after Saul, sayeng: My lord kyng. And Saul loked behynde him. And Dauid stouped to the earth and bowed him self, and sayd to Saul: Wherfore gyuest thou an eare to mens wozdes, that saye, Dauid seketh the euyll? Beholde, this daye thyne eyes haue C sene, that the Lozde had delpuered the, into myne hande in the caue. And when they bad kyll the, myne eye had compassion on the: and I sayde: I will not lay my handes on my master, for he is ꝑ Lozdes annointed, but rather my father, se yet and acknowledge this the lap of thy coote in my hande. And in almoche as I kylled the not also, when I cut of ꝑ lap of thy coote, vnderstande and se, that there is neyther euyll ne rebellion in me, and that I haue not synned agaynst the. And yet thou hūtest after my soule to destroye it. The Lozde be iudge betwene the and me, and the Lozde auenge me of the. But myne hand be not vpō the. Accozdinge to the olde Prouerbe: Wyckednesse shall pzocede out of the wycked: but myne hande shall not be vpon the. After whō arte thou come out, thou kynge of Israel? what is he whome thou chasest? certes euen a deed wgge, and a flee. The Lozde be iudge, and let him deme betwene the and me, and se and iudge my cause, and delpuer me oute of thyne hande. When Dauid had made ende of speakynge all these wozdes to Saul, Saul D sayde: is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? and he lyfte vp his voyce and wepte, and sayde to Dauid: Thou arte eyghteouser then I, for thou haste rewarded me with good, & I haue acquyted the with cuyll. And thou haste shewed this daye how louyngly thou hast dealt with me, that when the Lozde had locked me in thyne hādes, thou slewest me not. For who when he shall fynde his ennemy will let him departe in a good waye? Wherfore the Lozd rewarde the with good, for that thou haste wone vnto me this daye. And now forasmoch as I know assuredly that thou shalt be kynge and that the kyngdome of Israel shalbe dis-dyssched in thyne hande: Swere vnto me by the Lozd, that thou shalt not destroy my sede after me, and that thou shalt not destroy my name out of my fathers house: & Dauid swar vnto Saul, So Saul went home, But Dauid and his men gat them vp vnto an holde.

¶ Samuel dyeth. Dauid flyeth to the wildernesse of Pharan. He is angrye with Nabal: but is pacyfyed by the wysdome of Abigail. Nabal dyeth, and Dauid maryeth Abigail.

CAPI. XXV.

THen Samuel dyed, and al Israel assembled and lamented him and buryed him in his owne house at Ramath. But Dauid arose & gat him to the wildernesse of Pharan. And there was a man in Maon / whose catell was in Carmell, & the man was exceadinge mighty, & had thre thousande sheepe & a thousand gotes. And he was shering his shepe in Carmell. The name of the man was Nabal, & the name of his wyfe was Abigail, and was a woman of good wysdome & bewtyfull. But the man was churlysshe & of shrewde condicions, & was a Calebite. And when Dauids herde in the wildernesse, that Nabal share his shepe, he sent out ten of his younge men, and sayd vnto them: get you vp to Carmel and go to Nabal and greete him in my name. And thus wise saye vnto my frinde: pease be to the, pease be to thine house, and peax be vnto all that thou halle. I haue herde saye thou halle sheerers. Now, thy shepeherdes were with vs, & we did them no despite ne villanye, neyther was there ought missinge vnto them, all the whyle they were with vs in Carmel: aske thy seruauntes, & they will shewe the. Wherfore let these yong men finde fauour in thine eyes (for we come in a good season) & * giue (I praye the) whatsoeuer commeth to thine hande, vnto thy seruauntes and to thy sonne Dauid. So Dauids younge men came and tolde Nabal all those wozdes in the behalfe of Dauid and then stopped. Then Nabal answered Dauids seruauntes and sayde: what is Dauid? and what is the sonne of Jsai? there is plentye of seruauntes nowe a dayes, that breake away from their masters. Shuld I take my breed, my water and my flesh that I haue kylled for my sheerers, and gyue it vnto men which I wote not whence they be? The Dauids seruauntes turned their waye / and E went agayne, and came and tolde him accozdinge to al those sayenges. Then Dauid said vnto his men: gyde euery man his swerde aboute him. And they gyded euerye man his swerde on him, and Dauid therto gyde on his swerde. And so there folowed Dauid aboute foure hundzed men, and two hundzed abode by the fluffe. But one of the seruauntes tolde Abigail Nabals wyfe, sayenge: Se Dauid sent messengers vnto our master oute of the wyldernesse to salute him, & he cuyled them. And yet the men were very good vnto vs and dyd vs no displeasure, neyther myssed we any thinge, as longe as we were conuersaunt wō them, when we were in the feldes. Yea they were a wall of defence vnto vs, both by night and by daye, all the whyle we were with the kepinge shepe. Nowe take hede and se, what thou hast to do, for myschiefe is concluded to be wone vnto our master and to all his housholde. And he is vngracious to speake to. The D Abigail made hast and toke twoo hundzed loues and two botelles of wyne and fyue shepe redye dressed, and fyue measures of parched corne, and an hundzed bondelles of reesings, & two hundzed frayles of fygges, and laded them on asses, and sayde vnto her young men: go before me, and lo I come after you, & tolde her husbande Nabal nothinge therof. And as she rode on her asse, & was comminge downe in a slade of the hyll, Dauid and his men came downe against her, and she met them.

And Dauid sayde: in vayne haue I kept all that this felowe hadde in the wyldernesse: so that nought was myssed that pertayned vnto him, for he hathe acquyted me with cuyll for good. So and so God do vnto the ennemyes of Dauid, as I will not leaue of all that pertayne to him, by the dawninge of the daye, ought that pisseth againste the wall. When Abigail sawe Dauid, she hasted and dyd alyte of her asse, and fell before Dauid on her face, and bowed her selfe to the grounde, and fell at his fete and sayde: Let this vnhappye dede be accompted myne, my Lozde, and let thyne handemayde speake in thyne audience, and heare the wozdes of thy handemayde. Let not my Lozde regarde this vnthzifty mā Nabal, for as his name is, so is he. Nabal is his name, and folly is with him. But I thyn handemayde sawe not the younge men of my Lozde which thou sendest. And now my Lozd as truely as the Lozde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, the Lozde hath withholden the frome commynge to shede bloude, and frome auengynge thy selfe with thyne owne hande. Furthermoze I praye God that thyne ennemyes and they that intende to do my Lozde euyll, maye be as Nabal. And now take this blessinge, whiche thyne handemayde hathe brought to the my Lozde, let it be gyuen vnto the younge men that folowe my Lozde. For-gyue the trespace of thyne handemayde that the Lozde maye make my Lozde a sure house because my Lozde fighteth the battelles of ꝑ Lozde, and there coulde none euyll be founde in the, in all thy lyfe. And yf any man aryse to persecute the, and to seke thy soule, the soule of my Lozde mought be preserued as it were in a bondell of lyuynge thinges, with the Lozde thy God. And the soules of thy ennemyes be stonge in the myddle of a slynge. And when the Lozde shall haue wone to my Lozde all the good that he hathe promysed the, and shall haue made the, ruler ouer Jsrael: then shall it be no grudge of conscience vnto the or discourage of herte vnto my Lozde, that thou sheddest bloude causelesse, and dyddest auenge thy selfe.

And when the Lozde shall haue dealt well with my Lozde, thinke on thyne handmayde Then sayde Dauid to Abigail: blessed be the Lozde God of Jsrael which sent the this day to mete me. And blessed be thy behauour, and blessed be thou which hast kept me this daye frome bloudshedinge, and frome auengynge my selfe with myne owne hande. For, in verye dede as surely as the Lozde God of Jsrael lyueth, who hath kept me backe frome hurting the, excepte thou haddest hasted and met me, there hadde not bene left vnto Nabal by the dawninge of the daye, a pisser against ꝑ wall. And so Dauid receyued of her hande that she brought, and sayd to her: go in peax to thyne house. Lo I haue obeyed thy voyce and haue receyued the to grace.

And when Abigail returned to Nabal: beholde, he helde a feast in his house lyke ꝑ feast of a kynge, and Nabals herte was merye with in him, for he was well dzonke. Wherfore she tolde him naught neyther lytle nor moche tyll the morowe. But in the mornynge, when Nabal hadde dygested the wyne, his wyfe tolde him these wordes, and his herte dyed with in him, and he became as a stone, and vpon a ten dayes after the Lozde smote Nabal, that he dyed. Which when Dauid herde that Nabal was deed, sayde: Blessed be the G Lozd that hath iuged the cause of my rebuke of the hande of Nabal, and hath kept his seruaunt from euyll, and hathe turned the wickednesse of Naball vpon his owne heed. So Dauid sent to commen with Abigail, to thintent to take her to his wife. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were come to Abigail to Carmel, they spake vnto her, sayinge: Dauid sent vs vnto the, to take the to his wyfe. And she arose and fell on her face to the erthe and sayde: Beholde, thy hand maydē be a seruaunt to washe the fete of the seruauntes of my Lorde. And Abigail hasted and arose and gat her vp vpon an Asse, with. v. damosselles of hers that went at her fete, and went after the messengers of Dauid and was his wyfe. Dauid also take Ahinoan of Jezrahel, and they were both his wiues. But Saul gaue Michol his daughter Dauids wife to Phalti the sonne of Lais of Gallim.

¶ Saul sleapeth in his tent, And Dauid taketh away his speare and a cruse of water, that stode at his heade.

CAPI. XXVI.

A Ffter that came ꝑ Ziphites vnto Saul to Gabaah, saying: Dauid hydeth hym selfe in ꝑ hill of Hachilah before ꝑ wildernesse. Then Saule arose and went to the wyldernesse of Ziph and thre thousande chosen men of Israel with him, to seke Dauid in the wildernesse of Ziph. And Saul pytched in the hill of Hachilah whiche lyeth before the wyldernesse, by the wayes syde. But Dauid dwelt in the wyldernesse. And when he sawe that Saul pursued him into the wildernesse, he sent forth espyes and vnderstode that Saul was come in dede.

Wherfore Dauid arose and went to the place where Saul had pytched, and beheld the place where Saul lay with Abner the son of Ner, his chiefe capitayne. For Saul laye within a rounde banke, and the people pytched roundeabout him. Then answered Dauid and spake to Ahimelech the Hethite and to Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah and brother to Joab, sayenge: Who will go downe with me to Saul to the hoste? and Abisai sayde: I will goo wnne with the. And so Dauid and Abisai came to the people by nyght. And beholde, Saul laye slepinge within a rounde banche, and his speare pytched in the ground at his heed, Abner & the people lyenge round about him. Then sayde Abisai to Dauid: God hath inclosed thyne ennemy vnto thyne hand this daye. Now therfore let me smyte him I pray the with my speare to the earth, but one stroke, and it shall nede no more. But Dauid sayde to Abisai: destroy him not, for who can laye his hande on the Lordes annoynted and be giltlesse? And Dauid sayde furthermore: as truely as the Lorde lyueth, oneles ꝑ Lord shall smyte him, or his daye shall come to dye or he shall descende into battell and there perysshe: the Lorde kepe me from layeng myne hande vpon the Lordes annoynted. Now the take the speare that is at his heed, and the crewse of water, and let vs goo. And Dauid toke the speare and the crewse of water that was at Sauls heed, and they gat them away and no man saw or wist it or awoke. For they were all a slepe, because the Lorde had sent a slomber vpon them. Then Dauid went ouer to thother syde and stode on the toppe of an hyll a farre of (a great space betwene theym) and cryed to the people and to Abner the sonne of Ner, sayeng: Answerest thou not Abner? and Abner answered and sayd: What art thou that cryest to the kynge? and Dauid sayde to Abner: art not thou a man, and who is lyke the in Israel? But wherfore hast thou not kept thy Lorde the kyng? For there came one of the folke to destroy the kyng thy Lord. It is not good that thou hast wne. As truely as the Lorde lyueth ye are worthy to dye, because ye haue no better kepte the Lordes annoynted. And now se where the kynges speare is, and the crewse of water, that was at his heed.

Then Saul knewe Dauids voyce & sayde: is this thy voyce my sonne Dauid? and Dauid sayde: it is my voyce my Lorde kynge. And he sayd further wherfore weth my Lord pursue his seruaunt? for what haue I wnne? or what euyll is in myne hande? Nowe heare therfore (my Lorde kynge) the wordes of thy seruaunte. If the Lorde haue stered the vp against me, let him smell the sacrifice. But if they be the children of men, cursed be they before the Lorde. For they haue caste me out so that I can not dwell in the enheritaunce of ꝑ Lord, sayeng: hence & go serue other Goddes. And yet I hope my bloude shall not fal to the earth before the face of the Lorde, though the kynge of Israell be come out to hunt one flee, as men hunt the partregis in the mountaynes Then sayd Saul: I haue synned: come againe my sonne Dauid for I will wo the no more harme, because my soule was precious in thyne eyes this daye. Beholde, I haue played the fole and haue erred exceedinge moche. And Dauid answered and sayde: Beholde the kynges speare, let one of the younge men come ouer and fet it. The Lord rewarde euery mās righteousnesse and faith: for the Lorde deliuered the into my hand this day, but I wold not laye myne hande vpon the Lordes anoynted. And as thy lyfe was moche set bye this tyme in myne eyes: so be my lyfe set by in the eyes of the Lorde, that he delyuer me out of all trybulations. And Saul sayde to Dauid: Blessed arte thou my sonne Dauid, for thou shalt be a doer and also able to bringe to an ende. And so Dauid went his way, and Saul turned to his place agayne.

¶ Dauid fleeth to Achis kynge of Geth, which graueth him ziklag to dwell in. He killeth the Philistines. And when Achis demaunded agaynste whome he had roued, he cleaueth him a lubyll answere and deceyueth hym properlye.

CAP. XXVII.

THen thought Dauid in his hert: I may perish at one daye or other by the hādes of Saul. There is no better thyng for me then

then to flee in to the lande of the Philistines, that Saul of verye dispayre to kynde me, may cease sekynge me any more in all the coostes of Israel: for so I may escape his hand. And Dauid arose, and he and the sixe hundred mē that were with him went vnto Achis the sonne of Maoch kynge of Geth. And Dauid dwelte w Achis at Geth, bothe he & his men, euery man with his houshold, and Dauid with his two wyues: Ahinoam the Jezrahelite and Abigail Nabals wife of Carmell. So whē it was told Saul ꝑ Dauid was fled to Geth, he soughte no more for him. And Dauid sayd vnto Achis: If I haue founde grace in thyne eyes, let me haue a place in some towne in the feldes, that I maye dwell there. For what sholde thy seruaunt dwell, in the heed cite of the kingdome with the? Then Achis gaue him Zikeleg the same daye for which cause Zikeleg pertayneth vnto the kynges of Juda vnto this daye. And the tyme that Dauid dwelte in the countreye of the Philistines, was a yere and foure monethes. And Dauid and his men went and ran vpon the Gesurites, the Gerzites, and the Amalekites, whiche nacions were from the begynnynge the inhabitantes of the lande, as men go to Sur, and so forth to Egypt. And Dauid smote the lande, and lefte neither man ne womā alyue/and toke the shepe, the oren, the asses, camels, and clothes, and remoued & came to Achis. And Achis sayde/haue ye not bene a roupng this daye? And Dauid answered/yes in the southe of Juda/and in the southe of the Jezrahelytes, and in the south of the Kenites. And Dauid saued neither man nor woman alyue to bryng to Geth, sayingeleest they shold speake agaynste vs: Thus dyd Dauid, and so was his maner all the whyle he dwelte in the countrey of the Philistines. And Achis bileued Dauid, saying: He hath wrought moche mischefe agaynst his people Israel, and therfore he shall be my seruaunt for euer.

¶ The Philistines moue warre agaynste Saul and the Israelites. Saul requyreth councell of God but hath no answere: and then seketh after an enchaunter, who rayseth vp the spirite of Samuel.

CAPI. XXVIII.

IT chaunced in those dayes that the Philistines gathered their host togyther to war, intendynge to fight with Israel. And Achis sayd to Dauid: Be sure thou shalte goo oute with me in the host, and thy men also. And Dauid sayd agayn to Achis: then thou shalt know what thy seruaunt can do. And Achis sayde to Dauid: Then I wyll make the keper of my heed for euer. Samuel was then deed, and all Israel had lamented him, and buryed hym in Ramath his owne city. And Saul had put the women that had spirites of prophesye and the sorcerers out of the lande. And the Philistines gathered togyther, and came & pitched in Sunam, and Saul and all Israel gathered togyther and pytched in Gelboe. When Saul saw the hoste of the Philistines, he was afrayde, & his herte was sore astonyed. And Saul asked counsel of the Lorde: But the Lord answered him not, neither by dreame, nor by preestes, nor yet by the Prophetes.

Then sayd Saul vnto his seruantes: seke me a woman hauing a spirite of prophecye, that I maye goo to her and aske of her. And his seruauntes sayd to hym: se, there is a wyfe that hath a spirite of prophesie at Endor. And Saul chaunged his clothes, and put on other rayment/and then went he & two men with him, and they came to the wyfe by nyght/and he sayde: prophesye vnto me by the spirite, and bring me him vp whom I shal name vnto the. And the wyfe sayde vnto him: Beholde thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath destroyed the women that hadde prophesienge spirites, & the sorcerers out of the land. Wherfore then layest thou a net for my soule to kyll me? And Saul swore to her by the Lord, sayinge: as surely as the Lorde liueth, there shal no harme chaunce the for this thynge. Then sayd the wyfe: whome shall I fetche vp vnto the? and he sayd: bring me vp Samuel. When the woman sawe Samuel, she cryed w a loude voyce and spake to Saul, sayinge: why hast tho mocked me? for thou arte Saul. And the kyng said vnto her, be not afrayde: But what seest thou? And the wyfe sayd vnto Saul: I se a God ascendyng vp out of the erth. And he sayde: what facion is he of? And the woman sayde: there commeth vp an olde man with a mantel vpon him. And Saul perceyued that it was Samuel, and stouped with his face to ꝑ grounde and bowed hym selfe. And Samuel said to Saul: why hast thou vnquieted me, to make me brought vp? And Saul answered: I am sore encombred. For the Philistines make warre agaynst me, and God is departed from me, and answered me no more, neyther by prophetes, neyther by dreames/ & therfore I haue called the, to tell me what I shall doo. Then said Samuel: wherfore askest thou aske of me? whyle the Lorde is gone from the, & is thyne ennemye/the Lorde wyll do to the as he sayde by my hand. For the Lord wil rent the kyngdome oute of thyne hande, and gyue it thy neighbour Dauid, because thou obeyedst not the voyce of the Lord, nor executedst his fearce wrath vpō the Amalekites. Therfore hath the Lord wne this vnto the this daye. And further the Lorde wyll delyuer Israel with the in to the handes of ꝑ Philistines/ & to morow shalt thou and thy sonnes be with me/and ꝑ Lorde shall gyue the hoste of Israel in to the handes of the Philistines. Then Saul fell forthwith flatte on the erth, and was sore a dredde of the wordes of Samuel.

And therto there was no strength in him, for he hadde not eaten all the daye before. And the woman came vnto Saul, & sawe he was sore troubled, and sayd vnto him. Se, thyne handmayde hath obeyed thy voice, and haue put my soule in my hande, & haue harkened vnto thy wordes, whiche thou saydest vnto me. Nowe therfore harken thou also vnto the voyce of thyne handmayde, and let me set a morsell of breed before the, and eate and get the strength to go thy iourneye. But he refused it and sayd: I wil not eate. But his seruauntes & the wyfe togither togyther compelled him, that he herde theyr voyce. And so he arose from the erthe and sate him on a bed. The woma had a fat calfe in the house, and chat she hasted and killed, and toke flour & knede it, and did bake him swete cakes, and brought them before Saul, and before his seruantes/ and when they had eaten, they stode vp, and went awaye the same nyght.

¶ Dauid goying with kyng Achis to fyght agaynst Saul is sent agayne by the meanes of the Lordes of the Philistines.

CAPI. XXIX.

A THe Philistines gathered al theyr hostes togyther vnto Aphek/ and Israel pitched by a fountayn in Jezrahel. And the lordes of the Philistines wet forth by hundredes and by thoulandes. But Dauid and his men came beyonde with Achis. Then sayd the lordes of the Philistines: what wyl yonder Hebrues? And Achis said vnto the lordes of the Philistines. Is not this Dauid the seruaunt of Saul the king of Israel, which hath ben with me dayes or yeres, and I haue found no fault B in him sithens he fled vnto me vnto this daye. Neuertheles the lordes of ỹ Philistines were wroth with him and sayde vnto him: Make this felow returne, & let him go agayn to his place whyche thou hast appointed him. For he shall not goo with vs to battayle, lest he be an aduersarye to vs in the battayle, when we begyn to fyghte. For wherwith couide he better obtayne the fauour of his master, then vpon the heedes of our men? Is this not Da- 1.Reg.xviii.a uid to whome they sange in daunces: ✱Saul end.xxi.d slew in thousandes, but Dauid ysin ten thou- Eccli.xlvii.c. sandes? Then Achis called Dauid and sayd vn to him: As truely as the Lorde lyueth thou arte honest, and it pleaseth me well that thou shouldest accompany me in the hoste/ for I haue found none euyl with the from the tyme thou camest to me vnto this day. Neuertheles the C Lordes of the Philistines fauoure the not: wherfore returne and goo in peax, that thou displease not ỹ Lordes of the Philistines. And Dauid said agayn to Achis: Why, what haue I done? and what hast thou founde in thy seruaunt as longe as I haue ben with the vnto this daye? that I maye not go fyght agaynste the ennemyes of my Lorde the kynge.

Achis answered and sayd to Dauid: I wot D well, thou pleasest me, as it were an aungell of God. Notwithstandynge the lordes of the Philistines haue sayde, that thou shalte not go with them to battayle. Wherfore aryse vp early in the morynyng with thy masters seruaũtes that are come with the. And when ye be vp early, as soone it begyn to be daye, departe. And so Dauid and his men arose early to departe in the morynyng, and to returne in to the lande of the Philistines. And the Philistines went vp to Jezrahell.

¶ Dauid returnynge from kynge Achis fyndeth Ziklag burnte. He pursueth after the burners therof and killeth them and recouereth the praye.

CAPI. XXX.

BVt er Dauid and his men were come to A Zikeleg the thirde daye, the Amalekites had made assault in the south part vpon Zikeleg, and had smytten Zikeleg & burnt it with fyre/ and had taken the women there pri soners, both smal & great, but slew not a man, but carped them with them & departed. When Dauid and his men came to the citye/ beholde it was burnt with fire/ and their wiues, theyr sonnes and theyr doughters were taken pry soners. Then Dauid and the people that was with hym lyfte vp theyr voyces and wept tyl they couide wepe no more. And Dauids two wyues were taken pryfoners also/ Ahinoam B the Jezrahelite/ and Abigail the wyfe of Nabal the Carmelite. And Dauid was sore troubled/ for the people intended to stone him, because the hertes of all the people were vexed for theyr sonnes and their doughters. But Dauid toke a good herte to him in the Lorde his God, and sayd to Abiathar the preest Achimelechs sonne: bynge me the Ephod. And Abiathar brought the Ephod to Dauid. And Dauid asked the Lorde, sayinge: shall I pursue this company? and shal I ouertake them? And he sayd to him: folowe, for thou shalte ouertake them and recouer the praye. So he went and the sixe hundred men that were with him, and they came to the ryuer Besor, where a parte of them abode. Neuertheles Dauid and foure hundred men folowed, but two hundred abode beyonde, being to werye to go ouer the ryuer Besor. Then they founde an Egyptian in the felde, and brought him to Dauid and gaue him breed to eate, and water to drynke/ & gaue him a fewe frygges, and two clusters of reasynges, and when ye hadde eaten, his spirites came a gayne to him, for he had eaten no breed, nor dronke no water in thre dayes and thre nyghtes. Then Dauid sayde vnto him: to whome belongest thou, and whence art thou? And the lad answered: I am an Egyptian, and seruant to an Amalekite: & my master lefte me behynde because it is thre dayes a gone that I fell sicke we came a rouing vpon the south of Cerethis, and vpon them of Juda, and on the southe of Caleb. And we burnt Zikeleg with fyre. And Dauid sayd to him: canste thou bynge me to this company? And he said: Swere vnto me by God, that thou wylt neyther kyll me, nor delyuer me in to the handes of my master, and I wyll bynge the vnto them. And when he had brought him: se, they laye scattered all abrote vpon the erth, eatynge and drynkynge and triumphynge ouer all the greate praye that they had carped awaye out of the lande of the Philistines, and out of the lande of Juda.

And Dauid layde vpon them from the ey- 2 lyght, vntyll the euen of the next daye/ so that there escaped not a man, saue foure hũdred yonge men, which rode awaye vpon camels and fled. And Dauid recouered all that the Amalekites had caried awaye, and his two wyues/ so that there was no person lackynge small or great/ sonne or doughter, or of the spoyle of all that they had taken awaye, but Dauid brought all a gayne. And Dauid toke all the shepe and the oxen. And they dryue the cattell before & sayd: this is Dauids praye. And then Dauid came to the two hundred men that were ouer wery to folowe Dauid, whiche they made to abyde at the ryuer Besor. And they came to mete Dauid and the people that were with him. And when Dauid came to the people, he greeted the peacibly. Then answered all the wycked and 3 vnthryftes of the men that went with Dauid, and sayd: bicause they went not with vs, therfore shall none of the praye that we haue recouered be gyuen vnto them, saue to euerye man his wyfe & his chyldren: whiche let them carye awaye and be walkynge.

Then sayd Dauid: ye shall not doo so (my 4 brethren) with that the Lorde hath giuen vs, and hath preserued vs, and delyuered the company that came agaynst vs in to our handes. For who sholde herken vnto you in this matter? But as his parte is that goeth and fyghteth, so good shal his parte be that taryeth by me of the fluste/ they shal parte it alyke. And so from warre. that day forwarde, was that made a law and a custome in Israel, and dureth tyl this daye.

When Dauid came to Zikeleg, he sent of his 5 praye vnto the elders of Juda, and to his frendes, sayinge: Se there a ỹ blessynge for you, of the spoyle of the enemies of the Lord. He sent to them of Bethel, to them of south Ramath: to them of Gether: to them of Aroer: to the of Sephamoth/ to them of Esthamo/ to them of Rachal/ to them of the cityes of the Jerhameelytes: to them of the cities of the Kenites/ to them of Haramah/ to them of Bozasan/ to them of Athach/ to them of Hebron/ and to all places where Dauid and his men were wonte to haunte.

¶ The battayle betwene the Philistines and Israel. Saul kylleth him self, and his children are slayne in the battayle.

CAPI. XXXI.

AND as ỹ Philistines fought agaynst Israel, the mẽ of Israell fled away frõ the Philistines, & fel downe deed in mount Gilboe. And the Philistines made after Saul and his sonnes/ and slew Jonathas, Abinadab and Melchisua, Sauls sonne. And the battell went sore agaynst Saul, in so moche that shotters with bowes had founde him, and he was sore wounded of the shotters. Then sayd Saul B vnto his harnes bearer ✱drawe out thy swerd * Jud.ix.g and thrust me thorow therwith, lest these vn 1.Paralip.x.a circumcised come thrust me thorow, and make a mockynge flocke of me. But his harnes bearer wold not/ for he was sore afrayde. Wherfore Saul toke a swerde and fell vpon it. And when his harnes bearer saw that Saul was deed, he fell lykewyse vpon his swerde & dyed with him. And so Saul dyed and his thre sonnes, and his harnes bearer, & all his men that same daye togyther. When the men of Israel C that were of the other syde the valeye, & they of the other syde Jordan herde that the men of Israel were put to flyght, and that Saul & his sonnes were deed/ they lefte the cities and ran awaye, and the Philistines came & dwelte in them. ✱ On the morow when the Philistines were come to stryp them that were slayn, *1.Par.xi.b they founde Saul and his thre sonnes lyinge in mount Gelboe. And they cut of his heed, & stripped him out of his harnesse, and sent in to the land of the Philistines euery where, to pu blysshe in the houses of theyr goddes, and to the people. And they hanged vp his harnesse in the house of Astaroth, but they hanged vp his carkesse on the walles of Bethsan. When the inhabitantes of Jabes in Galaad herd what D the Philistines had doone to Saul, they arose as many as were men of warre, and went all nyght and toke the corps of Saul, and the corses of his sonnes from the walles of Bethsan and brought them to Jabes, and ✱burnte them there, * Je.xxxiii.s and toke theyr bones and buryed them vnder a tree at Jabes, and fasted seuen dayes. CAPI. I.

A A Fter the deathe of Saul, whē Dauid was returned from ẏ slaugh
ter of the Amalekites,
and had ben two dayes
in Zikeleg: Beholde,
there came a man the thirde daye oute of the hoste frome Saul with his clothes rent, and erthe vpon his heed. And when he came to Dauid, he fell to the erthe & did obeysaunce. To whom Dauid said, whēce commest thou? And the other answered hym:
Out of the hoste of Israel am I escaped. And Dauid sayd to him agayne. How hath it chaū sed? tell me. And he sayd: the people fled from the battell/ and many of the people are ouer-throwen and deed/ and Saul and Jonathas
his sonne are deed therto. And Dauid sayd vn
B to the yong man that tolde him/how knowest thou that Saul and Jonathas his sonne be deed? And the yonge man that tolde him said:
I was by chaunce in mounte Gelboe. And se,
Saul leaned vpon his speare/ and the charets and horsemen folowed him at the heles. And Saul loked backe and called me: And I answered: here am I. And he said vnto me: what art thou? And I sayd vnto him: I am an Ama lekite. And he sayde vnto me: come on me and slee me. For anguishe is come vpon me, and my lyfe is yet all in me. And I wente on him and slewe him: for I was sure that he coulde not lyue after that he was fallen. And I toke the crowne that was vpon his heed, and the bracelet that was on his arme. and haue brought them vnto ẏ my Lorde hither. Then Dauid toke his clothes and rent them, and so dyd all the men that were with him/and they mourned, wepte, and fasted tyl euen, for Saul and Jonathas his sonne/ and for the people of the Lorde, and for the house of Israel, by-cause they were ouerthrowē with the swerde.
Then sayde Dauid vnto the yonge man that
C broughte him tydynges, Whence arte thou?
And he sayde: I am the sonne of a straunger,
Psalm.ciiii.b an Amalekite. And Dauid sayde vnto hym.
How is it that thou wast not afrayde to laye
thyne hande on the Lordes annoynted to de-stroye him? And Dauid called one of his yong men, and sayd: Go and runne vpon him. And he smote him that he dyed. Then sayde Dauid ☞ vnto hym: Thy bloude be vpon thyne owne heed. For thy ne owne mouthe hathe witnessed agaynst the, saying: I haue slayne the Lordes anoynted. And Dauid sang this song of mour nyng ouer Saul, and ouer Jonathas his son,
and bad to teache the chyldren of Israell the ☞ staues therof. And beholde it is written in the boke of the ryghtous. The glorye of Israel is slayn vpon the hygh hylles. Oh how were the myghty ouerthrowen? Tel it not in Geth, nor publysshe it in the stretes of Askalon/ lest the doughters of the Philistines reioyce, and that

shyldes of the myghtye were caste from them:
the shylde of Saul, as though he had not ben annoynted with oyle. The bowe of Jona-thas, and the swerde of Saul tourned neuer backe agayne emptye, from the bloude of the wounded, and from the fatte of the myghtye warriours.
Saul and Jonathas louely and pleasaunte
in theyr lyues, were in theyr dethes not diui-

CAPI. II.

A Fter this Dauid asked the Lorde, sayinge: shall I go vp in to anye of the ci-tyes of Juda? And the Lorde sayde: go.
And Dauid answered: whyther shal I go? He answered, vnto Hebron. And so Dauid went thyther with his two wyues also/ Ahinoam
the Jezrahelyte, and Abigail Nabals wyfe the Carmelite. And the men that were with him, dyd Dauid carye vp also, euerye man with his house. And they dwelte in the townes of Hebron. And the men of Juda came & there they annoynted Dauid kynge ouer the house of Juda. When it was tolde Dauid how the men of Jabes in Galaad had buryed Saul, he sent messengers vnto them, and sayde vnto them:
blessed are ye vnto the Lorde, that ye haue shewed suche kyndnesse vnto youre Lorde Saul, and haue buryed hym. Wherfore the Lorde shewe you mercy and truthe agayn. And I wil do you good also, bycause ye haue doone this thynge. And nowe let your handes stere them and playe ye the men, though youre master Saul be deed. And finallye vnderstande that the house of Juda haue annoynted me kynge ouer them. But Abner the sonne of Ner that was capitayne of Saules hoste toke Isboseth
the sonne of Saul, and broughte him to Ma-hanaim and made him king ouer Galaad and ouer the Assurites, and ouer Jezrahel/ and ouer

g.v.c. ly folowed Dauid. * And the tyme which Da-uid raygned in Hebron ouer the house of Juda, was. vij. yere and sixe monethes. And Abner the sonne of Ner and the seruauntes of Is boseth the sonne of Saul went out of Maha-naim to Gabaon. And Joab the sonne of Zaruiah and the seruauntes of Dauid went oute and met them by the pole of Gabaō. And they sate downe, the one parte on the one syde the pole, and the other on the other syde. And Abner sayd to Joab/ let the yonge men aryse and D playe before vs. And Joab answered: Be it.
Then there arose & went ouer: twelue of Ben-Jamin by nombre, whiche pertayned to Isbo-seth the sonne of Saul/ and twelue of the ser uauntes of Dauid. And they caughte eche his

of the And there began an excedynge cruell battayle migh that same daye. But Abner and the men of Israel were put to the worsse of the seruauntes of Dauid.
And there was thre sonnes of Zaruiah: Joab, Abisai, and Asahel/ whiche Asahel was as swyfte of fote as a wylde Roo, and folowed
after Abner/and tourned neyther to the ryght
hande nor to the lefte from Abner. Then Ab-E ner loked behinde him, and sayd: art thou Asahel? And he sayd, yea. Then sayd Abner/turne
the eyther to the ryghte hande or to the lefte/
and catche one of the yonge men, and take the his spoyle. But Asahel wolde not depart from hym, but pursued hym. And Abner said agayne to Asahel: tourne frome me, and folowe not me/for I were lothe to smyte the to ẏ ground.
For then howe sholde I holde vp my face before Joab thy brother? how be it he wolde in no wyse departe.

fel downe and dyed, stode styll. But Joab and Abisai folowed Abner tyll the sonne wente
downe. And when they were come to the hyll Amah, that lyeth before Giah, in the waye
that goeth thorowe the wyldernes of Gaba-
on the chyldren of Beniamin assembled after Abner on a plumpe, and stode styll on the top of an hyll. Then Abner called to Joab, & said/
shal the swerd deuoure without ende? knowest
thou not ẏ bitternesse is wont to come in the la ter ende? how longe shall it be er thou byd the people returne from folowyng theyr brethren?
G And Joab answered: as truly as God lyueth
yf thou haddest so sayde, then euen in the mor-nynge hadde the people departed eche frome

blewe a trompet, and all the people stode styll
and pursued after Israel no more, nor fought no more. And Abner and his men walked all that nyght by the wylde feldes, and went ouer Jordan, and past thorow all Bethhoron, and came to Mahanaim.
And Joab retourned frome Abner and assembled all the people. And there lacked of Dauid seruauntes nyntene personnes and Asahel. But the seruauntes of Dauid hadde slayne of BenJamin and of Abners men, thre hundred and thre score men. And they toke vp Asahel, and buryed hym in the sepulchre of his father in Bethlehem. And Joab and his men

the sixte, Jethraam by Egla Dauids wyfe.
These were borne to Dauid in Hebron. And as longe as there was battayle bytwene the house of Saul and the house of Dauid, Abner the sonne of Ner helde vp the house of Saul. And Saul hadde a concubyne named Riphah, the doughter of Aiah. And Isboseth B sayd to Abner. Wherfore lyest thou with my fathers concubyne? Then was Abner verye wrothe for the wordes of Isboseth, and sayd:
Am I not a * dogges heed, whiche agaynste i.Reg.xvii.f.
Juda haue shewed mercye this daye vnto the house of Saul thy father, and to his brethren and frendes/ and haue not delyuered them in to the hande of Dauid: sithens thou fyndest
a fault in me this daye for a woman? * So *Ruth.i.c.
do God to Abner/and so onlesse as the Lorde hath sworne to Dauid, I so do to hym/ and bryng the kyngdome from the house of Saul,
and sette vp the seate of Dauid ouer Israell and ouer Juda, frome Dan to Bersabe. And he coulde gyue Abner not one worde to aunswere, bycause he feared hym. Then Abner C sente messengers to Dauid forthwith, sayinge: Whose is the lande? And he sayd more-ouer: Make a bonde with me/ and se, my hande is with the, to brynge all Israell vnto
the. And Dauid answered/ well sayde/ I wyll make a bonde with the. But one thynge I re-quyre the, that thou se not my face, onlesse
thou fyrste brynge Michol Sauls doughter, when thou commest to se me. And Dauid sent messengers to Isboseth Sauls sonne, sayinge:
delyuer me my wyfe Michol, whiche I maryed with an hundred foreskynnes of the Phi listines. And Isboseth sent and toke her frome her husbande Phaltiel the sonne of Lais. And
her

her husbande folowed her, and came weppynge behynde her, tyl they came to Bahurim. Then sayde Abner vnto hym, goo and retourne. And he retourned. And Abner hadde communycacion with the elders of Israell, sayinge: Ye haue longe gone aboute that Dauid shoulde be kynge ouer you. Nowe then wo it: for the Lorde hathe sayde of Dauid, by the hande of my seruaunte Dauid, I wyll saue my people Israel oute of the handes of the Philistines, and oute of the hande of all theyr ennemyes. And semblable wordes hadde he with Benjamin. And then wente to tell in the eares of Dauid in Hebron all that Israell was content with, and the hole house of Beniamin. So when Abner was come to Dauid to Hebron, and twentye men with hym, Dauid made hym, and the men that were with him a feast. Then Abner sayd vnto Dauid, I wyll aryse and goo gather all Israel vnto my lorde the kynge, that they maye make a bonde with the, that thou mayste be a kynge ouer al that thyne herte desyreth. And so Dauid let Abner departe, and he wente in peace. And loo, the seruauntes of Dauid and Joab came from chasynge robbers, and broughte a greate botye with them. But Abner was not with Dauid in Hebron: for he hadde sente him awaye to departe in peace. When Joab and all the host with him were come, men tolde Joab saying: Abner the sonne of Ner came to the kynge, and he hathe sent hym awaye that he is gone in peace. Then Joab wente to the kynge, and sayd: Wyat hast thou wonne? Se Abner came vnto the, why hast thou sent him awaye that he sholde escape free? Thou myghtest knowe Abner the sonne of Ner that he came to flater the, and knowe thy conuersacion and bauour, and to knowe all thy doynges. And when Joab was come oute frome the kynge, he sente messengers after Abner, whiche broughte hym agayne frome the well of Sirah vnbeknowe to Dauid. So when Abner was come agayne to Hebron, Joab toke hym aside in the gate to speake with him gylefully, and there smote hym vnder the sworte rybbes that he dyed, for the bloude of Asahel his brother. And when it afterward came to Dauids eare, he sayd: I and my kyngdome are gylteles before the Lorde for euer, concernyng the bloud of Abner the sonne of Ner. It fall therfore on the heed of Joab, and on al his fathers house: that the house of Joab be neuer without one or other that hathe runnynge issues or without leepers and goers on crouches, and that fall on the swerde, and that lacke breed. And the cause why Joab and Abisai slewe Abner, was that Abner had slayne theyr brother Asahel at Gabaon in battayle. And Dauid sayde to Joab, and to all the people that were with him, rent your clothes, and put on sacke cloth and mourne before Abner / and kynge Dauid him selfe folowed the bere. And when they hadde buryed Abner in Hebron, the kynge lyft vp his voyce and wepte ouer the graue of Abner, and so dyd all the people. And the kynge bewayled Abner and sayde: Abner dyed not as a wyzethe dyeth. Thy handes were not manacled, nether thy fete shackled with fetters, but as men falle before wycked chyldren, so fellest thou / and all the people wepte yet more ouer him.

And when all the people came to eate meat with Dauid, whyle it was yet daye, Dauid sware, sayinge: so do God to me and so, yf I taste breed or oughte elles, tyll the sonne be downe. And the people wyste it, and it pleased them, as wel as all other good thinges which the kynge dyd in the syghte of the people. And all the people, and all Israel vnderstode that daye how it was not the kynges mynde, to slee Abner the sonne of Ner. And the kynge offsayd vnto his seruauntes: knowe ye not, there is a Lorde, and that a greate, fallen this daye in Israel? And I am this daye tender, thoughe I be annoynted kyng. And these men the sonnes of Zeruiah be to good for me to rule? But the Lorde rewarde the doer of euyll accordyng to his wickednesse.

¶ Baanah and Rechab sley Isboseth the sonne of Saul.

CAPI. IIII.

When Sauls sonne herd that Abner was deed in Hebron, his handes faynted and all Israell was troubled. Nowe, this Sauls sonne had two men that were become capitaynes ouer the souldyers, the one called Baanah, and the other Rechab the sonnes of Remon a Berothite / and of the chyldren of Benjamin: for Beroth was reckened to appertayne to Beniamin. And these Berothites fledde to Gethaim, and sojourned there tyll the same tyme. And Jonathas Sauls sonne hadde a sonne lame on his fete: fyue yeere olde was he, when tydynges came of Saul and Jonathas oute of Jezrahel. And his nourse toke him vp, and fledde awaye. And as she made halte to flee and was amased, the chylde felle and became halte and was called Mephibosheth. And these sonnes of Remon the Berothite, Rechab and Baanah went and came in the heate of the daye to the house of Isboseth, as he slepte on a bedde at none. And beholde, they came in to the house as though they wolde haue bought whete, and smote hym vnder the sworte rybbes, and fledde. For they came into the house as he slepte on his bedde in his kynge chamber, and smote him and slewe him and beheded hym, and toke his heed and gat them awaye towarde the Easte all nyghte. And they broughte the heed of Isboseth vnto Dauid to Hebron, and sayde to the kynge: Beholde here the heed of Isboseth Sauls sonne thyne ennemy, which sought thy soule. But the Lorde hathe auenged my Lorde the kynge this daye, of Saul and of his seede. Then Dauid answered Rechab and Baanah his brother, the sonnes of Remon the Berothyte, and sayde vnto them: as surely as the Lorde lyueth, who hathe delyuered my soule oute of all aduersities: hym that told me that Saul was deed, thynkynge to haue broughte me good tydynges, I caughte and slewe in Ziceleg, to gyue hym a rewarde for his tydinges bringing. And how moche more ought I so to deale with wycked men that haue slayne a ryghtous person in his owne house vpon his bedde. Now therfore thynke ye that I wyll not requyre his bloude of youre handes, and take you frome the earthe? And Dauid gaue a in cõmaundement to his seruauntes, and they slewe them and cut of their handes and their fete, & hãged them vp by the pole in Hebron. And they toke the heed of Isboseth, and buryed it in the sepulchre of Abner in Hebron.

¶ Dauid is yet agayne anoynted king: and taketh the Tricke from Sion. He casteth out the blynde and the lame. He marieth moo wyues and getteth moo chyldren. He stryketh the Philistines.

CAPI. V.

Then came all the kynredes of Israel to Dauid to Hebron and sayde: se, we are thy bones and thy fleshe. And further in tymes paste when Saul was kynge ouer vs, thou leddest Israel in and out. And the Lorde hath sayde: thou shalte fede my people Israel, and thou shalte be a capitayne ouer Israell. And so all the elders of Israel came to the kynge to Hebron. And kynge Dauid made a couenaunt with them in Hebron before the Lorde / and they annoynted Dauid kynge ouer Israell. Dauid was thyrtye yere olde what tyme he bgan to raygne, and he raygned fourty yeres. In Hebron he raygned ouer Juda, seuen yere, and sixe monethes / and in Jerusalem thyrtye and thre yeres ouer all Israel and Juda.

Then went the kynge and his men to Jerusalem, vnto the Jebusites thinhabitaunces of the lande. And they sayde vnto Dauid: onles thou take away the blynde and the lame, thou shalt not come in hither, meaning therby that Dauid sholde not haue come in thyther. Neuertheles Dauid toke the holde of Sion, whiche is in the citye of Dauid. Then sayd Dauid the same daye. Who so euer sleeth the Jebusite, and wynneth the toures of his house / and destroyeth the lame and the blynde ennemyes vnto Dauids soule. Wherfore it is a prouerbe: the blynde and the lame shal not come in to the house. And Dauid dwelt in the tour, and called it the citye of Dauid. And he buylte rounde about it from Mello inwarde. Dauid wared greate, and the Lorde God of hostes was with him. And Hiram kynge of Tire sent messengers to Dauid with Cedar trees and carpenters and masons, to buylde Dauid an house. Whereby Dauid perceyued that the Lorde hadde stablished hym kynge ouer Israel, and hadde auaunsed his kyngdome for his people Israels sake. And Dauid toke him mo concubynes and wyues oute of Jerusalem, after he was come frome Hebron, and mo sonnes and doughters were borne to Dauid. These be the names of the sonnes that were borne hym in Jerusalem: Samua, Sobab, Nathan, Salomon. Jebahar, Elisua. Nepheg, Japhia, Elisama, Eliada, and Eliphalet.

But when the Philistines herde that they had annoynted Dauid kynge ouer Israel, they came all vp to seke Dauid. And as soone as Dauid herde of it, he gat him to an holde. And the Philistines came and layde them along in the valeye of Raphaim. And Dauid asked of the Lord, saying: shal I go to the Philistines? and wilt thou giue them in to my handes? And the Lorde sayde vnto Dauid: goo, for I wyll delyuer the Philistines in to thy handes. And Dauid came to Baal Perazim and smote them there and said: the Lorde hathe seuered myne ennemyes asondre before me, as a man wolde diuide water; and therfore he called the name of the sayde place Baal Perazim. And there they lefte theyr ymages, and Dauid and his men toke them vp. And the Philistines came yet agayne, and layde them in the valeye Raphaim. But Dauid asked the Lorde, and he sayde, goo not. But compasse theym on the backesyde, and come vpon them from the mulberye trees. And when thou hearest the noyse of a thynge goynge in the toppes of the trees, then moue. For then the Lorde is gone oute before the, to smyte the hoste of the Philistines. And Dauid dyd as the Lorde commaunded, and smote the Philistines from Gabaah to Gezer.

¶ The arcke is brought forth of the house of Abinadab. Ozah is stryken and dyeth because he touched the arche. The arcke is brought in to the house of Obed Edom, and frome thence in to Jerusalem. Dauid dauncyth before it, and is therfore despysed of his wyfe Michol.

CAPI. VI.

After this, Dauid chose out all the chiefe younge men in Israell to the somme of xxx. thousande, and arose and went, and all the folke that were with hym of the men of Juda, to fet awaye the arcke of God, vpon which is called the name of the Lorde of hostes, that dwelleth betwene the cherubyns. And they put the arcke of God on a new cart, & brought it forth of the house of Abinadab that dwelte at Gabaah. And Ozah and Ahio the sonnes of Abinadab dzaue the new cart. And when they brought it oute of the house of Abinadab that dwelt at Gabaah with the arcke of God / Ahio wente before the arcke / and Dauid and all the house of Israel playde before the Lorde with all maner instrumentes of fyrre wodde, with harpes, psalteryes, tymbercelles, fedyles and cymbals.

And when they came to Nachons threshynge floure, Ozah put his hand to the arcke of God and held it, for the oxen stombled. And the Lorde was wrathe with Ozah, and God smote him in the same place for his fault, and there he dyed by the arcke of God. And Dauid was displeased because the Lorde had rent Orah. And the name of the place was called Pefz Ozah tyll this daye. And Dauid was then afrayde of the Lord, and sayd: how shold the arcke of the Lorde come to my house? And so Dauid wold not bryng the arcke of the Lorde with hym in to the citye of Dauid, but caried it in to the house of Obed Edom a Gethite.

And the arcke of the Lorde continued in the house of Obed Edom the Gethite thre monethes / and the Lorde blessed Obed Edom, and all his housholde. And when it was tolde
1.Parali.xv. kynge Dauid that the Lorde hadde blessed the house of Obed Edom, and al that belonged vnto him, bycause of the arcke of God, he
C went and broughte the arcke of God frome the house of Obed Edom, vnto the citye of Dauid with gladnesse. And euer when they that bare the arcke of the Lorde hadde gone sixe passes, he offered an oxe and a fatte shepe.
And Dauid daunced before the Lorde with al his myghte in a lynnen Ephod gyrde vnto hym. And Dauid and all the house of Israel
Michol. brought the arcke of the Lorde with shouting and trompet blowynge.

And as the arcke of the Lorde came in to the citye of Dauid, Michol Sauls doughter loked thorowe a wyndowe and sawe kynge Dauid springe and daunce before the Lorde, and therfore dispysed hym in her herte. And when they hadde brought in the arcke of the Lorde, and had set it in his place, euen in the tabernacle that Dauid hadde prepared for it:
D Dauid offered burntoffrynges and peaceoffrynges before the Lorde/and as soone as Dauid had made an ende of offrynge burnt offrynges and peaceoffrynges, he blessed the people in the name of the Lorde of hostes, and gaue amonge all the folke, euen amonge the hole multitude of Israel, as well to the women as men euery one a cake of breed, and a pece of flesshe and a flacket of wyne. And so the people departed euery man to his house.
Then Dauid returned to salute his housholde. And Michol the doughter of Saul came oute agaynste hym and sayde. Oh how glorious was the kynge of Israell to daye, whiche strypte hym selfe this daye before the eyen of the maydens of his seruauntes, as a lyght bayned felowe is wont to strippe hym
F selfe. But Dauid sayde agayne to Michol, I wyll make spoxte before the Lorde, whiche chose me before thy father, and before all his kynne, commaundynge me to be ruler ouer all his people Israel. And I wyl be yet more vile then so, and wil be meke in myne owne sight: and shall neuertheles be had of the verye same mayde seruauntes whiche thou speakest of, be hadde in honoure. But the sayde Michol doughter to Saul, hadde no chylde vnto the daye of her deth.

¶ Dauid of a good purpose entendynge to buylde an house vnto the Lorde, is forbidden of God. He prayeth that the promyses of God may be fulfylled.

CAPI. VII.

A And in processe as the kynge dwelte in his house after that the Lorde had gyuen hym reste rounde aboute frome all 1.Par.xvii.a his ennemyes, he sayd vnto Nathan the Prophet: beholde, I well in an house of Cedar trees, but the arcke of God dwelleth in the myddes of curtaynes. Then sayd Nathan vnto the kynge: go and doo all that is in thyne herte, for the Lorde is with the.
But that same nyght the worde of the Lorde came vnto Nathan, sayinge: goo and tell my seruaunt Dauid, thus sayth the Lorde/shalte thou go buylde me an house to dwell in? For I haue not dwelte in anye house sithens the tyme I brought the chyldren of Israel out of Egypte, vnto this daye: but haue walked in a tent and in a tabernacle. In any way where I wente amonge all the chyldren of Israel, spake I one worde with anye of the kynredes of Israel, whiche I commaunded to fede my people Israel, sayinge: why buylde ye not me an house of Cedar tree? Nowe therfore so
B sayc vnto my seruauntes Dauid: thus sayth the Lorde of hostes, I toke the out of a shepe cote from folowynge shepe, to be a ruler ouer my people Israell. And I was with the in all thou wentest to, and haue destroyed all thyne ennemyes oute of thy syghte, and haue made the a greate name, lyke vnto the renowme of the greate men of the worlde. And I wyll appoynt a place for my people Israel, and wyll plant it, and they shall continue in one place and shall moue no more, neyther shall wycked people trouble them any more as they dyd at the begynnynge/and sithens the tyme I commaunded Iudges to be ouer my people Israel, and I wyll grue the rest from all thyne ennemyes. And the Lorde telleth the that he wyll buylde the an housholde.
And when the dayes be fulfylled, and thou
C layde to reste with thy fathers, then I wyll set vp thy seed after the, whiche shall procede out of thy body, and wyll establysshe his kingdome, he shall buylde an house for my name, and I wyll establysshe the seate of his kyngdome for euer: I wyll be his father, and he
D shal be my sonne: in so moche that yf he synne I wyll but rebuke hym with suche a roddes men be rebuked with, and with suche plages as the chyldren of men be plaged with. But my mercye wyll I not take awaye frome hym, as I toke it from Saul, whom I put downe
E before the and thyne house, and thy kyngdom shall endure without ende after the, and thy seate shall be establysshed for euer. When Nathan hadde tolde Dauid all these wordes, and all this vision, then went Dauid and sat him downe before the Lorde and sayde: what am I Lorde almyghtye, and what is my kynne, that thou wouldest haue brought me this fare forth? And is this a small thynge in my sight Lorde almyghtye, but that thou woudest speake also of thy seruauntes house for a great whyle to come? Is this a lawe amonge men Lorde almyghtye? And what can Dauid saye more vnto the, sithe thou knowest thy seruaunt Lorde almyghtye? Euen for thy worde, and accordynge to thyne owne hert hast thou wrought all these great thynges to make them knowne vnto thy seruaunt.
wherfore thou art great, o Lorde God, and there is none lyke ỹ, neither is there any God saue thou, according to all that we haue herde with oure eares. And what one people in the earthe is lyke vnto thy people Israel, whiche God delyuered to be his people/and to make him a name/ and to shew them great and terrible thynges in the earthe, before thy people whiche thou redemedst to the, out of Egypte/ euen frome the people and from theyr goddes. And thou hast ordeyned thy people Israell to be thy people for euer/ and thou Lorde arte their God. And nowe, Lorde God, the thyng thou hast sayd of thy seruaunt & of his house, make it good for euer, and do as thou haste sayde. And lette thy name be great for euer/ that men maye saye: the Lorde of hostes is the God of Israel: and lette the house of thy seruaunte Dauid be allured before the. For thou Lorde of hostes, God of Israel hast tolde in the eare of thy seruaunt, sayinge: I wyll buylde the an house. And therfore hath thy seruaunt founde in his herte to prayre this prayer vnto the. And nowe Lorde almyghty thou art the God, & thy wordes muste be true/for thou haste tolde this goodnesse vnto thy seruaunt. Now therfore go to, and blesse the housholde of thy seruaunt, that it may continue for euer before the. For thou Lorde almighty hast said that of thy blessynge, the house of thy seruaunt shall be blessed for euer.

¶ Dauid ouercommeth the Philistines and maketh the tributaryes. He ordayneth and appoynteth his officers.

CAPI. VIII.

A After that, Dauid beat the Philistines, and subdued them, and toke the bridell
2.Reg.viii.a of bondage oute of their handes. And he beat the Moabytes, and measured them with a lyne, makynge them lye alonge on the erth/ and then meatyng the length of two lynes to slee, and the length of one lyne to saue a lyue. And so became the Moabites Dauids seruauntes, and payde tribute. Dauid smote also Adadezer the sonne of Rehob kynge of Zobah, as he wente to make the ende of his costes at the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke a thousand and seuen hundred horsemen of his, & twenty thousande fote men, and destroyed all his chariottes, reseruynge one hundred of them. Then B came the Syrians of Damascon to succoure Adadezer kynge of Zobah. And Dauid slewe of them .xxij. thousande men, and put soudyours in Syra Damascon. And the Sirians became seruauntes to Dauid, payinge tribute. And thus the Lorde saued Dauid in all that he wente to. And Dauid toke the shyldes of golde that were vpon the seruauntes of Adadezer, and broughte them to Ierusalem. And therto oute of Betah and Berathai citeyes of C Adadezer, he broughte exceadynge great aboun daunce of brasse.
2.Reg.viii. When Thoi kynge of Hemath hadde heerde howe Dauid hadde discumfyted all the hoste of Adadezer, he sente Joram his sonne vnto kynge Dauid, to salute him with peace, and to bidde hym bycause he hadde foughte agaynste Adadezer, and beaten him: For Thoi kepte warre with Adadezer, whiche sonne broughte vesselles of syluer, golde, and of brasse with him. And them also kynge Dauid dyd presente vnto the Lorde the syluer and golde that he halowed seuerally of all nations whiche he subdued: of the Syrians: the Moabites, the chyldren of Ammon, the Philistines, the Amalekites, and of the spoyle of Adadezer son of Rehob kynge of Zobah. And Dauid made D him a name after he returned from the slaughter of the Syrians in the valeye of salt where he slewe eyghtene thousande men. And he put kepers in Edom, euen thorowe oute all Edom put he soudyours / and all Edom became his subiectes. And the Lorde kepte Dauid what so euer he toke in hande. And Dauid raygned ouer all Israel, and executed eyghte and iustice vnto all his people. And * Joab ẏ *ii.Reg.xx.d sonne of Saruiah was ouer the hoste/ and Josaphat, the sonne of Ahilud was recorder. And Sadoch the sonne of Ahitob and Achimeleth the sonne of Abiathar were the preestes / and Saraiah was the scribe. And Banaiah the son of Jehoiada was ouer the Cerethites and the Phelethites, but Dauids sonnes were chiefe rulers.

¶ Dauid restoreth al the feldes of Saul, to Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas.

CAPI. IX.

A Then sayd Dauid: is there yet any man lefte of the house of Saul, that I maye shewe hym mercye/for Jonathas sake?
And there was of the housholde of Saul a seruaunt named Ziba, who was called vnto Dauid. And the kynge sayde vnto hym: arte thou Ziba? And he sayd: thy seruaunt is he.
Then sayde the kynge: remayneth yet anye man of the kynrede of Saul, whome I maye shewe the mercye of God vpon? And Ziba sayde vnto the kynge: Jonathas hathe yet a
B sonne whiche is lame on bothe feete. And the kynge sayde vnto hym: where is he? And Ziba sayd vnto the kynge: beholde he is in the house of Machir the sonne of Amiel in Lodaber. Then king Dauid sent and fet him out of the house of Machir the sone of Amiel out of Miphiboseth. Lodaber. Now, when Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas the sonne of Saul was come to Dauid, he bowed hym selfe, and fell on his face. Then sayde Dauid: Miphiboseth? And he answered. Beholde thy seruaunt. And Dauid sayde: feare not, for I wyll surely shewe
C the kyndnesse for Jonathas sake/and wyll restore the all the landes of Saul thy father/ and thou shalte eate meate on myne owne table alwaye. And the other bowed him selfe and sayde: what is thy seruaunt, that thou holdest vouchesafe to loke vpon suche a ded dog as I am? Then the king called Ziba Sauls younge man, sayinge vnto hym: I grue vnto thy masters sonne all that pertayned to Saul and to all his kynne. Se therfore thou and thy sonnes and thy seruauntes tylle the lande for him, and bynge in, that thy masters sonne maye haue foode to eate. For Miphiboseth thy masters sonne shall eate meate alwaye vpon my table. For this Zibah hadde fyftene sonnes, and twentye seruauntes. Then sayde Zibah vnto the kyng: All that my lorde hath sayde vnto his seruaunte/thy seruaunte shall doo. For (sayde the kynge) Miphibosheth muste eate vpon my table, as one of the kynges sonnes. This Miphibosheth hadde a sonne that was yonge, named Micha / and all that dwelled in the house of Zibah, were seruauntes vnto Miphibosheth. So Miphibosheth dwelte in Jerusalem / for he ate euer at the kynges table / and was there haulte on bothe legges.

¶ The messẽgers of Dauid are spytefully entreated of the kynge of Moab: which thynge Dauid auengeth.

CAPI. X.

A IT happened after this, that the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon dyed / and Hanon his sonne raygned in his stede: Then sayde Dauid: I wyl shewe kyndnesse vnto Hanon the son of Nahas, as his father shewed kyndnesse vnto me. (i.Paral.xix.a) And therupon Dauid sente to comforte him by the hande of his seruauntes ouer the deth of his father. Nowe, when Dauids seruauntes were come in to the lande of the chyldren of Ammon/the lordes of the children of Ammon sayd vnto Hanon their lorde/ thynkest thou that Dauid dothe honour thy father, bycause he hathe sent to comforte the? Naye he hathe rather sente his seruauntes vnto the to serche the citye and to spye it out, to thintent to ouerthrowe it. Wherfore Hanon toke Dauids seruauntes, and shaued of the one halfe of euery mans berde, and cut of their garmentes euen in the myddle harde by the buttockes of them, & sent them away. Which thing when it was told Dauid, he sent agaynst them (for they were men excedingly ashamed) and sayd: tarye at Jericho tyll your berdes be growen, and then returne. And when the children of Ammon sawe that, they wronged Dauid,
B they sent and hyred the sonnes of Bethrehob, and of the Sirians of Zobah. xx. thousande fote men, and of kyng Maacah a thousande men / & of Istob twelue thousande men: and when Dauid herd of it/he sent Joab and all the hoste of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out and gaue battayle before the gate/and the Sirians of Zabah, of Rehob, Istob, and Maacah, were them selues in the feldes. When Joab sawe that the front of the battayle was before and after, he chose of all the best of Israel and put them in araye against the Sirians. And the rest of the people he delyuered in to the hande of Abisai his brother, which put them in araye agaynst the children of Ammon. And he sayd: yf the Sirians ouercome me, then succour me. But yf the chil-
C dren of Ammon be to good for the, I wil come and succour the / quyte the lyke a man, and let vs fyght lustely for our people, and for the cityes of our God. And the Lorde do what semeth best in his eyes. And forthwith Joab proceded and the people that was with him in to battayle agaynst the Siriãs, which fled before him. Which when the childrẽ of Ammon saw that the Sirians were fled, then fled they also before Abisai, and entred in to the citye. And so Joab returned from the children of Ammõ, and came to Jerusalem. And when the Siriãs sawe that they were put to the worsse before Israel, they gathered them togyther. And Hadadezer sente and broughte oute the Sirians that were beyonde the ryuer. And the hoste of them came, and Sobah capitayne of the hoste of Hadadezer before them.

D And when it was shewed Dauid, he gathered all Israell and passed ouer Jordan & came to Helam: where the Sirians put them selues in araye agaynst Dauid, and fought with him: how be it the Sirians fledde before Israel. And Dauid destroyed seuen hundred charettes of them, and fourtye thousande horsemen / and smote Sobah the capitayne of his hoste, so that he there dyed. And when all the kynges that were seruauntes to Hadadezer saw they were put to the worsse before Israel, they made peax with them and serued them. And so the Sirians feared to helpe the children of Ammon any further.

¶ The aduoutry of Dauid with Bethsabe the wife of Urias. Urias is gylefully slayne. After that Dauid taketh Bethsabe to wyfe.

CAPI. XI.

IT came to passe in the begynnynge of the newe yere, in the tymes when kynges are wont to go forthe to battayle, that Dauid sent Joab and his seruauntes with hym and all Israell. And they destroyed the chyldren of Ammon, and besieged Rabah. But Dauid taryed styll at Jerusalem. And it chaunced in an euenynge, that Dauid arose from his couche and walked vpon the roufe of the kynges palace, and frome the roufe sawe a very beautyfull woman wasshyng her selfe. And he sent to enquyre what woman it shold be. And it was answered agayne, that she was Bethsabe the doughter of Eliam, and wife to Urias the Hethite. And Dauid sent messengers and fet her, and she came vnto him, and he laye with her. And she was forthwith clensed frome her vnclennesse, & returned vnto her house. And when the woman had perceyued that she had conceyued, she sent and tolde Dauid, and sayd: I am with chyld. Then Dauid sent to Joab to send vnto hym Urias the Hethyte. And Joab sente Urias to Dauid. So when Urias was come to hym, he demaunded howe Joab dyd / and how the people fared, and how the warre prospered. And Dauid sayde moreouer to Urias: go downe to thyne house, and wasshe thy fete. And Urias departed out of the kynges palace and there folowed him a seruice from the kynges table. But Urias slepte at the dore of the kynges palace with all the seruauntes of his Lorde, and wẽt not downe to his house. Then they tolde Dauid sayinge: Urias wente not in to his house. Then said Dauid vnto Urias: forasmoche as thou art come from iourneyng, why why doest thou not goo downe vnto thyne house? And Urias sayd vnto Dauid: the arcke and Israel and Juda dwel in paulylyons: and my lorde Joab and the seruauntes of my lorde lye in tentes vpon the flatte earth/and sholde I go in to myne house, to eate and drynke and to lye with my wyfe? * By thy lyfe, and as sure as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not do that thynge. Then sayd Dauid vnto Urias: tarye here this daye also, and to morowe I wyl let

C the departe. And so Urias abode in Jerusalem that daye and on the morow. And Dauid called hym, and he ate and dranke before hym / and he made hym dronke. And at euen he wente oute to lye on his couche with the seruauntes of his lorde, and wente not downe to his house. Wherfore on the morowe Dauid wrote a letter to Joab, and sente it by Urias. And he wrote in the letter, sayinge: put Urias in the fore fronte of the battayle where it is moost stronge, and come backe frome hym, that he maye be smytten to deth. So when Joab besieged the citye, he appoynted Urias to a place, where he wist that strong men were. And the men of the citye came out and foughte with Joab. And there were certayne ouerthrowen of the people, and of the seruauntes of Dauid, and Urias the Hethite dyed also.

Then Joab sente and tolde Dauid all the procedinges of the war, and charged the messengers, sayinge: When thou haste made an ende of tellynge the thynges of the warre vnto the kynge yf he begyn to fume and saye vnto the: wherfore approched ye so nye vnto the citie to fyghte? wyste ye not that men wolde
D hurle and shoote frome the walles? Who smote Abimelech sonne of Jerobeseth? Dyd not a woman caste a pece of a mylstone vpon him frome of the walles, that he dyed in Thebes? why then went ye nye the walles? Then saye thou, thy seruaunt Urias the Hethite is deed also.

And the messengers wente, and came and shewed Dauid all that Joab hadde sente hym with / and sayde vnto Dauid: the men preuayle agaynste vs, and came forth vnto vs in to the felde, and we stacke vnto theym vnto the entringe of the gate, and shoters shot from the walles, and some of the seruauntes of the kynge be deed. And thy seruaunte Urias the Hethite is deed also. Then sayd Dauid vnto the messenger: thus wyse saye vnto Joab/let not the thynge trouble the. For the swerde deuoureth one as well as an other: make thy battayle more stronge agaynste the citye, and destroye it/and se thou encourage Joab. And when the wyfe of Urias herde that her husbande was deed, she mourned for hym/and as soone as the mournynge was ended, Dauid sente and fette her to his house, and she was his wyfe and bare hym a sonne. But the dede that Dauid hadde commytted, displeased the Lorde.

¶ Dauid is reproued for ÿ slaughter of Urias, and then repenteth. The chylde conceyued in aduoutrye dyeth. After it, is Salomon borne.

CAPI. XII.

AND the Lorde sente Nathan vnto Dauid. And he came vnto hym and sayd vnto hym: there were two men in one citye, a ryche and a poore. (A) And the ryche had excedynge greate aboundance of shepe and oxen. But the poore hadde nothynge saue one lytle lambe, whiche he boughte and nouryshed vp. And it grewe vp with him and his chyldren, and dyd eat of his owne meat and dranke of his owne cuppe, and slept in his bosome, and was as dere vnto him as his daughter. And there came a straunger vnto the ryche man. And he coulde not fynde in his herte to make of his owne shepe nor of his beestes to prepare for the straunger that was come vnto hym. But toke the poore mannes lambe, and dressed it for the man that was come to hym. And Dauid was excedynge wroth with the
B man, and sayde to Nathan: as surely as the Lorde lyueth the felowe that hathe done this thynge is worthye of deathe and shall restore ÿ lambe foure folde, because he dyd this thing and had no pity. Then Nathan said to Dauid: thou art the selfe man. This sayeth the Lorde God of Israel: I annoynted the kynge ouer Israel and ryd the out of the handes of Saul: And I gaue the thy maysters house, and thy masters wyues in to thy bosome, and gaue the the house of Israel and of Juda, and wolde yf that hadde bene to lytle: haue gyuen the twyse so moche more. Wherfore hast thou despysed the commaundement of the Lorde, to do wickednesse in his syght? thou haste kylled Urias the Hethite with the swerde and haste taken his wyfe to thy wyfe, & hast slayne hym with the swearde of the chyldren of Amnon.
C Nowe therfore the swerde shall neuer depart from thyne house, because (sayeth the Lord) thou hast despysed me and taken the wyfe of Urias the Hethite, to be thy wyfe. Thus sayeth the Lorde: beholde I wyll stere vp euyll agaynste the euen of thyne owne house and wyll take thy wyues before thyne eyes, and gyue theym vnto thy neyghboure, whiche shall slepe with theym in the syghte of the sonne. (ii.Regũ.xvi.b) And thou dydest it secretlye, yet wil I do this thynge before all Israel and in the open sonne syghte.

D Then sayde Dauid vnto Nathan: I haue synned agaynst the Lorde. (Eccle.xvii.b) And Nathan sayde agayne to Dauid: the Lorde hath put awaye thy synne, thou shalte not dye. (Repentaunce.) How be it because in doynge this dede thou haste gyuen the ennemyes of the Lord a cause to rayle, the chylde that is borne the, shall surely dye. And
E Nathan departed vnto his house. Then the Lorde stroke the chylde that Urias wyfe bare Dauid, and it sickened. Dauid besoughte God for the chylde, and fasted and went and lay all night vpõ the erth: And the elders of his house arose and wente to him, to take him vp frome ÿ erth. But he wold not/neyther yet eate meat with them. It happened the seuenth day that the chylde dyed. But the seruauntes of Dauid
F durst not tel him the chylde was deed. For they sayde: se, whyle the chylde was yet alyue, we spake vnto him, and he wolde not herken vnto

our voyce. Howe moche moze wyll he vere hym selfe, yf we tel him the chyld is deed? But Dauid sawe his seruauntes whysperynge, and therbye perceyued that the chylde was deed, and sayde vnto his seruauntes: is the chylde deed? And they sayde, yea. Then Dauid arose frome the erthe, and washed, and annoynted hym selfe, and chaunged his apparell / and went in to the house of the Lord, and prayed / and after came to his owne house, and badde they sholde set meate before him, and he dyd eate. Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him: what is this that thou hast doone? Thou fastedest and wepest for thy chyld whyle it was alyue, but as soone as it was deed, thou diddest ryse vp and eate meate. And he answered: whyle the chylde was alyue, I fasted & wepte. For I this thoughte: who can tell whether God wyll haue mercye on me that the chylde maye lyue? But nowe sythe it is deed, wherfore sholde I fake? can I brynge him agayne anye moze? I shall goo to hym, but he shall not come agayne to me. And Dauid comforted Bethsabe his wyfe / and wente in vnto her and laye with her, and she bare a sonne whose name was called ❧Salomon / and the Lorde loued him. And he sent by the hande of Nathā the Prophete, and called his name Jediah, on the Lordes behalfe.

❧Hebre. Salomoh. Math.i.

And as Joab foughte agaynste Rabah, the citye of the chyldren of Amnon, he toke the kynges Toure and sente mellengers to Dauid, sayinge: I haue made assaute to Rabah / and also haue taken the castell frome whence they hadde theyr water. Now therfore gather the reste of the people / and come and besiege the citye, and take it / lest yf I take it, the victorye be ascryued to me. And Dauid gathered all the people togyther, and went to Rabah and assauted it, and gate it. ✳And he toke the kynges crowne frome of his heed, whiche wayed an hundred wayght of golde, and was sette with precious stones / and Dauid ware it on his heed. And he broughte out the spoyle of the citye in exceedynge greate aboundance. And he broughte oute the people that was therin, and sawed them, and drewe harowes of yron vpon them, and thredde some of them with thredynge knyues of yron, and thrust some in to fornaces. And so he serued all the citees of the chyldren of Amnon. And then Dauid and all the people retourned vnto Jerusalem.

CAmnon Dauids sonne defyleth his syster Thamar. Absalom therfore kylleth Amnon and after flyeth for feare of his father.

CAPI. XIII.

Jebion.

AND it chaunced that Absalom Dauids sonne hadde a fayre syster named Thamar, whome afterwarde Amnon an other sonne of Dauid loued. And this Amnō was so vexed that he fell sycke for the loue of his syster Thamar: for it thoughte him harde to come by his purpose of her, sythe she was yet a virgyn. But Amnon hadde a companion called Jonadab the sonne of Samah the brother of Dauid: whiche Jonadab was a verye wyse man. And he sayd vnto hym, howe commeth it, that thou bring the kynges sonne art thus consumed euerye morynynge? mayst thou not tell it me? And Amnon answered him: I loue Thamar my brother Absalōs syster. Then sayd Jonadab vnto him: lye on thye bedde and fayne thy selfe sicke / and when thy father is come to se the / saye vnto hym: let my syster Thamar come and gyue me meate, and dresse it in my syght, that I maye se it, and eate it of her hande. So Amnon laye downe and made him selfe sicke / and when the kynge was come to se hym / Amnon sayde vnto hym: let Thamar my syster come and make me a couple of fritters in my syght, that I may eate of her hand. Then Dauid sente home to Thamer, sayinge: goo to thy brother Amnons house, and dresse hym meate. When Thamar came to her brother Amnons house, he laye / & she toke floure and made paste, and made fritters in his sight and dyd bake theym / and toke a platter and powred theym oute before hym. And Amnon wolde not eate, but commaunded to haue out all men frome hym / and they wente all oute from hym. Then sayd Amnon vnto Thamar: brynge the meate in to the chamber, that I maye eate of thyne hande: And Thamar toke the fritters which she had made, and brought them in to the chambre to Amnon her brother, and set them before hym to eate. And he toke her and sayd vnto her: Come lye with me my syster. And she answered hym: nay my brother doo not inforce me / for it ought not to be so doo not this folly. ✳For whyther shal I goo with my shame? And thou shalte be as one of the fooles in Israell. But speake vnto the kynge, and he shal not denye me vnto the. Howbe it he wold not harken vnto her voice but was to strong for her, and ✳forced her and laye with her. And then Amnon hated her vehemently: so that the hate wherwith he hated her, was greater then the loue with whiche he before loued her. And he sayd vnto her / aryse and awaye. Then she sayde vnto hym / this great cruelte that thou puttest me awaye, passeth the other that thou diddest vnto me. Neuertheles he wolde not heare her, but called his ladde that wayted vpon him and sayde: put her out at the wozes frome me, and bolte the woze after her. And she hadde a kyrtell of dyuers colours vpon her: For with such were the kynges doughters that were virgyns apparepled, made strayte vnto them. Then his seruaunt brought her oute at the wozes, and locked the wozes after her. And Thamar put asshes on her heed, and rente her gaye kyrtell that was on her. and put her hand on her heed and so went / and as she went, cried. Then Absalom her brother said vnto her: hath Amnon thy brother ben with the? Nowe then be styll my syster, for he is thy brother / and let not this thynge greue thyne herte. And so Thamar remayned disconforted in her brother Absloms house. And kynge Dauid herde of all these thynges, and was very wrothe. And Absalom sayde vnto his brother Amnon, neyther good ne badde. How be it Absalom hated Amnon because he had forced his syster Thamar.

And it happened two yere after that, Absalom hadde a shepesherynge in Baal Hazor besydes the tryde of Ephraim, and bad all the kynges sonnes and he came to the kynge and sayde: beholde thy seruaunt hathe a shepesherynge, let the kynge and his seruauntes come with thy seruaunt. And the kynge sayde vnto Absalom. Oh naye my sonne, lette vs not goo euery one of vs, that we be not chargeable vn to the. And Absalom laye sore vpon him / howbe it he wolde not goo, but blessed him. Then said Absalom, then let my brother Amnon go with vs. And the king answered, what neadeth it that he goo with the? But Absalom made suche instaunce, that he let Amnon goo with him, and all the kynges chyldren.

Then Absalom commaunded his younge men, sayinge: marke when Amnons herte is merye with wyne, and when I bid you smyte Amnō, then kyl him: feare not, for it is I that byd you / be bolde therfore and playe the lusty bloudes. And the yonge men of Absalom serued Amnon euen as Absalom commaunded the. And all the kynges sonnes arose and toke eche man his mule and fledde. And whyl they were yet in the waye, tidinges came to Dauid that Absalom hadde slayne all the kynges sonnes, so that none was lefte alyue. Then the kynge arose and rare his garmentes, and laye alonge on the earthe / and all his seruauntes stode by, with theyr clothes rente. Then Jonadab the sonne of Samah Dauids brother answered and sayd: let not my lorde suppose, that they haue slayne all the younge men the kynges sonnes, saue Amnon onely is deed, for that hathe ben euer in Absloms mouthe, sythens he forced his syster Thamar. Nowe therfore lette not my lorde the kynge take the thynge so greuously, to thynke that all the kynges sonnes be deed, when Amnon only is deed. But Absalom fled / and the yong man that kepte the watche lyfte vp his eyen and loked aboute / and beholde, there came moche people by awaye that was behynde his backe alonge by an hylles syde. Then said Jonadab vnto the kynge: beholde, the kynges sonnes are come / and as thy seruant said, so it is. And as sone as he had lefte speakyng: beholde, the kynges sonnes came and lyfte vp their voyces and wepte. And therto the kyng and all his seruauntes wepte excedyngly. But Absalom escaped and went to Tholmai the sonne of Ammihud kynge of Gesur. And the kynge mourned for his sonne continually. And so Absalom escaped and went to Gesur, and was there thre yeres. And by that tyme the kynge turned his mynde from pursuynge Absalom. For he had lefte mournynge for the deth of Amnon.

CBy the wysdome of the woman of Thekoa Absalom is called. The commynesse and bouldnesse of Absalom. Absalom flyeth. Joabs cozne. His father kysseth hym.

CAPI. XIIII.

WHen Joab the sonne of Zeruiah perceyued that the kynges herte was turned agayne to Absalom, he sente to Thekoa, and fet thence a wyse woman, and sayde vnto her: feyn thy selfe to be mourner, and put on mournynge apparell. And anoynt not thy selfe with oyle. But be as a woman that hadde longe tyme mourned for the deth of some body. And go to the kyng and speake on this maner vnto him. And Joab taughte her what she shulde saye. Nowe when the wyfe of Thekoa was come to speake with the kynge, she fell on her face to the ground and dyd obeysaunce and sayde: helpe me O kynge. And the kynge sayde vnto her, what ayleth the? she answered. I am a wyddowe, and myne husbande is deed. And thy handmayde hadde two sonnes whiche foughte to gyther in the feldes where was no man to go betwene them, & the one slewe tother. And beholde, the hole kynrede arose agaynste thy handemayde, and sayde: delyuer vs him that smote his brother: that we maye kyl him for the soule of his brother whome he slewe, for we wyll destroye the heyre also. And so they shall quenche my sparkle whiche is lefte, tyll there remayne neither name ne issue vpon the erth vnto my husbande. The kynge sayde vnto the wyfe: goo home to thyne house, and I wyll gyue a charge for the. Then the woman of Thekoa sayde vnto the kynge. My lorde kynge, the trespace be on me and on my fathers house, and the kynge and his seate be gyltlesse. And then sayd the kyng: yf any man saye ought vnto the, brynge him to me / and he shall no moze trouble the. Then saide she, let the kynge remembre his Lorde God, that the nexte of the blonde gather not on heapes togyther to destroye, and y they slee not my sonne. And he sayd: as truly as the Lorde lyueth, there shall not one heere of thy sonnes heed fall to therthe.

Then the woman sayde: let thyne handemayde speake one worde moze to my lorde the kynge, and he sayd, saye on. And the woman sayde / wherfore then hast thou determined on this same maner agaynst the people of God? that the kynge sholde speake this thing and be faurye therin, so that the kynge sholde not fet home agayne his banished? For we must nedes dye and perysshe, as water spylt on the grounde, whiche can not be gathered vp agayne / and God wyl not take awaye the life, but fynde the meanes that the banysshed be not vterly expelled from hym. And now concernynge that I am come to speake of this thynge vnto the kynge my lorde / for I stode in feare of the people / thy handmayd thought surely I wyll speake vnto the kynge / peraduenture the kynge wyll heare the request of his handemayde. And the kynge shall heare his handemayde and delyuer her forth of the hande of the man that wolde haue destroyed me and my sonne also, oute of the enherytaunce of God. Then thyne handmayde sayd: I praye God that the worde of my lorde the kynge maye be vn chaungeable. For my lorde the kynge is an aungell of God in hearyng of good goed oz badde: and therfoze the Lozde thy God be with the.

Then the kynge answered and sayde to the woman: hyde not frome me I praye the: the thinge that I shall aske the. And the woman sayde: let my Lozde the kynge saye on. Then sayde the kynge. Is not the hande of Joab wt the in all this matter? And the woman answered and sayde: as surely as thy soule lyueth, my Lozde kynge, it is neyther on the right hande noz on the left, that my Lozde the kynge hathe spoken. Foz thy seruaunt Joab bad me, & he put al these wozdes in the mouth of thyne handemayde. And that I shulde thus turne my tale an other waye, wylled me thy seruaunt Joab. And so I se that my Lozde is wyse, euen as an Aungell of God, to vnderstande all thinges that are in the earth. Then sayde the kynge to Joab, beholde, I am content to w this thinge. Go therfoze fet home the yongeman Absalom. And Joab fell to the grounde on his face, and bowed him selfe, & blessed the kynge, and sayd: now thy seruaũt knoweth that I haue founde grace in ꝑ sight of my Lozde the kynge in that he hath fulfilled the requeſt of his seruaunte. And so Joab arose and went to Gesur, and brought Absalom to Jerusalem. Then sayde the kynge: let him turne to his owne house, and se he come not in my presence. And so Absalom went to his owne house, but came not in the kynges presence. Moreouer in all Israell there was not so goodly a man as Absalom, oz so greatly praysed, from the sole of his fote to the top of his heed, was no blemyth in him. And whe he shaued his heed (foz at euery peres ende he shaued it because it was heuye on him, & therfoze he shaued it) the heare therof wayed two hundred sycles weyght of the kynges weyght And this Absalom had thre sonnes bozne him and one dughter named Thamar, whiche was a fayze woman to loke vpon. When Absalom had dwelt two pere in Jerusalem with out commynge into the kynges presence, he sent foz Joab, to thintent, to haue sent him to the kynge. But he wolde not come to him. And he sent agayne, & yet he wolde not come. Then he sayde vnto his seruauntes: behold, Joab hath a parcell of lande fast by myne/ & hath barley therin. Go and set it on fyre. And Absaloms seruauntes went and set it on fire.

Then Joab arose and came to Absalom vn to his houſe, and sayde vnto him: Wherfoze haue thy seruantes burnt my felde with fyre? And Absalom sayde to Joab: beholde, I sent foz the, desyring the to come, because I wold haue sent the to the kynge, foz to say: wherfoze am I come frome Gesur? It had bene as good foz me to haue byden there still. Nowe therfoze let me come to the kynges presence, oz elles yf there be any treſpace in me, kil me. And Joab went to the kynge and tolde him. And he sent foz Absalō: which whan he was come, fell to the grounde on his face before ꝑ kynge. And the kynge kyssed him.

¶ Absalom maketh insurrection agaynst his father, Dauid is fayne to flee foz feare of him.

CAPI. XV.

After this, Absalom gat him charettes and hozses, and fyftye men to run before him. And therto he vsed to arise vp early in the mozninges, and to stande by ꝑ wayes syde that led to the gate of the cytie. And all the men of Israel that had complaintes and came to the kynge foz iudgement, he called vnto him and sayde: of what cutie arte thou? And when the other answered: thy seruaunt is of suche a tribe of Israel. Then sayd Absalom vnto him: se, me thinketh thy matter is good and ryghteous, and yet no mannis appointed of the kynge, to heare the. Then Absalom sayde further: Oh, that I were a iudge in the lande, and that all men whiche haue sutes and matters in ꝑ lawe, shuld come to me. Foz I wolde w them iustice. And also when any man came nyghe to him to wo hym obeysaunce, he put forth his hande and tok him to him, and kyssed him. And on this maner dyd Absalom to all Israel that came to ꝑ kynge foz iudgement, and thus he wanne the hertes of the men of Israell. And at fourtye peres ende Absalom sayde to the kynge: Let me go to Hebron, and paye my vowe whiche I haue vowed, vnto the Lozde: foz thy seruaunt vowed a vowe when I was in Gesur in the lande of Syria, sayenge: yf the Lozde shall bringe me agayne to Jerusalem, I will serue the Lozde. And the kynge sayde/ go in peax. And so he arose and went to Hebron. Then Absalom sent spyes thozow out all the tribes of Israel, sayenge/ as sone as ye heare the voyce of the trompe blowe, saye/ Absalō raygneth kynge in Hebron. And with Absalō went two hundred men forth of Jerusalem ꝑ were called. And they went with pure hertis knowinge nothinge of the matter. Absalom sent also foz Achitophel the Gilonite Dauids counceliour, and set him out of his cytie Gyloh, when he sacrificed sacrifices, where was wrought strong treason. And the people drue to Absalom in great thrōnges. And there cam a messenger to Dauid and sayde / The hertes of the men of Israel are to folow Absalom. Then sayde Dauid to all his seruauntes that were with him at Jerusalem / aryse and let vs flee, foz we shall not otherwyse escape kō Absalom. Make spede to depart/ lest he come sodenly and catche vs, and bringe some myscheſe vpon vs, & smyte the cytie with the edge of the swerde. And the kynges seruaũtes sayd to him / beholde, thy seruauntes are redy to whatsouer my Lozd the kynge shal appoynte. Then the kynge & all his houſholde departed a fote. And he left behynde him ten wemen ꝑ were his concubynes, to kepe the house. And so the kynge & al the people went forth a fote & tarved farre frome the house, & all his seruauntes went by his syde. And all the Cerethites & all the Pheletbites, & all the Gethites euen. vi. hundred men wt ꝑ were come a fote frome Geth, went before the kynge. Then sayde ꝑ kyng to Ethai the Gethite, wherfoze shuldest thou go with vs also? Retourne and abyde with the kynge, foz thou art a straũger and art remoued frome thyne owne place. Thou camest but yesterdaye, and shouldē I dispatche the to daye to go with vs? I will go whether I go. But returne thou and cary agayne thy brethren. Mercy & truthe be with the. And Ethai answerd the kynge and sayd: as surely as the Lozde lyueth, and as surely as my Lozde the kynge lyueth, in what place my Lozde the kynge shalbe, whether in death oz lyfe, there will thy seruaũt be. Then sayd the kynge to Ethai, come and go forwarde. And Ethai the Gethite went forth, and all his men, and all the children that were with him. And all the countrey wept with a loude voyce. Soo all the people went forwarde the straight waye to the wildernesse. And behold Hawck and all the Leuites were with him, and bare the arcke of the testament of God. And when they hadde set downe the arcke of God, Abiathar came vp, vntyll the people were all come ouer, out of the cytie. Then sayd the kynge vnto Hawck. Carye the arcke of God agayne into the cytie. Yf I shall fynde fauoure in the eyes of the Lozd, he will bring me agayne, and shewe me both it and the tabernacle therof also. But yf the Lozde thus saye: I haue no lust vnto the. Beholde, here am I, let him w with me what semeth good in his eyes. The kynge sayde also vnto Sawck the preaste, thou arte a Seer. Retourne therfoze into the cytie in peax. And take your two sonnes with you: Ahimaaz thy sonne, & Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar. And se, I will byde me in the feldes of the wyldernesse tyll there come some wozde frome you to be tolde me. And so Sawck and Abiathar carryed the Arcke of God agayne to Jerusalem, and there tarryed there. And Dauid wente vp on mount Oliuet and wept as he went, and had his heed couered, and went barefote. And all the people that was with him, had euery mā his heed couered. and as they went wept also And one tolde Dauid, sayenge: Achitophel is one of them that haue conspired with Absalom. Then sayde Dauid: O Lozde, turne the counsell of Achitophel in folysshnes. Whē Dauid was come to the toppe of the mount and had bowed him selfe vnto God: behold, Husai ꝑ Arachite came against him with his coote frome & earth vpon his heed. Vnto whō Dauid sayd: yf thou go with me, thou shalt be a burthen vnto me. But yf thou returne to the cytie: then shalt thou saye vnto Absalom I will be thy seruaunt O kynge: thus longe haue I bene thy fathers seruaunte, and nowe I am thyne. And shalt dysclose the counsel of Achitophel. And thou hast therewith the Sawck and Abiathar the preſtes, to whom thou shalte shewe all thou canste heare oute of the kynges house. And behold, ye haue with you there two sonnes: Ahimaaz Sawckes sonne, and Jonathas Abiathars sonne, by whome ye shall sende me all ye can heare. And so Husai Dauids frende gat him to the cytie. And Absalom also entered into Jerusalem.

¶ Ziba bryngynge presentes to Dauid, both falsly accuse Mephiboseth. Semei curseth Dauid and hourleth stones at him. Absalom by chaduple oz Achitophel lyeth with his fathers Concubynes.

CAPI. XVI.

When Dauid was a lytle passe the toppe of the hyll: beholde Ziba the seruaunt of Miphiboseth came against him with a couple of Asses sadeled, and vpon them two hundred loues, and one hundred bonches of resinges, and an hundred fraples of dryed figges, and a bottell of wyne. Then sayde the kynge to Ziba: What hast thou there? And Ziba sayde: Asses foz the kynges houſholde to ryde on, and bzeed and frute foz the young men to eate, and wyne to drinke, yf any man faynt in the wyldernesse. Then sayde ꝑ kynge: Where is thy masters sonne? and Ziba sayd vnto the kynge: beholde, he tarryeth still at Jerusalem. Foz he sayde: This daye shal the house of Israell restore me ꝑ kyngdome of my father. Then sayd the kynge to Ziba: behold thyne are all that pertayned vnto Miphiboseth. And Ziba answered: I beseche ꝑ that I may fynde grace in thy sight my Lozde kyng.

And when kyng Dauid came to Bahurim: beholde, thence came oute a man of the kynrede of the house of Saul named Semei the sonne of Gera, and he came out cursyng. And therto he caste stones at Dauid and at all the seruauntes of kynge of Dauid, all the people and all the men of warre goynge part on his right hande, and part on his lefte. And thus sayde this Semei, when he cursed the kynge, walke, walke, thou bloudeshedder, and thou vnthryfty man. The Lozd hath brought vpō the, al the bloud of ꝑ house of Saul, in whose place thou hast raygned, and he hath delyuered the kyngdome into the hande of Absalom thy sonne. And thou art wrapped about with thyn own myscheke, because thou art a bloud shedder.

Then sayde Abisai the son of Zarviah vnto the kynge: Why vvth this deed dogge curse my Lozde the kynge? let me go and stryke of his heed. And the kynge sayd: What haue I to do with you, ye sonnes of Zarviah / Let him curse/ foz the Lozd hath bydden him curse Dauid. And who dare presume to saye wherfoze vvth he so? And Dauid sayde to Abisai, & to all his seruauntes / behold, my sonne whiche came out of myne owne bowelles seketh my lyfe. How moche moze then may this son of Jemini do it? Suffre him therfoze to curse foz the Lozde hath bydden him / happely the Lozde will loke on my wretchednesse, and do me good foz his cursinge this daye. And thus as Dauid and his men went by the way, Semei wente alonge on the hylles syde, ouer against him, and rayled as he went, and threw stones at him, and cast dust. And the kynge & all that were with him came very wery, and refreshed them selues there.

And Absalom and all the people of the men of Israel came to Jerusalem and Achitophel with him. And as sone as he was come / Husai the Arachite Dauides frende wente vnto Absa-

Absalom and sayde vnto him: God saue the kynge, God saue the kyng. And Absalom sayd
D agayne to Husai: is this thy kindnesse thou owest to thy frende? Why wentest thou not with hym? And Husai sayde vnto Absalom: naye not so, but whome the Lorde and this people and all the men of Israel chose, his wyll I be, and with hym wyll I dwell. And furthermore, vnto whome shall I do seruice but to his sonne? And as I was seruaunte before with thy father, so shall I be with the. Then spake Absalom to Achitophel, geue counsell what is best for vs to do. Achitophel sayde to Absalom: get the in to thy fathers concubines whiche he hath lefte to kepe the house. For when all Israel shall heare that thou hast loyed thy father, then shall ỹ handes of all that are with the, be stronge. And so they pytched Absalom a tent vpon the top of the house. And he went in vnto his fathers concubynes in the sight of all Israel. And the counsel of Achitophel whiche he counseled in those dayes, euen as a man had asked counsel of God: so was all the counsel of Achitophel, bothe vnto Dauid and also vnto Absalom.

¶ Achitophel apperceyuing his counsell disalowed of Husai and forsaken, hangeth him selfe.

CAP. XVII.

A THen Achitophel sayd vnto Absalom: let me chose out twelue thousand men. And I will forwarde and folow after Dauid by nyght, and come vpon him whyle he is wery and weake handed, and with fray him, that all the people that are with him shall flee. And so will I smyte the kynge succourelesse, & will brynge agayne al the people vnto the, for thou seekest but after one man, and all the people shall haue rest. And the sayenge pleased Absalom well, and al the elders of Israel. Then sayde Absalom: call also Husai the Arachite and let vs heare his aduise. When Husai was come to Absalom, Absalom spake vn to him, sayeng: Achitophel hath gyuen suche counsel, whether it be best we w afore his sayenge or not, tell thou. Then sayde Husai to Absalom: the counsell that Achitophel hath gyuen is not good at this tyme. For (sayde Husai) thou knowest thy father and the men
B that are with him, how they be stronge men. And they be chafed in their myndes, as a Bear robbed of her whelpes. And moreouer thy father is a man practised in warre, and wil not lye a nyghtes amonges the commen people. Perchaunce he nowe lurketh in some caue or in some other place. And thoughe some of his men be ouerthrowē at the first brunt, yet they that heare it will thynke the people that folowed Absalom, be put to the worsse. By reason wherof euē the best men thou hast whose hertes are as the hertes of Lyons, shal shrink therat. For all Israel knowe that thy father
C is a wyse man, and that they which be with him be valyaunt men. Lut my counsel is that all Israell be gathered vnto the, frome Dan to Berseba, as the sande of the see in nombre, and that thou goo to battayle in thyne owne persone. And we shall come vpon him in one place or other, where we shall fynde him, and we shall pytche a felde againste him, euen as thicke as the dewe falleth on the grounde. And there shall not one of them be lefte, neyther he ne anye of all that were with him. Moreouer yf he take a towne, then shall all the men of Israel compasse that cytie rounde about with ropes, and we wil drawe it into the ryuer, vntyl there be not one stone found vpon an other. And Absalom and all the men of Israel sayde: that the counsel of Husai the Arachite was better then the counsell of Achitophel. For it was euen the Lordes intent to destroye the counsell of Achitophel: which was good, that the Lorde myght bringe euil vpon Absalom. Then sayd * Husai vnto Sadock and Abiathar the preastes: on this & that maner dyd Achitophel and thelders of Israel counsel Absalom. And thus and thus haue I counseled. Now therfore sende quyckely and shewe Dauid, sayenge: tary not all nyght in the feldes of the wildernes, but get the ouer lest the kynge be deuoured, and all the people that are with him. Now Jonathas and Ahimaaz abode by the wel Rogel, for they might not be sene to come into the cytie. And a wenche went and tolde them. And they to goo & shewed kynge Dauid. Neuertheles there was a lad saw them whiche tolde it to Absalom. E But they went both of them awaye quickly, and came to a mans house in Bahurim, whyche had a well in his yarde, into whiche they went downe. And the wyfe toke and spred a couerlet on the top of the well, and strawed theron steaped barleye to drye. And the thyng was not espyed. So when Absaloms seruauntes came to the wyfe, to the house and asked where one Ahimaaz and Jonathas were, the wyfe sayde vnto them / they be gone ouer the lytle brooke of water. And when they hadde sought them and coulde not fynde them, they returned to Jerusalem. And as sone as they were departed, the other came out of the well and went and tolde kynge Dauid, and sayde vnto him / aryse and get you quyckely ouer water, for suche counsell hath Achitophel geuen. Thē Dauid arose and all the people that were with him, and they were come ouer Jordan by day lyght so that there lacked not one of them that was not come ouer Jordan. And when Achitophel sawe his counsell was not folowed, he sadelled his asse, and arose, and gat him home, to his owne cytie, and set his housholde in order and hanged him selfe and dyed, and was buryed in the buryall of his father. Then Dauid came to Mahanaim. And Absalom passed ouer Jordan, both he and all the men of Israell with him. Then Absalom made Amasa capitayne of the hoste in stede of Joab which Amasa was a mās sonne named Jethra a Jezrahelyte that went in to Abigeil the wyfe of Naab, sister to Zaruiah Joabs mother. And Israel and Absalom pitched in the lande of Galaad. And whē Dauid was come to Mahanaim, Sobi the sonne of Nahas ab of Rabath the cytye of the chyldren of Ammon, and Machir the sonne of Amiel of Lodaber, and Berzelei the Galaadite of Rogelim, brought beddes, basens and erthen vesselles: and also corne, barley, floure, and parched corne, benes, and rice, hony, butter, chese and chese of kyne, for Dauid and all the people that were with him to eate. For they supposed that the people shulde be hongrye, faintye, and thurstye in the wyldernesse.

¶ Absalom is ouercomme in battayle. He hangeth by the heare on an Oke. He is kylled and putte in a dytche. Dauid is so sorowfull for the deeth of Absalom that he weepeth.

J AND the kyng nombred the people that were with him, and set graund capitaines and petye cayptaines ouer them.
And he sent one part of them with Joab, and an other parte with Abisai the sonne of Zaruiah Joabs brother, and the thirde part with Ethai the Gethite. And the kynge sayde to ỹ people: shall I go with you? And the people answered: naye, for yf we flee, our aduersaries will not care for vs: neyther thoughe half of vs were slayne, shall they regarde vs. But thou were worth ten thousande of vs. And furthermore it is that thou be redy to succour vs out of the cytie. Then sayde the kynge: what semeth you best, that will I do. And ỹ kynge stode by the gates syde, and al the people came out by hundredes and by thousandes. And the kynge commaunded Joab, Abisai, and Ethai sayenge: se that ye saue my sonne Absalom. And all the people herde when the kinge gaue all the capitaynes charge vpon Absalom. And the people went out into the felde against Israel, and the battell was in the woode of E
B phraim. Where the people of Israel were put to the worsse before the seruauntes of Dauid and there was a great slaughter that daye, euen of twenty thousande men. And the felde was fought in dyuerse places, all abrode vpō the earth. And the woodes deuoured moo people that day, than dyd the swerde. And it chaū ced Absalom to come before the seruauntes of Dauid sytting vpon a Mule whiche carryed him vnder the thicke bowes of a great Oke. And his heed caught in the Oke, so that he honge betwene heauen and earthe, and the Mule that was vnder him went awaye. And one that sawe it tolde Joab sayenge: behold,
C I sawe Absalom hange in an Oke: and Joab sayd vnto him that tolde him: lo, sawest thou him? And why dydest not thou there smyte him to the grounde, that I shoulde haue gyuen the ten syeles of syluer and a souldyours gyrdle.
And the man answered Joab: thoughe I hadde a thousand syeles of syluer tolde in my hande, yet wold I not stretche out myne hād against the kynges sonne. For we herde with our eares when the kynge charged the, Abisai, and Ethai, sayenge: se that ye laye no handes vpon my sonne Absalom. Moreouer thoughe I had ioparded my lyfe, and woone falsly, yet coulde nought of al the matter haue bene hyd frome the kynge: yea and thou thy selfe wouldest be against me. Then sayde Joab I may not stande tarryenge with the, I wil spō him before thy face.
And therwith he toke three speares in his D
hande and thrust them into the hart of Absalō whyle he was yet alyue on the body of ỹ tree And ten seruauntes that bare Joabs weapōs, turned and smote Absalom and slue him. Thē Absalomes

Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock: let me runne and beare the kynge tydinges, how the Lorde hath gyuē him iugemēt forth of the handes of his enemyes. Joab sayde to him: thou arte no man to beare tydinges to day: thou shalt beare tydinges another tyme but to daye thou shalt beare none, because the kynges sonne is ded. Thē sayd Joab to Chusi go and tell the kynge what thou hast sene. And Chusi bowed him selfe vnto Joab and ranne. Then sayde Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock agayne to Joab: come what come wyll, let me runne I praye the after Chusi. And Joab sayde: Wherfore shouldest thou runne my sonne? for al be it thou runne thou gettest no rewarde: but he sayde, Well, come what wil let me runne. And he sayde vnto him: runne.
Then Ahimaaz ranne by the playne and ouer ranne Chusi.
Dauid sat betwene the two gates. And F
the watcheman went vp to the roufe ouer the gate vnto the wall, and lyfte vp his eyes and sawe: and beholde, there came a man runnynge alone. And the watcheman called and tolde the kynge. And the kynge sayde, yf he come alone, there is tidinges in his mouth. And he came and drue nye. And the watchmā sawe another man runnynge, and called vnto the porter and sayde: beholde, there commeth a nother runnynge alone. And the kynge answered, he is also a tydynges bringer. And the watchman sayde: me thinketh the runnynge of the formost is lyke the runninge of Ahimaaz the sonne of Sadock. And the kynge sayde: he is a good man, and commeth with good tydinges. And Ahimaaz called and sayd to the kynge: good tydinges, and bowed him selfe to the erth vpon his face before the king and sayde: blessed be the Lorde thy God whiche hath shut vp al the men that lyft vp their handes against my Lorde the kynge. And the kynge sayde, is the lad Absalom safe? And Ahimaaz answered, I saw a great hurlee burlee G when the kynges seruaunt Joab sent me thy seruaunt. But I wotte not what it was. And the kynge sayde: turne and stande here. And he turned and stode. And beholde Chusi came and sayde, Good tydynges my liege sir king, the Lorde hathe quytte the this daye out of the handes of all that arose agaynste the. And the kynge sayd to Chusi, is the lad Absalom safe? And Chusi answered, the ennemyes of my Lorde the kyng and all that ryse agaynste the, to haue the, be as thy sonne is. And the kynge was moued and went vp to a chamber ouer the gate and wepte, And as he went thus he sayde: my sonne Absalom, my sonne, my sonne, my sonne Absalom, wolde to God I hadde dyed for the Absalom, my sonne, my sonne.

¶ Dauid is restored to his kyndome, and brought agayne to Jerusalem.

CAPI. XIX.

A IT was tolde Joab, that the kynge wepte and mourned for Absalom. And the victorye was turned that daye into mournyng vnto al the people. For the people herde that daye, howe the kynge sorowed for his sonne, and the people went stealynge in to the cyty, euen as people confounded do steale awaye, when they flee in battell. And the kynge hyd his face and cryed with a loude voyce: my sonne Absalom Absalom my sonne my sonne. Joab therfore went into the house to the kynge & sayde: thou hast abashed this daye the faces of all thy seruauntes, whiche this daye haue saued thy lyfe, and the lyues of thy sonnes & doughters, and the lyues of thy wynes & concubynes, in that thou louest thyne ennemyes and hatest thy frendes. Thou hast declared this daye that thou carest neyther for thy cappitaynes nor seruauntes. For now I euidently perceyue, yf Absalom had lyued, and all we dyed this daye, then it had pleased the well.

B Now therfore aryse and come abrode, & speke kyndly vnto thy seruauntes, I swere by the Lorde oneles thou come oute, there will not tarye one man with the this nyghte, whiche thinge will be worsse vnto the, then all the euyll that fell on the frome thy youthe vnto this houre. Then the kynge arose & sat downe in the Gate. And it was tolde vnto all ỹ people, how the kynge sat in the Gate. And then all the people came before the kynge, But Israel fled euery man to his tent. And all ỹ people were at stryfe thorow oute all the kynredes of Israell, sayenge: the kynge delyuered vs out of the hande of our ennemyes, and he delyuered vs oute of the hande of the Philistines. And now he is fled out of the land for Absalom. But Absalom whome we annoynted ouer vs is dede in battell. Nowe therfore C why are ye so styll, that ye bryngе not ỹ kyng agayne? And kynge Dauid sent to Sadoch & Abiathar the preastes, sayenge: Speake vnto the elders of Juda and saye: why shuld ye be the last that shulde bryngе agayne ỹ kyng to his house, sythe suche tydinges is come frō all Israel vnto the kynge euen to his house? ye are my brethren, my bones and my flesshe: wherfore then shuld ye be the last that shuld come to bringe the kynge home agayne? And saye to Amasa: art thou not my bone and my flesh? And God so to me and so, onles thou be capitayne of the hoste to me for euer in the rowme of Joab. And he bowed the hertes of all the men of Juda, as a man wolde bowe the hert of one man: so that they sent worde to the kynge, that he shulde returne with all his seruauntes. And the kynge returned and came to Jordan. And Juda came to Galgal to thintent to mete the kyng and conuey him ouer Jordan. And Semei + the sonne of Gera the sonne of Jemini whiche was of Bahurim, hasted and came with the men of Juda to mete kynge Dauid, and a thousande men of Ben Jamin with him, and + Ziba the seruaunt of the house of Saul, and his .xv. sonnes, and twentye seruauntes with him. And they whypte ouer Jordan before the kynge. And there went ouer a Botte to cary ouer the kynges houshold, and to do him pleasure. And Semei the sonne of Gera fell before the kynge, as he was come ouer Jordan, & sayde to him: let not my lorde accompt wickednes vnto me, ne let him not remember the wyckednesse that thy seruant dyd, when my lorde the kynge departed for the of Jerusalem that the kynge shulde take it to herte. For thy seruaunt doth knowe his offence. And therfore beholde, I am the firste this daye of all the house of Joseph that am come to mete my lorde the kynge. But Abisai the sonne of Zeruiah answered and sayde: shall Semei not dye for these wordes that he reuyled the Lordes annointed? And the kynge sayde / What matter is betwene you and me, ye sonnes of Zeruiah, that ye shulde this daye be aduersaries vnto me? There shall no man dye this daye in Israel / for I knowe I am made this daye kynge ouer Israell. And the kynge sayd vnto Semei / thou shalte not dye, and sware vnto him.

And Miphiboseth the sonne of Saul came also to mete the kynge, and had neyther dressed his fete, ne shauen his bearde, ne washed his clothes, frome the tyme the kynge departed, tyll he came agayne in peax. And when he was come to Jerusalem towarde the kynge, the kynge sayde vnto him / Wherfore wentest not thou with me Miphiboseth? And he sayd, My Lorde kynge, my seruaunt deceyued me. For thy seruaunte sayde / that I wolde haue myne asse sadled to ryde theron, for to go to the kynge, because thy seruaunt is lame. And he hath therto complayned on thy seruaunte vnto my Lorde the kynge. But my lorde the kynge is as an aungell of God / doo therfore what semeth best in thyne eyes. For all my fathers house were but deedmen vnto my lorde the kynge / & yet dyddest thou put me among theym that eate at thyne owne table. What righte therfore haue I yet, to crye anye more vnto the kynge? And the kynge sayde / let me deth the not to speake anye more, for I haue sayde / that thou and Ziba shall diuide ỹ landes betwene you. And Miphiboseth sayd vnto the kyng / yee let him take all / for so moch as my

as my lorde the kynge is come in peax to his owne house.

F And Berzelai the Galaadite came frome Rogelim, and wente ouer Jordan with the kynge, to accompanye him ouer Jordan: whiche Berzelai was a very aged man, euē foure skore yeres olde, and had prouyded the kynge of sustenaunce whyle he laye at Mahanaim: for he was a man of very great substaunce. And the kyng sayde vnto Berzelai: come thou with me, that I maye fede the with me in Jerusalem. But Berzelai sayde vnto the kynge, Of what age am I, that I shulde go with the kynge into Jerusalem? I am this daye foure skore yere olde: and therfore can not discerne sauery frome vnsauery, neyther hath thy seruaunte pleasure in that he eateth or drynketh: ne yet delectacion in the songes of mē or women. Je is no nede that thy seruaunt be a burthen vnto my Lorde the kynge: let thy seruaunt goo a lytle waye ouer Jordan with the kynge, for why shulde the kynge yeld me suche a rewarde? But let thy seruaunt turne backe agayne, that I may dye in myne owne citie, and be buryed by the graue of my father and mother. But loo, here is thy seruaunte Chamaam, let him goo with my Lorde the kynge, and do to him, what shall please the. And the kynge answered, Chamaam shall G go with me. And I will do to hym that thou shalt be content with. Yea and whatsoeuer thou shalte require of me, that same will I do for the. And all the people went ouer Jordan. And when the kynge was come ouer Jordan, he kyssed Berzelat and blessed hym, and he went backe agayne vnto his owne place. And then the kyng went to Galgal, and Chamaam went with hym. Nowe, all the men of Juda were at the bryngyng ouer of the king, and but halfe the men of Israel.

Wherfore all the men of Israel came to the kyng and sayde vnto him: why haue our brethren the men of Juda stolen the awaye, and haue brought the kyng and his houshold and all Dauids men with hym ouer Jordan? And all the men of Juda answered the men of Israell: for the kynge is nere of kynne to vs: wherfore be ye angry for that mater? thynke ye that we eate of the kynges coste, or that the kynge gyueth vs any gyftes? And the men of Israel answered the men of Juda and sayde: we haue ten partes in the king and haue therto more right to Dauid thē ye. Why then dyd ye despyse vs, that our aduyse had not bene fyrste hadde in restoryngе oure kynge agayne? And the wordes of the men of Juda were fearcer then the wordes of the mē of Israel.

¶ Seba the sonne of Bochri rayseth Israel against Dauid. Joab kylleth Amasa traytorously. The heed of Seba is deliuered to Joab. Dauids receyuers are nombred.

CAPI. XX.

A THere happened also to be an vnthryfty person named Seba, the son of Bochri, a man of Gemini, whyche blew a trōpet

& sayde: we haue no part in Dauid, nor inheritaunce in the sonne of Jesai, O Israel, let vs depart therfore euery man to his tent. And al Israel went from Dauid and folowed Seba the sonne of Bochri. But the men of Juda claue fast vnto the kynge, frome Jordan to Jerusalem. And when Dauid was come to his house to Jerusalem, he toke the .x. women his concubynes that he had left behynde him to kepe the houle, and put them in warde and mynystred all thynges vnto them: but laye no more with them. And so they were closed vnto the daye of the death of them, and lyued a wydowes lyfe. Seba

Then sayde the kynge to Amasa: assemble me the men of Juda within thre dayes & present thy selfe here. And Amasa went to assemble the men of Juda: but tarryed longer then the tyme appointed him. Wherfore the kyng sayde to Abisai now shal Seba ỹ son of Bochri be worsse to vs then Absalom. Take thou therfore thy masters seruauntes and folow after him: lest he get him walled cytes and escape vs. And there went out after him Joabs men and the Cerethites and the Phelethites and men of strength. And they departed out of Jerusalem to pursue Seba the sonne of Bochri. And when they were come to the great stone in Gabaon, Amasa met hym. And Joab had his garment that he had about him, gyrde vnto him, and hadde gyrde theron a knyfe toyned fast to his loynes in a shethe out of whyche it myght easily come forthe. And Joab sayde to Amasa: are al thinges in rest and peax my brother? And Joab toke Amasa by the chynne with the righthande, as thoughe he wolde haue kissed him. And Amasa toke no hede to the knyfe that was in Joabs hande, with whiche Joab smote him in the short ribbes, and shed oute his bowelles to the grounde, and smote hym but one stroke, and he dyed. And then Joab and Abisai his brother pursued Seba the son of Bochri. And one of Joabs men that stode by the dede corps of Amasa sayd: What is he that he wolde be as Joab, and what is he ỹ wolde be vnto Dauid in stede of Joab? And Amasa laye walowynge in blonde in the middes of the waye. And there was a man that saw how all the people stode still to gase vpon him, and he rowled Amasa out of the way into the felde, and cast a clothe vpon him. And as sone as he was combled oute of the waye all the people went after Joab, to pursue Seba the sonne of Bochri. Joab kylleth Amasa. ii. Regum. iii. E

And he went thorow al the tribes of Israel vnto Abel Bethmaacah and all Barim. And the people gathered vnto him and went also after him. And they came & besieged him in Abel Bethmaacah. And they cast vp a bank against the cyte. And it was besieged. All the people that was with Joab labored busily to ouerthrowe the wall. Then cryed a wyse woman out of the cyte, harken, harken, byd Joab that he come hyther, to whome I maye speake with him. When Joab was come, the woman sayde: arte thou Joab? And Joab answered, I am. And he sayd to him: heare the wordes of thy handmayde. And he sayd: I am F A wyse woman.

reedy to heare. And she sayde: it hathe bene a commen sayinge in olde tyme / men muste aske in Abel, & thē it come to good passe. Abel is one of the quyetest and faythfullest cities that are in Israel. And thou goest aboute to destroye a cytye that is a mother in Israell. Why deuourest thou the inheritaunce of the Lorde? And Joab answered and sayde: God forbydde, God forbydde it me, that I shulde eyther deuoure or destroye it. The thynge is not so: But there is a man of mount Ephraim, Seba the sonne of Bochri by name, who hath lyft vp his hande agaynste kynge Dauid. Delyuer vs him only, and I wyll depart

C frome the cytye. And the woman sayde vnto Joab: Beholde, his heed shall be throwen thorowe the wall to the. And then the womā went vnto all the people in her wysdome. And they smote of the hed of Seba the sonne of Bochri, and cast it to Joab. And he blewe the trompe, and they skatered from the cytye euery man to his tent. So Joab returned to Jerusalem vnto the kynge.

And Joab was the graund capitayne ouer all the host of Israel, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada was ouer the Cerethites & the Phelethites. Aduram was officer ouer the tribute And Josaphat the sonne of Ahilud was recorder. Seua was scribe. Sadock and Abiathar were the preastes. But Ira the Jairite was counseilour euen to Dauid self.

¶ Thre deare yeres. The vengeaunce of the synnes of Saul lyghteth on his seuen sonnes, whiche are hanged. Foure great batelles, which Dauid fought agaynste the Philistines.

CAPI. XXI.

A Then there fell an hongre in the dayes of Dauid thre yeres insewinglye, and Dauid enquired of the Lorde. And the Lorde answered: it is for Sauls sake and the house of bloude, because he slewe the Gabaonites. And the kynge called the Gabaonites, and sayde vnto them. (Nowe these Gabaonites were not of the children of Israel, but a remnaunt of the Ammorites, for the children of Israel had sworne vnto them, & yet Saul sought to sley them, of a zele he had to ẏ children of Israel and of Juda) Dauid therfore sayd vnto the Gabaonites: What shall I do for you? and wherwith shall I content you, that ye may blesse the enheritaūce of ẏ Lord? The Gabaonites sayde vnto him: Our matter is not vpon siluer & gold but against Saul and against his house: neyther haue we any man that we wolde kyl in Israel. Thē he sayd

Jud.ix.

B What then woll ye I do for you? And they sayde vnto the kynge: the man that consumed and imagyned to bringe vs to nought, hym we ought to destroy, that not one of his stock be left in all the coostes of Israel, let the seuē men of his sonnes be delyuered vnto vs, that we may hange them vp vnto the Lord, in Gabaath, of Saul sometyme the Lordes electe. And Dauid sayde: I will geue them you.

i.Reg.xx.a

But the kynge had compassion on Miphiboseth the sonne of Jonathas, the son of Saul, because of the Lordes oth that was betwene Dauid and Jonathas the son of Saul. But he toke the two sonnes of Rezphah ẏ doughter of Aiah which she bare vnto Saul, Armoni and Miphiboseth, and the fyue sonnes of Michol the doughter of Saul which she bare to Adriel the son of Berzelai the Molathite, & delyuered them vnto the handes of the Gabaonites, and they hanged them in the hill before the Lorde. These seuen were all slayne at once in the first dayes of heruest: euen in ẏ begynninge of Barley heruest.

And Rezphah the doughter of Aiah toke sack clothe and spred it vnder her vpon the Rocke, euen frome the beginninge of heruest, vntyll rayne dropped vpon them out of heauen and suffered neyther the byrdes of the ayre to fall on them by daye, nor beastes of the felde by night. When it was tolde Dauid what Rezphah the doughter of Aiah the concubyne of Saul had done, he went and toke the bones of Saul & of Jonathas his sonne, of the men of Jabes in Galaad, whiche they had stolen frome the strete of Bethsan, where the Philistines had hanged theym in the dayes when ẏ Philistines had slayne Saul in Gelboe, and brought thence the bones of Saul and ẏ bones of Jonathas his son, and they set awaye the bones of them that were hanged, and buryed them with the bones of Saul and Jonathas his sonne in the countrey of BenJamin, in Zela, in the sepulchre of Cis his father. And when they hadde performed all that the kynge commaunded, God was appeased wt the lande. And the Philistines had yet againe warre wt Israel. Dauid therfore went downe and his seruantes with him, and fought with the Philistines. And Dauid waxed faynty, & Jesbi of Nob one of the sonnes of Haraphah whose speare hed wayed thre hundred sycles of Brasse, and was gyrde with a new swerde thought to haue slayne Dauid. But Abisai ẏ sonne of Zaruiah succoured him and smote the Philistine and kylled him. Then the seruauntes of Dauid sware vnto him sayenge. D

Thou shalt go no more forth with vs to battel, that the lyght of Israell be not put out. And there was yet after this, battel with the Philistines at Nob, in whiche Sobochai the Husathite slew Saph of the sonnes of Haraphah. And there was yet the thirde battell in Gob, with the Philistines, where Elhanan the son of the Jaere Orgim, a Bethlehemite, slew one Goliath a Gethite: ẏ staffe of whose speare was as gret as a weuers cloth beame.

And there was yet battell in Geth, where was a man of a great heyght, who had on euery hande sixe fingers, and on euery fote sixe toes. xxiiij. in all. And was also of the kynred of Haraphah, and defyed Israel. And Jonathas the sonne of Samach the brother of Dauid slew him. These foure were of the sonnes of Haraphah in Geth, and were ouerthrowē by the hande of Dauid and his seruauntes.

¶ The songe of Dauid for his delyuerye frome his enemyes.

CAP. XXII.

And

A And Dauid spake the wordes of this balade vnto the Lorde, what tyme the Lorde had delyuered hym oute of the handes of all his enemyes, and out of the handes of Saul. And he sayde: the Lorde is my rocke, my castell and my sauyour. God is my strenght, and in hym wyll I truste: my shylde & the horne that defendeth me: myne hyghe holde and refuge, my sauour, saue me frome wyckednesse.

Psal.xviii.

I wyll prayse and call on the Lorde and so shall be saued frome myne enemyes. For ẏ stormes of death haue closed me about, and the floudes of Belial haue feared me. The cordes of hell haue enuironned me, and the snares of death haue ouertake me. In my tribulation I called to the Lorde, and cryed to my God. And he herde my voyce out of his tēple, and my crye entred into his eares. The earth trembled and quoke, and the foundacions of heauen moued and shoke, because he was angry.

Smoke went out of his nostrelles, and cōsumynge fyre oute of his mouth, that it kyndled coles. He bowed heauen & came downe, and derckenesse vnder nethe his feete. And he

B rode vpon Cherubim and flew: and appeared vpon the wynges of the wynde. And he made derckenesse a tabernacle rounde about him, wt water congeled in thicke cloudes. Of ẏ brightnesse that was before him, coles were set on fyre. The Lorde thundred frome heauen, and the most hyghe put out his voyce. He shotte arowes and scatered them, and hurled lyghtnynge and turmoyled them. And the bottome of the see appeared, and the foundacions of the worlde were sene, by reason of the rebukynge of the Lorde, and thorow the blastinge of the breth of his nostrelles. He sent frome aboue and fet me, & plucked me out of myghty waters. He delyuered me from my mighty enemy, and frome them that hated me, and were to stronge for me. When they had besege me in the daye of my affliction, the Lorde stayed me vp. And he brought me out at large and delyuered me, because he delyted in me.

C The Lorde rewarded me after my rightwysenesse, and accordinge to the purenesse of my handes he requyted me. For I kept the wayes of the Lorde, and committed no wyckednesse by forsakinge my God. But I had all his lawes in my sight, neyther I tourned my face frome any of his ordinaunces. But was pure vnto himwarde, and kept my selfe frome vngodlynesse.

And the Lorde dyd to me agayne, accordinge to my rightwysnesse, and after my purenesse ẏ I had in his sight. With the holy thou shalt be holy, and with the man that is vncorrupt, thou shalt be vncorrupt. With the pure thou shalt be pure, & with the frowarde thou shalte be frowarde also. And the people that are in aduersite, thou shalt helpe. And on the proud shalt thou cast thyne eyes, to pull thē downe. Thou art my light (O Lorde,) and the Lorde shall lyght my derckenesse. With thy helpe I will run thorowe an hoste of men, and by the ayde of my God will springe ouer a wall. The waye of God is vndefyled, and the worde of the Lorde fyned as golde, and he a shilde to al that trust in him.

Who is a God saue the Lord, & who mighty saue our God? God is my stregth in war, and rydeth the waye cleare before me. And maketh my fete as swyfte as an hyndes; and setteth me fast vpon my hyghe holdes.

And teacheth my handes to fighte, that a bowe of brasse is to weake for myne armes.

And thou haste saued me with thy shylde, & thy gentylnes hath multiplyed me. Thou madest me space to walke in, that my fete shulde not stagger. D I folowed myne ennemyes and destroyed them, and turned not agayne tyll I had consumed them. I wasted them & so browsed them, that they coulde not aryse: but fell vnder my fete.

And thou dyddest compase me about with myght to battell, and madest them that rose against me, to stoupe vnder me. Thou madest myne ennemyes to turne their backes to me, & them that hated me, & I destroyed thē. They loked for helpe: but none came to saue them. Unto the Lorde they cryed, but he herde thē not. I will beate them as smal as the dust of the earthe, and will stampe them as the dyrte of the streate, and will sprede them abrode.

Thou delyueredst me frome the dissencion of my people, and kepest me to be an hed ouer nacions, for the people which I knew not became my seruauntes.

And the straungers shall make resistence against me, and shall obeye me at a worde.

And the aliens that shrinke awaye / shall tremble for feare in their defenced places.

The Lorde lyue, and blessed be he that is my strength: and exalted be God the strength that saueth me. It is God that auengeth me, and bringeth downe the people vnder me. And delyuereth me from myne enemyes, thou lyftest me vp on hyghe frome them that aryse against me, and delyuerest me frome the wycked men.

And therfore I will prayse the (O Lorde) amonge the Heythen, and wyll synge vnto thy name. For thy great and manyfolde sauinge of thy kynge, and shewinge mercy vnto thyne annoynted, euen to Dauid, and his sede for euer. Roma.xv.a

¶ The laste communicacion of Dauid, and the descrypcyon of the myghty men to hym belongynge.

CAPI. XXIII.

A These be the last sayenges of Dauid the sonne of Isai. The man which is made the hyghe annoynted of the God of Jacob and pleasaunt Psalmist of Israel sayde: ẏ spirite of the Lord spake in me, & his wordes were on my tonge. The God of Israel spake vnto me, and the strength of Israel sayde: he that beareth rule ouer men, he that ruleth iustlye in the feare of God, shall be as the mornynge sterre when the sonne shyneth in a mornynge in whiche are no cloudes to lette the bryghtnesse, and as the grasse of the erth

by vertu of the rayne. And is not myne house so with God? in that he hath made with me an euerlastynge couenaunt perfect in all points: and in that he shall fulfyll all that is healthsome vnto me, & al my desyres therto. Where as the vnthryfty men are al as thornes taken forth of theyr places, whiche cannot be taken with handes: but the man that shall touche them, must be armed with yron on a longe staue. And then shal they be burnt with fyre, to lye therby.

These be the names of the myghtye men ☞ were about Dauid: Iosab of Sebeth the Thachmonite, first of thre, otherwyse called Adino the Aznite, which slew. viij. hundred at one tyme. And next to him Eleazar the son of Dodi the sonne of Ahohi, one of the three principal that were with Dauid, which whē they defyed the Philistines that were there gathered in battell (and the men of Israel were gone by) arose and layd on the Philistines tyl his hande aked and claue vnto the sword. And the Lorde made a great victory the same daye. And the people returned and went after hym onely to spoyle. After him was Sema ☞ sonne of Agee the Hararite (which when the Philistines were gathered in Lahata where was a parcell of lande full of eares, and the people were fled for feare of the Philistines) stode in the myddes of the grounde, and defended it & slew the Philistines. And the Lorde gaue him a great victory.

And these three of the thirtye of the lordes went downe and came to Dauid in ☞ harueste tyme vnto the caue Odllam. And the host of the Philistines had pitched their paulions in the valey of geauntes. And Dauid was then in a stronge holde. And the souldiours of the Philistines were then in Bethlehem. And Dauid longed and sayde: Oh, that I had of the water that is in the wel in the gate of Bethlehem to drinke. And anone the three myghty brake thorow the host of the Philistines and fet water out of the wel of Bethlehem that was in the gate, and toke and brought it to Dauid: neuertheles he wolde not drink therof, but offred it vnto the Lorde, and sayd: the Lorde forbyd that I shuld do so, shuld I drink the bloude of men that were in ieopardye of their lyues? and so he wolde not drinke it. These thinges dyd these three mighty mē. The Abisai the brother of Joab, the sonne of Saruiah: he was capitayne ouer three, and he lyft vp his speare against three hundred and slewe them, and was named with the three. For he was noblar man then the three and was their capitayne. Howbe it he attayned not vnto those three in actes. Then Banaiah the sonne of Joiada the sonne of a lusty man valyaunt in actes of Kabzeel, he slewe twoo Lyons of Moab. He went downe and slew a Lyon in a pyt in tyme of snow. And he slew an Egyptian a goodly man, which hadde a speare in his hande. And Banaiah went down to him with a staffe, and pluckt the speare out of the Egyptians hande and slewe him with his owne speare: Suche thinges dyd Banaiah the son of Joiada and was the noblest of thirty: But not lyke to any of the three in feates of warre. And Dauid made him of his counsell. Asahel the brother of Joab was one of the thirtye. Then Elchanan the sonne of Dodo of Bethlehem: Semah the Harodite: Elica the Harodite: Helez the Paltite: Ira the sonne of Akes the Thekoite: Abiezer of Anatoth: Mebonai the Husathite: Zelmon an Ahohite: Maharai the Netophathite: Heleb the sonne of Baanah an Netophathite: Ithai the sonne of Ribai of Gabaah a cytie of the children of Ben Jamin: Banaiah the Pharathonite: Hedai of the ryuer of Gaas: Abialbon the Arbathite: Asmaueth a Berhomite: Eliahaba a Shalabonite: Of the sonnes of Jasen Jonathas: Semah the Hararite, Ahiam the sonne of Sarar an Araratite / Eliphelet the sonne of Ahasbai the sonne of a Maachathite / Eliam the sonne of Achitophel the Gilonite / Hezrai the Carmelite / Pharai the Arbite / Igaal the sonne of Nathan of Zobah / Bani the Gadite / Zelec an Amonite / Naharai a Berothite the harnesbearer of Joab the sonne of Zaruiah / Ira the Jethrite / Gareb the Jethrite / Urias the Hethite / in all thirty and seuen.

¶ Because Dauid caused the people to be nombred, Israel is plaged with pestilence: so that in thre dayes dyed. lxx. thousande.

CAPI. XXIIII.

AND the Lorde was wrothe eftsones ☞ gainst Israel, & stered vp Dauid against them, sayenge / Go and nombre bothe Israel and Juda. And forthwith the kyng said to Joab the capitayne of his host / goo about I praye the, thorow out all the tribes of Israel, euen frome Dan to Berlabe & nombre the people ☞ I maye knowe the nombre of them. And Joab sayde vnto the kynge / I beseche ☞ the Lorde thy God make the people as many mo as they be / yea and an hundred tymes so many mo, and that the eyes of my Lorde the kynge maye se them. But howe is it that my Lorde the kynge hath a lust in this thinge? Notwithstanding the kynges wordes preuayled against Joab and against al the capitaynes of the host. Then Joab and the capitaynes of the host went out from the kynge, to bewe ☞ people of Israel. And they passed ouer Jorda & pytched in Aroer on the right syde of the cytie that lyeth in the myddes of the valeye of Gad and so forth by Jazer. And then they went to Galaad & to the nether lande of Hodesi, and frome thence to Dan Jaan, & about to Sidon, and came to the stronge towne of Tyre, and to all the cyties of the Heuites, & of the Cananites, and then went out to the south of Juda, euen to Berlabe. And so when they had bene abrode thorow out al the lāde, they returned to Jerusalem at the ende of nyne monethes and twenty dayes. And then Joab delyuered vp the rekeninge of the nombre of the people vnto the kynge. And there were found in Israel nyne hundred thousand men of might that drew swerdes. And ☞ men of Juda were fyue hundred thousand men.

And

And Dauids hert smote him after that he had nombred the people. And he sayde vnto ☞ Lorde: I haue synned exceedingly in that I haue wrought. And now Lorde take away the trespace of thy seruant: for I haue done foolyshly. And when Dauid was risen in a morninge, ☞ worde of the Lorde came vnto the Prophete Gad Dauids Seer, sayenge: Go and say to Dauid, this sayth the Lorde. I offer the three thynges, chose which of them I shall do to ☞. And Gad came to Dauid and shewed him, & sayde vnto him: whether wilt thou haue. vij. yeres hūger in thy lande, or that thou flee three monethes before thyne enmenyes and they followynge the, or that there be thre dayes pestilence in thy land. Now auise the and se, what worde I shall bringe agayne to him that sent me. Then sayde Dauid vnto Gad: I am in a right great strayte. But better it is to fal into ☞ hādes of the Lorde, for moch is his mercy, then to fall in to the handes of men. And the Lord sent a pestilēce in Israel frō the morning vnto the ende of the tyme appointed. And there dyed of the people betwene Dan and Berseba. lxx. thousande men. And when the angell stretched out his hande vnto Jerusalē to haue destroyed it, the Lorde repented vpon ☞ scourge and sayde to the angell that destroyed ☞ people / It is sufficient, let thyne hand cease. And the angell was at the threshinge place of Araunah the Jebusite. Then spake Dauid vnto the Lorde when he saw the angel that smote the people, and sayde / Loo, it is I that haue synned, and I that haue done wickedly. But these shepe what haue they done? let I praye ☞ thine hand be on me & on my fathers house. And Gad came the same daye to Dauid, and sayde vnto him / Go vp an reare an altare vnto the Lorde in the threshinge floure of Araunah the Jebusite. And Dauid accordinge to ☞ sayenge of Gad, wente vp as the Lorde commaunded. And when Araunah loked and saw the kynge and his seruauntes commynge towarde him, he went out: and bowed him self to the kynge flat on his face to the grounde, & sayde: Wherfore is my Lorde the kynge come to his seruaunt? And Dauid sayd: to bye the threshyngeflowre of the, for to make an aultare vnto the Lorde that the plage may cease from the people. And Araunah sayde vnto the kyng: Let my Lorde the kynge take and offer what semeth him good in his eyes / Beholde, oxen for sacrifice, and sleades and the other instrumentes of the oxen for woode. And Araunah the kynges frende gaue all to the kynge, and sayd moreouer vnto the kyng / the Lord/ the Lorde thy God accept the. But the kyng sayde vnto Araunah / not so, but I will bye it of the at a pryce, and will not offer sacrifice vnto the Lord my God that shal cost me nought. And so Dauid bought the threshyngeflowre, and the oxen, for fyftye syeles of syluer.

And Dauid buylt there an aultare vnto the Lorde, and offered burntsacrifices and peax offrynges. And so the Lord was appeased ☞ the lande. And the plage ceased frome Israell.

¶ The ende of the seconde boke of Samuel: commenly called the seconde of the Kynges.

THE THYRDE BOKE OF KYNGES, BVT AFTER THE HEBRVES, THE FYRST OF THE KYNGES.

¶ The younge virgin Abisag kepeth Dauid in his extreme Age. Adonias occupyeth the realme vnwetynge to his father. Salomon is annoynted kynge and then Adonias slyeth.

CAPI. I.

A When Kynge Dauid was waxen olde & stepken in yeres, thoughe they couered hym with clothes, yet he caught no heate. Wherfore his seruauntes sayde vnto him: let there be sought for my Lorde the kynge, a younge mayden to stande before him and to cherysh him. And let her lye in thy bosome, that my Lorde the kyng may get heate. And so they sought for a fayre damosel thorow out all the coostes of Israel and founde one Abisag, a Sunamite, and brought her to the kynge. And the Damosell was exceedinge fayre, and cherysshed the kynge and ministred to him: But the kynge had not to w with her.

Adonias. But Adonias the sonne of Hagith exalted him selfe sayinge: I wyll be kynge. And he gat him a charet, and horsmen, and fyfty men to runne before him. And his father rebuked him not at any tyme nor sayd so moch to him as why west thou so. And he was therto a goodly man and his mother bare him next after Absalom. And he communed with Joab ꝑ sonne of Zaruiah, & with Abiathar the preest. And they holpe Adonias. But Sadock ꝑ preest Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, Nathan the prophet, Semei and Rei & the men of mighte
B which were with Dauid fauered not Adonias And Adonias sacrificed shepe and oxen and fat lynges at the stone of Zoheleth, which is fast by the wel of Rogel/and bad thyther all his brethren the kynges sonnes, and all the men of Juda the kynges seruantes. But Nathan the Prophete and Banaiah and the myghtye men and Salomon his brother he bad not.

Nathan. Wherupon Nathan spake vnto Bethsabe the mother of Salomon, sayenge: hast thou not herde how Adonias the sonne of Hagith wolde raigne vnwetinge vnto our master Dauid? Nowe therfore come that I maye gyue the counsel, how to saue thyne owne lyfe, and ꝑ lyfe of thy sonne Salomon. Hence and get ꝑ vnto kynge Dauid, and saye vnto him: dyddest not thou my Lord kynge swere vnto thy handmayde, sayenge? Salomon thy son shal raygne after me, and he shall sytte vpon my seate, why is then Adonias made kynge? And se, whyle thou yet talkest there with the kyng I will come in after the/ and will ende thy wordes.

C So Bethsabe entred vnto the kynge into the chambre. And the kynge was very olde & Abisag the Sunamite ministred vnto him. And Bethsabe stouped and made obeysaunce vnto the kynge. And the kynge sayde: what is thy matter? She answered and sayde: my lorde, thou swarest by the Lorde thy God vnto thyne handemayde: Salomon thy sonne shall raygne after me, and shall sytte vpon my seate. But nowe se, Adonias is kynge and thou my Lorde kynge wotest it not, & he hath offered oxen, fatlynges, and shepe aboundantly, and hath called all the sonnes of the kyng and Abiathar the preest, and Joab the Captayne of the host, But Salomon thy seruaũt hath he not bydden. And now (my lord kyng) the eyes of all Israell wayte on the, to tell them who shall syt on the seate of my Lorde the kynge after hym. For elles when my Lorde the kynge is layde to rest with his fathers, I and my sonne Salomon shalbe synners.

And beholde, whyle she yet talked with the kynge, Nathan the prophete was come. And they tolde the kynge, sayenge: here commeth Nathan ꝑ Prophete. And when he was come before the kynge, he made obeysaunce vnto ꝑ kynge vpon his face vnto the grounde, & sayd: My lorde kyng, hast thou sayde, Adonias shal raygne after me, and he shall sytte vpon my seate? For he is gone downe this day and hath offered oxen, fatlynges, and shepe plentifully D and hath called al the kynges sonnes and the capitaynes of the host, and Abiathar ꝑ preest. And se, they eate and drinke before hym & say. God saue kyng Adonias. But me thy seruãt & Sadock the preest and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and thy seruaunt Salomon he hath not called. Is this thynge doone of my Lorde the kynge and yet wouldst not shewe me thy seruaunt, who shulde sitte on the seate of my lorde the kynge after him?

Then kynge Dauid aunswered and sayde: Call me Bethsabe. And she came in and stode before him. And the kynge sware, sayenge. As surely as the Lorde (that hathe rydde my soule oute of all aduersitie) lyueth: euen as I swore vnto the by the Lorde God of Israell, sayenge: Salomon shall raygne after me, and he shall syt vpon my seate for me, so will I doo this daye. And Bethsabe bowed on her E face to the earthe, and dyd obeysaunce vnto the kynge, and sayde: I prayse God my lorde kynge Dauid maye lyue euer. Then sayde kynge Dauid call me Sadock the preest and Nathan the Prophete, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada. And when they came before the kynge/ The kynge sayde vnto theym/ Take with you the seruauntes of your lorde, and set Salomon my sonne vpon myne owne Mule, and carye hym downe to Gihon. And lette Sadock the Preeste, and Nathan the Prophete annoynte hym there/ to be Kynge ouer Israell. And then blowe ye with a trompette, and saye: God saue kynge Salomon. And then come vp after him, and let him come and sytte vpon my seate. For he shall be kynge in my stede. And hym I haue commaunded to be leader ouer Israell and Juda. And Banaiah the sonne of Joiada answered the kynge, and sayd: Amen. And so I prayse God that the Lorde God of my Lorde the kynge saye so to. And as the Lorde hathe ben with my Lorde the kynge: so I prayse God he may be with Salomon, and that he make his seate more glorious then the seat of my Lord king Dauid. So Sadock the preest, and Nathan the Prophete, and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and the Cerethytes and Phelethytes wente downe, and sette Salomon vpon kynge Dauids Mule, and ledde him to Gihon. And Sadock the Preest toke an horne of oyle oute of the tabernacle, and annointed Salomon. And they blewe a trompet/ and all they sayd: God saue kyng Salomon. And all the people came vp after hym pypynge with pypes, and reioysynge greatly, so that the erth range with the sounde of them.

And Adonias and all the gestes that were with hym herde it, euen as they hadde made an ende of eatynge. And when Joab herde the sounde of the trompet, he sayd: how happeneth it that there is suche a noyse in the cyte? And as he yet spake: se, Jonathas the sonne of Abiathar the Preeste came. And Adonias sayde: come for thou arte a lusty bloude, and bryngest good tydynges. And Jonathas answered and sayde to Adonias: Verily oure Lorde kynge Dauid hathe made Salomon kynge. And the kynge sente with him, Sadock the Preeste, and Nathan the Prophete: and Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and the Cerethites and the Phelethites, and they haue set hym vpon the kynges Mule. And Sadock the Preeste, and Nathan the Prophete haue annoynted hym kynge in Gihon. And as they came vp agayne, they reioyced that the cite dyd sounde agayne. And that is the noyse that ye haue herde. And therto Salomon sytteth G on the seate of the kyngdome. And moreouer the kynges seruauntes wente in to bleste oure Lorde kynge Dauid, sayinge: thy God make the name of Salomon more full of fauoure then thyne/ and his seate more glorious then thyne. And the kynge bowed hym selfe vpon the bedde. And laste of all thus sayde the kynge: blessed be the Lorde God of Israell, who hathe made one to sytte on my seate this daye, myne eyes seynge it. Then all the gestes that were with Adonias were afrayde, and rose vp and wente euerye man his waye. But Adonias fearyng Salomon, arose, and went and caught holde on the hornes of the aulter. And it was tolde Salomon that Adonias for feare of kynge Salomon, hath caught holde by the hornes of the aulter, sayinge: let kynge Salomon swere vnto me this day, that he wil not slee his seruaunt with the swerde. And Salomon sayd: yf he wyll be a good man, there shal not an heere of hym fall to the erth. But yf wyckednesse shall be founde in hym, he shall dye for it. And thervpon kynge Salomon sent and set him downe from the aulter. And he came and dyd obeysaunce vnto kynge Salomon. And Salomon sayde to hym: get the to thyne house.

¶ Dauid dyeth. Adonias requyreth to haue Abisag to his concubine, and therfore Salomon commaundeth to slee hym. Abiathar is put frome his Preesthode. Semei and Joab are slayne.

CAPI. II.

When the dayes of Dauid were drawen nye that he sholde dye, he charged Salomon his sonne, sayinge: I must walke by the waye of all the worlde, neuertheles be stronge, and quyte thy selfe manfully. And se thou kepe the appoyntment of the Lorde thy God, that thou walke in his wayes, and kepe his commaundementes, ordinaunces, lawes and testimonyes/ as it is written in the lawe of Moses, that thou mayste vnderstande all that thou oughtest to do/ and al that thou shouldest medle with, that the Lorde maye make good his promesse, whiche he hath promysed me, sayinge: yf thy children shall take hede to their wayes, that they walke before me in truthe with all theyr hertes, and with all theyr soules: * then thou shalte neuer *iii.Reg.ix.b be withoute one sytteynge on the seate of Israel.

* Moreouer thou wotest howe Joab the *ii.Reg.iii.e; sonne of Zaruiah hathe serued me, and what and xx.c he hathe wone to the two capitaynes of thostes of Israel: vnto Abner the sonne of Ner, and vnto Amasa the sonne of Jether/ how he slewe them, and shedde the bloude of warre in tyme of peax, and put the bloude of warre vpon his gyrdle that was aboute his loynes, and in his shoes that were on his feete. Deale with hym therfore accordynge to thy wysdom B and se thou bryngе not his graye heed downe to the graue in peax. * And shewe kyndnesse *ii.Reg.x.f.c vnto the sonnes of Berselai the Galaadyte, and let them be amonge them that eate at thy table, bicause they so claue to me when I fled from Absolom thy brother. * And lo thou hast *ii.Re.xvi.b with the, Semei the sonne of Gera the sonne of Gemini of Bahurim, which cursed me with a bytter curse, what tyme I wente to Mahanaim. But he came agaynste me to Jordan/ and I swore to hym by the Lorde, sayinge. I wyl not slee the with the swerde. But pardon thou hym not. Thou art a man of wysdome, and shalte knowe what to do to hym/ se therfore thou bryngе his graye heed to the graue with bloude. And so Dauid rested with his fathers, and was buryed in the cite of Dauid. And the dayes whiche Dauid raygned vpon Israel were fourtye yeres/ seuen yeres in Hebron, and thyrtye and thre yere in Jerusalem: C *i.Pa.xxix.f * So Salomon sate vpon the seate of Dauid his father. And his kyngdom was stablysshed myghtyly.

After this, Adonias the sonne of Hagith came to Bethsabe the mother of Salomon. And she said: betokeneth thy comming peax? *i.Reg.xvi.s And he sayde it betokeneth peax. Then sayde he, I haue a matter to shewe the. And she said: saye on. And he sayde: thou knowest that the kyngdom kyngdome was myne, and that all Israel set theyr eyes on me that I sholde raygne, how be it the kyngdome was turned away and gyuen to my brother, for it was appoynted him of the Lorde: and nowe I aske a peticyon of the, wherof denye me not. And she sayde vnto him: tell what it is. Then he sayde: speake I praye the, vnto Salomon the kynge (for he will not saye the naye) that he gyue me Abisag the Sunamyte to wyfe: And Bethsabe sayde: well, I will speake for the vnto the kynge. And therupon Bethsabe wente vnto kynge Salomon to speake vnto him for Adonias. And the kynge rose vp agaynste her and bowed him selfe vnto her, and sat him downe on his seate. And there was a seate set for the kynges mother, and she sat on his right syde. Then she sayde: I muste desyre a lyttell peticion of the: saye me not naye. And the kynge sayd vnto her. Aske on my mother: for I will not saye the naye. And she sayd: let Abisag the Sunamite be gyuen to Adonias thy brother to wyfe. And kynge Salomon answered and sayde vnto his mother: why doest thou aske Abisag ỳ Sunamite for Adonias? Naye, rather aske for hym the kyngdome, sithe he is myne elder brother: euen for him aske it, and for Abiathar the Preest, and for Joab the sonne of Zarviah. Then kinge Salomon sware by the Lorde, sayinge: God do so to me and so, yf Adonias haue not spoken this worde agaynste him selfe. Now therfore as surely as the Lorde liueth, who hathe stablished me and set me on the seate of Dauid my father, and who hathe made me an house as he promysed me, Adonias shall dye this daye. And kynge Salomon sent by the hande of Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, and smote him so that he dyed. Vnto Abiathar the Preeste sayde the kyng: get ỳ to Anatoth vnto thyne owne felues, for thou arte worthy deth: but I will not at this tyme kyl the, because thou bearest the arche of the Lorde God before Dauid my father, and because thou sufferedest w my father in all his afflictions. And so Salomon put awaye Abiathar from beinge preest vnto the Lorde: to fulfyll the wordes of the Lorde whiche he spake ouer the house of Eli in Silob. Then tidynges came to Joab: for Joab had turned after Adonias, but not after Salomon. Wherupon he fledde vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde and caught holde on the hornes of the aulter. And it was told king Salomon how Joab was fledde vnto the tabernacle of the Lorde, and stode by the aulter. Then Salomon sente Banaiah the sonne of Joiada, sayinge: go and smyte him. And when Banaiah was come to the tabernacle of the Lorde he sayd vnto him: thus sayth the king, come out. And he sayde naye. But I will dye here. And Banaiah brought the kynge worde, sayinge: thus sayd Joab, and thus he answered me. Then the kynge sayde: do euen as he hathe sayde: smyte hym and burye hym, and take awaye the blonde (whiche Joab shedde causeleslie) from me, and from the house of my father, and the Lorde bynge his blonde vpon his owne heed, for he smote two men rygh-

wyser and better then he, and slew them with the swerde, my father vnwetynge: euen Abner sonne of Ner, capitayne of the hoste of Israel, and Amasa the sonne of Jether, capitayne of the host of Juda, and theyr blonde returne vpon the heed of Joab, and on the heed of his seed for euer: and prosperite be vnto Dauid, and vnto his seed, and vnto his house, and vnto his seate of the Lorde for euer. And Benaiah the sonne of Joiada went vp and smote him, and slewe hym & buryed him in his owne house in the wyldernesse: and the kynge put Banaiah the sonne of Joiada in his rowme ouer the host, and put Sadock the preest in the rowme of Abiathar. Then the kynge sent and called Semei, and sayd to hym: buylde the an house in Jerusalem, and dwell there, & se thou go not thence any whither. For be thou sure of it, the daye thou goest oute and passest ouer the ryuer of Cedron, thou shalte dye for it, and thy blonde shall be on thyne owne heed. Semei sayd vnto the kynge: it is well sayde, as my Lorde the kynge hathe sayde, so will his seruaunt do. And Semei dwelte in Jerusalem many a daye. And it chaunced at the ende of thre yere, that two of the seruauntes of Semei ranne awaye vnto Achis sonne of Maacah king of Geth. And one told Semei sayinge, thy seruauntes be in Geth. And Semei stode vp and sadled his asse, and gat him to Geth to Achis to seke his seruauntes, & came and brought them agayne from Geth. But it was tolde Salomon how Semei hadde gone from Jerusalem to Geth, and was come agayne. And the kynge sente and called Semei and sayd vnto hym: Dyd I not sweare by the Lorde, and testyfyed vnto the sayinge, be sure whe so euer thou goest out and walkest abyde any whither, thou shalte dye? And thou answeredst me, it is good tydynges that I haue herd. Why then hast thou not kept the oth of the Lorde, and the commaundement that I commaunded the? And then the kynge sayd to Semei: * thou remembrest all the wickednesse whiche thyne herte knoweth that thou dyddest to Dauid my father. The Lorde therfore render agayne thy wickednesse vpon thyne owne heed: and kyng Salomō be blessed, and the seate of Dauid be settled before the Lorde for euer. And the kynge commaunded Banaiah the sonne of Joiada: whiche wente oute and smote hym that he dyed. And so was the kyngdome settled in the hande of Salomon.

¶ Salomon taketh Pharaos daughter to wyfe. The Lorde appeareth to hym, and gyueth hym wysdome. The pleadinge of the two harlots who slewe the lyuynge chylde: and Salomons sentence therin.

CAPI. III.

THen Salomon dyde affinitie with Pharao kyng of Egypt, and toke his daughter, and brought her in to the cyte of Dauid, tyll he hadde made an ende of buyldynge his owne house and the house of the Lorde, and

and the walles of Jerusalem rounde aboute. Onely the people sacrifyced in aulters made on hylles, because there was no house buylte for the name of the Lorde, tyll those dayes. Salomon doubtlesse loued the Lorde, & walked in the ordinaunces of Dauid his father, saue onely that he sacrificed and offered incense vpon aulters in hylles.

And the kynge wente to Gabaon to offre there; for that was a greate offerynge place. And there Salomon offered a thousand burnte offerynges vpon that aulter. And in Gabaon the Lorde appeared to Salomon in a dreame by nyght. And God sayde: Aske what I shall gyue the. And Salomon sayde: thou hast shewed vnto thy seruaūt Dauid my father great mercye, because that he walked before the in truthe and in ryghtousnesse and playnesse of herte with the. And thou haste kepte for hym this greate mercye, that thou hast gyuen hym a sonne to sytte on his seate: as it is come to passe this daye. * And now Lorde my God, it is thou, that hast made thy seruaunt kynge in the rowme of Dauid my father. * And I am a ponge ladde, and wot not how to ordre my selfe. And thy seruaunt is in the myddes of thy people, whiche thou hast chosen, a people that are so manye that they can not be tolde nor nombred for multitude. * Gyue therfore vnto thy seruaunte, an vnderstandynge herte to iudge thy people, & to discerne betwene good and badde. For who is able to iudge this thy so waygthy a people? And it pleased the Lord well, that Salomon had desyred this thyng. Wherfore God sayd vnto him: because thou hast asked this thyng, and hast not asked long lyfe, neither haste asked richesse, nor the lyues of thyne ennemyes, but hast asked the discretion to vnderstande equite: Lo, I haue woune accordynge to thy peticyon: and beholde, I haue gyuen the a wyse and an vnderstandyng herte, so that there was none lyke vnto the before the, neyther after the shall anye aryse lyke vnto the. And therto I haue gyuen the that thou askedst not, bothe rychesse and honoure: so that there shall be no kynge lyke the, all thy dayes. And yf thou wylte walke in my wayes to kepe myne ordynaunces and commaundementes, as Dauid thy father dyd walke, I will lengthen thy dayes also. When Salomon awoke, he vnderstode this was his dreame. And he came to Jerusalem and presented hym selfe before the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt, and offered burntofferynges and peaceofferynges, and made a feaste to all his seruauntes.

Then came two women that were harlots vnto the kynge, and stode before him. And the one of them sayde: O my Lorde, I and this woman dwell in one house. And I was delyuered of a chylde with her in the sayd house. So the thyrd daye after I was delyuered, she was delyuered also: we two beynge togyther, and no straunger w̄ vs in the house saue we two alone. And this wyues chylde dyed in a nyght, for she had ouerlayde it. And then she arose at mydnyght, and toke my sonne from my syde, whyle thyne handmayde slepte and layde it in her bosome, and put her deed chylde in my bosome. And when I arose vp in the morynge to gyue my chylde sucke: lo, it was deed. But when I hadde loked more diligentlye vpon it in the morynge: Beholde, it was not my sonne whiche I dyd beare. And the other woman sayde: It is not so: But the lyuynge is my sonne, and the deed thyne. And she sayde agayne: thou sayest vntrue, for the deed is thy sonne, and the lyuynge myne. And thus they chydded before the kyng. Then sayd the kynge: the one sayth, this that is alyue is my sonne, and the deed is thyne. And tother sayth naye: But thy sonne is the deed, and the chylde alyue is myne. Then sayde the kynge: bringe me a swerde. And they broughte a swerde before the kynge. And the kynge sayde: Diuyde the lyuynge chylde in two, and gyue the one halfe to the one, and the other to the other.

Then spake the woman that was mother to the chyld alyue vnto the kynge (for her bowelles yerned vpon her sonne) and sayde: I beseche the my Lorde, gyue her the lyuynge chylde, and in no wyse slee it. And the other sayd: it shall be neither thyne nor myne, but diuyde it. Then the kynge answered and sayd: * gyue her the lyuynge chylde and slee it not, for she is the mother therof. And all Israell herde of the iudgement whyche the kynge had gyuen, and feared the kynge, for they perceyued that the wysdome of God was in him to woo iustyce.

CAPI. IIII.

SO kynge Salomon was kynge ouer all Israel. And these were his lordes: Azarias the sonne of Sadoch the preest, Elihoreph and Ahiah the sonnes of Sisa scribes. Josaphath the sonne of Ahilud, the recorder. And Banaiah the sonne of Joiada was ouer the hoste. And Sadoch and Abiathar were ỳ preestes. And Azariah the sonne of Nathan was ouer the generall receyuers. And Zabud the sonne of Nathan was a wayter, and the kynges companion. And Ahisar stewarde of housholde. And Adoniram sonne of Abda ouer the tributes. And Salomon had twelue generall receyuers ouer all Israel, which sustayned the kynge and his housholde, eche man his moneth in a yere. Whose names are these: the sonne of Hur in mount Ephraim: the sonne of Dekarin Makez, in Salem in Bethsames, in Elon and in Bethhanan: the sonne of Heled in Aruboth, and to him pertayned Socoh, and all the lande of Hepher: the sonne of Abinadab, whiche had all the regyons of Dor, and Taphath the doughter of Salomon was his wyfe: Baanah the sonne of Ahilud had Thanach Mageddo, and all Bethsan whiche is by Zarthanah benethe Jezrahel, and from Bethsan to Abel Mehulah, and vnto beyonde Jecmaam. The sonne of Gaber hadde Ramoth

And he surmounted all men in wysdome, bothe Ethã the Ezrahyte, Hemã, Chalcol, and Dorda ꝑ sonnes of Mahol. And his name spred abrode amonge all nations on euery syde. And Salomon wrote three thousand prouerbes. And his songes were a thousande and fyue. And he disputed of trees, euen frome the Cedar tree that groweth in Libanon, vnto the Ysope ꝑ springeth out of the wall. And he disputed of beestes, fowles, wormes, & fisshes. And there came of all nations to heare the wysdome of Salomon, and from all kynges of the erth which had herd of his wysdome.

¶ Kynge Hiram sendeth Cedar tymber to the buyldynge of the temple. The discripcion of the workes.

CAPI. V.

AND Hiram kynge of Tire sent his seruauntes vnto Salomon, for he hadde herd that they had anoynted him kyng in the rowme of his father. And therto Hiram was euer a louer of Dauid. * And Salomon sent agayne to Hiram, saying: thou knowest of Dauid my father, how he could not buylde an house vnto the name of the Lord his God for warre whiche he had on euery syde, vntyll the Lorde had put them vnder his fote. But now the Lorde my God hath giuen me rest on euerye syde, so that there is neither aduersary nor any euyl plage. And therfore I am disposed to buylde an house vnto the name of the Lord my God, as he promised Dauid my father saying: thy sonne which I wyll put vpon thy seat in the, he shall buylde an house vnto my name. Nowe then commaunde that they hewe me Cedar trees in Libanon. And let my seruauntes be with thyne, & I wyll gyue the, the hyre of thy seruauntes in all suche thinges as thou shalt requyre, for thou knowest that there are not amonge vs that can skyll to hewe tymber lyke vnto the Sidonies.

When Hiram herde the wordes of Salomon, he reioyced greatlye and sayde: Blessed be the Lorde this daye, whiche hathe set Dauid a wyse sonne ouer this myghtye people. And Hiram sent agayne to Salomon, saying: I haue allowed the requeste whiche thou sentest to me, and wyll satisfye all thy luste concernyng tymber of Cedar trees and fyrre. My seruauntes shall bringe them frome Libanon to the see. And I wyl conueye them by shippe vnto the place that thou shalt assigne me, and wyll cause them to be discharged there, that thou mayste receyue them. And thou shalte do me this pleasure agayn, to gyue me graynes towarde my housholdynge. And So Hiram gaue Salomon Cedar trees, and fyrre trees, as moche as he desyred. And Salomon gaue Hiram twentye thousande quarters of wheate to fede his houshold with, and twentye buttes of pure oyle. And so moche gaue Salomon to Hiram yerely.

And the Lord gaue Salomon wysdome, as he promised him. And there was peax betwene Hiram & Salomon, and they were in a leage together. And kyng Salomon raysed a tribute throwe out all Israel. And the tribute was thyrtye thousande men, whiche he sent to Libanon, ten thousande a moneth by course, so that they were one moneth in Libanon, and two monethes at home.

And Adoniram was ruler ouer the tribute. So Salomon hadde three score and ten thousande that bare burdens, and three score and ten thousande that hewed in the mountaynes, besyde the Lordes he hadde to ouerse the worke, in nombre three thousand and three hundred, who gouerned the people that wrought in the worke. And at the commaundemente of the kynge, they brought greate stones, and that free stones, and hewed therto, to laye in the foundacion of the house. And Salomons masons, and the masons of Hiram dyd hewe them, with them of the borders. And so they prepared both tymbre and stone to buylde the house.

¶ The feame and forme of the temple Porche and Aultare, &c.

CAPI. VI.

AND it came to passe in the foure hundred and foure score yere, after the chyldren of Israell were come oute of the lande of Egypte, and the fourthe yere of the raygne of Salomon vpon Israel, and the seconde moneth called ✠ Zif, that he began to buylde the temple vnto the Lorde. And the house whiche Salomon buylte for the Lorde was three score cubytes longe, and twentye brode, and thirtye cubytes hye. And the porche that was before the body of the temple, was twentye cubytes longe, after the measure of the bredth of the house, and tenne brode/ euen at the verye ende of the house. And he made vnto the house, wyndowes to open and shutte.

And vnder the walles of the house, he made galeryes rounde aboute, bothe aboute the temple, and also the quere. And so made sydes rounde aboute. And the nethermoste galerye was fyue cubytes brode, and the myddle galerye fyue, and the thyrde seuen cubytes brode. For he made the walles without wheron the beames laye, euer thynner and thynner, so that they were not fastened in the walles of the house. And the house was buylte of stone made perfecte alredye er it was broughte thyther, so that there was neither hammer or axe, eyther anye toole of yron herde in the house, whyle it was in buyldynge. And the wose of the myddle galerye was in the ende of the house on the ryghte syde. And men wente vp with wyndyng steares in to the myddle galerye, and oute of the myddle in to the thyrde. And so he buylte the house and finished it, and rouffe it with beames of Cedar tymbre, made dolowe and ioyned togyther. Then he buylte chambres ouer all the temple of fyue cubytes heyght, and coupled the house togyther with beames of Cedar.

And the worde of the Lorde came to Salomon, sayinge: concernynge the house whiche thou art a buyldynge, yf thou wylte walke in myne ordinaunces, and execute my lawes, and kepe all my commaundementes, to walke in them: then wyll I make good vnto the, my promes ✠ whiche I promysed Dauid thy father. ✠ And I wyll dwelle amonge the chyldren of Israel, and wyll not forsake my people Israel. And so Salomon buylte the house and fynyshed it, and syled the walles of the house within, with ybbes of Cedar tree, euen from the pauement vnto the rouffe, dyd he syle it within, and bonded the flooze of the house with planckes of fyrre.

And he syled twentye cubytes in the ende of the temple, bothe flooze and walles with Cedar, and dressed it within to be the quere, and place moste holye. And the fyrste house, that is to saye, the body of the temple, was fourtye cubytes longe. And the Cedar of the ¶ house within, was kerued with knoppes and grauen with floures, and all was Cedar tymber, so that no stone was sene. And the quere that was within the temple, he prepared to set there the arcke of the Lordes testament. And the quere was twentie cubites long/ and twentye in bredth, and twentye in heyght. And he syled it with pure golde, and bonded the aulter with Cedar. And Salomon syled the house within also with pure golde. And he made golden barres tunne alonge the quere, whiche he hadde couered with golde. And the hole house he ouerlayde with golde, vntyll he had ended it. And the aulter that was in the quere, he ouerlayde with golde also. And within the quere he made two ✠ Cherubyns of olyue tree, ten ✠Exod.xxv.b cubytes hyghe a pece, and euery wynge fiue cubytes longe, so that from the vttermost parte of one wynge, vnto the vttermost parte of the other, were ten cubytes. And the other Cherub was ten cubytes hyghe also, so that bothe the Cherubes were of one measure and one syse. The heyght of the one Cherub was ten cubytes, and so was it of the other. And he put the Cherubes in the middle of the inner house. ✠ And the Cherubs stretched theyr wynges, so ✠Exod.xxv.b that the one wynge of the one touched the one D wall, and the one wynge of the other touched the other walle. And the other two wynges of them touched one an other in the myddes of the house. And he ouerlayde the Cherubes with golde.

And the walles of the house rounde about he garnyshed with worke of Cherubs and palme trees, and grauen floures, bothe within in the quere, and without in the temple. And the flooze of the house he couered with golde/ bothe within in the quere, and also without in the temple. And in the entering of the quere he made two doores of olyue tree, with the vpper and two syde postes, fyue square. And the two wozes of olyue tree, he graued with graynge of Cherubes and palme trees, and graued floures, an couered them with golde, and layde golde ouer the Cherubes, and also the palme trees. And in lyke maner vnto the woze of the temple, he made postes of olyue tree foure square, and two dozes of fyrre tree, and either woze with two folding leues. and graued theron Cherubes, palme trees, & flowres, and couered them with gold made playne by a ruler. And then he buylte the inner court with thre rowes of hewed stone, and one rowe of Cedar wodde.

In the fourthe yere of his raygne was the foundacion of the house of the Lorde layde/ euen in the moneth Zif, and in the eleuenth yere in the moneth ✠ Bul, whiche the eyghte moneth, it was full fynished in all that perteyned therto, and fashioned as it should be in all poyntes. And so was he seuen yere in buyldynge of it. 3 Reg.vi.c. Octobr.

CAPI. VII.

A AND Salomon buylte his owne houſe in thyrteene yere ſpace, and full finiſhed it. And he buylte the houſe of the wodde of Libanon, an hundred cubytes longe, and fyfftye broode, and thyrtye hyghe, foure ſquare with rowes of Cedar pyllers, and Cedar beames alonge vpon the pyllers. And the rouffe was Cedar aboue an hyghe vpon the beames that laye an hyghe on the pyllers, whiche pyllers, were fourtye and fyue in nombre/ fyfteene on a rowe/ and the ſpaces betwene the pyllers were one agaynſte an other three folde. And all the wozes with the ſyde poſtes were foure ſquare one agaynſte an other thre folde.

And he made a porche of pyllers fiftye cubites longe, and thyrtye cubytes broode/and per a porche before that with pillers/and a thicke pyller before that. Then he made a porche to ſyt and iudge in, ſyled with Cedar euen frome the pauementes, vnto the top. And his owne houſe where he kept reſidēce in an other court without that porche, was of the ſame worke. And then Salomon made an houſe for Pharaos doughter, whiche he had take to wyfe, lyke vnto that porche.

B And all theſe thynges were of ryche ſtones hewed after a meaſure, and ſawed with ſawes within and without/euen from the foundacion, vnto the cop of the walles/and on the oute ſyde therto towarde the great court. And the foundacion was of ryche ſtones, and that myghtye greate ſtones of ten cubytes, and of eyght. And aboue were ryche ſtones hewed accordynge to the ſame meaſure/ and alſo with Cedar. And the great courte rounde aboute was with thre rowes of hewed ſtone, and one row of Cedar planckes. and likewiſe was it in the inner courte of the houſe of the Lorde, and of the porche of the temple. * And kynge Salomon ſent and fet one Hiram oute of Tire, a wydowes ſonne of the trybe of Nephtalim/ his father being of Tire. Whiche Hiram was a perfyte founderer, and full of wyſdome, vnderſtandynge, and connyng, to worke all maner of worke in braſſe. And he came to kynge Salomon, and wrought all his worke. He caſt two pyllers of braſſe, of eyghtene cubites a pece hyghe/and a ſtrynge of twelue cubytes myght compaſſe eyther of them about. And he made two heed peces of molten braſſe to ſette on the toppes of the pyllers, of fyue cubytes long a pece, with garlandes of brayded worke, and hoopes of chayne worke for the heed peces that were on the pyllers, ſeuen for the one and ſeuen for the other. And he made the pyllers/and for either of the heed peces a garland C with two rowes of pomegranetes to couer them with. And the heed peces that were on the toppes of the pyllers, were wrought with lylyes in the porche, the ſpace of foure cubites of them. And the pomegranetes aboue and beneth on the wrethen chaynes that compaſſed the myddle of the heed peces, were in nombre two hundred on either heed pece. And he ſet vp the pyllers in the porche of the temple/ and when he had ſet vp the ryght pyller, he called the name therof Jachin/ and when he ſet D vp the lefte pyller, he called the name therof Boaz. And the toppes of the pillers were thus wrought with lilies, and ſo was theyr worke manſhip finiſhed.

Then he caſte a ſee of braſſe tenne cubytes wyde frome brymme to brymme, and rounde in compaſſe, and fyue cubytes hyghe. And a ſtrynge of foortye cubytes myghte compaſſe it aboute/and vnder the brymme of it as it were apples compaſſed and embraſed the ſee often cubytes wyde in two rowes caſt with it when it was caſte. And it ſtode on twelue oxen/ of whiche, three loked Northe, three Weſt, three South, and three Eaſt/and the ſee on hygh vpō them/ & all theyr hynder partes were inwarde. And it was an handē bredth thycke, and the brym wrought lyke the brymme of a cup with floures of lylies. And it contayned two thouſande Bathes.

And he made ten botomes of braſſe, foure cubites longe, and foure cubites broode a pece, and thre hyghe. And the wozkes of the bottomes was on this maner that the ſydes were, as it were flatte bordes betwene the ledges. And on the flatt bordes betwene the ledges were lyons, oxen, and Cherubes. And vpō the ledges that were aboue and beneth the lyons and oxen, was toyned pendant worke. And euerye bottome hadde foure braſen wheles/ whoſe axeltrees were alſo of braſſe. And in the foure cozners were vnderſetters vnder the lauatozye caſte eche ouer agaynſte his fellowe.

And the ſtalke of the lauatozye was in the myddle of the bottome one cubyte hyghe/ and a cubyte and an half rounde/and it had knoppes theron in the bare places, whiche were foure ſquare, not rounde. And vnder the ſydes were foure wheles / and theyr axeltrees toyned faſte to the bottome. And the heyghte of euerye whele was a cubyte and an halfe. And the wozkemanſhyp of the wheles was lyke the wozke of a charet whele. And the axeltrees, the nauelles, ſpokes, and felkes were all moulten. And the foure vnderſetters in the foure cozners, were of the ſame bottomes.

And vnder the ſtalcke of the lauatozye in the myddes of the bottome, was there a rounde fote of halfe a cubyte hyghe. And theron playne places and ledges of the ſelfe. And he graued in the playne, and alſo on the ledges, Cherubes, lyons, & palme trees, euerye where rounde aboute. And on this maner he made the ten bottomes caſt wozke: all of one meaſure and one eyſe. Then he made ten lauers of braſſe, containynge fourtye Bathes a pece, and they were of four cubytes a pece for euerye one of the bottomes a lauer. And he put fyue of thoſe bottomes on the ryght cozner of the temple/and other fiue on the lefte/and put the ſee on the ryght cozner of the temple Eaſtwarde and and towarde the Southe. And Hyram made potres, ſhouelles, and baſons/and ſo finiſhed all the worke that he made kynge Salomon for the houſe of the Lorde: that is to ſaye, two pyllers, and two ſcalpes of the heedes that were on the toppes of the two pyllers, and foure hundred pomegranetes vpon two wrethes/ two rowes on either wrethe, to couer the two ſcalpes of the heedes, that were on the toppes of the two pyllers: and the ten bottomes of braſſe, with ten lauers vpon them/ and a ſee with twelue oxen vnder it/ and potres ſhouels and baſens. And all theſe velleſſes whiche Hiram made to kynge Salomon for the houſe of the E Lord, were of bryght braſſe. And in the playne of Jordan dyd the kynge caſte them: euen in the clay of the erthe betwene Socoth and Zarthan. And Salomon left all the velleſſes vnwayed, for the excedinge abundaunce of braſſe that was in them.

And Salomō made all the velleis that pertayned vnto the houſe of the Lord/the aulter of gold/and & table of golde wheron the ſhewbred was put. And fyue candelſtyckes for the ryght ſyde/and as many for the left, before the quere of pure golde: with floures, lampes, and ſnoffers of golde/and bolles, pfalteries, baſōs, ſpones and fire pannes of pure golde, and hinges of golde, bothe for the wozes of the quere, the place moſt holy/ and for the wozes of the temple alſo.

And ſo was ended all the worke that kyng Salomō made for the houſe of the Lorde. And then * Salomō brought in the thinges which Dauid his father had dedicate in ſyluer, golde, and other velleis, and put them to the treaſure of the houſe of the Lorde.

¶ The Arke is borne in to the temple. A Cloude fylleth the temple. The temple is bleſſed.

CAPI. VIII.

A THen Salomon gathered the elders of Iſrael, all the heedes of the trybes, and auncient lordes of the chyldren of Iſrael, vnto him to Jeruſalem, to bringe vp the arcke of the teſtament of the Lord out of the city of Dauid, whych is Sion. And all the men of Iſrael aſſembled vnto kyng Salomō, to the feaſt that fallyth in the moneth Ethanim, whiche is the ſeuenth moneth. And when al the elders of Iſrael were come, the prieſts toke vp & arcke of the Lord/and brought it and alſo the tabernacle of witneſſe, and all the holy veſſels that were therin. And the prieſtes and the Leuites brought them vp. And kyng Salomon and all the company of Iſrael that were aſſembled. & were with him before the arcke, did offre theyr and oxen that could not be tolde nor nombred for multitude.

And ſo the prieſtes brought the arcke of the Lordes teſtament vnto his place, cuē in to the quere of the temple, and place moſt holy, vnder the wynges of the Cherubes. For the Cherubes ſtretched out their winges ouer & arcke, and couered both it and alſo the ſtaues therof a pe vpō it. How be it the ſtaues were ſo long that the endes of them appered out of the holy place before the quere/ but on the oute ſyde were they not ſene, and there they be vnto this B Deuter. x. & day. And there was nothing in the arche, ſaue Exo. xxxiiii. b & two tables of ſtone, which Moſes put there at Horeb, when the Lorde made an appoyntment with the chyldren of Iſraell, after they were come forth of Egypte.

And when the prieſtes were come out of the holye place / then a cloude fylled the houſe of the Lorde, that the prieſtes coulde not endure to miniſter breauſe of the cloude: for the glorye of the Lorde had fylled the houſe of the Lorde. Then ſpake Salomon: the Lorde ſaid ii. Paral. vi. a that he wolde dwelle in darckeneſſe. I haue buylte the an houſe to dwelle in, and an habitacion for the to abyde in for euer. And & kyng turned his face, and bleſſed all the congregacion of Iſrael, all the cougregacion ſtandinge. And he ſayd: Bleſſed be the Lorde God of Iſrael, whiche hath fulfylled with his hand, that he ſpake with his mouthe vnto Dauid my father: ſayinge: frome the daye I brought my people Iſrael forthe of Egypte, I chose no cytye amonge anye of the trybes of Iſraell, to buyld an houſe that my name myght be there: But I haue chosen Dauid to be ruler ouer my people Iſrael.

And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buylde an houſe for the name of the Lorde ii. Reg. vii. a God of Iſrael. But the Lorde God ſayd vnto Dauid my father/ in that it was in thyne herte to buylde an houſe for my name, thou dyddeſt well, that thou walt ſo mynded. Neuertheleſſe thou ſhalt not buylde the houſe, but thy ſonne that ſhall come out of thy loynes, ſhall buyld an houſe for my name. And the Lorde hathe L made good his word that he ſpake. For I ſtode vp in the rowme of Dauid my father, and ſate on the ſeate of Iſrael, as the Lorde promiſed/ and haue buylte an houſe for the name of the Lorde God of Iſraell. And I haue prepared therin a place for & arcke wherin the couenaūt of the Lorde is, whiche he made with oure fathers, after he had brought them out of the lande of Egypte. And Salomon ſtode before the aulter of the Lorde in the ſyghte of all the people of Iſrael, and ſtretched out his handes i. Mach. ii. b to heuen, and ſayd: Lord God of Iſrael, there is no God lyke the in heuen aboue, or in the earthe beneth/ that kepeſt appoyntment and mercye with thy ſeruaūtes that walke before the with all theyr hertes/ whiche alſo haſt kept with thy ſeruaunt Dauid my father, that thou promyſedſt him. Thou ſpakeſt with thy mouthe/ and haſt fulfylled with thyne hande, as it is come to paſſe this day. And now Lorde ii. Reg. viii. b. God of Iſraell kepe with thy ſeruaunte Dauid my father, that thou promyſedſt him, ſayinge: thou ſhalte not be without one or other before me, ſyttynge on the ſeate of Iſrael: So neuertheleſſe, yf thy chyldren ſhall take hede to theyr wayes that they walke before me, as thou haſte walked before me. Nowe then, O Lorde God of Iſrael / let thy worde be ſtable whiche thou ſpakeſt vnto thy ſeruaunt Dauid my father.

But in dede can God dwelle on the earthe?

Beholde, neyther heuen, nor heuen aboue all
heuens are hable to conteyn the: how moche
lesse then this house ꝑ I haue buylte? but loke
to the prayer of thy seruaunt and his supplica cion, o Lord my God, to gyue an eare vnto the voyce and prayer which thy seruaunt prayeth
before the this daye, that thyne eyes maye be open vpon this house nyght and day, and vpō Deuter.xii.k. the place, of whiche thou hast said, my name
shall be there: that thou harken vnto ꝑ praye er whiche thy seruaunte shall praye in this place. And herke vnto the supplication of thy seruaunt and of thy people Israel which they shal pray in this place: And heare thou vp vn
to heuen thy dwellyng place/ and when thou hearest, haue mercye. And yf any man trespace D agaynst his neyghbour, & his neyghbour take an aduiration to adiure him withall, and the adiuration come before thyne aulter at this house, then harken thou vp to heuen, & worke
and iudge thy seruantes, that thou condemne
the wicked, to bryng his waye vpon his heed,
and iustifie the ryghtous, to gyue him accor ding to his righteousnesse. Whē thy people Is rael be put to the worse before their enemies, bicause they haue synned agaynst the, & after warde turne agayne to the, & prayse thy name,
and praye and make supplication vnto the in this house, then heare thou vp to heuen, & be merciful vnto the synne of thy people Israel,
and bryng them agayne vnto the land which thou gauest vnto their fathers.

Yf heuen be shut vp, that there be no rayne,
bicause they haue synned agaynste the: yet yf
they praye in this place, and prayse thy name,
and turne frō their synnes, thorow thy scour
gynge of them/ then heare thou vp to heuen,
and be mercyful vnto the synne of thy seruaū
tes, and of thy people Israel, that thou shewe
them a good way to walke in, and giue rayne vpon thy land that thou hast gruen vnto thy people to inherete.

Yf there chaunce derth in the lande, pesty
lence, blastyng, or wytherynge of corne, or that the frutes be deuoured of grashoppers, or ca
terpyllers, or yf their ennemyes beseige them
in the lande, & in their owne cities, or what so euer plage or sickenesse chaūce/ then heare thou vp to heuen thy dwellyng place, all the praye
ers and supplications that shall be made of al
men thorowe out all thy people Israel, whi che shall knowlege euerye man the plage of his owne hert/ and stretche forthe his handes
vnto this house/ and be mercyful and worke,
and gyue euery man accordyng to his wayes/(euen as thou only knowest euerye mannes herte/ for thou knowest the hertes of all the chyldren of Adam) that they may feare the as longe as they lyue vpon the erth whiche thou gauest vnto their fathers And lykewyse yf a straunger ꝑ is not of thy people Israel, cmoe
out of a farre countreye for thy names sake/(for they shall heare of thy great name and of thy myghtye hande, and stretched oute arme)
and therefore yf he come & praye at this place/
heare thou vp to heuen thy dwellynge place,
and doo accordynge to all that the straunger
calleth to the for, that all nations of the erth
maye knowe thy name/ to feare the as do thy people Israell/ and that it maye be knowen
that thy name is called vpon ouer this house
whiche I haue buylte.

And when they go out to battayle agaynst
their enemies whither so euer thou shalt send them, and shall praye vnto the Lorde towarde
the citye which thou hast chosen, and towarde
the house ꝑ I haue buylt for thy name: heare thou their prayers and supplicatiōs, vp to he uen, and iudge their cause.

And finally, when they shal haue synned a gaynst the (for there is no man ꝑ synneth not)
and thou art angeye with them, and hast deli
uered them to their ennemyes, that they be ca ried awaye ppysoners vnto the lande of their ennemyes, whether farre or nere/ yet yf they tourne agayne vnto their hertes in the lande
where they be in captiuitie/ and retourne and praye vnto the in the lande of them that hold them captyue, sayinge: we haue synned, and haue done wyckedly, and haue trespaced, and so turne agayn vnto the, with all their hertes
and all their soules in the lande of their enne
mies whiche holde them captyue, and pray vn
to the, towarde the lande whiche thou gauest
vnto their fathers/ and toward the citye whi
che thou hast chosen, and house which I haue buylte for thy name: then heare thou their prayer and supplication vp to heuen thy dwel ling place, and iudge their causes/ and be mer
cyfull vnto thy people ꝑ haue synned agaynst
the, and vnto all their trespace that they haue trespaced agaynst the/ and get the fauoure in the syghte of them that holde them captyue/that they may haue compassion on them. For they be thy people, and thyne inheritaunce, whiche thou broughtest oute of Egypte/ from the * fornace of yron. And lette thyne eyes be open vnto the prayer of thy seruaūt and vnto
the prayer of thy people Israel/ to harken vn to them in all they call vnto the for. For thou dydest seuere them to be thyne inheritaunce,
aboue all the nations of the earthe/ as thou
saydest by the hande of Moses thy seruaunt, when thou broughtest our fathers oute of E
gypte, O Lorde almyghtye.

When Salomon had made an ende of pray
inge all this prayer and supplication vnto the Lorde/ he arose from the aulter of the Lorde,
and frome kneelynge on his knees, and frome
stretchynge his handes vp to heuen, and stode
and blessed all the cōgregation of Israel with a loude voyce, sayinge: Blessed be the Lorde
that hathe gruen gruen reste vnto his people Israel according to al ꝑ he promised: * so that there is not one worde escaped of all the good promyses whiche he promysed by the hand of Moses his seruaunt. And the Lorde oure God be with vs, as he was with oure fathers/ and forsake vs not neither leaue vs, but that he bowe our hertes vnto hym, to walke in all his wayes/ and to kepe his commaundements,
ordinaunces and rites, whiche he commaun
ded our fathers. And these my wordes whiche
I haue prayed before the Lorde, be nye vnto
the Lorde oure God daye and nyght, that he defende the cause of his seruaunte and of his people

people Israel euermore, that all nations of the erth maye knowe that the Lorde is God, and none but he. And I praye God that your her tes maye be sounde with the Lorde our God,
to walke in his ordinaunces, and to kepe his lawes, as we do this daye.

And the kyng and all Israel with him, offe red offeringes before the Lord. * And the peax offeringes that Salomon offered vnto ꝑ Lord
were .xxij. thousande oxen, and an hundred and .xx. thousande sheye. And so the kynge and all the children of Israel halowed the house of the Lord. And the same day the kyng halowed
the middle of the court that is before the house of the Lorde/ for there he offered burntofferyn
gys, and meatofferynges, & the fat of the peax offerynges, bicause the brasen aulter that was before the Lorde, was to lytle to receyue the burntofferynges and meatofferynges, and the fat of the peaxofferynges.

And Salomon helde that same tyme an hye
feast, and all Israell with hym, a mightye con gregation, euen from the coostes of Hemath, vnto the ryuer of Egypt, before the Lorde our God, seuen dayes, and yet seuen dayes, that is fourtene dayes. And the eight daye he sent the people awaye. And they blessed the kynge and wente vnto their tentes ioyous and gladde in herte, for all the goodnesse that the Lord had shewed vnto Dauid his seruaunt, and to Is rael his people.

¶ The Lorde appeareth agayne to Salomon. Sa lomon giueth townes to Hiram. The Cananites be come tributaryes. He lendeth shyppes for gold. And buyldeth many cytyes.

CAPI. IX.

When Salomon had fynyshed the buyl
dynge of the house of the Lorde, and of the kynges palace/ and all that his desire and lust was to make: the Lorde appeared vn
to him agayne, as he appeared to hym at Ga
baon. And the Lorde sayde vnto him: I haue hierd thy prayer and intercession that thou ma
dest before me, and haue halowed this house
whiche thou hast buylt to put my name there for euer/ and myne eyes and myne hert shal be there perpetually. And if thou wylt walke be fore me, as Dauid thy father walked, in pure nesse of herte and playnesse, to do all that I
haue commaunded the, and shalte kepe myne ordinaunces and rytes: then I wyl settle the state of thy kyngdom vpon Israel for euer, as I promised Dauid thy father, saying: * Thou shalte not be without one or other vpon the seate of Israel. That yf ye and your children shall turne alwaye from me, and shall not kepe
myne ordinaunces whiche I haue sette before you, but shall go and serue other goddes, and bowe youre selues vnto them: then I wyll
weede Israel oute of the lande whiche I haue gruen them. And this house whiche I haue ha
lowed for my name, I wyl put out of my syght.
And Israel shall be a prouerbe and a fable vn
to all nations. And this house whiche is so hye,
* all that passe by it shall be astonied, and shal

hysse and saye: why hath the Lorde dealte on this maner with this land, & with this house?
And it shal be answered them, bicause they for soke the Lord their God, which brought their fathers oute of the lande of Egypte, and haue
leaned to other goddes, and haue stouped vnto
them and serued them: therfore hath the Lord brought vpon them all this euil. Then at the ende of twenty yeres, in which Salomon had buylt the two houses/ that is to wit, the house of the Lorde, and the kynges palace: bicause
Hiram the kynge of Tire had supported him with Cedar, fyrre, and gold, as moche as he des red/ therfore Salomon gaue Hiram .xx. cities in the lande of Galile. And when Hiram was come frō Tire to se the cities which Salomon had gyuen hym/ they pleased him not. Wher fore he sayd: what cities are these which thou hast giuen me, my brother? And he called them the lande of Cabull vnto this daye. This Hi ram hadde sente the kynge sixe score hundred waight of golde. And this is the somme of the tribute which king Salomon raysed to buyld
the house of the Lorde and his owne house, & Melo, and the walles of Jerusalem and Hezer and Magedo, and Gazer.

ii.Paral.viii.

For Pharao kynge of Egypte went vp and toke Gazer and burnt it with fyre/ and slewe
the Cananites that dwelte in the citye, & gaue
it for a presente vnto his doughter that was Salomons wyfe. And Salomon buylt Gazer and Beth Horon the nether, and Baalath and Thamar in the wyldernesse that is in ꝑ land/
and all the stoore cityes that Salomon hadde,
and cityes for his charettes, and cityes for his
horsemen, and all that his lust was to buylde
in Jerusalem and Libanon, and in al the lande
of his kyngdome.

And all the people that were lefte of the Amorytes, Hethites, Pherezytes, Heuites,
and Jebusytes, whiche were not of the chyl
dren of Israel/ the chyldren of the sayde na
cyons that were lefte in the lande/ bycause
the chyldren of Israell were not hable to de stroye them/ Salomon made tributaryes vn to this daye. But of the chyldren of Israell dyd Salomon make no bondemen. But they were men of warre, and his seruauntes, and his Lordes, and Capitaynes and rulers of his charettes, and of his horsemen. And these manye Lordes that ouersawe the worke had Salomon, fyue hundred and fyfty, whiche
ruled the people that wroughte in the worke.
And Pharaos doughter came vp oute of the cytye of Dauid, vnto the house whiche Sa lomon hadde buylte for her. And after that, he buylte Melo. And thryse a yere dyd Salo mon offre burnt offerynges and peax offeryn
ges vpon the aulter whiche he hadde buylte
vnto the Lorde, to burne the fatte theron:
whiche aulter is before the Lorde. So when kynge Salomon hadde made the house per fecte, he made shyppes in Azion Gaber, whi che is beside Cloth, on the bynche of the red see, in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sente by shyppe also of his seruauntes, that were shypmen, and expert in the see, with the ser uauntes of Salomon. And they wente to Ophir.and set from thence gold.to the somme of foure hundred and.xxii.talentes, & brought it to Salomon.

¶ The Quene of Saba commeth from the furthest partes of the lande to heare and se the wysdome of Salomon. The yerely reuenues and rentes of Salomon. His throne, vessells of golde, Charettes, horsmen, and foyson of syluer.

CAPI. X.

A AND the quene of Saba herd of the wisdome of Salomon concernyng ỹ name of the Lorde, and came to proue him wt rydelles. And she came to Jerusalem with a myghty greate multitude of Camelles ỹ bare swete odoures and golde exceding moche, and precyous stones. And when she was come to Salomon, she talked with him of al that was in her herte. And Salomon expowned her all her questions, that there was not one thynge hyd from the kynge, whiche he expowned her not. And when the quene of Saba had sene al Salomons wysdome, & the house that he had buylte, and the meat of his table/and the lodgynges of his seruauntes, and the facion of his courte, and theyr apparell, and his buttlers, & his sacrifice that he offered in the house of the Lorde, she was astonied. Then she sayd to the kynge: the worde I herde in myne owne land of thy dedes and wysdome, is true. How be it I bileued it not, tyll I came and sawe it with myne eyes. And lo, the one half was not tolde me/for thy wisdom and goodnesse passeth the fame whiche I herde. Happye are thy men/

ii. Para. ix. a / Math. xii. d / Luc. xi. d

B and happye are these thy seruauntes, whiche stande euer before the and heare thy wysdom. And blessed be the Lorde thy god whiche had a lust to the, to set the on the seate of Israell, bycause the Lorde loued Israel for euer, and therfore made the kynge, to doo equitie and ryghtousnes.

Then she gaue the king an hundred and.xx. talentes of golde, and of swete odoures excedyng moche/and precious stones. There came neuer after suche abundance of swete odoures as the quene of Saba gaue to kyng Salomō. And therto ỹ shyppes of Hiram that brought golde from Ophir, brought from Ophir great plentye of ‡ Almuge tree, and precious stones. And kyng Salomō made of the Almuge trees pylers in the house of the Lorde, and in the kynges palace, and made harpes and psalteries for syngers. There came no more Almuge tre so/nor was any more sene vnto this daye. And kinge Salomon gaue vnto ỹ quene of Saba all her desyre that she asked of hym/ besydes that he gaue her with his owne hand. And so she retourned vnto her owne countrey with her seruauntes.

‡ Some reade Courall. Some Brasill.

C The weight of golde that came to Salomō euery yere, was.vi. hundred thre score and.vi. talentes of golde, besides that he had of chapmen, and of marchauntes, of potticaries, and of all the kinges of Arabie, and of the lordes of ỹ countrey. And kyng Salomon made two hundred bucklers of beaten gold/sixe hūdred sicles of golde went to a buckler. And he made thre hundred shyldes of beaten golde, thre pounde of golde goyngē to a pece, and put them in the house of the wodde of Libanon.

And the kyng made a great seate of Iuorye and couered it with precyous golde. And the seate had sixe steppes. And the top of the seate was rounde behynde his backe, with pomels on either syde on the place where he sate/ and two lyons standynge besyde the pomelles. And there stode twelue lyons on the steppes, sixe on a syde. There was none lyke sene in any kingdome. And all kyng Salomons drinkynge cuppes were of golde, and all the garnysshement of the house of the wod of Libanon, were of pure golde. And as for syluer, it was nothynge worthe in the dayes of Salomon. For the see shyppes whiche the kyng had in the see, with the shyppes of Hiram, came euery thyrd yere laden with golde, syluer, Iuorye, apes, and pecockes. * And so kynge Salomon passed all the kynges of the erth in riches and wysdome. And all the worlde resorted to Salomon, to heare his wysdome whiche God had put in his herte. And broughte him euerye man his present, vessels of syluer and of gold/ and of rayment, harnesse, swete odoures, horses, and Mules, yere by yere. And Salomō gathered togyther charettes and horsemen/ so that he had a thousand and foure hundred charettes, and twelue thousande horsemen, which he bestowed in the charet cityes, and with the kynge at Jerusalem.

* And the kynge made syluer in Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar as plenteous as the mulbery trees that grow in the valeyes. And Salomons horsses came out of Egypt frome Keua. The marchauntes fet them from Keua at a price. A charet came out of Egypt for.vi.hundred sicles of siluer, & an horse for an hundred & fiftye. And euen so by the handes of the sayde marchauntes, horsses were brought out for al the kinges of the Hethites, and for the kynges of Siria.

¶ Salomon hath seuen hundred Quenes and thre hundred Concubynes, whiche brynge him to Idolatrye. His aduersaryes rebell agaynste hym. He dyeth, and Jeroboam his sonne raygneth in his stede.

CAPI. XI.

BUt kyng Salomon loued many outlandyshe women: the doughter of Pharao/ and of the Moabites, Ammonites, Edomites, Zidonites, and Hethites/euen of nacions of which the Lorde sayd vnto the chyldren of Israel, se ye come not at them, nor let thē come to you/for surely they wyll turne your hertes after theyr goddes. Neuerthelesse to suche Salomon claue, and fel in loue with them. * And he had seuen hundred verye quenes, and thre hundred concubynes, whiche turned away his hert. For when Salomon was olde. his wiues turned his hert after other goddes, so that his hert was not perfect with the Lord his God, as was the hert of Dauid his father.

And Salomon folowed Astaroth the God of

B of the Zidons, and Milcom the abhominacion of the Ammonites. So Salomō wrought wyckednesse in the sight of the Lorde, and continued not after the Lorde as dyd Dauid his father. After that Salomon buylte an aulter for Chamos the abhominacion of the Moabites in the hyll that standeth before Jerusalem, and vnto Moloch the abhominacion of the chyldren of Ammon. And semblably dyd he for all his outlandyshe wiues which burnt incense and offered vnto theyr Goddes. Then was the Lorde angry with Salomon, because his hert turned from the Lorde God of Israel whiche appeared vnto hym twyse, and gaue him a charge of this thinge that he sholde not folowe other Goddes. But he kepte not that whiche the Lorde commaunded hym: wherevpon the Lord sayd to Salomō: for as moch as this is done of the, and thou haste not kept myne appoyntment & myne ordinaūces which I haue commaunded the, therfore I wyll rent the kingdome from the, and wil gyue it to thy

C seruant. Notwithstanding in thy dayes I wil not do it, bicause of Dauid thy father: but wil take it frō thy sonne. How be it I wil not take away al: but wil giue one tribe to thy sonne, bicause of Dauid my seruaunt, and bicause of Jerusalem, whiche I haue chosen.

Then the Lord stered vp an aduersary vnto Salomon, one Hadad an Edomite, and of the kynges linage of Edom. For whē Dauid was in Edom, and Joab the capitayne of the hoste was gone vp to burye them that were slayn, & had slayne all the men chyldren in Edom. For sixe monethes dyd Joab remayne there, and al Israel, tyll he had destroyed all the men chyldren in Edom. And this Hadad fled, & certeyn other Edomites of his fathers seruauntes wt him, to go to Egypt, Hadad beinge yet a litle lad. And they arose out of Madian, and went

D to Pharan, and toke men with them oute of Pharan, & came to Egypt vnto Pharao kyng therof, which gaue him an house/and appoynted him vitayles, and gaue him landes. And Hadad gat great fauour in the sight of Pharao, so that he gaue him to wyfe the syster of his owne wyfe, the syster of Thahaphnes the quene. And the sister of Thahaphnes bare him Genubath his sonne. And Thahaphnes weaned him in Pharaos house. And he was ī Pharaos house among the sonnes of Pharao. And when Hadad herde saye in Egypte that Dauid was layde to slepe with his fathers/ and that Joab the capitayne of the hoste was deed also/he sayd to Pharao: let me departe, that I maye go to myne owne countrey. Then sayde Pharao vnto hym: what lackest thou heare with me, that thou woldest go to thyne owne countreye? And he sayd, nothynge: how be it let me go. And God stered vp an other aduersarye, one Razon the sonne of Eliada, whiche fled from Hadadezer kyng of Zobah his master. This Rason gathered men vnto him, and became capitayne ouer an armye, when Dauid slewe them. And they went to Damasco, & dwelte therin/and raygned in Damasco. And he was an aduersarye to Israel all the dayes of Salomon, with the euill that Hadad dyd, which abhorred Israel, and raygned in Siria.

E And Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat an Ephrathite of Zaredah (whose mother was called Zeruah, and was a wydowe, and he Salomons seruaunt) lyfte vp his hande agaynst the kyng/and herof came it, that he lyfte vp his hande agaynst the kynge. Salomon buylt Melo, and mended broken places in the citye of Dauid his father. And this felowe Jeroboam was an actiue man. And when Salomō sawe the yong man that he wrought so lustelye in the worke, he made him ruler ouer all the charges of the house of Joseph. And it chaūsed at that season, as Jeroboam was gone out of Jerusalem, that the Prophete Ahiah the Silonite met him by the waye, hauyng a new mantell on him, & they two alone in the felde. And Ahiah caught the newe mantel that was

F on him, and rent it in twelue peces, and said to Jeroboam: take the ten peces. For thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel: beholde I wil rent the kingdome out of the handes of Salomon, and wil gyue ten tribes to the/ & he shall haue one, for my seruaunt Dauids sake, and for Jerusalem, the citye whiche I haue chosen oute of all the trybes of Israell, bicause they haue forsaken me, and haue bowed them selues vnto Astaroth the God of the Zidons/ and to Chamos the God of the Moabites/ and to Milcom, the God of the chyldren of Ammon, and haue not walked in my wayes, to do that pleaseth me/ and myne ordynaunces and rytes: as dyd Dauid his father.

How be it I wyll take none of the kyngdome oute of his hande/ but wyll make hym chyefe all his lyfe longe, for Dauid my seruauntes sake, whiche I chose, bycause he kept my commaundementes and ordinaunces. But I wyl take the kyngdome forth of his sonnes hande, and wyll gyue vnto the ten trybes of it/ and wyll gyue his sonne one, that Dauid my seruaunte maye haue a lyghte alwaye before me in Jerusalem the citye which I haue chosen me, to put my name there. And I wyll take the, and thou shalte raygne vpon all that thy soule desyreth, & shalt be king ouer Israel.

G And yf thou shalt harken vnto al that I commaunde the, and shalte walke in my wayes/ and do that is righte in my syghte/that thou kepe myne ordinaunces and commaundementes/as Dauid my seruaūt dyd: then will I be with the, and buylde the an house that shall continue/ as I buylte for my seruaunte Dauid/ and I wyll gyue Israell vnto the. And therwith wyll I vexe the seed of Dauid, but not for euer. And Salomon sought to kyl Jeroboam/wherfore Jeroboam arose, and fledde in to Egypte, vnto Sesak kynge of Egypte, and continued there tyll the deathe of Salomon. The reste of the actes of Salomon, and all that he dyd, and his wysdome, are wrytten in the boke of the actes of Salomon. And the tyme that Salomon raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israell, was fourtye yeres. And then he layde hym to reste with his fathers, and was buryed in the citye of Dauid his father, and Reboboam his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ The kyngdome is deuyded: & Rehoboam raygneth ouer.ii. trybes, and Ieroboam ouer.x. Aduram is stoned. Ieroboam maketh golden calues.

CAPI. XII.

A AND Rehoboam wente to Sichem: for al Israel were come to Sichem to make him kynge. And when Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat herd of it, being yet in Egypt: for he had fledde to Egypte, for feare of Salomon/and dwelte there. And they sent and called him: and so Ieroboam and all the assemble of Israel came and spake vnto Rehoboam, saringe: thy father made oure yoke greuous, but now make thou the greuous seruice of thy father, and his sore yoke whiche he put vpon vs, lyghter/ and so we wyll serue the. And he sayde vnto them: departe yet for the space of thre dayes, and then come agayne to me. And the people departed.

And kynge Rehoboam toke counsell with the olde men that stode before Salomon his father, whyle he yet lyued, and sayde: what counsel geue ye to answere this people with? B And they sayde vnto hym. Yf thou shalte be a seruaunt vnto this people this day, and serue them, and answere them, and speke kynde wordes to them, they wyll be thy seruauntes for euer. But he lefte the counsell that the olde men had gyuen hym, and counselled with the yonge men that were nourysshed vp with him and had wayted on him.

The counsell of the olde men deiected.

And he sayd vnto them: what counsel geue ye, to answere this people, whiche haue communed with me saringe: make the yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs, lyghter? And the yong men that were brought vp with him answered him, saringe: this people that haue sayd vnto the: thy father made our yoke heuy make thou it vs lyghter: thus answere them. Eccle.xlvii. d C My lytle fynger shall be wayghtyer then my L fathers loynes. And nowe where my father put a greuous yoke vpon you, I wyll make it heuyer. For where my father corrected you with scourges, I wyll chastyse you with scorpyons. And when Ieroboam, and all the people were come to Rehoboam the thyrde daye, as the kynge appoynted them, saringe: come to me agayne this daye thre dayes/ the kynge answered the people churlysshely, and lefte the aduyse that the olde men gaue hym/ and spake to theym after the counsell of the yonge men, saringe. My father made youre yoke greuous, but I wyll make it greuouser. For where my father chastysed you with D whyppes, I wyll chastyse you with scorpyons. And so the kynge harkened not vnto the people: for the turnynge awaye was of the Lord, *iii.Reg.xi. f * to performe his saringe, whiche the Lorde sayde by Ahiah the Silonite vnto Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat.

And when all Israel sawe that the kynge harded them not/the people answered the king agayne, saringe: we haue no parte in Dauid, ii.Paralip.x.d. nor inheritaunce in the sonne of Isai. * Hasten to youre tentes therfore Israel, and nowe se to thyne owne house Dauid. And so Israel departed vnto theyr tentes. Now be it ouer the chyldren of Israel whiche dwelte in the city of Iuda, did Rehoboam raygne styl. Then king Rehoboam sent Aduram the receyuer of the tribute. And al Israel stoned him to deth with stones. But king Rehoboam made spede and gat E him vp to his charet, & fled to Ierusalem. And so Israel departed from the house of Dauid vnto this daye. And when al Israel herd that Ieroboam was come agayn, they sent and called hym vnto the congregacyon, and made hym kynge ouer Israell: so folowed the house of Dauid, but the tribe of Iuda only. * And whē Rehoboam was come to Ierusalem, he gathered all the house of Iuda, and all the tribe of Benjamin an hundred and foure score thousandes of chosen men & good warriours, to fight agaynst the house of Israel/and to bringe the kyngdome agayne of Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon. Then came the worde of the Lorde F vnto Semeiah the man of God, saying/ speke vnto Rehoboam the sonne of Salomon kyng of Iuda, and vnto all the house of Iuda and Benjamin, and the remnaunt of the people, and saye, Thus sayth the Lorde: goo not nor yet fight agaynst your brethren the children of Israel, but returne euery man to his house, for this doynge is of the Lorde. And they obeyed the worde of the Lorde, and returned and departed accordynge to the worde of the Lorde. Then Ieroboam buylte Sichem in mount Ephraim, and dwelte therin. And wente frome thence and buylt Phanuel.

And Ieroboam thought in his herte: nowe might the kingdome returne to ỹ house of Dauid agayne. For yf this people shall go vp and do sacrifyce in the house of the Lorde at Ierusalem: then shal theyr hertes turne agayn vnto their Lorde Rehoboam kynge of Iuda: and so shall they kyll me, and go agayne to Rehoboam kynge of Iuda. * Wherupon the kynge toke counsell and made two calues of golde, and sayd vnto the people: ye shall not nede to goo ayne more to Ierusalem. Beholde, youre Gods (Israel) whiche brought you oute of the lande of Egypt. And he put the one in Bethel and the other in Dan. And that doynge was a cause of synne. And the people wente to worshyp the calfe, as farre as Dan. And he made temples in the hylles, and made of the lowest of the people preestes, whiche were not of the sonnes of Leui. And Ieroboam made a feaste the fyftene daye of the eyght moneth, lyke vnto the feast that was in Iuda, and offered on the aulter. And so dyd he in Bethel, to offre vnto the calues ỹ he had made. And he put in Bethel the preestes of the hyllaulters, whiche he had made. And he offered vpon the aulter whiche he had made in Bethel, the fyftene daye of the eyght moneth, whiche he had ymagined of his owne herte/ and made a solempne feast vnto the chyldren of Israel, and wente vp to the aulter to burne sacrifyce.

¶ Ieroboam sacrifyinge vnto Calues, is reproued of the Prophete. His hande dryeth vp whyle he putteth it out agaynst the Prophete. The Prophete is kylled and buryed.

CAPI. XIII.

A AND beholde, there came a man of God out of Iuda with the worde of God, to Bethel, as Ieroboam stode by the aultar to offer, and cryed agaynst the aultare at the cōmaundement of the Lorde and sayd: aultare, aultare, thus sayth the Lorde. Beholde, a chylde shall be borne of the house of Dauid, Iosiah by name, whiche vpon the shall offer the preestes of the hyll aultares that sacrifyce vpon the, and shall burne mennes bones vpon the. And he gaue theym the same tyme a signe sayenge: this is the signe of that the Lorde hath promysed. Beholde the aulter shall rent and the asshes that are in it shal fal B out. And when the kynge herde the sayeng of the man of God whiche he cryed againste the aulter in Bethel, he stretched oute his hande frome the aultare sayeng: holde him. And his hande which he put forth towarde him, dryed vp, that he coulde not pull it in agayn to him and the aulter claue and the asshes ran out of the aulter accordinge to the token which the man of God had gyuen at the cōmaundment of the Lorde. And the kynge aunswered and sayde vnto the man of God: Oh praye vnto the Lorde thy God, and make intercession for me, that my hand may be restored me againe. And the man of God besought the Lord, and his hande came to him agayne as well as before.

Then sayd the kynge vnto the man of God Come home with me and refresshe thy selfe, & I wyll gyue the rewarde. But the man of God answered the king, if thou woldest gyue me halfe thyne house, I wolde not goo with the neyther wolde I eate meate or drynke water in this place. For so was it charged me, C thorowe the worde of God and sayde to me: eate no bred, nor dryncke water, nor turne agayne by the same waye thou wentest. And so he went an other waye and returned not by the waye he came to Bethel. And there dwelt an olde Prophete in Bethel, whose sonnes came and tolde him all the workes that the man of God had wrought that day in Bethel, and the wordes which he spake vnto ỹ kynge they tolde their father also. And their father sayde to them: what waye went he? for his sonnes had sene what waye the man of God wente which came frome Iuda. Then sayd he to his sonnes: sadle myne asse. And they sadled him an asse. And he gat him vp theron and wente after the man of God, and found him sitting vnder an Oke, and sayde vnto him: Art thou the man of God that camest from Iuda? And he sayde, yea.

D Then he sayd to him: come home with me and eate bred. And the other sayde agayne, I maye not returne with the, to go with ỹ, neyther maye I eate bred or drinke water with ỹ in this place. For it was sayde to me by the commaundement of the Lorde, eate no bred nor drinke water in this place, nor turne agayne by the waye thou wentest. And the olde Prophet sayde vnto him: I am a Prophet as wel as thou, and an Angel spake vnto me with ỹ worde of the Lorde, sayenge: Bringe him agayne with the to thyne house, & let him eate bred and drink water, and yet lyed vnto him. And to the other went agayne with him & ate bred in his house and dranke water.

And as they sate at the table, the worde of the Lorde came vnto the Prophete ỹ brought him agayne. And he cryed vnto ỹ man of God E that came frome Iuda, sayenge: Thus sayth the Lorde: because thou haste disobeyed the mouth of the Lorde, and hast not kept ỹ commaundement which the Lorde thy God commaunded the, but camest backe agayne & hast eaten bred and dronke water in the place in which he bad the that thou shuldest eate no bred nor drincke water: therfore thy carkasse shall not come vnto the sepulchre of thy fathers.

And when he had eaten bred and dronke, he sadled an Asse for the Prophete which he had brought agayne. And as he iourneyed, a lyon met him by the waye, and slew him, and his carkasse laye alonge in the waye, and the asse stode therby, and the lyon stode by the corpse also. And men that passed by, saw the carkasse F cast alonge in the way and the lyon standing therby, & went & tolde it in the towne where the olde Prophete dwelt. And when the Prophete that brought him backe agayne from ỹ waye, herde therof, he sayde: It is the man of God which disobeyed the mouth of the Lord. And therfore the Lorde hathe delyuered him vnto the Lyon which hath rēt him and slayne him, according to the worde of ỹ Lorde, which he sayde to him. And he sayd to his sonnes sadle me an Asse: and so they dyd. And he went and founde the body cast alonge in the waye, and the Asse and the Lyon standinge therby. And the Lyon had not eaten the carkasse nor G hurt the Asse. And he toke vp the body of the manne of God, and put it vpon the Asse, and brought it agayne, and came to the cyte of ỹ olde Prophete to lament him, & to bury him. And he layde his body in his owne graue, and lamented ouer him, Oh my brother. And whē he had buryed him, he spake to his sonnes sayenge: When I am deed, se ye bury me in the sepulchre wherin the man of God is buryed/ and lay my bones by his. For the sayeng which he cryed at the byddinge of the Lorde against the aultare in Bethel, and against all the houses of hyllaultares whiche are in the cyties of Samarie, shall come to passe.

How be it for all that, Ieroboam turned not from his wicked waye: but turned away and made of the lowest of the people preestes of the hyllaultares. Who so euer wolde, he fylled their handes, and they became preestes of the hyllaultares. And this wrought was synne vnto the house of Ieroboam, euen to destroy it and to put it awaye frome of the face of the earthe.

¶ Ieroboams wyfe asketh counsell of Ahiah, which the prophetyeth the deeth of her chylde and the destruccion of the Realme. Ieroboam dyeth. Sesak kyng of Egypt robbeth the house of the Lorde. Rehoboam dyeth. Abiam succeedeth hym.

CAP. XIIII.

A At that tyme Abiah the sonne of Jeroboam fell sicke. And Jeroboam sayd vnto his wyfe: aryse and chaunge thyne apparell, that thou be not knowen to be the wyfe of Jeroboam, and get the to Siloh. For there is Abiah the Prophete, which tolde me *that I shoulde be kynge ouer this people. *And take with the ten loues and cracknelles and a cruse of hony, and goo to him: for he will tell the what shall come of the childe. And Jeroboams wyfe dyd so: she arose and went to Siloh, and came to the house of Ahiah. But Ahiah coulde not se, for his eyes were waxen dymme for age.

*iii.Reg.xi.f iiii.Reg.viii.c

And the Lorde sayde vnto Ahiah: Behold, the wyfe of Jeroboam commeth, to questyon with the about her sonne which is sicke. This wyse and this wyse aunswere her. And when B she came, she feyned her self to be an other woman. But when Ahiah herde the sounde of her fete as she came to the dore, he sayde: Come in thou wyfe of Jeroboam, why feynest thou thy selfe to be an other? I am sent to the an heuy messenger. Go and tell Jeroboam, thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell: for as moch as I auaunced the aboue the comen people, & made the prince ouer my people Israell, and dyd plucke the kyngdome away from þ house of Dauid and gaue it the: and thou hast not bene as was my seruaunt Dauid, who kepte my commaundmentes and folowed me with al his hert, to do þ only which semeth right in myne eyes: but hast done euyl aboue all that were before the, and haste gone and made the other goddes and ymages, of metall to prouoke me, and hast cast me behynde thy backe: C therfore beholde I wyll brynge euyl vpon þ house of Jeroboam, and will stryke frome Jeroboam all that pisseth against the wall, and what so euer is in pryson or forsaken in Israel, and will take awaye the remnaunt of the house of Jeroboam, as men take away a donge hyll, tyll it be consumed. *And who so euer of Jeroboams house dye in the towne, hym shall the dogges eate, and him that dyeth in the felde, shall the foules of the ayre eate: for D the Lorde hathe sayde it, aryse and get the to thyne house, and as sone as thy fote entereth the cytie, the chylde shall dye. How be it al Israell shall mourne him and bury him, for this only of all Jeroboam shall come to the sepulchre, because in him there is founde goodnesse towarde the Lorde God of Israel in the house of Jeroboam. Moreouer the Lorde shal stere him vp a kynge ouer Israel who shall destroy the house of Jeroboam in that day. And what is that that is now in hande? And the Lorde shall smyte Israell, as a rede that groweth in the water is shaken, and will wede Israel out of this good lande which he gaue to their fathers, and wyll scatter theym beyonde Euphrates, because they haue made theym groues to angre the Lorde. And he wyl gyue Israell vp, because of the synne of Jeroboam, wherwith he dyd synne, & made Israell synne also.

E And Jeroboams wyfe arose and departed, and wente to Therzah, and by that she was come to the thresholde of the dore, the ladde was deed. And all Israel buryed him and lamented him, accordinge to the worde of the Lorde which he spake by the hande of his seruaunte Ahiah the Prophete. The rest of the dedes of Jeroboam, how he warred and how he raygned, are wrytten in the booke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israell. And the dayes which Jeroboam raygned, were two & twenty yere. And then he rested with his fathers, and Nadab his sonne raygned in his stede.

F And Rehoboam the son of Salomon raygned in Juda, and was. xli. yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned. xvii. yere in Jerusalem the cytie which the Lord had chosen out of all þ trybes of Israel, to put his name there. His mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Juda wrought wyckednesse in the sight of the Lord and angred him aboue all that their fathers dyd, with their synne which they synned. For they also made them hyllaultars and Images and groues on euery hyghe hyll, and vnder euery grene tree. And therto ther was a stues of male chyldren in the lande, and they dyd accordinge to all the abhominacions of the Heythen, whiche the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. G And the fyft yere of kynge Rehoboā came Sesack kynge of Egypt vp to Jerusalem, & toke awaye the treasure of the house of the Lorde and the treasure of the kynges house, and all that was to be had. And he toke away þ shyldes of golde which Salomō made. In whose stede kynge Rehoboam made brasen shyldes, and put them in the keping of the capitaynes of the garde, which wayted at the dore of the kynges house. And as ofte as the kynge went into the house of the Lorde, they of his garde bare them, and euer brought them agayne into the garde chambre.

The rest of the Actes of kynge Rehoboam and all he dyd, are written in the boke of the Actes of the kynges of Juda. And there was warre betwene Rehoboam and Jeroboam al their lyues. And Rehoboam layde him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in þ cytie of Dauid. And his mothers name was Naamah an Ammonite. And Abiā his sonne raygned in his place.

¶ wycked Abiam raygneth ouer Juda, and ryghtwyse Asa succedeth in his rowme. The battayle betwene Asa and Baasa. Josaphat succedeth Asa. Nadab succedeth Jeroboam. Baasa kylleth Nadab.

CAPI. XV.

The. xviii. yere of kynge Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, raygned kynge Abiam ouer Juda, and ruled thre yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Maacah the doughter of Abesalom. And he walked in all the synnes of his father whiche he dyd before hym, and his herte was not hole with the Lorde his God, as the herte of Dauid his father. Neuerthelesse for Dauids sake, the Lord his God gaue him a lyght in Jerusalem, that he set vp his sonne after him, to cōtinue Jerusalem. Because that Dauid dyd þ which pleased the Lorde, and tourned frome nothinge that he cōmaunded him al the dayes of his lyfe, *saue only in the matter of Urias the Hethite. And there was war betwene B Rehoboam and Jeroboam as longe as he lyued. The rest of the dedes of Abiam and all þ he dyd, are written in the boke of the Chronicles that were done in the dayes of the kynges of Juda. And there was warre betwene Abiā and Jeroboam. And Abiam rested with his fathers, and they buryed him in the cytie of Dauid. And Asa his sonne raygned in his stede.

The. xx. yere of Jeroboam kynge of Israel beganne Asa to raygne ouer Juda, and ruled in Jerusalem. xli. yere. Whose mothers name was Maacah the daughter of Abesalom.

Asa.

And Asa dyd that semed ryght in the eyen of the Lord, lyke Dauid his father. And he made the stues of males departe the lande, and put awaye all the Ydolles that his fathers had made. And therto he put downe Maacah C his mother frome beryng rule, because she had made an Idole in a groue. And Asa destroyed her Idoll and burnt it by the broke Cedron. But he put not downe the hyllaulters. Neuerthelesse Asas herte was hole with the Lorde all his dayes. And he brought in, that his father had dedicat, and the thinges halowed vnto the house of the Lorde, syluer, gold and Jewelles. And there was warre betwene Asa and Baasa kyng of Israel al their dayes.

And Baasa kyng of Israel went vp against Juda, and buylt Ramah, because he wolde let none of Asas people kynge of Juda, go in or out. Then Asa toke all the siluer and gold D that was left in the treasure of the house of þ Lorde, & all the treasure of the kynges house, and delyuered it vnto his seruauntes, & sente them to Benhadad the sonne of Tabremon þ sonne of Hezion kynge of Syria that dwelte at Damasco, sayeng: there is a bonde betwene the and me, as was betwene thy father and myne. Therfore I sende the bothe golde & siluer for a gyfte, that thou goo and breake the bonde betwene the and Baasa kynge of Israel, that he maye departe frome me. And Ben- E hadad herkened vnto kynge Asa, and sent the capitaines of the hostes which he had against the cyties of Israel, and smote Ahion, Dan, Abel called Beth Maacah and all Cenereth with all the lande of Nephthali. And when Baasa herde that, he left buyldyng of Ramah and dwelt in Therzah. Then kynge Asa made proclamation thorowoute all Juda, þ none shulde be excused. And they toke the stones of Ramah and þ tymber wherwith Baaza had buylt, and kyng Asa buylt therwith Gabaah in BenJamin and Mazphah. The rest of all the dedes of Asa, and of all his myght, and of all his procedinges, and the cyties whiche he buylt, are written in the Chronicles of the actes done in the dayes of the kynges of Juda. F Neuerthelesse in his olde age he was diseased in his fete. And Asa layde him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytie of Dauid his father. And Josaphat his sonne raygned in his rowme. And Nadab the sonne of Jeroboam began to raygne vpō Israel the seconde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, and raygned vpō Israel two yere. And he did euyll in the sight of the Lorde, and walked in the waye of his father and in his synne wherwith he made Israel synne. But Baasa the son of Ahiah of the house of Isachar conspired against him, and slew him at Gebethon a cytie of the Phylistines, for Nadab and all Israell laye at seage before Gebethon. And it was þ thirde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, when Baasa slew him, and raygned in his stede. And as G sone as he was kynge, he slew al the house of Jeroboam and left him naught that brethed, vntyll he had vtterly destroyed him, accordinge vnto the sayenge of the Lorde which he spake by his seruaunte Ahiah the Silonite, for the synne of Jeroboam wherwith he synned and made Israel synne, and for his angeryng that he angred the Lorde God of Israel. The rest of the dedes of Nadab, and all his procedinges, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And there was warre betwene Asa and Baasa, kynge of Israell, all their dayes.

Nadab.

In the thirde yere of Asa kynge of Juda, Baasa the sonne of Ahiah began to raygne ouer all Israell in Therzah, and continewed. xxiiii. yeere. And he dyd that dyspleased the Lorde, for he walked in the waye of Jeroboam and in his synne, wherwith he made Israel synne.

¶ Jehu prophesieth agaynste Baasa, of whome he is slayne. Elah succedeth Baasa. Zamri kylleth his mayster Elah, and destroyeth the house of Baasa. He is reiect and Amri chosen. Zamri burneth hym selfe and his house. Wycked Ahab succedeth Amri, and taketh to wyfe wycked Jezabel.

CAPI. XVI.

Then came the worde of the Lorde to Jehu the sonne of Hanani agaynste A Baasa, sayenge: for as moche as I exalted the out of the dust and made the capytayne ouer my people Israel, and thou haste walked in the waye of Jeroboam and haste made my people Israel synne, to angrye me with their synne: I wyl make cleane riddaūce of Baasa and of all his house, and wyll make his house lyke the house of Jeroboam, the sonne of Nabat. *And he that dyeth of Baasa in the cytie, him shall dogges eate: and him that dyeth in the feldes, shall the fowles of the ayre eate.

Jehu.

B The rest of the dedes of Baasa, and what he dyd, and his warres, are wrytten in þ boke of the Histories of the kynges of Israel. And Baasa fel on slepe with his fathers, & was buryed in Therzah. And Elah his sonne raigned in his stede. And by the hande of the Prophet Jehu the sonne of Hanani, the worde of the Lord came against Baasa, & against his house because of all the wyckednesse that he dyd in the

the sight of the Lorde, in angerynge hym w the workes of his handes, ꝓ he shuld be lyke the house of Ieroboam, because he had kylled Nabat.

The. xxvi. yere of Asa kynge of Juda began Elah the sonne of Baasa to raygne ouer Israel in Thyrzah, and contynued two yere. And his seruaunte Zamri capitayne of halfe his charettes, conspired agaynste him, as he was in Thyrzah drynckynge of stronge dryncke, in the house of Arza stewarde of his house in Thyrzah. And Zamri came and smote hym and kylled hym the. xxvij. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, and raygned in his stede. And as sone as he was kynge and sate on his seate he slue all the house of Baasa and left not a pysser agaynst the wall.

And therto he slue all his kynne and frendes, and so Zamri destroyed all the house of Baasa, accordinge to the worde of the Lorde which he spake to Baasa thorow Iehu ꝓphete, for all the synnes of Baasa and synnes of Elah his sonne, wherwith they synned and made Israell synne, to angre the Lorde of Israel with their vanities. The rest of the actes of Elah and all he dyd, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The. xxvij. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, Zamri raygned. vij. dayes in Thyrzah, the people beseygynge Gebethon a cyte of the Philistines. And when the people that lay in ꝑ stage herde saye how Zamri had conspired, & how he had slayne the kynge also: then all Israel made Amri the capitayn of the men of warre kynge, that same daye ouer Israel euen in the host. And Amri departed frome Gebethon, & all Israel with him, and besieged Thyrzah. And when Zamri sawe that the cyte must nedes be taken, he went into the palace of ꝑ kynges house, & set the kynges house a fyre vpon him selfe, and there dyed, for his synnes wherthe he synned in wynge wyckednesse in ꝑ sight of the Lorde, and for walkynge in the waye of Ieroboam and in his synnes wherby he dyd and made Israel synne. The rest of the actes of Zamri and the treason that he wrought, are wrytten in the boke of Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. Moreouer that same season was Israel deuyded in two ayne, for halfe the people folowed Thebni the sonne of Gineth, to make him kynge, and thother halfe folowed Amri. But the people that folowed Amri, preuayled agaynst the that folowed Thebni the sonne of Gineth. And so Thebni dyed and Amri raygned.

The. xxxi. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, began Amri to raygne ouer Israel, & ruled fyue yere in Thyrzah. And he bought the hyll of Samaria of one Semar for two hundred talentes of syluer, and buylt on the hill, & called the name of the cyte which he had buylt Samaria, after the name of Semar the Lord of the hill. And this Amri wrought wyckednesse in the eyes of the Lorde worse then all that were before him, and walked in all the wayes of Ieroboam the sonne of Nabat, and in his synne wherwith he made Israel synne, to angre the Lorde God of Israell with their vanities. The rest of the actes of Amri which he dyd, and his battels that he foughte, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And Amri layde him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed in Semaria, & Achab his sonne raygned in his stede.

The. xxxviij. yere of Asa kynge of Juda, began Achab the sonne of Amri to raygne ouer Israel, and raygned in Samaria. xxij. yere. And he displeased the Lorde aboue all ꝑ were before him. For it semed him a lyght thinge to walke in the synne of Ieroboam. But toke Iezabel the dughter of Ethbaal kynge of the Sidonites to wyfe, and * went and serued Baal and bowed vnto him. And he reered an aultar to Baal in the house of Baal which he hadde made in Samaria. And Achab made a groue, and procedded further in angerynge the Lorde God of Israel, then all the kynges of Israel that were before him.

In his dayes Hiel of Bethel buylt Iericho And it cost him Abiram his eldest sonne when he layde the foundacion, and his youngest son when he set vp the gates, agreynge vnto the worde of the Lorde which he spake by Iosua the sonne of Nun.

¶ Eliah is nourished and fedde of Rauens, and after is sent to the woman of Sarephtha whose childe he rayseth to lyfe.

CAPI. XVII

AND Eliah the Thesbite which was of the enhabitaunces of Galaad, sayd vnto Achab: * as truly as the Lord God of Israel lyueth, before whome I stand, there shalbe neyther dew nor rayne these yeres, saue I appoint it. And the worde of God came him, sayenge: get the hence and turne the eastwarde, and hyde thy selfe in the brooke Cherith, that lyeth before Iordan: drinke of the ryuer, for I haue commaunded the rauens to fede the there. And he went and dyd accordyng vnto the worde of the Lorde: he went & dwelt by the brooke Kerith that lyeth before Iordan. And the rauens brought him bred and flesshe euery morninge and euery euenynge, and he dranke of the brooke. And it chaunced after a whyle, that the broke dryed vp, because there fell no rayne vpon the earthe. Then came the worde of the Lorde vnto him sayenge: aryse, and get the to Sarephtha a cyte of Sidon, & dwell there. Beholde I haue commaunded a wydowe there to susteyne the. And he arose & went to Sarephtha. And when he came to ꝑ gate of the cyte, there was a wydowe there gatheringe sticks. And he called to her & sayd * fet me I praye the, a lytle water in a dysshe that I maye dynke. And as she went to fetch, he cryed to her and sayde: bringe me I praye the, a morsell of bred in thyne hande. And she answered: as surely as the Lorde thy God lyueth, I haue no bred, but euen an handful of meele in a pitcher, and a lytle Oyle in a cruse. And lo, I haue gathered a fewe sticks for to go and bake it for me and my sonne, that we may eate it and then dye. And Eliah sayd vnto her: feare not, but go and do as thou haste sayde: and make me therof a lytle cake first of all, and bringe it out to me: and afterwarde make for the and thy sonne. For thus sayth ꝑ Lorde God of Israell: the pytcher of Meele shall not be wasted, neyther shall thy oyle cruse be without oyle, tyl the Lorde haue sent rayne vpon the earthe. And she went and did as Eliah bad. And she and he and her house dyd eat a good space, & ꝑ pytcher of Meele was not, neyther was the oyle cruse without oyle accordyng to the worde of the Lorde whi che he spake thorowe Eliah. And after thele thynges, it happened that the son of ꝑ wyfe of the house fell sicke. And his sickenesse was so soze, that there was no breth left in him. Then sayde she vnto Eliah, What haue I to do with the, O thou man of God? art thou come vnto me, that my syn shulde be thought on, and my sonne slayne? And Eliah sayd vnto her: gyue me thy sonne. And he toke him out of her lappe and caryed him vp into a loft where he laye, and layde him vpon his owne bed, and called vnto the Lorde and sayde: O Lorde my God, hast thou bene so cupll vnto the wydowe with whome I soiourne, ꝑ thou hast slayne her sonne? * And he stretched him selfe vpon the childe thre tymes, and called vn to the Lorde and sayde: O Lorde my God, let the childes soule come into him agayne. And the Lorde herde the voyce of Eliah, and the soule of the childe came into him agayne and he reuyued. And Eliah toke ꝑ boye & brought him wwne out of the chambre into the house and deliuered him vnto his mother and sayde: se, thy sonne lyueth. Then the wyfe sayde to Eliah: Now I know thou art Gods man, & that the worde of the Lorde in thy mouthe, is truthe.

¶ Eliah is sent to Achab. Abdiah hydeth an hundred Prophetes and saueth them. Baall cannot heare although the people crye very loude. Eliah kylleth all Baals Prophets: and after obtayneth rayne.

CAPI. XVIII.

AND at last the worde of the Lorde came to Eliah the third yere sayeng: go shew thy selfe vnto Achab, that I may send rayne vpon the earthe. And Eliah wente to shewe him selfe vnto Achab, for there was a great famyshement in Samaria. Wherfore Achab called Abdiah ꝑ gouernour of his house which feared God greatly: in so moche that when Iezabel destroyed the Lordes prophetes he toke an hundred of the Prophetes and hid them, fyfty in one caue, and fyfty in an other and prouyded bred and water for them. And Achab sayde vnto Abdiah: walke thorow the lande, vnto all fountaynes of water, and vnto all brokes, to se whether any grasse maye be founde, that we maye saue the horses and the Mules, that we destroy not ꝑ beastes. So they dyuyded the land betwene the to walke thorow it. Achab went one waye by him selfe, and Abdiah went an other by him selfe. And it chaunced as Abdiah went in the waye, that Eliah met him. And Abdiah knewe him, and fell on his face, and sayde: Arte not thou my Lorde Eliah? And he sayde vnto him: I am he. Go and tell Achab that Eliah is here. And the other answered: What haue I synned, that thou woldest delyuer me into the hande of Achab, to slay me? As surely as the Lorde thy God lyueth, there is no nacion ne kyngdome whether my Lorde hath not sent to seke the. And when they sayd thou wast not there he toke an othe of the kyngdome and nacyon, because he founde the not. And now thou sayest: Go tell thy Lorde, Eliah is here. And as sone as I am gone frome the, the spirite of ꝑ Lorde shall cary the awaye whether I shall not knowe: and then when I haue gone and tolde Achab, and he can not fynd the, he shal slay me. And yet I thy seruaunt haue feared ꝑ Lorde frome my youth. Was it not tolde my Lorde, what I dyd, when Iezabel slewe the Prophetes of the Lorde, how I hyd an hundred of the Lordes Prophetes, fyfty in one caue and as many in an other, and prouyded them bred & watter? And yet now thou sayest, go shew thy Lorde, that Eliah is here to the intent he myght slay me. Then Eliah sayde: as truely as the Lorde of hostes lyueth, before whome I stande: I will shewe my selfe vnto him this daye. And therupon Abdiah went to Achab and told him. And Achab went against Eliah. And when Achab saw Eliah, he sayde vnto him: Art thou he that troubleth Israel? And he sayde: it is not I that trouble Israel, but thou & thy fathers house, in that ye haue forsaken the commaundementes of the Lord and haue folowed Baal. But now sende and gather me all Israel vnto mount Carmell, & the Prophetes of Baal foure hundred & fyfty and the Prophetes of the groues foure hundred, which eat of Iezabels table. And Achab sent for all the children of Israel, and gathered the Prophetes vnto mount Carmel.

And Eliah came vnto all the people & sayd: Why halt ye betwene two opinions? yf the Lorde be very God: folow him: or yf Baal be he, then folow him. And the people answered him not one worde. Then sayde Eliah vnto the people: I only remayne of the Lordes Prophetes, and Baals Prophetes are foure hundred and fyfty. Let two oxen be gyuen vs, and let them chose the one, and cut him in peces and laye him on wood, and put no fyre vnder, And I will dresse the other and put him on wood, and will put no fyre vnder. And call ye on the name of your God, and I will call on the name of the Lorde. And then the God that answereth by fyre, he is the very God.

* And all the people sayde: It is well spoken. Then sayd Eliah vnto the Prophetes of Baal, chose you an ox and dresse him first (for ye are manye) and call on the name of youre God, but put no fyre vnder. And they toke ꝑ oxe that was gyuen them and dressed it, and called on the name of Baal from morning to none, sayenge: O Baal heare vs. But there was no voyce nor answere. And they lept a bout the aultare that they had made. And at none Eliah mocked them & sayde: Call lowde (for he is a God: but he is talkynge or pur-

suinge his ennemyes, or happily he slepeth) that he maye awake. And they cryed aloude/ & cut them selues (as their maner was) with knyues and launcers, tyll the bloud folowed on them. But when myddaye was passed, and F they hadde played the Prophetes tyll it was tyme to offre/ and yet was neither voyce, ne answere, ne anye that regarded them. Eliah sayd to all the folke/ come to me. And all the people came to him. And he mended the aulter *Josue.iiii.a of the Lorde that was broken, * and toke.xij. stones, accordyng to the nombre of the twelue trybes of the sonnes of Jacob, vnto whom the worde of the Lorde came, saying: Israel shal Gene.xxxii be thy name. And with the stones he made an aulter in the name of the Lorde. And he made a gutter rounde aboute the aulter, hable to receyue two peckes of corne/ and he put the wod in order, and hewed the oxe in peces, and put him on the wodde, and sayde/ fyll foure pytchers with water, and poure it on the sacrifice and on the wodde. And he sayd/ do so agayne. And they dyd so agayne. Then he sayd: do it the thyrde tyme. And they dyd so the thyrde tyme. And the water ranne rounde aboute the aulter/ and the gutter was full of water also. So when offeryng tyme was come, Eliah the Prophete went to and sayd: Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and of Israel/ let it be knowen this daye, that thou arte the God of Israell, and that I am thy seruaunte/ and that I do all these thynges at thy commaundement. Heare me, O Lorde, heare me/ that this people maye knowe that thou arte the God/ and that thou hast tourned theyr hertes backwarde. And there fell fyre from the Lorde and consumed the sacrifyce, and the wodde, and the stones, and the duste/ and lycked vp the water G that was in the gutter. Whiche when all the people sawe, they fel on theyr faces and sayd, the Lorde he is God, the Lorde he is God. Then sayde Eliah vnto them, laye handes on the Prophetes of Baal, lett not one of them escape. And when they had taken them Eliah brought them downe vnto the brooke Kison, and slue them there.

Then Eliah sayde vnto Achab, get the vp and eate and drynke, for there is a sounde of moche rayne. And whē Achab went vp to eate and to drynke/ Eliah went vp to the toppe of mount Carmel, * and bowed him selfe to the iii.Reg.xvii.a Jacob.v.d earthe, and put his face bytwene his knees/ and sayd to his seruaunt: go vp and loke towarde the see. And he went vp and loked, and sayd: here is nothynge. And he sayd go agayn seuen tymes. And the seuenth tyme he sayde: behold, there aryseth a lytle cloude out of the see, lyke the paulme of a mannes hand. Then he sayde: goo and saye to Achab, putte the horsses in the charete, and get the downe y the rayne stoppe the not. And within a lytle whyle heuen was blacke with cloudes and wynde, and there was a greate rayne. And Achab rode and went to Jezrahel. and the hāde of the Lorde was on Eliah, and he gyrded vp his loynes and ranne before Achab, tyll they came to Jezrahel.

¶ Eliah fleinge frome Jezabel is nouryshed of the aungell of God. He complayneth that he is lefte alone, and that they seke his lyfe to. He is commaunded to annoynt Azahel, Jehu, and Eliseus.

CAPI. XIX.

AND Achab tolde Jezabell, all that Eliah hadde done, and all togyther, howe he had slayne the Prophetes with the swerde. Then Jezabell sente a messenger vnto Eliah, sayinge: * so do God to me, and so therto, but yf I make thy soule lyke one of theyrs/ by to morow this tyme: when he saw that, he arose and went for his lyfe, and came to Bersabe in Juda, and lefte his seruaunte there. And he went a dayes iourneye in to the wyldernesse/ and when he was come, sat downe vnder a Juniper tree/ and desyred for his soule, that he myghte dye, and sayde: * it is nowe ynough, O Lord, take my soule/ for I am not better then my fathers.

And as he laye and slepte vnder the Junyper tree: beholde there came an aungell and touched hym, and sayde vnto him: aryse and eate. And he loked aboute hym: and loo B there was an Imber cake, and a cruse of water at his heed. And he ate and dranke, and layde him downe agayne to slepe. And the aungell of the Lorde came agayne the seconde tyme, and touched him, and sayd: aryse and eate, for thou haste a longe iourneye to goo. And he arose and dyd eate and drynke, and wente in the strengthe of that meat fourtye dayes and fourtye nyghtes vnto Horeb the mounte of God, and entred there in to a caue, and lodged there all nyght.

And then the worde of the Lorde came to him and sayde: what doest thou heare Eliah? And he answered: I haue ben thorow angrye for the Lord God of hostes sake. For y childre of Israel haue forsaken thy couenaunt, and haue broke downe thyne aulters, and slayne the Prophetes with the swerde, and I onely am lefte/ and they seke my soule to haue it to. And he sayd: come oute and stande before the Lorde. And beholde, the Lorde went by, and a myghtye stronge wynde that rent the moun- C taynes, and brake the rockes before him/ but the Lord was not in the wynde. And after the wynde, came an erthquake/ but the Lord was not in the erthquake. And after the erthquake came fyre/ but the Lorde was not in the fyre. And after the fyre, came a small styll voyce. And when Eliah herde it, he couered his face with his mantell/ and wente oute and stode in the mouthe of the caue. And loo, there came a voyce vnto him, and sayde: what doest thou here Eliah? And he answered: I haue ben feruently angry for the Lord God of hostes sake bicause the chyldren of Israell haue forsaken thyne appoyntmēt and haue cast downe thyne aulters, and slayne thy Prophetes with the swerde/ and I onely am left, and they seke my soule to haue it. Then the Lorde sayde vnto him/ goo and tourne thy waye to the wyldernesse of Damasco, and go and anoynt Hazael to be kynge of Siria. And Jehu the sonne of Namsi, annoynt to be kynge ouer Israel. And Eliseus the sonne of Saphat of Abel Mehu- D lah annoynte to be Prophete in thy rowme. And who so escapeth the swerde of Hazael, him shall Jehu slaye/ and yf any man escape the swerde of Jehu, him shall Eliseus slaye. And therto I haue left me seuen thousande in Israel, of which neuer man bowed his knees vnto Baal nor kissed him with his mouth.

And he departed thence and founde Eliseus the sonne of Saphat plowynge with twelue yoke of oxen before him, & he with the twelf. And Eliah went to him and cast his mantell vpon him. And he left the oxen and ran after Eliah and sayde: let me I praye the, kysse my father and mother, and then I will folow y. And he sayde to him: go backe agayn, for what haue I done to the? And he went backe agayn frome him, and toke a yocke of oxen and slew theym, and dressed the flesh with the instrumentes of the oxen, and gaue it the people, & they dyd eate. And then he arose and went after Eliah and ministred vnto him.

¶ The fyrste and seconde tyme that Samaria was beseged of Benhadad kynge of Siria.

CAPI. XX.

A AND Benhadad kynge of Siria gathered all his host togither, and.xxxij. kynges with him, with horse and charet: and went vp and beseged Samaria and warred against it. And he sent messengers to Achab kynge of Israel into the cytie, and sayde vnto him: thus saith Benhadad, Thy siluer & thy golde is myne, and the best of thy wyues, and the best of thy children be myne. And the king of Israel answered and sayde: my Lorde king accordinge to thy sayeng, I am thyne with al I haue.

And the messengers came agayne to Achab and sayde: thus sayth Benhadad. I haue therfore sent vnto the, sayeng: delyuer me then thy siluer and thy golde, and thy wyues, and thy children. Or els I will sende my seruauntes vnto the by to morow this tyme: & they shal serche thyne house, and the houses of thy seruauntes, which shal take all that is glorious in thyne eyes, and bringe it awaye with them. B Then the kynge of Israell sent for the elders of the lande and sayde: take hede I praye you, & se how this felowe goeth about myschiefe. For he sente vnto me, for my wyues and my children, and my siluer and my golde: and I denyed him nothinge of it. And all the elders of Israel and all the people sayde: herken not to him nor consent. Wherevpon he sayde vnto the messengers of Benhadad: tell my Lorde the kynge, all that he sent for the first tyme, y I will do: but this request I maye not do. And the messengers departed & brought him worde. Thē Benhadad sent vnto him and sayd: thus do the goddes to me and so therto, yf the dust of Samaria be ynoughe for all the people y folowe me, that euery man may haue an hādfull. And the kynge of Israell answered and sayde: Tell him, let not him that putteth on his harnesse bost him selfe, as he that putteth it of. And when Benhadad herde that answer as he and the kynges were drynckinge in the pauylions, he sayde vnto his seruauntes: put your selfes in aray. And they put them selues in araye against the cytie. And beholde there C came a Prophete vnto Achab kynge of Israel and sayd to him: Thus sayth the Lorde. Seist thou al this great multitude? Beholde, I wil delyuer them into thyne hande this daye, that thou mayst knowe that I am the Lorde. And Achab sayde, by whome? And he sayde, thus sayth the Lorde: euen by the gouernours men of the shires. And Achab sayde: who shal first ioyne batayle? And he sayde, thou. Then he nombred the men of the gouernours of y shires: and they were two hundred &.xxxij. And after them he nombred all the people, and all the children of Israel were seuen thousande. And they marched forwarde at none when Behadad was a drynkynge stronge drinke in the pauylyons with the.xxxij. kynges that holp him. And the men of the rulers of the shires went out first. And Benhadad sent forthe, & they shewed hym sayenge: There come men frome Samaria. And he sayde: yf they come to make a peax, take them a lyue. And also yf they come for warre, take them yet a lyue. And when those men of the shryfes of the shi- D res were come out of the cytie and the host after them, they slew euery one of them his enemy that stode in his waye. And the Sirians fled, and Israel folowed after them. And Behadad the kynge of Siria escaped on a horsse with his horsemen. And the kynge of Israell went out and smote horsse and charet, & slew a great slaughter of the Sirians.

Then there came a Prophete to the kynge of Israell, and sayde to hym: Go forthe and playe the man, be wyse and take hede what thou dost: for when the yere is gone about, the kynge of Siria will come against y agayn. Then sayde the seruauntes of the kynges of Siria to him/ The goddes of the hylles are their goddes, and therfore they had the better of vs. But let vs fight with them in y playne and vndoubtedly we shall haue the better of them. And this do/ take the kynges away euery man out of his place, & put Dukes in their rowmes. And furnysh the a new host, lyke y host that thou hast lost, and horse for horse, & charet for charet, and let vs fight with theym in the playne, and for a wager, we get the better of thē. And the kynge herkened vnto their counsell and dyd euen so.

And as sone as the yere was gone aboute, E Benhadad nombred the Sirians and wēt vp to Aphek to warre with Israel. And the children of Israel were nombred and prouyded of vytayle, and went against them, and pytched before them lyke two lytle flockes of kyddes but the Sirians fylled the countreye. Then there came a man of God and sayde vnto the kynge of Israell, thus sayth the Lorde. Because the Sirians saye, that the Lorde is but a God of the hilles, & not God of the valeys to/ therfore will I delyuer all this great multitude into thine hāde y ye may know y I am the Lorde. And they pytched one ouer against the other. vij. dayes, and the seuenth day they ioyned batayle. And the childre of Israel slue of the Sirians an hundred thousande fote me in one daye. And the resi fled to Aphek into ye cytie. And there fell a wall vpon. xxvij. thousande of them that were left. And Benhadad fled and went into the cytie, from chambre to chambre.

Then sayde his seruauntes vnto him: Beholde, we haue herde saye, that the kynges of the house of Israel are mercyfull kynges. Let vs put sacke cloth about our loynes, and ropes about our heddes, and go out to the kyng of Israel: happely he will saue thy lyfe. So they gyrded sacke clothe about their loynes, & put ropes about their heddes, and went oute to the kynge of Israel and sayde: thy seruaut Benhadad sayth, I pray the let me lyue. And he sayde: Is he yet a lyue? what he is my brother. And they toke that worde for good lucke and hastely caught it out of his mouth & sayd Yea thy brother Benhadad. Then he sayd: go and bringe him. And Benhadad came oute to him, and the other toke him vp in to the charet. And Benhadad sayde: the cyties whiche my father toke fromе thy father, I will restore agayn. And thou shalt make stretes for the in Damasco, as my father dyd in Samaria. And I will make a leage with the & send the awaye. And so made a leage with him and sent him awaye.

Then a certeyn man of the childzen of the prophetes sayd vnto his felow with the word of the Lorde, smyte me I praye the. And the man wolde not smyte him. And he sayde, because thou hast not obeyed the voyce of the Lorde: beholde, as sone as thou arte departed fromе me a Lyon shal slee the. And as sone as he was departed fromе him, * a Lyon found him & slew him. Then he founde an other mā and sayd to him: smyte me I praye the. And the man gaue him a good stryppe and wounded him. And the Prophete went forth and wayted for the kynge vp the waye and tyed a kerchefe ouer his eyes, and put him selfe oute of knowledge. And when the kynge came by, he cryed vnto him and sayde: thy seruaunt went out in the myddes of the battel. And lo, there was one began to flee. And there came a man to me and sayde: kepe thou this man. And yf he be myssed, thy lyfe shall goo for his, or els thou shalt paye a talent of syluer. And as thy seruaunt had here & there to do, he was gone. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto him: euen so shal thy iudgement be as thou hast defined it thy selfe.

And he hasted and vnfolded the kercheфe awaye fromе his eyes: and the kynge of Israel knew him, that he was of the Prophetes. And he sayd vnto the kyng, thus sayth ✠ Lord because thou hast let go a mā ✠ ought to haue dyed, thy lyfe shal go for his lyfe, & thy people for his. And the kynge of Israell went to his house al sad & hevy hertyd, & came into Samaria

After these thinges were done, it chaunced that Naboth the Jezrahelite had a vyneyarde in Jezrahel hard by the palace of Achab kynge of Samaria. And Achab spake vnto Naboth sayenge: let me haue thy vyneyarde, to make me a garden of herbes therof, because it lyeth so nyghe my house: & I will gyue the a better vyneyarde for it: or yf it plaese the I will gyue the the worthe of it in syluer. But Naboth sayde to Achab: the Lorde forbyd that I fromе me, that I shoulde gyue the enheritaūce of my fathers vnto the. Then went Achab vnto his house excedynge angrye and euyll apayde, because of the worde which Naboth the Jezrahelite had spoken to him sayenge: I will not gyue to the them heritaunce of my fathers. And he layde him downe vpō his bed, and turned away his face and wolde eate no meat.

Then Jezabel his wyfe came to him, and sayde vnto him: Why art thou so frowarde, that thou eatest no meat? And he sayde vnto her, I spake vnto Naboth the Jezrahelyte, & sayde vnto him: Gyue me thy vyneyarde for syluer, or els yf thou wilt, I will gyue the an other vyneyarde for it. And he sayde: I will not gyue the my vyneyarde.

Then sayde Jezabell his wyfe vnto him: What a goodly kyngdome were thou able to make in Israel? vp and eat meat, and set thyne hert at rest, for I will gyue ✠ the vyneyarde of Naboth the Jezrahelite. The she wrote a letter in Achabs name & sealed it with his seale, and sent it vnto the elders and chiefe men of his cytie that dwelt where Naboth dwelt. And she wrote in the letter sayeng: proclayme fastinge and set Naboth on hyghe among the people, and set two naughty felowes before him, and let them testify against him sayenge: thou dyddest blaspheme both God & the king And vpon that cary him out and stone him to death.

And the elders and nobles of his cytie, why dwelt in his cytie, dyd as Jezabel had sent vnto them, and as it was written in the letter which she had sent vnto them. They proclaymed fasting, and set Naboth an hyghe among the people, and there came in two men the vnthrifty persons and sate before him. And the two deuelysh persons witnessed against Naboth before the people sayenge. Naboth dyd curse God and the kynge. * And vpon that they caryed him out of ✠ cytie and stoned him with stones to deth. And then they sent to Jezabel sayenge: Naboth is stoned to deth. And when Jezabel herde that Naboth was stoned to death: she sayde to Achab: aryse and take possession of the vyneyarde of Naboth, ✠ Jezrahelite, which he denyed to gyue ✠ for syluer, for Naboth is not a lyue, but deed. And when Achab herde that Naboth was deed. He arose to go downe to the vyneyarde of Naboth the Jezrahelite, to take possession of it.

And the worde of the Lorde came vnto Eliah the Thesbite sayeng: aryse and go downe to mete Achab kyng of Israel which is in Samaria. Behold, he is in the vyneyarde of Naboth: for he is gone downe thyther, to take possession of it. And say vnto him: thus saith the Lorde, thou hast kylled & moreouer gotten possession. And saye after that vnto him, thus sayth the Lorde: in the place where dogges lapped the bloude of Naboth, shall dogges lappe euen thy bloude also. And Achab sayde to Eliah: hast thou found me thyne enemy at any tyme? And he sayde yee, because thou art vtterly appointed to worke wickednesse in the sight of the Lord. Behold, I will bringe euyll vpon the, and will make cleane ryddaunce of thyne yssue, and will destroy of Achab all that pisseth against the wall, and euen the inclose and furtherest in Israel: & wyll make thyne house, lyke the house of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baasa the sonne of Ahiah, because thou hast prouoked me to angre, & made Israel synne.

And also against Jezabel came the worde of the Lorde, sayenge: dogges shall eat Jezabel vnder the walles of Jezrahel. And he ✠ dyeth of Achab in the towne, him shall dogges eate: and he that dyeth in the feldes, him shall the foules of the ayre eate. For there was none at all lyke Achab, that was so vtterly appointed to worke wyckednesse in the sight of the Lord, and that because Jezabel his wyfe pricked him forwarde. And therfore he dyd exceadynge abhominably, in folowinge ydoles, in all thinges lyke as dyd the Amorites whiche the Lorde cast out before the childrē of Israel.

When Achab herde those wordes, * he rent his clothes and put sackecloth about his flesh and fasted, and lay in sacke and went comfortlesse. And ✠ worde of the Lord came to Eliah the Thesbite sayenge: seyst thou how Achab humbleth him selfe before me? because he so humbleth him self before me, I wil not bring the euyll in his dayes: but in his sonnes dayes I will bringe euyll vpon his house.

¶ Foure hundred false Prophetes do counsell Achab and Josaphat to warre egaynst Ramoth: only Micheah prophesyeth the truth, for whiche he is smytten and put in prysō.

CAP. XXII

And they continued thre yere without warre betwene Syria and Israel. * And the third yere Josaphat kynge of Juda came to the kynge of Israell. Then sayde the kynge of Israel vnto his seruantes, knowe ye not that Ramoth in Galaad is ours, and we sit still and take it not out of the handes of ✠ kynge of Syria? And he sayd vnto Josaphat: wilt thou go with me to batayle, to Ramoth in Galaad? And Josaphat sayd vnto the kyng of Israel: * I will be as thou art, & my people thalbe as thyne, and my hosses as thyne.

And Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: aske counsell I praye the of the Lord to daye. And then the kynge of Israel gathered of the Prophetes togither, vpon a foure hundred men, and sayde vnto them: shall I go to Ramoth in Galaad to batayle, or be still? And they sayde, go / for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And Josaphat sayde: is there not one Prophet of the Lordes here more, that we might enquire of him? And the kynge of Israel sayde to Josaphat: there is yet one, by whom we may aske counsel of the Lorde, one Micheah the sonne of Jemlah But I hate him: for he neuer prophesyeth good vnto me, but euyll. And Josaphat sayd: let not the kynge say so. Then the kynge of Israel called vnto one of his chamberlayns and sayd: fet Micheah the sonne of Jemlah hyther atones. And the kynge of Israel and Josaphat the kynge of Juda sat eyther in his seat and their apparell on them, in a voyde place besyde the entrynge of the gate of Samaria, and all the Prophetes prophesyenge before them. And Zedekiah the sonne of Canaanah made hornes of yron and sayd, thus sayeth the Lord: with these hornes thou shalt wynowe the Sirians vntyll thou haue made an ende of them. And all the Prophetes prophesyed euen so, sayenge: goo to Ramoth in Galaad and prosperе, for the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And the messenger that was gone to call Micheah, sayde vnto him / se, the wordes of the Prophetes speake good vnto the kynge with one voyce / let thy wordes I pray the, be lyke the wordes of one of them, and speake that is good. And Micheah sayde / as surely as the Lorde lyueth, what the Lorde putteth in my mouth, that will I speake. And whē he was come to the kynge, the kynge sayde to him / Micheah shall we go to Ramoth in Galaad to batayle, or shall we be styll? And he sayde vnto him, * go and prosperе, the Lorde shall deliuer it into the handes of the kynge. And the kynge sayd vnto him, howe often shall I adiure the, that thou tell me nothinge but truthe, in the name of the Lord? Then he sayd I saw all Israel scattered vpon the hylles, as shepe that haue no shepherdes. And the Lord sayde / those haue no master, let them returne euery man to his house in peace. Then sayd ✠ kynge of Israel to Josaphat / dyd I not tell the, that he wolde Prophesye no good vnto me, but euyl? And Micheah sayd / Heare thou therfore the worde of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde sit on his seate, and al the company of heauen standinge about him, on his ryght hād and on his left. And the Lorde sayd: * Who shal deceyue Achab that he may go & be slayne at Ramoth in Galaad? and one sayd on this maner & an other on that. Then came forthe a spryte & stode before the Lorde & sayd / I wil deceyue him. And the Lorde sayd, wherwith? And he sayde / I will goo oute and be a false spryte in the mouthes of all his Prophetes. And the Lorde sayd, Thou shalt deceyue him and also preuayle, go forth & do euen so. Now therfore beholde, the Lorde hath put a lying spryte in the mouthe of all these thy Prophetes / when in very dede the Lorde hath spoken euyll towarde the.

Then Zedekiah the sonne of Canaanah wēt to and smote Micheah on the cheke, and sayde / Howe is the spryte of the Lorde gone fromе me, to speake in the? And Micheah sayde: Beholde, thou shalte se in that daye, when thou shalt go frome chambre to chambre to hyde the. And the kynge of Israel sayde Take Micheah and cary him backe agayn vn to Amon the gouerner of the cytie, and vnto Joab the kynges sonne, and saye: thus sayth the kynge. Put ye this felowe in pryson and fede him with bred and water straytly, tyll I returne in peax. Then Micheah sayde, yf thou come safe agayne, the Lorde hath not spoken in me. And he sayde, herken ye people euerye one of you.

And so the kynge of Israel and Josaphat ꝑ kynge of Juda went vp to Ramoth in Galaad. And the kynge of Israel sayd to Josaphat I will chaunge myne apparell and get me to warre: but put thou on thyne owne apparel. And the kynge of Israel chaunged his raymēt and went to battel also. But the kyng of Siria had commanded the Capitaynes of his chariottes of which he had. xxxij. sayenge: fighte neyther with small nor greate, saue with the kynge of Israel only. And when the capitaynes of the charettes sawe Josaphat, they thought he had bene the kynge of Israel, and therfore turned to him to fight. But Josaphat cryed out. And when the capitaynes of ꝑ charettes sawe he was not the kynge of Israell, they turned backe frome him. And a certayne man dzewe a bowe vnwares, and smote the kyng of Israel betwene the ribbes of his habernesse. Wherfore the kynge sayde vnto the dryuer of his charet, turne thy hande and cary me forth of the host, for I am hurt. And the feld encreased that daye, and the kynge continued in his charet before the Sirians, and dyed about nyght. And the blood ranne oute of the wounde into the bottome of the charet. And there went a Proclamation throwe out the host after the sonne was downe, sayenge: let euery man departe to his cytie and to his owne countreye. And when the kyng of Israel was ded, they came to Samaria and buryed hym there. And whyle they washed the charet in the pole of Samaria, the dogges lycked vp his blood, and harlottes washed him accordinge vnto the worde of the Lorde which he spake. The rest of the dedes of Achab, and all he dyd, and the Ywry house which he made, and the cyties that he buylt, are writen in the boke of the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel. And when Achab was layde to reste with his fathers, Ohoziah his sonne raygned in his steade.

Josaphat the sonne of Asa began to raygne vpon Juda, the fourth yere of Achab kynge of Israell, and was. xxxv. yere olde when he began to raygne and raygned. xxv. yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Azubah the dughter of Salahi. And he walked in all the wayes of Asa his father and bowed not therfrome, but dyd that was right in the eyes of the Lorde. Onely he dyd not put the hyaulters out of the waye: for the people offered & burnt their sacrifices yet, in the hyaultares. And he had peax with the kynge of Israel.

The rest of the dedes of Josaphat, and the myght that he vsed, and how he warred, are writen in the boke of Chronicles of the kynges of Juda. And also the remnaūt of the bugery boyes, whiche remayned in the dayes of his father, he put cleane oute of the lande. There was then no kynge in Edom, the kyng was but a deputie. And Josaphat made shyppes in the se, to go to Ophir for gold, but they went not: for the shyppes brake at Aziongaber. Then sayde Ohoziah the sonne of Achab vnto Josaphat: Let my seruauntes go with thyne in the shyppes. But Josaphat wolde not. And Josaphat layde him to slepe with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cytie of Dauid his father: & Jehoram his sonne raygned in his rowme.

¶ Ohoziah is hurt, and asketh counsell of Belzebub howe he may come by health. The capitaynes ouer fyfty with theyr soudiars are burnt, by the prayer of Elyah. Ohoziah is reproued of Elyah, and dieth and Jehoram his brother succedeth hym.

CAPI. I.

Ohoziah the sonne of Achab began to raygne vpon Israel in Samaria, the. xvij yere of Josaphat kynge of Juda, and was kynge ouer Israel two yeres, and dyd euyll in the sight of ꝑ Lorde and walked in the waye of his father and in the waye of his mother, and in the waye of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel to synne. And he serued Baal and bowed him selfe to him, and angred the Lorde God of Israel, in all thinge, as dyd his father.

And the Moabites rebelled against Israel after the death of Achab.

And Ohoziah fell throwe a latteise wyndow out of an vpper chambre that he had in Samaria, and fell sicke. Tyē he sent messengers, sayenge vnto them: Go and enquyre of Beelzebub the God of Akaron, whether I shal recouer of this disease, or no. But the angell of the Lorde spake to Elyah the Thesbite, aryse and go against the messengers of the kynge of Samaria, and saye vnto them: Is there no God in Israel, that ye go to aske of Beelzebub the God of Akaron. Therfore thus sayth the Lorde: Thou shalt not come downe frome the bed whereon thou lyest, but shalt dye. And Elyah departed.

And the messengers turned backe agayne vnto Ohoziah. And he sayde vnto them: why are ye thus come agayne? And they sayd vnto him, there came a man against vs and sayd vnto vs? go and returne vnto the kynge that sent you, and shewe him. Thus sayth ꝑ Lord. Is there no God in Israell, that thou sendest to enquire of Belzebub the God of Akaron? Therfore thou shalte not come downe frome the bed whereon thou arte gone vp, but shalt surely dye. And he sayde to them: What maner man was that whiche met you and tolde you these wordes? And they sayde vnto him: it was an heary man and gyrde with a gyrdle of a skynne about his loynes. And he sayde vnto them: it is Elyah the Thesbite.

Then the kynge sent vnto him a capitayne ouer fyfty with his fyfty that were vnder him. And when the captayne was come to him, beholde: he sat on the toppe of an hyll. And ꝑ capitayne sayde vnto him: O man of God, the kynge byddeth the come downe. And Elyah answered and sayde to the capitayne ouer the fifty, If I be a man of God, fyre come downe frome heauen and consume the and thy fifty. And there came fire downe frome heauen & deuoured him and his fyfty. And the kynge wente agayne and sent to him an other capitayne ouer fyfty with his fifty men with him which answered and sayde vnto him, O man of God, thus sayth the kynge make hast and come downe. And Elyah answered and sayde vnto them, If I be a man of God, then let fyre come downe from heauen and consume ꝑ and thy fyfty. And there came fire downe from heauen and consumed him and his fyfty.

And the kynge sent agayne the thirde capitayne ouer fyfty. And when the third capitayne ouer fyfty was come vp to him, he fell on his knees before Elyah and besought hym and sayd vnto him / Oh man of God, let my lyfe and the lyfe of these fyfty thy seruantes be precious in thy sight. Behold, three came fire downe frome heauen and burnt vp ꝑ two fore capitaynes ouer fyfty with their fyfties. But let my lyfe now be precious in thy sight. Then sayde the angell of the Lorde vnto Elyah / Go downe with him, and be not afrayd of him. And he went downe with him vnto ꝑ kynge.

And he sayde vnto the kynge, thus sayth ꝑ Lorde / for as moche as thou sentest messengers to aske thorowe Beelzebub the God of Akaron, as thoughe there had bene no God in Israel to aske thorow his worde, therfore thou shalt not come of the bed on which thou art mounted, but shalte surely dye. And so he dyed according vnto the worde of the Lorde which Elyah spake / and Jehoram was made kynge in his stede, the seconde yere of Jehoram sonne of Josaphat kynge of Juda, because he had no sonne. The rest of the dedes of Ohoziah which he dyd, are written in the Chronicles of the kynges of Israel.

¶ Elyah diuideth the waters with his mantel. He is taken vp in to heuen. The bytter and venemous waters are healed by the salt that Elizeus put into them. The chyldren that mocke Elizeus are rent in peces.

CAP. II.

And it chaunced when the Lorde wold take vp Elyah to heauen in a whyrlewynde, that Elyah and Elizeus were goynge frome Galgal. And Elyah sayde to Elizeus, tary here, for the Lord hath sent me to Bethel. But Elizeus sayd / * as surely as the Lorde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I will not leaue the. And when they came to Bethell, the children of the Prophetes that were at Bethel, came forthe to Elizeus, and sayde to him: knowest thou not that ꝑ Lorde will take awaye thy master that he be no lenger thy head this daye? And he sayd I know it to, holde your peace.

Then sayde Elyah to Elizeus / tary here I praye the, for the Lorde hathe sent me to Jericho. And he sayde / as surely as the Lorde lyueth

i.Re.xxviii.b

ueth, and as surely as thy soule lyueth, I wyl not leaue the, and so they went to Jericho. And the childzen of the Pzopheres that were at Jericho came to Eliseus and sayde vnto hym: arte thou not ware that the Lozde wil take awaye thy mayster frome the this day? And he answered: I know it also, holde your peare. And Eliah sayde to hym: tarye I pzay the here, for the Lozde hathe sent me to Jozdan. But he sayde: as surelye as the Lozde lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I wyll not leaue the. And so they went both of them to gyther. And fyftye men of the sonnes of the Pzophetes went and stode in syght a farre of, as they two stode by Jozdan.

And then Eliah toke his mantel & wzapt it togither, and smote the water, and it diuided it selfe / parte one waye, and parte an other/ and they two went ouer on the dzy land. And as soone as they were ouer, Eliah sayde to Eliseus/ aske what I shall wo for the, er I be taken awaye frome the. And Eliseus sayde: let me haue thy spirite double in me. And he sayde: thou hast asked an harde thynge. Neuertheleße if thou se me when I am taken awaye frome the, thou shalte haue it so: yf thou do not, it shall not be. And as they went walkynge and talkynge: beholde there came a charet of fire, and hozses of fire/ & put them asonder. And Eliah went vp in the whozlwynde to heauen. And Eliseus sawe and cryed: O my father, O my father, the charet of Israel, and his charet man, but he sawe hym no moze/ and therfoze toke his owne clothes, and rent them in two peaces.

And then he toke vp the mantell of Eliah that fel from him, and went backe agayn and stode by Jozdans syde, and with the mantell of Eliah ꝑ fell from him, he smote the water, and sayd: where is the Lozde God of Eliah, where is he? And when he had smytten ꝑ water, it diuided parte this waye and parte that way/ and Eliseus went ouer. And the childzen of the Pzophetes of Jericho whiche sawe him a farre, sayd: the spirite of Eliah, dothe rest on Eliseus/ and went agaynst him, and bowed to the erth vnto him. And they sayd vnto him/ se, there be amonge thy seruauntes fyftye lustye men: let them go and seke thy master, happly the spirite of the Lozde hath taken him vp & cast him vpon some mountayne, oz in some valeye. And he sayd: sende not. Neuertheleße yet they laye vpon him, tyll he was ashamed, and sayd: sende, and they sent fyftye men whiche sought him thze dayes and thze nyghtes / but found him not. And they came agayn to him, for he taryed at Jericho. And he sayd to them/ dyd I not saye vnto you that ye shold not go? Then the men of Jericho sayde to Eliseus: beholde, the citye standeth pleasauntly, as my Lozde seeth / but the water is noughte, and the grounde bareyn. And he sayde: bzynge me a newe cruse, and put salte therin. And they bzoughte it to him. And he wente vnto the spzynge of the water. and cast the salte in thyther/ and sayd, thus sayth the Lozde: I heale this water/ there shal not come henceforth eyther deth, oz bareynnesse. And the water was welthsome euer after, accozding to the sayinge of Eliseus whiche he spake.

And he wente frome thence vp to Bethell. And as he was gopnge in the waye / there came lytle laddes oute of the cytye, and mocked him, and sayd to him: goo vp thou balde heed/ goo vp thou balde heed. And he tourned backe, and loked on them, and cursed theym in the name of the Lozde. And there came two beares oute of the wodde, and tare. xlij. of the boyes. And he wente frome thence to mounte Carmel, and frome thence wente agayne to Samaria.

¶ The kynges of Israel Juda and Edom lacke water, when they shulde fyghte agaynste Moab: which they obtayne thzough the pzayer of Eliseus. The kynge of Moab leseth the felde and after sacrifyseth his sonne.

CAPI. III.

IEhozam the sonne of Achab begā to raigne vpon Israel in Samaria the eyghteneth yere of Josaphat kynge of Juda, and continued twelue yere. And he wzoughte euyll in the syghte of the Lozde / but not lyke his father oz his mother/ foz he put awaye the ymage of Baal that his father had made. Neuertheleße he contynued in the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat which made Israel synne, and thzonke not therfrom. And Mesa king of Moab, whiche was eyche of shepe (and was wont to render vnto the kynges of Israell an hundzed thousand lambes, and as many rammes with ꝑ wolle) rebelled against the kyng of Israel after the deth of Achab. And kyng Jehoram went out of Samaria the same seasō, and nombzed all Israel. And then went and sente to Josaphat kyng of Juda, sayinge: the kyng of Moab hath rebelled agaynst me/ wylt thou go with me agaynst the Moabites to battell? And he sayd I wyll go, and wyll be as thou, & my people shal be as thyne, and my hozses as thyne. And he sayde what waye shall we goo? And the other answered: the waye thozowe the wyldernelle of Edom.

And the kynge of Israel toke his iourney with the kynge of Juda and the kynge of Edom. And when they had compalled the waye seuen dayes, there was no water foz the hoste noz foz the cattell that they hadde with them. Then sayde the kynge of Israell: Alas, the Lozde hathe called togyther these thzee kynges, to delyuer them in to handes of the Moabites. But Josaphat sayde: Is there heare no Prophete of the Lozdes, that we maye enquyre of the Lozde by hym? And one of the kynge of Israels seruauntes answered and sayde: here is Eliseus the sonne of Saphat, whiche poured water on the handes of Eliah. And Josaphat sayde: the wozde of the Lozde is with him. And so the kynge of Israell and Josaphat, and the kyng of Edom went vnto to him.

And Eliseus sayde to the kynge of Israell: what

haue I to do with the? Get the to the Prophetes of thy father and of thy mother. And the kynge of Israel sayde vnto him: Oh naye / but hathe the Lozde called these thzee kynges to deliuer them in to the handes of the Moabites? And Eliseus sayd: as truly as the Lozde of hoostes lyueth (in whose syghte I stande) and it were not that I regarded the presence of Josaphat the kynge of Juda, I wolde not loke towarde the, noz yet se the. But nowe, bzynge me a mynstrell. And as the mynstrell played, the hande of the Lozd was vpon hym. And he sayde: thus byddeth the Lozde/ make at this bzokes heed, ditches and ditches agayne. Foz thus sayeth the Lozde: ye shall se neyther wynde noz rayne, and yet this bzoke shall be fylled with water that ye may bzynke, and your beestes and your cattell also. And this is yet but a small thyng in the sight of the Lozde. But he wyll gyue the Moabites in to youre handes also. And ye shall destroye all stronge townes, and all goodly cytties/ and shall fell all pleasaunt trees, & stop all the welles of water / and marre all good plottes of groūd with stones. And in the mozninge aboute offeryng tyme, there came suche a water the waye from Edom, that the countrey was fylled with water.

When all the Moabites herde the kynges were come to fyght agaynst them, they assembled from the ponges that was hable to put on harnelle, and so vpwarde / and wayted in the bordees. And they beinge vp early in the mornyng, the sonne arose and shone vpon the water. And when the Moabites sawe the water a farre of as red as bloude / they sayde: it is bloude, the kynges haue foughte togither/ & one slayne an other. Now therfore ye Moabites / get you to the spoyle. And when they came to the host of Israel, the Israelites stode vp and sayde on the Moabites/ that they fled before them. And so they entred the lande and destroyed the Moabites. And they ouerthrew the cityes / and on euery good parcell of lande caste euerye man his stone and ouer coucred it / and stopte all the welles of water / and felde all the good trees. And as longe as the stones therof dyd remayne in the walles of hyrche, the slyngers wente vpon it and bette it.

And when the kynge of Moab sawe that the battayle was to stronge foz hym, he toke with hym seuen hundzed men that dzewe the sword, to haue bzoken vp vnto the king of Edom, but they could not. And then he toke his eldest sonne that sholde haue raigned in his stede, and offered him foz a buentoffering vpon the walles. And there came so greate wrathe vpon Israell, that they departed from him, & returned to theyr owne lande.

God gyueth a certayne pooze woman oyle and floure by Eliseus. Eliseus obtaineth of God a childe for his hostesse: which dyeth and is after rayled to life thzow hym. He maketh swete the potage: and multiplyeth the loues.

CAPI. IIII.

ANd there cryed a certeyn woman of the wyues of the childzen of the prophetes vnto Eliseus, saying: thy seruaunt my husbande is deed, and thou knowest that thy seruaunt dyd feare the Lozde.

And the man that lende vs money is come to fet my two sonnes, to be his bondmen. And Eliseus sayd to her: What shall I wo foz the? Tell me, what hast thou in thyne house? And she sayde, thyne handmayde hath nothynge at all in her house, saue a pytcher with oyle. And he sayde: Goo and bozowe the in other places of all thy neygbboures, emptye vesselles and that not a fewe/ and then goo and shutte the woze to the, and to thy sonnes/ and poure out in to all those vesselles, and put the full alway aside. So she went from him, and shut the wozē to her, and to her sonnes. And they bzought to her, and she poured oute. And whē the vesselles were full, she sayde to her sonne: bzynge yet a vessell. And he sayde: there is no moo. And then the oyle ceased. Then she came and tolde the man of God. And he sayd: goo and sell the oyle, and pay thy dettes. And lyue thou and thy chyldzen of the reste. And it befell on a daye, that Eliseus came to Sunam where was a eyche woman that toke him in foz to eate bzeed. And as ofte as he came that waye, he tourned in thyther to eate bzeed. And she sayde vnto her husbande: se, I perceyue that this is an holye man of God, and commeth oftentymes by vs / let vs make him a chambze with a lytle walle. and let vs set him there a bed, a table, a stole, & a candelstycke, that he maye tourne in thither when he commeth to vs.

And it fortuned on a time that he came thyther, and tourned in to the chamber, and laye there. Then he sayde to Giezi his seruaunte: call this Sunamite. And he called her, and she came before him. And Eliseus sayde to hym, saye to her I praye the: se, thou hast made all this prouysion foz vs, what shall we wo foz the? woldest thou be spoken foz to the kynge, oz to the capitayne of thy hoste? And she sayd/ I dwell amonge myne owne people. Then he sayd: what is to be wonne foz her? And Giezi sayd: Uerily she hath no chylde, and her husbande is olde. And he sayde: call her. And he called her. And she came and stode at the doze. Then he sayde: by suche a tyme, and in suche an houre, yf thou lyuest, thou shalt embzace a sonne, and she sayd: Oh naye my Lozde, thou man of God, wo not lye vnto thyne handemayde. And the wyfe conceyued and bare a sonne that same season and houre that Eliseus had sayde vnto her. Genes. xviii.

And when the childe was well waxen, it fel on a daye, that he went forth to his father to the haruestmen. And there he complayned to his father, my heed my heed. And his father sayde to a seruaunte, carye him to his mother, & he toke him and brought him to his mother. And he sat on her knees tyll none, and then dyed. And she carped him vp and layde him on the bed of the man of God, and shut the wozē to him, and wēt out, and came to her husband, and sayde: sende me one of the ponge mē and an asse, that I may runne to the man of God. And he sayd: wherfore wylte thou go to him to daye, whyle it is neither newe mone, nor Sabath day? And she sayd: be content. Then she sadled an asse, and sayde to her seruaunte: leade awaye, and make me not cease rydynge tyll I byd the. So she wente and came to the man of God to mount Carmel. And whē the man of God sawe her a farre/he sayde to Gi-hezi his seruaunt: se where our seruaunt cōmeth. Nowe go and mete her, & aske her whether it be all well with her, and with her husbande, and with the chylde. And she sayd: all is well. Then she went to the man of God vp to the hyll, and caughte him by the feete. And Gihezi wente to her to thrust her awaye. But the man of God sayde: let her alone, for her soule is vexed, and the Lorde hath hyd it from me, and hathe not tolde it me. Then she sayde: dyd I desyre a sonne of my Lorde? dyd I not saye, that thou sholdest not mocke me. Then he sayd to Gihezi: gyrde vp thy loynes / and take my staffe in thyne hande, & get the hence. If any mā mete the, salute him not. And if any salute the, answere him not. And put my staffe vpon the boye. Now with standyng the mother of the chylde sayde: as surely as the Lord lyueth, and as thy soule lyueth, I wyl not leaue the. And then he arose and folowed her. Gihezi went before them, and put the staffe vpon the ladder. But there was neither voyce nor feelynge. And then he went agayne agaynste his master and tolde him, sayinge: It hath not awaked the chylde.

When Eliseus was come to the house: beholde the boye was dead, and layde vpon his bed. And he went in and shut the doore to the chylde and him / and prayed vnto the Lorde. And he went vp, and laye vpon the lad, and put his mouthe on his mouthe / and his eyes on his eyes / & the palme of his handes on the palme of his handes / and spred him self vpon the ladde, that the fleshe of the chylde waxed warme. And wente agayne and walked ones vp and downe in the house, and then went vp and spred him self vpon him / and then the lad neesed seuen tymes, and opened his eyes. And he called Gihezi and sayde. Call for this Sunamite. And he called her. And when she was come to him, he sayd: take thy sonne. Then she wente and fell at his feete, and bowed her self to the grounde, and tooke vp her sonne, and went forthe. When Eliseus was come to Galgal agayn, there was a derth in the land, and the children of the Prophetes dwelt with him. Then he sayde to his seruaunt / put on a great pot / and make pottage for the children of the Prophetes. And one went out in to the felde to gather herbes, and founde as it were a wylde vyne / and gathered therof Coloquintides his lappe full, and came and shred them in to the potte of potage, and wyste not what it was. And they poured oute for the men to eate. And when they had tasted of the pottage they cryed oute and sayde / there is deth in the potte, thou man of God, and couldē not eate therof. Then he sayde: bryng me ale. And he caste it in to the potte and sayde: fyll for the people, that they maye eate, and there was no harme in the pot.

There came a man frome Baalsalisa and broughte the man of God breed of fyrste frutes, euen twentye loues of barleye, and newe corne in a clothe he hadde. And Eliseus bade put it before the people, that they myght eate. Then his minister sayde: what shall I sette this before an hundred men? And he sayde: set it before the people, and lette them eate. For thus sayethe the Lorde: They shall eate and leaue. And he set it before them / and they ate and lefte, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde.

¶ Naaman the Sirien is healed of his leprye. Gihezi is stryken with a leprosye because he toke money and raymentes of Naaman.

CAPI. V.

NAaman capitayne of the kynges hoste of Siria was greate with his master, and well taken: for thorowe him the Lorde saued Siria. And he was an actyue mā & riche, but yet a leper. And there was a company of souldyours gone out of Siria a roupnge, and had brought of the countreye of Israel a lytle mayde, which was with Naamans wyfe. And the damosell sayde vnto her ladye: I wolde my master were with a Prophete that is in Samaria, he wolde delyuer him of his leprye. And she went and tolde her husbande, sayinge thus and thus sayethe the mayde of the lande of Israel. And the kynge of Siria sayde: goo thy waye, and I wyll sende a letter vnto the kynge of Israel. And he wente and toke with him ten talentes of syluer, and sixe thousande peces of gold, and ten chaunge of raymentes. And he brought the letter to the kyng of Israel, contaynynge in effecte these wordes. When this letter is come vnto the: Beholde, I haue sent Naaman my seruaunt to the, that thou shuldest ryddē hym of his leprye. And when kynge of Israel had read the letter, he rente his clothes and sayde: am I God, to slaye and to make alyue that he shulde sende to me, to delyuer a man from his leprye. But consyder I praye you and se, howe he pyketh quarelles with me. And when Eliseus the man of God had hearde how the kynge of Israel had rent his clothes, he sēt to the kyng, sayinge: Wherfore hast thou rent thy clothes? let him come to me, that he maye knowe there is a Prophete in Israel.

And Naaman came with his horses and his charette, and stode at the doore of Eliseus. Then Eliseus sent a messenger, sayinge: goo and washe the in Jordan seuen tymes, and thy fleshe shall be holsome, and thou shalte be cleane. And Naaman was wrothe and went awaye, and sayde: Beholde, I thought in my selfe, he wolde haue come out, and stande and call on the name of the Lorde his God, and put his hande on the place of the disease, and so take away the leprye. Are not Abanah and Pharphar ryuers of Damasco, better then all the waters of Israel? Myght I not rather wasshe in them and be clene? And so he turned and departed in angre. Then came his seruātes, and talked with him and sayd. Father, yf the Prophete had byd the doone some greate thing oughtest thou not to haue done it? How moche rather then sholdest thou do it, whyle he sayth to the onely, washe and be clene? Then he went downe & washed seuen tymes in Jordan, as the man of God bad/& his flesh chaunged, lyke vnto the flesshe of a lytle boye, and he was clene.

Then he turned agayne to the man of God and all his company with him / and came and stode before him and sayd. Beholde, I knowe there is no God in all the worlde, but in Israel. And now I praye the take a rewarde of thy seruaunt. But he sayd as surely as the Lord lyueth, before whome I stande, I wyll receyue none. And the other wolde haue constrayned him to receyue / but he wolde not. And Naaman sayd: yf thou wylte not, yet I praye the maye there not be gyuen to thy seruaunte the burthen of two mules of earthe. For thy seruaunt wyll henceforth offre neyther burnt sacrifyce nor offerynge vnto anye other God, then to the Lord. But herin the Lord be mercyfull to thy seruaunte / for when my master goeth in to the house of Remon to worshyp there, he leaneth on myne hande/ and I muste worshyp in the house of Remon, let the Lorde I praye the be mercyfull vnto thy seruaunte in this case. And he sayde to him: goo in peace. And when he was departed frome him a furlonge of grounde, Gihezi the seruaunt of Eliseus the man of God, sayd: se, my master is so pityful to this Sirien Naaman, that he wold not receyue of his hande that he offered. As surely as the Lorde lyueth, I wyll runne after him & take somwhat. And so Gihezi wente after Naaman. And when Naaman sawe him come runnynge after him, he came downe of the charet agaynst him, and sayd: is all well? And he sayd yea. But my master hath sent me, sayinge: lo, there be two ponge men come to me out of Ephraim of the childzen of the Prophetes: gyue them I praye the, one talent of syluer, and a couple of good garmentes. And Naaman sayd: auenture and take two talentes of syluer, and he constrayned him & bound two talentes of syluer in two bagges, with two goodly garmentes, and delyuered them vnto two of his seruauntes to beare it before him. So when he came to the toure, he toke it of their handes, and bestowed it in the house, and let the men go, and they departed.

Then he wente and stode before his master. And Eliseus sayde to him: whence commeth Gihezi? And he sayde: thy seruaunt wente no whither. And he sayd: went not myne herte with the, when the man turned and came of his charet agaynste the? Did not I knowe the tyme when thou went to receyue syluer, and to receyue garmentes, olyue trees, vyneyardes, oxen, shepe, men seruauntes, and mayde seruauntes? The leprye therfore of Naaman cleaue vnto the, and vnto thy seede for euer. And he went out from him a leper as whyte as snowe.

¶ Eliseus maketh yron to swymme aboue the water. The Sirians besege Israel, so that two women agree together to eate their owne childzen.

CAPI. VI.

THen sayd the children of the Prophetes vnto Eliseus: se, the place where we dwell with the, is to litle for vs. Let vs therfore take euery man a pece of tymber, and buyld vs a place there to dwel in. And he said: go ye. And one sayd: begyn I praye the, and go with thy seruauntes. And he sayd: I wyl / and so went with them.

And when they came to Jordan, they cut downe wodde. And as one was hewynge of a tree, the axe heed fell in to the water. And he cryed out and sayde: Alasse master, for it was lente me. And the man of God sayde: Where fell it? And he shewed him the place. And he cut an helue and caste it in thyther, and made the axe heed swymme. And he sayde: take it vp to the. And the other stretched his hande and caught it.

And the kynge of Siria fought agaynst Israell, and toke counsell with his seruauntes, sayinge: In suche a place and in suche, wyll I pytche. And the man of God sente vnto the kynge of Israel, saying: Beware thou go not by suche a place, for there are the Sirians gone downe. And the kynge of Israell sente to the place which the man of God tolde him & warned him of, and saued him self there more then ones or twyse. And the herte of the kynge of Siria was troubled therwith, that he sente for his seruauntes, and sayde to them: wyll ye not shewe me, who bewrayeth me to the kynge of Israell? And one of his seruauntes sayde: naye my lorde kynge: Eliseus the Prophete that is in Israel, he telleth the kynge of Israell, the wordes that thou speakest in thy priuye chamber. Then he sayde: goo and espye where he is, that I maye sende and fet hym. And one tolde the kynge, sayinge: se, he is in Dothan. And he sente thyther horse and charettes, and a greate hoste. And they came thyther by nyghte, and enuyronned the towne aboute.

And when the seruaunt of the man of God rose by earlye and was gone oute. Beholde, there was an hoste rounde aboute the towne with horses and charettes. Then sayd his seruauntes to him. Alas master, what shall we do? And he sayd: feare not, there are mo with vs then with them. And Eliseus prayed and sayde. Lorde open the eyen of the ponge man/ and he sawe. And behold, the mountayne was full of horses and charettes of fyre rounde aboute Eliseus. And when the souldiours came downe to him, Eliseus prayed vnto the Lorde and sayd. Smyte this people with blyndnesse. And he smote them with blyndnesse, according to the desyre of Eliseus. Then Eliseus sayde vnto them / this is not the waye, nor this is not the towne. But folowe me and I wyll bringe ye to the man ye seke. And he led them to Samaria.

When they were come to Samaria, Eliseus seus sayd: Lorde open theyr eyes, and let the se, and the Lorde opened theyr eyes that they sawe. And beholde, they were in the myddes of Samaria. And then sayd the kynge of Israel vnto Eliseus when he sawe them / * shall

t.Regū.xviii.a I smyte them shall I smyte them father? And he sayd / smyte them not. But smyte those whō thou takest with thyne owne swerde / and with thyne owne bowe / but set bread and water before them, and let them eate and drynke and goo to theyr master. And he made greate
F ordinaunce before them. And when they hadde eaten and droncke, sente them awaye, and they wente to theyr master. And so the souldiours of Syria came no more in to the lande of Israel.

After this, Benhadad kynge of Syria gathered all the hoste, and wente and besieged Samaria. And there arose greate dearthe in Samaria. For they hadde besieged it, tyll an asses heed was worthe foure score sicles of siluer / and the fourthe parte of a Cab of doues donge worthe fyue sycles. And as the kynge of Israel walked vpon the walles, there cryed a woman to him, sayinge / helpe my lorde kynge. And he sayde: Naye, the Lorde helpe the. But wherwith shulde I helpe the, with corne or wyne? Then sayde the kynge to her / what ayleth the? And she answered / this woman here sayde to me, bynge thy sonne, and let vs eate him to daye, and we wyll eate myne to morow. * And so we dressed my sonne and did Deut.xxviii.c eate hym. And I sayde to her an other daye /
Thren.iiii.b bynge thy sonne, that we maye eate hym.
G But she hath hyd her sonne. When the kynge herde the wordes of the woman, he rente his clothes euen as he was walkyng on the walles. And when the people loked vpon him / lo, he was clothed in sacke vnder. Then he sayde God do so and so to me, yf the heed of Eliseus the sonne of Saphat taryc on hym this daye. And as Eliseus sat in his house and the elders with hym, the kyng sente one for hym. But er the messenger came at him. he sayde to the elders: Se you not howe the sonne of this murtherer hathe sente to take of myne heed? Se circumspecte therfore when the messenger commeth, and shut the doore, and thrust him backe therwith / for the sounde of his maisters fete foloweth him. And whyle he yet talked with them: Beholde, the messenger was come vnto him. And he sayd: beholde, this cupll is of the Lorde / what more shall we loke for of the Lorde?

¶ Eliseus prophesyeth plentyousnesse of victayles and other thynges to Samaria. The Syrians rūne awaye no man folowynge them. The Lorde that wolde not beleue the wordes of Eliseus is troden to death.

CAPI. VII.

THen Eliseus sayde: heare the worde of the Lorde / for thus sayth the Lorde, to morowe this tyme a busshell of fyne floure shal be sold for a sicle, and two busshels of barleye for an other in the gates of Samaria. Then a Duke, on whose hande the kynge leaned, answered the man of God and sayde / though the Lorde wolde make wyndowes in heuen, yet wolde not this be. And he sayde a-gayne: Beholde, thou shalte se it with thyne eyes, and shalt not eate therof.

And there were foure lepers set without the gate of Samaria. And they sayde eche to his companyon / what, syt we here vntyll we dye? thoughe we thoughte that we myghte come in to the citye, yet is the dearth so greate in the citye, that we shall there dye. And yf we tarye here, we are but deed also. Nowe therfore come and lette vs flee to the hoste of the Syrians: If they saue oure lyues, we shall lyue: And yf they kyll vs, then are we deed. And so they arose in the daylyghtyng to go to the hoste of the Syrians. And when they were come to the syde of the hoste of Syria / there was no man there. For the Lorde hadde made the host of the Syrians heare a noyse of charettes, and a noyse of horses, and the noyse of a greate hoste. In so moche that they sayde one to an other: Lo, the kynge of Israel hath hyred agaynst vs the kynges of the Hethites, and the kynges of Egypte to come vpon vs. Wherupon they arose and fledde in the darke, and lefte theyr tentes, theyr horses, theyr asses, and the felde they hadde pitched, euen as it was, and fled for theyr lyues. And when these lepers came to the edge of the hoste, they went in to a tente and dyd eate and drynke, and ca-ryed thence syluer, golde, and rayment, & went and hydde it / and came agayne, and entred in to an other, and caryed thence also, and went and hyd it. Then they sayd one to an other: it is not well that we do / for this daye hathe broughte good tydynges with it. And yf we holde our peax, and tarye tyll it be daye light, we shall fynde a myschiefe. Nowe therfore come, lette vs goo and tell the kynges house-holde. And so they wente and called to the porter of the citye, and tolde them, sayinge: we came to the pauylyons of the Syrians / and lo, there was no man there, neyther voyce of man, but horses and asses tyed, and the tentes euē as they were. Then the porters called and tolde the kynges house within. And the kynge arose in the nyghte, and sayde to his seruauntes, I wyll shewe you howe the Syrians have serued vs. They know we are oppressed with hungre, and therfore are gone oute of theyr pauylyons to hyde themselues in the felde, sayinge: They wyll come out of the citye, and then we shall catche them alyue, and gette in to the citye. And one of his seruaunts answered and sayde: Let men take fyue of the horses that remayne and are lefte in the citye. Beholde, they are as good as all the multitude that are lefte in the citye / and as good as all the multitude of the citye that are consumed, and let vs sende and se. And they toke two charettes of horses / and the kynge sente after the hoste of the Syrians, sayinge: Goo and se. And they folowed after them, euen vnto Iordan: and lo, all the waye was full of clothes and vesselles whiche the Syrians had cast from them for haste.

Then

Then the messengers returned and told the kynge and the people issued oute, and robbed the tentes of the Syrians. And so a busshell of floure was solde for a sycle, and two bussheles of barleye for a sycle, accordynge to the Lordes worde. And the kynge sette the Duke on whose hande he leaned, to kepe the gate. And the people trode him in the gate, that he dyed, according to the saying of the Gods mā, whiche he sayde when the kynge came downe to him. And it came to passe accordynge to the worde of the man of God spoken to the kyng sayinge: two bussheles of barleye for a sycle, and a busshell of barleye for an other, shall be to morow this tyme in the gates of Samaria. Wherunto the Duke aunswered the man of God, and sayd: though the Lorde made windowes in heuen, yet wolde this not be. And the other said / beholde, thou shalt se it with thyne eyes, and shalt not eate therof. And so it chaunsed / for the people trode him vnder fete in the gate, that he dyed.

¶ Eliseus Prophesyeth vnto the Sunamite the dearth of seuen yere. After the dreth of Benhadad raygneth Hazael in Syria. Iehoram the sonne of Iosaphat raygneth in Juda. Edom falleth frome Juda. Ohoziah succedeth Iehoram.

CAPI. VIII.

THen spake Eliseus vnto the woman whose sonne he had restored to life, sayinge / aryse and go bothe thou and thyne house, and sojourne where thou thynkest beste / for the Lorde wyll call a derthe / whiche shall come on the lande seuen yere. And the woman arose and dyd after the sayinge of the Gods man / and wente bothe she and her housholde and sojourned in the lande of the Philistines seuen yere. And at the seuen yeres ende, when the woman was come agayne out of the lande of the Philistines, she wente oute to speake to the kynge for her house and for her lande. And B the kynge was talkynge with Gehezi the ser-uaunt of the man of God, sayinge: tell me I prayethe, all the greate dedes whiche Eliseus dyd. And it chaunsed as he was tellynge the kynge howe he restored a deed bodye to lyfe agayne, came in the woman whose sonne he restored, and cryed to the kynge for her house and lande. Then sayde Gehezi: My lorde kyng, this is the woman, and this is her sonne whiche Eliseus broughte to lyfe agayne. And the kynge asked the woman, and she tolde hym. And so the kynge sente with her one of his chamberlaynes, sayinge / restore all that pertayneth to her, with all the frutes of the felde, sithens the daye she lefte the lande, vnto this tyme.

After this Eliseus wente to Damasco, and Benhadad the kynge of Syria fell sycke. And C one tolde the kynge, sayinge: The man of God is come hyther. Then sayde the kynge to Ha-zael: * take a present with the, and go agaynst the man of God, and aske the Lorde by hym whether I shall recouer of this my disease or no. And Hazael went to mete him, and toke presentes with him, euen of all the good thin-ges of Damasco, as moche as fourtye camels coulde beare, and came and presented him self before him and sayde / thy sonne Benhadad kynge of Syria hathe sent me to the, sayinge / shall I recouer of this my disease? Eliseus said to him: goo and saye to him / thou shalte recouer / how be it the Lorde hath shewed me that he shall surely dye. And the man of God stode D fyll by him, and was taken with a sore mala-dye / in so moche that he chaunged countenance and wepte. And Hazael sayd / why wepeth my lorde? And he answered / for I knowe yͤ thou shalte do cupll vnto the chyldren of Israell / theyr stronge cityes thou shalte set on fyre, and theyr younge men thou shalte slee with the swerde, and shalte dasshe oute the braynes of theyr suckynge chyldren / and all to teare theyr women with chylde. And Hazael sayde / what is thy seruaunt, whiche am but a wogge, that I shulde do this great thynge? And Eliseus sayde / for the Lorde hathe shewed me, that thou shalte be kynge of Syria. And so he departed frome Eliseus, and came to his ma-E ster, whiche sayd to hym. What sayd Eliseus to the? And he sayde / he tolde me that thou shuldest recouer. And on the morowe he toke a roughe clothe, and dypte in the water, & spred it on his face, and he dyed, and Hazael raygned in his stede.

The fyfte yere of Iehoram sonne of Achab kynge of Israel (Iosaphat yet kynge of Juda) Iehoram kyng of Iosaphat, kynge of Juda, began to raygne / thirtye and two yere olde was he when he began to raygne, and he raygned eyght yere in Jerusalem. And he walked in the waye of the kynges of Israel, as did the house of Achab / for the doughter of Achab was his wyfe / and he dyd that displeased the Lorde. Neuertheles the Lorde wolde not de-stroye Juda, because of Dauid his seruaunte, as he promised him to geue him a light in his chyldren alwaye.

And in his dayes, Edom fell awaye from Edom.
vnder the hande of Juda, and made them a kynge of theyr owne. And Iehoram wente F
to Seir, and all his charettes with him. And he rose by nyght, and slayde on the Edomites, whiche compassed him in / and the capitaynes of his charet and the people fledde in to theyr tentes. And so the Edomites flypte awaye frō beyng vnder the hande of Juda vnto this day. And then Lobnah flypte awaye to, euen that same tyme.

The reste of the dedes of Iehoram, and all he dyd, are wrytten in the cronycles of kynges of Juda. And Iehoram rested with his fathers and was buryed with his fathers in the citye of Dauid. And Ohoziah his sonne raygned in his stede. The twelfte yere of Iehoram sonne of Achab, kynge of Israel, dyd Ohoziah the sonne of Iehoram kynge of Juda begyn to to raygne. Two and twentye yere olde was G Ohoziah when he began to raygne, and raygned one yere in Jerusalem, his mothers name was Athalia doughter of Amri kynge of Israell. And he walked in the waye of the house of Achab / for he was a sonne in lawe to

to the house of Achab.

And Iehozam the sonne of Achab went to warre with Hazael kynge of Siria, at Ramoth in Galaad / and the Sirians wounded him. Wherfore kynge Iehozam wente backe agayne, to be healed in Iezrahel of the woundes whiche the Sirians hadde gruen hym at Ramoth, when he fought with Hazael kyng of Siria. And Ohoziah the sonne of Iehozam kynge of Iuda, wente downe to se Iehozam sonne of Achab in Iezrahel, bicause he was sycke.

¶ Iehu is made kynge of Israel, and killeth Iehoram the kynge therof, and Ohoziah kynge of Iuda also: and therto causeth Iezabell to be caste downe forth at a wyndowe, whome dogges eate.

CAPI. IX.

A And Eliseus the Prophete called vnto one of the chyldren of the Prophetes, and sayd to him: gyrde vp thy loynes, and take this boxe of oyle in thyne hande, and gette the to Ramoth in Galaad. And when thou commest thyther, thou shalte there se Iehu the sonne of Iosaphat the sonne of Namsi, and goo to him and make him aryse vp frome amonge his brethren, and carye him to a secrete chamber. And take the boxe of oyle and powre it on his heed, and saye: thus sayth the Lorde: I haue annoynted the to be kynge ouer Israell. And then open the woxe and flee/ and tarye not. So the seruaunte of the Prophete dyd gette him to Ramoth in Galaad/ and when he came, the capitaynes of the host were sytteynge togyther. And he sayd: I haue an erraude to the, syr capitayne. And Iehu sayde/ vnto whyche of all vs? And he sayd: to the, O capitayne. And he arose and went in to the house.

B And the other poured the oyle on his heed, and sayde to hym/ thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell: I haue annoynted the to be kyng ouer Israel the people of the Lorde, that thou slee the housholde of Achab thy master. For I (sayth the Lorde) wyll auenge the bloude of my seruauntes the Prophetes, and the bloude of all the seruauntes of the Lorde, of the hand of Iezabel (for the hole house of Achab shall be destroyed) and I wyll destroye vnto Achab what pysseth agaynst the wall/ and so moche as the pysoned, or that is forsaken in Israel, and wyll make the house of Achab lyke the house of Ieroboam sonne of Nabat, and lyke the house of Baasa the sonne of Ahiah. And concernyng Iezabel, the dogges shall eate her in the felde of Iezrahel/ and none shall burye her. And he opened the woxe and fledde. And when Iehu was come oute to the seruauntes of his Lorde/ they sayde to hym: Is all peace? Wherfore came this madde felowe to the? And he sayd to hym: ye knowe the person and his communication. And they sayde: it is not so. But tell vs a felowshyp. And he sayd/ thus C and thus spake he to me, sayinge. Thus sayth the Lorde: I haue annoynted the to be kynge ouer Israell. And they hasted and toke euerye man his mantell and put vnder him on an hye benche at the toppe of the steppes, and blewe a trompet, and sayde: Iehu is kynge. Sodenly Iehu the sonne of Iosaphat the sonne of Namsi, conspired agaynste Iehoram. And Iehoram hadde ben waytynge at Ramoth Galaad, and all Israel with him for feare of Hazael kynge of Siria, and was returned to be healed in Iezrahel, of the woundes whiche the Sirians hadde gruen him, as he foughte with Hazael kyng of Siria.

Then sayde Iehu. Yf it be youre mynde, let no man escape out of the citye, to goo and tell in Iezrahel. And Iehu rode and wente to Iezrahel / for Iehoram laye there/ and Ohoziah kynge of Iuda, was come to Iehoram. And the watcheman that stode on the towre in Iezrahel, espyed the companye of Iehu as he came, and sayde: I se a companye. And Iehoram sayde: take an horseman and sende agaynste them, and lette him aske whether they be peace. And there wente one on horsebacke agaynste him, and sayde. Thus sayth the kynge: is it peace? And Iehu answered, what hast thou to do with peace? tourne and come after me. And the watcheman tolde, saying: the messenger came to them, but he commeth not agayne. Then he sente oute another on horsebacke, whiche came to them and sayde thus sayth the kynge: Is it peace? And Iehu answered/ what hast thou to do with peace? turne and come after me. And the watcheman told, saying: he came to them, but he commeth not agayne, and the drayuynge is lyke the drayuynge of Iehu the sonne of Namsi, for he draweth as he were mad.

Then sayd Iehoram, make redye. And they made redye his charet. And Iehoram kynge of Israel, and Ohoziah kynge of Iuda went out eyther in his charet agaynste Iehu, and mette him in the furlonge of Naboth the Israelite. And when Iehoram sawe Iehu, he sayde: is it peace Iehu? And he sayd/ what peace thou tyere be, so longe as the hoordomes of thy mother Iezabell and her witchecraftes are so greate? And Iehoram tourned his hande and fledde, and sayde to Ohoziah/ there is falshed in hande Ohoziah. And Iehu toke his bowe in his hande, and smote Iehoram betwene the shoulders, that the arowe came oute at his breste. And he fell downe tyre folde in his cheret. Then he sayd to Badukar a lorde of his take and caste him in the plotte of grounde of Naboth the Iezrahelyte. For I remembre as I and thou rode togyther after Achab his father, howe the Lorde spake these wordes agaynst him: I haue sene yesterdaye the bloude of Naboth and of his sonnes, sayde the Lorde, and I wyll reacquyte him in this grounde, sayth the Lorde. Nowe therfore take and caste him in the plot of grounde, accordynge to the Lordes worde. And when Ohoziah kynge of Iuda sawe that, he fled the waye to the garden house. And Iehu folowed after hym and sayde: smyte hym also. And they smote him in his charet at the goynge vp to Sur by Iebleam, and fled to Magedo, and there dyed. And his seruauntes caryed him to Ierusalem and buryed him in his sepulchre with his fathers in the citye of Dauid. And in the eleuenth yere of Iehoram sonne of Achab, began Ohoziah to raygne ouer Iuda. And when Iehu was come to Iezrahel, Iezabel herde of it, and depainted her eyes, and tyred her heed, and loked out at a wyndow. And as Iehu entred at the gate she sayd: had Zamri peace, which slew his master? And he lyft vp his eyes to the window and sayd: Who is of my syde, who? And there loked out to him two or thre lordes that were chamberlaynes. And he sayde: Throwe her downe. And they threwe her downe. And he sprynckled of her bloude vpon the walles and on the horses, and trode her vnder foote. And D then when he was come in, and had eaten and droncke, he sayde: go and vysite I praye you yonder cursed creature, and bury her/ for she is a kinges doughter. And when they came to burye her, they found no more of her then ℔ scull and the two fete and the two hãdes. And they came agayne and tolde him. And he sayde: It is the worde of the Lorde, whiche he spake by the hande of his seruaunte Eliah the Thesbite, saynge: ✠ in the felde of Iezrahell shall dogges eate the fleshe of Iezabel, and the carkasse of Iezabel shall be donge vpon the earth in the felde of Iezrahel/ that men shal not say, this is Iezabel.

¶ Iehu causeth the thre score and ten sonnes of Achab to be slayne, and after that fourtye and two of his brethren. He fyndeth a meane also to kyll all the prestes of Baal. After his death his sonne raygneth in his stede.

CAPI. X.

A Achab hadde thre score and ten sonnes in Samaria. And Iehu wrote letters, and sente to Samaria vnto the elders that were lordes of Iezrahel/ and to them that nourced vp Achabs chyldren, saynge: nowe at the commynge of these letters to you / ye haue with you youre masters sonnes / and ye haue with you charettes and horses / and a stronge citye and harnelle. Therfore chose the best/ and him that moost pleaseth you of your masters sonnes / and put hym on his fathers state / and fyghte for youre lordes house. And they were exceedyngly atrayde, and sayde: se, two kynges were not able to stande before hym, howe shall we then stande? And the gouernour of the kynges house, and of the citye and of the elders / and the nourses sent to Iehu, saynge: we are thy seruauntes, and wyll do all that thou shalt byd vs: we wyll make no man kyng: but do thou what semeth good in thyne eyes.

B Then he wrote other letters to them, saynge: If he be myne, and wyll obey my voice, then take the heedes of youre masters sonnes and come to me to Iezrahel by to morow this tyme. And the kynges sonnes were thre score and ten personnes with the greate men of the citye whiche nourysshed them. And when the letters came to theym, they toke the kynges children and slewe them in nombre thre score and ten personnes, and put their heedes in cophines, and sente them to hym to Iezrahell. And there came a messenger and tolde hym, saynge: they haue brought the heedes of the kinges sonnes. And he said: let them put them on two heapes in the entreyng of the gate, tyl it be daye. And in the morynge he wente out and stode and sayd to all the folke: Ye be righteous: for se, I conspyred agaynst my master, & slewe him: But who slewe these? ✠ Consider nowe howe there is nothynge of the Lordes word fallen to the erth, which he spake against the house of Achab: for the Lorde hath done that he spake to his seruaunt Eliah. And so Iehu slewe all that remayned in the house of Achab in Iezrahel/ and all that were great with him/ and his companions and his preestes, tyl he had lefte him naught. And he arose and departed, and wente to Samaria. And as Iehu was come to the house where the shepeherdes binde their shepe by the hye waye syde, he met with the brethren of Ohoziah kynge of Iuda, and sayd: what are ye? and they sayd, the brethren of Ohoziah are we, and goo to welcome the chyldren of the kynge & of the quene. And he sayd: take them alyue. And they toke them alyue, and slewe them at the well besyde the house where the shepherdes bynde their shepe, in nombre two and fourty persons, that he left none of them. E

D And when he was departed thence, he met with Ionadab the sonne of Rechab comming agaynste him. And Iehu welcomed hym, and sayde to him: is thyne herte ryghte, as myne herte is with thyne? And Ionadab sayde/ ye it is. He said: yf it be, then gyue me thyne hand. And he haue his hande, and the other toke him vp to him in to the charet, & sayd/ goo with me and se the zele I haue to the Lorde, & made him ryde with him in his charet. And when he came to Samaria, he slewe all that remayned vnto Achab in Samaria, tyl he had wypte him out, accordynge to the sayinge of the Lorde, which he spake to Eliah.

After that Iehu assembled all the people togyther, and sayde to them: ✠ Achab serued Baal a litle: But Iehu shal serue him a good. iii. Reg. xvi. g
Nowe therfore call vnto me all the Prophetes of Baal, and all his seruauntes, and al his preestes, ℔ none be lacking. For I haue a great sacrifice to do to Baal: and yf any be myssed, he shall not lyue. But Iehu dyd it of a wyle, to destroye the seruauntes of Baal. Wherfore Iehu sayde: Appointe a solempne feaste for Baal, and they proclaymed it. Then Iehu sét throwe oute all Israel. And all the seruauntes of Baal came, that there was not a man lefte behynde that came not. And when they were come in to the temple of Baal, the temple was full frome thone ende to thother.

Then he sayde to the keper of the vestrye/ brynge forthe garmentes for the seruauntes of Baal. And he brought them out garmentes. And Iehu wente with Ionadab sonne of Rechab in to the house of Baal: and sayd to the seruauntes of Baal: searche and loke that there be none here with you of the seruauntes of the Lorde, but the seruauntes of Baal onely. And they went in to offre sacrifice and burntofferynges. But Jehu appoynted him foure score men without, and sayde: Yf anye of the men whiche I shall brynge vnto youre handes escape/ he that letteth him goo shall dye for him.

And as soone as he hadde made an ende of offerynge of burnt sacrifyce, he sayde to them of the garde, and to the capitaynes: goo in and slee them, lette none come oute. And they smote him with the edge of the swerde. And the garde and the capitaynes caste them oute, and went in to the cirye of the house of Baal, and fette oute the ymage oute of the house of Baal, and burnt it. And they brake the ymage of Baal, and brake the house of Baal / and made a Jakes of it euer after. And so Jehu destroyed Baal out of Israel. But from the synnes of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israel synne with the golden calues in Bethel and Dan, Jehu departed not. Then the Lorde sayde to Jehu / bycause thou hast busyly wone that pleaseth me/ and hast wone to the house of Achab all that was in myne herte: Therfore shall * thy chyldren in the iiii. Reg. x. v. c. fourthe generation, sytte on the seate of Israell. But Jehu forced not to walke in the lawe of the Lorde God of Israel with al his herte/ for he departed not frome the synnes of Jeroboam, whiche made Israell synne. In those dayes the Lorde began to cutte Israell shorte / for Hazael slewe them in all the coostes of Israel, from Jordan Eastwarde: euen all the land of Galaad/ the Gaddites, the Rubenites, and the Manassites/ from Aroer vpon the ryuer of Arnon, with Galaad and Basan. The reste of the actes of Jehu, and all he dyd, & all his power, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Israell. And when Jehu was layde to reste with his fathers / they buryed him in Samaria / and Joachaz his sonne raygned in his stede. And the tyme that Jehu raygned vpon Israel in Samaria, was eyghe and twenty yere.

¶ Athalia putteth to deth all the kynges sonnes, except Joas the sonne of Ohoziah: whiche is hydden and after he dothe is made kynge.

CAPI. XI.

A AND Athalia the mother of Ohoziah / when she saw that her sonne was deed she arose and slewe all the kynges bloude. But Josaba the doughter of kynge Jehoram, and sister of Ohoziah, toke Joas the sonne of Ohoziah, and stale him from amonge the kynges sonnes that were slayne, and his nource with hym oute of the nourserye, and hyd him from Athalia that he was not slayne. And he was with her, hyd in the house of the Lorde sixe yeres. And Athalia dyd raigne ouer the lande.

In the seuenth yere Joiada sent and fet the capitaines & souldiours, & toke them vnto him in to the house of the Lorde, and made a leage with them, and toke an othe of them in the house of the Lorde/ and shewed them the kinges sonne/ and commaūded them, saying: this is the thynge that ye must do: one third part of you shall come on the Saboth daye, and kepe the watche of the kynges house: And an other thyrde parte shall be at the gate Sur/ & an other thyrde parte shall be at the gate behynde the garde chamber/ and so shall ye kepe the watche of the house of Mesa/ and two partes of you / that is, all that goo out on the Saboth day, shal kepe the watche of the house of the Lorde about the kynge/ and shall compasse the kynge round about, euery man with his weapen in his hande. And who so euer commeth with in the ranges, shall dye for it. And se ye be with the kyng as he goeth out and in.

The capitaynes did al thynges as Joiada preest commaunded, and toke euerye manyes men/ that is, them that came in the Saboth daye with them that wente out the Saboth daye, and wente to Joiada the Preeste. And the Preeste gaue to the capitaynes the speares and shyldes that were kynge Dauids, and had remayned in the temple. And the garde stode euerye man with his weapon in his hande rounde about the kyng/ from the ryght corner of the temple to the left a long by the aulter and the temple. And he brought out the kinges sonne, and put the crowne vpon him and deliuered him the wytnesse, and made him kyng, and anointed him. And they clapt their handes and sayde God saue the kynge.

When Athalia heede the noyse of the commouse of the people/ she came to the people in to the house of the Lorde. And when she sawe the kynge stande by a pyller (as the maner was) and the syngers and the trompettes by the kynge/ and all the people of the lande reioysyng, and the blowyng of the trompettes, she rent her clothes and cryed, treason treason. Then Joiada the Preeste commaunded the capitaynes that had the rule of the hoste, and sayde to theym: haue her oute without the ranges, and yf anye folowe her, lette him dye with the swerde: for the preest sayd/ she maye not be slayne in the house of the Lorde. And they layde handes on her, and she went the waye that the horses of the kynges went out, and was slayne there.

And Joiada made a bond both bitwene the Lorde and the kyng, and bitwene the people that they shold be & Lordes people: and also bitwene the kyng & the people. Then all the people of the land went in to the house of Baal, and destroyed his aulters, and brake owne his ymages lustely, and slewe Mathan the preest of Baal before the aulter. And & put set watchemen in the house of the Lorde, and toke & rulers ouer hundredes, & the capitaines and the garde, and all the people of the lande. And they brought the kynge from the house of the Lord, and went the way of the gate of the garde vnto the kynges house. And he sat him downe vnder the clothe of estate. And all the people of the Lorde reioysed/ and the city was in quiet. So they slewe Athalia with & swerde in the kynges house.

¶ Joas maketh prouision for the repayrynge of the temple. He is kylled by two of his seruauntes, and Amazia raigneth in his stede.

CAPI. XII.

A IOas was seuen yeres olde when he was made kynge. And he began to raygne the seuenth yere of Jehu, and raygned fourtye yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Zebia Berlabe. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde, as longe as Joiada the Preeste enformed him. But he toke not awaye the hyll aulters/ for the people slewe, and offered styll in the hyll aulters.

And Joas sayd to the preestes: al the syluer that is gyuen to the vse of the temple, and brought to the house of the Lorde by straungers, whether that it be the money that euery mā is set at/ or the money that any mans herte gyueth him to brynge in to the house of the Lorde/ let the preestes take it to them, euerye man in his course, and let them repaire the broken places of the temple, in all places where ought is founde decayed.

Neuertheleste the preestes had not repayred vnto the thre and twentye yere of Joas, the thynges decayed in the temple. Then kynge B Joas called for Joiada the preest, and for the other preestes, and sayd to them / why repayre yenot the broken places of the temple? Now therfore se ye receiue no more money according to your order, but deliuer it to repayre the temple withall. And the preestes consented to receyue no more money of the people: But that it shulde go to the repayrynge of the temple.

Then Joiada the Preeste toke a coffer, and bored an hole in the syde of it, and put it beside the aulter on the ryghte syde as one commeth to the house of the Lorde. And in to that dyd the preestes that kepte the wores, put all the money that was broughte to the Lordes house. And when they sawe there was moche money in the coffer * the kynges scrybe and the hye preest came and sealed vp the money that was founde in the house of the Lorde, after they had tolde it.

And they gaue the money by sommes in to C the handes of the maisters of the worke, that had the ouersyghte of the house of the Lorde: and they broughte it oute to the carpenters & buylders that wroughte vpon the house of the Lord, and to masons and hewers of stone, to bye tymbre and free stone, to repayre the decaye in the house of the Lorde / and all that neded reparacyons in the house: howe be it there was not made in the house of the Lorde bookes of syluer, shreddynge knyues, basens, trompettes, or any other instrumentes of gold or syluer, of that money that was brought for the house of the Lorde. For they gaue that to the workemen, to repayre therwith the house of the Lorde. Moreouer they reckened not with the men, in to whose handes they deliuered the money to be bestowed on workemen: But they dyd it euen of fidelitie. Howe beit trespace money and synne money myght not be brought in to the house of the Lorde, for it was the preestes.

Then came Hazael kynge of Syria / and foughte agaynst Geth, and toke it / and appoynted him selfe to go vp to Jerusalem. But D Joas kynge of Juda toke all the dedicat thynges, that Josaphat, Jehoram, and Ohoziah his progenitours kynges of Juda had dedicate / & that he him selfe hadde dedicated / and all the golde that coulde be founde in the treasure of the Lordes house, and of the kinges house/ and sent it to Hazael kynge of Syria/ and so he departed from Jerusalem.

The residue of the actes of Joas and all he dyd, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Juda. But his owne seruauntes arose and wrought treason, and slewe Joas in the house Melo, in the waye downe to Sela. For Josachar the sonne of Semaath and Jozabad the sonne of Somer his seruauntes, smote him & he dyed. And they buryed him with his fathers in the citye of Dauid. And Amazias his sonne raygned in his place.

¶ Joachaz the sonne of Jehu is delyuered in to the handes of the Syriens, and dyeth. Joas his sonne raygneth in his steade. Eliseus dyeth.

CAPI. XIII.

A IN the thre and twentye yere of Joas sonne of Ohoziah kynge of Juda / Joachaz the sonne of Jehu was made kyng ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued seuentene yeres/ & he wrought wyckednesse in the eye of & Lord/ for he followed the synne of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, which made Israel to synne, and departed not from the same. Wherfore the Lord was angrye with Israel/ and delyuered them in to the hande of Hazael kynge of Syria, and in to the hande of Benhadad the sonne of Hazael all theyr dayes. Joachaz

But Joachaz besought & Lorde, and & Lord herde him. For he had sene the affliction of Israel, how the kynge of Syria oppressed them. And therfore the Lorde gaue vnto Israel a sauyour, and they were deliuered forth of & handes of the Syrians. And the children of Israell B dwelt in their tentes as before tyme. Neuertheless they departed not from the synne of & house of Jeroboam, who made Israel to synne, but walked therin. And there remayned a superstitious wod also in Samaria stil / but there were left of the people to Joachaz, but fyftye horsemen and ten charettes, and ten thousand fotemen/ for the kynge of Syria had destroyed them, and made them like threshed chaffe. The rest of the actes of Joachaz, and all he did / and his power, are writte in & Chronicles of kinges of Israell. And Joachaz rested & his fathers/ and they buryed him in Samaria / and Joas Joas his sonne raygned in his stede. In the xxxvii. yere of Joas kynge of Juda, began Joas the sonne of Joachaz to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria, and continued sixtene yeres / and dyd naughtily in the syghte of the Lorde, and departed in nothyng from the synnes of Jeroboā the sonne of Nabat that made Israell synne/ C but walked therin.

The remnaunt of the actes of Joas, and all he dyd, and his power, howe he foughte with Amazias kynge of Juda, are wrytten in the Cronycles of kynges of Israel. And when Joas was layde to reste with his fathers, Jeroboam sate vpon his seate / and Joas was buryed in Samaria amonge the kynges of Israel.

Eliseus dyeth.

When Eliseus was fallen sycke of the sycknesse wherof he dyed / Joas kynge of Israell came to hym and wepte to him and sayd. O father father, chariot of Israell, and conductour of the same. Eliseus sayde vnto him/ bringe bowe and arowes. And he broughte to him bowe and arowes. And he sayde to the kynge of Israell: Put thyne hande vpon the bowe. And when he hadde put his hande vpon the bowe, Eliseus put his handes vpon the kynges handes. Then he sayd: open a wyndowe Eastwarde: and he opened. And Eliseus sayde: shote/and he shotte. And he sayde: the arowe of helpe of the Lorde, and the arowe of helpe agaynste the Sirians/ for thou shalte beate the Sirians in Aphek, tyll thou haue consumed them.

D

Then he sayde: take arowes/and he toke. Then he sayde to the kynge of Israell/smyte the grounde: and he smote thryse, and ceased. And the man of God was angrye with hym, and sayde: Thou sholdest haue smytten fyue or sixe tymes, & then thou haddest smytten the Sirians tyll thou haddest consumed them: where nowe thou shalte beate them but thryse.

When Eliseus was deed and buryed / an armye of the Moabytes came in to the land, the yere folowynge. And it chaunsed as they were buryinge a man, they espyed the souldiours, and therfore cast the deed corps in to the sepulchre of Eliseus. And as soone as it touched the bones of Eliseus, he reuyued & stode vp on his fete.

Eccle. xlviii. b

And Hazael oppressed Israel all the dayes of Joachaz. But the Lorde hadde mercye on them, and tourned to them bycause of his promyse made with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob/ and wolde not destroye them, neyther caste them frome him as yet. And when Hazaell kyng of Siria was deed, Benhadad his sonne raygned in his stede. And then Joas the sonne of Joachaz went agayne, and toke out of the hand of Benhadad sonne of Hazael, the cities whiche he had taken forthe of the handes of Joachaz his father by law of armes. And thre tymes dyd Joas beate him and broughte the cities of Israel agayne.

¶ Amazias kyng of Juda putteth to deth the murderers of his father: and inuyteth Edom. Joas king of Israel taketh Amazias. Joas dieth, and Jeroboam succedeth: after him raygneth Zacharias. Amazias is kylled, and Azariah raygneth in his stede.

CAPI XIIII.

ii. Para xv. a

THe seconde yere of Joas sonne of Joachaz kyng of Israell, raygned Amazias sonne of Joas, kynge of Juda/ he was fyue and twentye yeres olde when he began/ and raygned nyne and twentye yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Joadan / and was of Jerusalem. And he did that pleased the Lorde, yet not lyke Dauid his father: but dyd in all thynges as Joas his father dyd. Neyther toke they awaye the hyll aulters/ for the people slewe and offered styll in hyll aulters. And as soone as the kyngdome was settled in his hande / he slewe his seruauntes that kylled the kynge his father. But the chyldren of those murtherers he slewe not: accordyng to that is wrytten in the boke of the lawe of Moses / where the Lorde commaunded, saynge: * the fathers shall not dye for the chyldrens cause, nor the chyldren for the dedes of theyr fathers: but euery man shall be slayne for his owne synne.

* And he slewe of the Edomites in the salt valeye, ten thousande, and toke the towne Sela with strengthe of battayle / and called the name of it Iectheel euer after. After that Amazias sente messengers to Joas the sonne of Joachaz sonne of Jehu, kynge of Israel, sayinge: come, lette vs se eche other. But Joas kynge of Israel sent agayne to Amasias kynge of Juda, sayinge: A thystell in Libanon, sent to a cypresse tree in Libanon, sayinge: gyue thy doughter to my sonne to wyfe. But the wylde beastes in Libanon, wente and trode downe the thistell. Bycause thou hast beaten the Edomites, therfore thyne herte ryseth. Be gloryous: but tarye at home. For what nedest thou to prouoke myschiefe, that thou shouldest be ouerthrowen, and Juda with the?

But Amasias wolde not heare. And so Joas kynge of Israell wente vp, and he and Amazias kynge of Juda sawe eyther other at Bethsames in Juda. And Juda was put to the worsse before Israell / and they fledde euerye man to his tente. And Joas kynge of Israell toke Amazias kynge of Juda, sonne of Joas, the sonne of Ohoziah at Bethsames. And then he wente to Jerusalem, and brake downe of the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim to the corner gate, foure hundred cubites. And he toke al the gold and syluer, and all the vesselles that were founde in the house of the Lord, and in the treasure of the kinges house, and hostages therto: and then retourned to Samaria agayne.

The reste of the actes of Joas whiche he dyd, and his power/ and how he fought with Amazias kynge of Juda, are wrytten in the Cronicles of kynges of Israell: and Joas layde him to reste with his fathers / and was buryed at Samaria amonge the kynges of Israell: and Jeroboam his sonne raygned in his rowme.

Amazias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, lyued after the deathe of Joas sonne of Joachaz, kynge of Israel fyftene yeres. The reste of the dedes of Amazias, are wrytten in the Cronicles of kynges of Juda. And they conspired greate treason agaynste him in Jerusalem/ and he fledde to Lachis. And they sente after him to Lachis, and slewe him there. And they broughte him on an horse, and he was buryed at Jerusalem amonges his progenitours in the citye of Dauid. * And all the people of Juda toke Azarias beynge sixtene yere olde/ and made him kynge in place of his father Amazias. He buylt Ailath and brought it agayn to Juda/ after that the kyng was layde to rest with his fathers.

F

The fiftene yere of Amazias sonne of Joas kynge of Juda, was Jeroboam sonne of Joas made kynge ouer Israell in Samaria/ and raigned one and forty yeres, and wrought wyckednesse in the syghte of the Lorde: for he tourned in nothynge from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israel to synne. He restored the costes of Israel from the enteryng of Hemath vnto the see, in the wyld feldes/ accordyng to the word of the Lorde God of Israell whiche he spake thorowe his seruaunte Jonah the sonne of Amithai the Prophet, which was of Geth Ophir. For the Lorde hadde sene howe the affliction of Israel was exceding bitter/ in so moche that the prysoned and the forsakē were at an ende. And there was no helper vnto Israel. And the Lorde had not yet sayd that men shoulde put out the name of Israel from vnder heuen. And therfore he holpe them by the hande of Jeroboam the sonne of Joas.

G

The reste of the dedes of Jeroboam / and all he dyd, and his power how he fought, and how he restored Damasco and Hemath to Juda in Israell, are written in the boke of Cronicles of kynges of Israell. And Jeroboam layde him to reste with his fathers, and with the kynges of Israel, to whom Zacharias his sonne succeded.

¶ Azarias kynge of Juda becometh Leprouse. Jotham raygneth for him. Selum kylleth Jeroboam and succedeth him. After whom raygneth Manahem Phakeiah, Phakeh, Hosea, Jotham, Ahaz, one after an other.

CAPI. XV.

A

THe seuen and twentye yere of Jeroboam kynge of Israell / Azarias sonne of Amazias kyng of Juda began to raigne. Sixtene yeres olde was he, when he was made kynge, and raygned two and fiftye yeres in Jerusalem, his mothers name was Jechelia, and was of Jerusalem. And he dyd that pleased ÿ Lorde in all thynges, as dyd his father Amazias: saue that they put not the hyll aulters awaye / for the people offered and burnte styll in the hyll aulters. And the Lorde smote the kynge that he was a leper vnto the day of his death / and dwelte in an house at lybertye by him selfe / and Jotham the kynges sonne gouerned the house, and iudged the people of the lande. The reste of the dedes of Azarias and al he dyd, are written in Chronicles of kinges of Juda. And Azarias layd him to slepe with his fathers/ and they buryed him with his fathers in the citye of Dauid / and Jotham his sonne raygned in his stede.

B

In the. xxxviii. yere of Azarias kyng of Juda was Zacharias the sonne of Jeroboam made kynge vpon Israel in Samaria/ and raygned sixe monethes/ and * did that pleased ÿ Lord, as dyd his fathers/ and tourned not from the synnes of Jeroboam the son of Nabat, which caused Israel to synne. And Selum the sonne of Jabes conspired agaynste him, and smote him before the people, and kylled him, and raigned in his stede.

C

The reste of the dedes of Zacharias, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Israel. This is the saying that the Lorde spake vnto Jehu, sayinge: * thy sonnes shall syt on the seate of Israell in the fourth generacion. And it came so to passe.

* iiii. Reg. x. f

Selum.

Selum the sonne of Jabes began to raigne the nyne and thirtye yere of Azarias kynge of Juda / and he raygned a moneth in Samaria. For Manahem the sonne of Gadi came vp frome Therzah, and wente to Samaria and smote Selum the sonne of Jabes in Samaria, and slewe him, and raygned in his stede. The rest of the dedes of Selum, and the treason whiche he conspired, are wrytten in the Chronycles of kynges of Israell. The same tyme Manahem destroyed Thaphsah, and all that were therin / and the costes therof from Therzah (bycause they opened not to hym) he smote, and rent all the women with chylde.

Manahem.

The nyne and thirtye yere of Azarias kyng of Juda, began Manahem the sonne of Gadi to raygne vpon Israel / and continued ten yeres in Samaria. And he dyd euyll in the syght of the Lorde, and tourned not all the dayes from the synne of Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whiche made Israell to synne. And Phul kynge of Assiria came vpon the land. And Manahem gaue Phul a thousande talentes of siluer, to helpe him to stablysshe his kyngdome. And Manahem raysed the money in Israell, vpon all men of substaunce, for to gyue the kynge of Assiria fiftye sycles of syluer a pece. And the kynge of Assiria turned backe agayne and taryed not there in the lande. The reste of the dedes of Manahem and all he dyd, are written in the Chronicles of kynges of Israel. And when Manahem was layde to reste with his fathers, Phakeiah his sonne raigned in his stede.

Phakeiah.

The fyftyeth yere of Azarias kynge of Juda, began Phakeiah the sonne of Manahem to raygne ouer Israell in Samaria / and continued two yeres, and wrought wyckedly in the syghte of the Lorde, and lefte not of from the synnes of Jeroboam sonne of Nabat, which caused Israel to synne. And Phakeh the sonne of Romeliah, a capitayne of his, conspired agaynste him, and slewe him in a toure of the kynges house, with Argob and Ariah, and fyftye men with him that were Galaadites. And when he had kylled him, raygned in his rowme. The reste of Phakeiah and all he dyd, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Israel.

F

In the. lii. yere of Azarias kyng of Juda, began Phakeh the sonne of Romelia to raygne ouer Israel in Samaria, & continued twentye yeres, and dyd euyll in the syght of the Lord, and turned not from the synnes of Jeroboam sonne of Nabat that made Israel to synne. In the dayes of Phakeh kyng of Israel, came Teglath Phalasar king of Assiria/and toke Aion, Abel, Beth, Maaca, Janoa, Kades, Hazor, Galaad, Galile, and all the lande of Nephthali/& caried them awaye to Assiria.

And Hosea the sonne of Elah conspyred treason agaynst Phakeh the sonne of Romelia, and smote him and slewe him, and raigned in his stede / the twentye yere of Jotham the sonne of Oziah. The rest of the actes of Phakeh, and all he dyd, are written in the Cronicles of the kynges of Israel.

The seconde yere of Phakeh sonne of Romelia kyng of Israell, began Jotham the sonne of Oziah kyng of Juda to raigne. Fyue and twentye yeres olde was he, when he began to raygne/and he raygned sixtene yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jerusa, the doughter of Zadok. And he dyd that was ryghte before the Lorde: euen in all thynge, as dyd his father Oziah, so dyd he. But he put not awaye the hyll aulters / for the people offered and burnte incense styll in the hyll aulters/he buylte the hyghest wore in ỹ house of the Lorde. The rest of the dedes of Jotham and al he did, are written in ỹ Cronicles of kinges of Juda. In those dayes the Lorde began to sende agaynst Juda Razin the kynge of Syria, and Phakeh the sonne of Romelia. And Jotham rested with his fathers, and was buryed with his auncestours in the citye of David his father/and Achaz his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ Achaz kynge of Juda, consecrateth his sonne in fyre: and hath many battayles agaynste the kynge of Israel. He causeth an aultare to be made lyke vnto it of Damasco. In the steade of Achaz raygneth Ezechias his sonne.

CAPI. XVI.

THe seuentene yere of Phakeh sonne of Romelia kyng of Israel/Achaz sonne of Jotham kynge of Juda, began to raigne being of thage of twentye yere, when he was made kynge/ and raigned sixtene yere in Jerusalem/and dyd not the thynge that was ryght in the eyen of the Lorde his God, as dyd David his father: But went in the waye of the kynges of Israel / & therto he offered his sonne in fyre, after the abhominacion of the hethen, whiche the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. And he offered and burnt the fat in ỹ hyl aulters, and on the hylles and vnder euery grene tree. * Then Razin kynge of Syria, and Phakeh sonne of Romelia kynge of Israell, came vp to Jerusalem to fight. And they besieged Achaz, but could not ouercome him. At the same tyme Razin kyng of Syria broughte Aelath agayn to Syria, and rid the Jewes thece. And the Edomites went to Aelath and dwelt therin vnto this daye.

Then Achaz sent messegers to Teglath Phalasar king of Assiria, saying: I am thy seruant and thy sonne/come and deliuer me out of the hande of the kyng of Syria, and out of ỹ hande of the kyng of Israel, whiche be rysen agaynst me. And Achaz toke the siluer & the golde that was founde in the house of the Lorde, & in the treasure of the kynges house, and sent it for a rewarde to the kynge of Assiria. And the kyng of Assiria was applyinge to his mynde, & went to Damasco, and toke it/and caried the people awaye to Kir, and slewe Razin.

And kynge Achaz wente agaynste Teglath Phalasar kynge of Assiria, to Damasco. And when he sawe a certayne aulter that was at Damasco, he sente to Uria the preest the patterne of the aulter, and the facyon of all the workemanshyp therof. And Uria the Preest made an aulter in all poyntes lyke to the patterne whiche kyng Achaz had sente from Damasco/and had fynished it by the kynges comynge frome Damasco. And when the kynge was come from Damasco, and saw the aulter, he went to it, and offered theron. And he burnt his burnt offeryng, and sprynckled the blonde of his peaxofferyng/and poured his wellayles, and sprynckled the blonde of his peaxofferynges vpon the sayde aulter. And the brasen aulter that was before the Lorde, he remoued from betwene the aulter and the house of the Lorde, and put it on the north syde of the sayde aulter.

And the king commaunded Urias the preest sayinge: vpon the greate aulter set on fyre the morninge burntofferynges, and in the meatofferynges / and the kynges burnt sacrifice, and his meatofferinges/and the burntofferynges of all the people of the lande and their meatofferynges & theyr drynkeofferynges, & poure theron all the blonde of all maner offrynges. But the brasen aulter shall be for me to enquyre with. And Urias the Preest dyd all thynges as kynge Achaz commaunded him. And kynge Achaz brake the sydes of the bottomes, and toke the lauers from them/and toke downe the see from the brasen oxen that were vnder it, and put it vpon a pauement of stone. And therto the pulpyt for the Saboth that they hadde made in the house, and the kynges entrye without, turned he to the house of the Lorde, for feare of the kynge of Assiria. The reste of the dedes of Achaz whiche he dyd, are wrytten in the Cronycles of kynges of Juda. And Achaz layde him to reste with his fathers/ and was buryed with his fathers in the citye of David / and Ezechias his sonne raygned in his rowme.

¶ Hosea kinge of Israel is taken. And he and all his royalme brought to the Assyryans.

CAPI. XVII.

IN the. xij. yere of Achaz kynge of Juda, Hosea sonne of Elah beganne to raygne in Samaria vpon Israel, and contynued nyne yeres, and dyd that displeased the Lorde but not so cupll as dyd the kynges of Israel that were before hym. And Salmanasar king of Assiria came vpon him/ and Hosea became his seruaunt, and gaue him trybutes. And the kynge of Assyria founde treason in Hosea, because he had sent messengers to Sua kynge of Egypte, and sent no tributes vnto the kynge of Assiria, as he was yerely wont to do. Therfore the kynge of Assiria besieged him & bound him and put him in prysion. * And then the kynge of Assiria came thorow out all the lād and came to Samaria & besieged it thre yere. And in the nynthe yere of Hosea, the kyng of Assyria toke Samaria & caryed Israel awaye vnto Assiria and put them in Hala, in Habor on the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cyties of ỹ Medes. For the children of Israel had synned againste the Lorde their God whiche hadde brought them out of the lande of Egypt, frō the hande of Pharao kynge of Egypte, and worshipped other goddes. And they walked in the ordinaunce of the heythen whiche the Lorde cast out before the children of Israel, & in the thinges whiche the kynges of Israell had made. And the children of Israel wrapte them selues in thinges that were not wel towarde the Lorde theyr God. And they buylt them hylaulters in all their cyties, bothe in the towres where they kept watche and also in the stronge townes. And they made theym Images and superstitious woodes on euery hyghe hyll and vnder euery grene tree. And there they sacrificed in the hylaultars, as dyd the heythen, which the Lorde caryed away at their commynge, and wrought wycked dedes to angre the Lorde with. And they serued Idoles, concerninge which thing the Lord had sayde to the: ye shall not do so. And the Lord testifyed to Israel and to Juda, by all the prophetes and by all the Seers, sayenge: Turne frome your wycked wayes, and kepe my commaundementes and myne ordinaunces, accordinge to all the lawes which I commaunded your fathers, and as I sent to you by my seruaunttes the Prophetes. But they wolde not heare, but hardened their neckes, lyke to the neckes of their fathers that dyd not beleue ỹ Lorde their God. And they refused his ordinaunces and his couenaunt that he had made with their fathers, and the wytnesse whiche he had wytnessed to them, and folowed vanite and became vayne, lyke to the heythen, ỹ were roundeabout them, of whych, the Lorde had charged theym, that they shoulde not do lyke them. But they left the commaundementes of the Lorde their God, and made them Images of mettall, that is to saye two calues and made groues and bowed them selues vn to all the host of heauen, and serued Baal.

And they sacrificed their sonnes & their doughters in fyre, and vsed witchecraft and enchauntementes, and had them appointed them selues to worke wickednesse in the sight of the Lorde, for to angre him.

Wherfore the Lorde was exceadinge wrayth with Israell and put them out of his sight, that there was left but the tribe of Juda only, yea and neyther Juda kept the commaundmentes of the Lorde their God, but walked in the ordinaunces of Israel which they had made. Therfore the Lorde cast vp all ỹ seed of Israel and vexed them and deliuer them in to the handes of spoylers, vntyll he had caste them out of his sight. And Israel diuided thē selues frome the house of David, and made Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat kynge. Which Jeroboam thrust Israel away from the Lord and made them synne a great synne. And so ỹ children of Israel walked in all the synne of Jeroboam which he had set vp, and departed not frome the same, tyll the Lorde hadde put Israel awaye out of his sight, as he sayde by all his seruauntes the Prophetes. And so he translated Israel out of their lande to Assiria, euen vnto this daye. Jerem.xxv.a

And the kynge of Assiria broughte people frome Babylon and frome Cutha, and frome Ava, and frome Hemath, and from Sepharuaim, and put them in the cyties of Samaria in stede of the children of Israel. And they possessed Samaria and dwelt in the cyties therof. But at the begynninge of their dwelling, they feared not the Lorde. Wherfore ỹ Lord sent Lyons vpon them whiche slewe theym. Then men tolde the kynge of Assyria, saying: The nations which thou hast broughte & put in the cyties of Samaria, know not the maner of the God of the lande, and therfore he hath sent Lyons vpon them, which slay them because they know not the maner of the God of the lande.

Then the kyng of Assiria commaunded sayenge: cary thyther one of the preestes whiche ye brought thence, and let him go and dwell there, and teache theym the facyon howe to serue the God of the countreye. And then one of the preastes which they had caryed thence, went and dwelt in Bethel, and taught them how they shulde feare the Lorde. Howbeit euery nacion made their owne Goddes & put them in the houses of the hilaultares whiche the Samaritans had made, euerye nacion in their cyties where they dwelt. The mē of Babilon made Socoth, Benoth. The mē of Cuth made Nergel. They of Hemath made Asima. The Auites made Nebahaz, and Tharthak. And the Sepharuaites burnt their children in fire vnto Adramelech & Anamelech, the goddes of the Sepharuaites. And thoughe they feared the Lord, yet they made them preastes of the lowest of the people, for the hilaulters which sacrificed for them in the houses of the hilaultars. And so they feared the Lorde, and yet serued their owne goddes after the maner of the people frome whence they were brought.

Unto this daye they do after the olde maner: they neyther feare the Lorde, neyther do after their owne ordinaunces and customes, & after the lawe and commaundement whiche the Lorde commaunded the children of Jacob whose name he called Israel, and made an appointement with them and charged them sayenge: feare not any other gods, nor bow your selues to them nor serue them, nor sacrifice to them: but to the Lorde which brought you out of the lande of Egypt with great power and a stretched out arme: him feare and to him bowe, and to him do sacrifice. And the ordinaunces, customes, lawe and commaund-

His mothers name was Abi the daughter of Zacharias, and he dyd that pleased the Lord in all thynge, lyke to Dauid his father. He put awaye the hyll aultares and brake the Jmages and cut downe the grooues, and all to brake the brasen serpent that Moses made. Foꝛ vnto those dayes the chyldren of Israell dyd burne sacrefyce to it, and called it Nehustan. He claue to the Lorde ꝯ departed not frome him, but kept his cõmaũdmentes which the Lorde commaũded Moses. And the Lorde was with him, And whatsoeuer he toke in hande he dyd it wysely. In the fourth yere of kynge Ezechias whiche was the seuenth yere of Hosea sonne of Ela kynge of Israel, came Salmanasar kyng of Assiria vpon Samaria and besieged it. And they toke it at the ende of thre yere, which was the sixte of Ezechias: that is to say the nynth yere of Hosea kynge of Israel, was Samaria wonne. And the kynge of Assiria dyd carye away Israel vnto Assiria, and put them in Halah and in Habor on the ryuer of Gozan, and in the cyties of Medes: because they wolde not herken vnto the voyce of the Lorde theiꝛ God, But transgressed his appointment, and all that Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde cõmaunded, and wolde neyther heare noꝛ do.

4. Par. xxii. a Esai. xxxvi. a.
Ezech. xix. ii. c

* The. xiiij. yere of kynge Ezechias came Sennacherib kynge of Assiria against all the stronge cyties of Juda and toke them. Wherupon Ezechias kynge of Juda sent to ꝯ kynge of Assiria to Lachis, sayenge: I haue offended. Depart frome me, and what thou putteste on me that will I beare. And the kyng of Assiria asseted vpon Ezechias kynge of Juda, thre hundred talentes of siluer and thirty talentes of golde. * And Ezechias gaue him all the siluer that was founde in the house of the Lorde and also in the treasure of the kynges house. And the sayde season Ezechias rent of the doꝛes of the temple of the Lorde and the pyllers, whiche the sayde Ezechias kynge of Juda couered ouer, and gaue thẽ to the kinge of Assyria.

And the kynge of Assyria sent Tharthan and Rabsaris and Rabsakeh from Lachis to kynge Ezechias with a great host to Jerusalem. And they went vp and came to Jerusalem, and went and stode by the coundyt of the ouermost pole whiche is in the waye to the fullers felde, and called to the kynge. And there came out to them, Eliakim the sonne of Helkiah gouarde of housholde and Sobnah the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph, theiꝛ recoꝛder. And then Rabsakeh sayd to them, Tell ye Ezechias I pray you: thus sayeth the grete kynge the kynge of Assyria. What confidence is this that thou hast? thou wylte happely speake a lyght woꝛde, that thou hast counsell and power to make warre. On whome then doest thou trust, that thou rebellest agaynst me? doest thou truste to the staffe of this bruysed rede Egypt, on whiche yf a man leane, it wyll renne in to his hande and perce it. Foꝛ euen so is Pharao kynge of Egypte vnto all that truste on hym. * Yf ye saye vnto me, we trust in the Lorde our God. Is not this God he, whose hyaultares and other aultersto, Ezechias hathe put downe, and hath sayde to Juda and Jerusalem, bow your selues before this aulter here in Jerusalem? Now therfore ioyne thy selfe to my Lorde the kynge of Assiria, and I will delyuer the two thousande hoyses, yf thou be able to set ryders vpon them; (and yf thou be not) how then arte thou able to resist one of the leste Dukes of my maysters seruauntes? oꝛ trustest thou to Egypte for charettes and hoꝛsmen? Moꝛeouer thinkest thou I am come without the bydding of the Lorde to this place to destroye it? Naye: the Lorde sayde to me, go vp to this lande and destroye it. Then sayde Eliakim the son of Helkiah and Sobnah and Joah, to Rabsakeh: speake, we praye the, to thy seruauntes in the Syrians language, foꝛ we vnderstande it: and talke not with vs in the Jewes tongue, in the eares of the people that are on the walles. And Rabsakeh sayde vnto them: hath my master sent me only to thy master and to the, to speake these woꝛdes, oꝛ rather to the men that kepe the walles, that they shal eat their owne dyrt and drinke their owne pisse with you.

And so Rabsakeh stode and cryed with a lowde voyce in the Jewes language, and spake, sayenge: Heare the sayenge of the great kynge, the kynge of Assiria. Thus sayeth the kynge: Let not Ezechias beguyle you, foꝛ he is not able to delyuer you out of myne handes, neyther let Ezechias make you truste to the Lorde sayenge: the Lorde shall surely delyuer vs, and this cytie shall not be delyuered into the handes of the kynge of Assiria. Herken not vnto vnto Ezechias, foꝛ thus sayth the kyng of Assiria. Deale kyndely with me, and come oute to me. And then eat euery man of his owne vyne, and of his frygge tree, and dryncke euery man of the water of his owne welle, tyll I come and fet you to as good a land as yours is, a land of coꝛne and wyne, a lande of breed and vynyardes, a lande of olyue trees of oyle and of hony. And ye shall lyue and not dye. And herken not vnto Ezechias foꝛ he wyll beguyle you, saying: the Lorde shall delyuer vs. Foꝛ haue the goddes of the nacyons delyuered any God his lande, oute of the hande of the kynge of Assyria? where are the gods of Hemath and of Arphad? where are the goddes of Sepharuaim of Ana and Auah? did they delyuer Samaria out of myne handes? what God of any lande hath delyuered his lande oute of myne hande, that the Lorde shulde delyuer Jerusalem out of myne hand?

But the people helde theiꝛ peax and answerd not him a woꝛde: foꝛ the kinge hadde commaunded, sayenge: answere him not.

Then Eliakim the gouarde of housholde, and Sobna the scribe, and Joah the sonne of Asaph the recoꝛder, came to Ezechias with their clothes rẽt and tolde him the woꝛdes of Rabsakeh.

CAP. XIX.

WHen kynge Ezechias herde this, he rente his clothes and put on sacke, and went to the house of the Lorde. Furthermoꝛe he sent Eliakim gouarde of housholde, & Sobna the scribe, & the elders of the Preastes clothed in sacke, to Isai the Prophete the sonne of Amoz. And they sayde to him, thus sayth Ezechias: This daye is a daye of tribulation of rebukynge and raylinge: Euen as when ꝯ chyldren are redy to be borne, and the mothers haue no power to be delyuered. Oh that the Lorde thy God wolde heare al the woꝛdes of Rabsakeh, whome the kyng of Assiria his maister hath sent to rayle on the lyuynge God, & to rebuke him with woꝛdes, which the Lorde thy God hathe herde. Wherfoꝛe lyft vp thy prayer foꝛ the remnaunt that are left. When the seruauntes of kynge Ezechias were come to Isai: Isaia sayde to them. So shall ye say to youꝛ master. Thus sayeth the Lorde: be not afrayde of the woꝛdes thou herdest, w which the younge men of the kynge of Assiria haue rayled on me. Foꝛ I will sende him a blaste that he shal heare tydinges, and so returne to his owne lande: And I will ouerthrowe hym with the swoꝛde, euen in his owne lande.

And Rabsakeh went backe agayne & found the kynge of Assiria fighting against Lobnah: foꝛ he had herde, that he was departed from Lachis. And he herde tydinges of Tharaka kyng of the blacke Moꝛes, that he was come out to fight against him. And therupon he departed and sent messengers vnto Ezechias, sayenge. Thus saye to Ezechias kynge of Juda, Let not thy God carye the out of the way, in whome thou so trustest, saying: Jerusalem shall not be delyuered into the hande of the kynge of Assyria. Beholde, thou hast hearde what the kynges of Assyria haue done to all landes, howe they haue vtterlye destroyed theym, And howe then shuldest thou escape? hathe the goddes of the heythen delyuered them whiche myne auncestoures haue destroyed: as Gozan, Haran, Rezeph, and the chyldren of Eden which were in Thelasar? where is the kynge of Hemath, the kyng of Arphad the kynge of the cyte of Sepharuaim, & the kynge of Ana, and the kynge of Auah?

When Ezechias had receyued the lettres of the hande of the messengers and hadde red them: he went into the house of the Lorde, & layde them abrode before the Lorde. And Ezechias prayed before the Lorde & sayd: Lord God of Israell, whiche dwellest betwene the Cherubes, thou arte God alone ouer all the kyngdomes of the earthe, and thou hast made both heauen and earthe. Lorde, bowe thyne eares and heare: Open Lorde thyne eyen and se: & heare the woꝛdes of Sennacherib which hath sent to raple on the lyuing God. Certes o Lorde, the kynges of Assiria haue destroyed nacions and their lãdes, and haue set fyre on their goddes. Foꝛ they were no goddes, but the woꝛke of the handes of man: euen wood and stone. And therfoꝛe they destroyed them. Now therfoꝛe (Lorde our God) saue thou vs out of his hande, that all the kyngdomes of ꝯ earthe maye knowe, that thou Lord art God alone. And Isai the sonne of Amoz sent to Ezechias sayenge: Thus saith the Lorde God of Israel, the thynge that thou hast prayed to me concerninge Sennacherib kyng of Assiria, I haue herde, This is the thynge that ꝯ Lord sayth of him: He hath despysed the, O virgine wughter of Sion: He hath shaken his hed at the, thou wughter of Jerusalem: whome hast thou rayled on, and whom hast thou reuyled? Against whome hast thou lyfted vp thy voyce and hast eleuate thyne eyes so yghe? Euen against the holy of Israell. By the hand of thy messengers thou hast rayled on the Lord and sayde: with the multitude of my charettes I am come vp to the heyght of the mountaynes euen alonge by the sydes of Libanon, & haue cut of the hyghe Cedar trees. and the lustye fyrre trees therof, euen to the woode of Carmel that belongeth therto. I haue dygged & droncke straunge waters, and haue dryed by with the soles of my fete poles enclosed. But haste thou not hearde howe I haue ordeyned suche a thinge a greate whyle a go, and haue prepared it frome the begynnynge? And nowe I bringe it forth, and it shalbe to destroy, and to bringe stronge cyties, in to rude heapes of stones. And the enhabitauntes of them shall be of lytle power, and faynte hearted and confounded. * They shalbe lyke the grasse of the felde, and grene herbes, and as the hey on the toppes of the houses whiche wetherth or it come to any heyght. The selfe same nyght the Aungell of the Lorde went out and smote in the hoste of the Assyrians an hundred foure score & fyue thousande. And when they were rysen early in the mornynge: beholde, they were al deed corses. And so Sennacherib kynge of Assiria auoyded and departed and went agayne, and dwelt at Niniue. And as he was in his deuocion knelinge in the house of Nisroch his God, Adramelech and Sarasar smote him with ye swerd. And they escaped into the lande of Ararat, & Asarhadon his sonne raygned in his steade.

¶ Ezechias is sycke and receyueth the sygne of his health by the dyall of Achaz. He receyueth rewardes of Berodach, and is reproued of Isai because he shewed hym the treasure. He dyeth and Manasses his sonne raygneth in his steade.

About that tyme Ezechias was sicke vnto the deathe. And the Prophete Isai sonne of Amoz came to him and sayde to him. Thus sayth the Lorde: put thyne housholde in an ordre, for thou shalt dye and not lyue. And Ezechias turned his face to the wall and besought the Lorde sayenge: Oh Lorde, remembre yet how I haue walked before the truely, and with a perfecte herte, and haue done that which is good in thy sight, and wept a great pace. And Isai was scarce gone out into the myddle of the cytie, but that the worde of the Lord came to him, sayeng: turne agayne and tel Ezechias the leader of my people. Thus sayth the Lord God of Dauid thy father. I haue herde thy prayer and sene thy
B teares. Beholde I will heale the, and this daye thre dayes thou shalt go vp into ye house of the Lorde. And I will lenghten thy dayes yet fyftene yeres, and will delyuer bothe the and this cytie out of the hande of the kynge of Assiria, and will defende this cytie for myne owne sake, and for Dauid my seruauntes sake. And Isai sayde: bringe a lumpe of fygges. And they brought and put it on the sore, and he recouered.

Then sayde Ezechias to Isai: What is the signe, that the Lorde will heale me, and that I shall go vp into the house of the Lorde the thirde daye? And Isai sayde: this signe shalt thou haue of the Lorde, that the Lorde will do that he hathe spoken: shall the shadowe go forwarde ten degrees, or go backe agayne ten degrees? And Ezechias sayde: It is a lyght thing for the shadow to go downe ten degrees. Therfore I will not that: but let the shadow go backwarde ten degrees. And Isai the Prophete called to the Lorde, and he brought ye shadowe ten degrees backwarde by which it had gone downe, in the dyall of Achaz.

C At this same season Merodach Baladan the sonne of Baladan kynge of Babylon sent letters and presentes vnto Ezechias, for he herd that Ezechias was sicke. And Ezechias harkened vnto them and shewed them al that was in the spycery house, and his siluer and golde and odoures and preciouse oyntementes and his armorye and all that was founde in his treasure: there was nothinge in his house or in all his realme, that he shewed them not.

Then came Isai the Prophete vnto kynge Ezechias and sayde to him: What saye these men and frome whence come they to the? And Ezechias sayde: they be come from a farre countrey, euen frome Babilon. And he sayd: what haue they sene in thy house? And Ezechias sayde: all that is in my house haue they sene: there is nothinge amonge my treasure that I haue not shewed them. And Isai sayde to Ezechias: Heare the worde of the Lorde. Beholde the daye shall come, that all that is in thyne house and that thy fathers haue layde vp in store vnto this daye, shall be caryed to Babilon, and nothinge shall be left sayth the Lorde. And of thy sonne that proceded out of the, which thou begatest, shall there be caryed awaye, and shalbe made chamberlaynes in the palace of the kynge of Babilon. And Ezechias sayde to Isai: welcome be the worde of the Lorde which thou hast spoken: so that peace and trouthe be kept in my dayes.

The reste of the dedes of Ezechias, and all his power, and how he made a pole and a conduit and brought the water into the cytie, are written in the boke of Chronicles of kynges of Iuda. And Ezechias layde him to rest with his fathers, and Manasses his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ Wycked Manasses restoreth agayne the Idoles, and after deeth, in whose stede Amon his sonne succedeth, which is kylled of his owne seruauntes. After him raygneth the faythfull Iosias.

CAPI. XXI.

Manasses was twelue yeres olde when he began to raygne and raygned fyftye and fyue yeres in Ierusalem: his mothers name was Haphzibah. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde, euen after the abominacions of the heythen which the Lorde threw out before the children of Israel. And he went and buylt the hyllaulters agayne, whiche Ezechias his father had destroyed. And he rered vp aulters to Baal and made groues, as dyd Achab kynge of Israell. And he bowed him selfe vnto all the hoste of heauen and serued them. And he buylt aulters in the very house of the Lorde, of which the Lorde had sayde:

viii.b. * in Ierusalem I wyll put my name, And he buylt alteres vnto all the host of heuen, euen in two courtes of the house of the Lord. And he offered his sonne in fyre, and obserued dismal dayes, and vsed witchcraft and mayntayned workers with spirites, and tellers of fortunes: and wrought moche wyckednesse in ye syght of the Lorde to angre him.

B And he put an Ymage of a groue that he had made, euen in the verye temple of whiche the Lorde hadde sayde to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne, * in this house and in viii.b Ierusalem whiche I haue chosen oute of all trybes of Israel, wyll I put my name for euer. Neyther wyll I make the fete of Israell moue anye more oute of the lande whiche I gaue theyr fathers: so that they wyll be dylygent to do all I haue commaunded them, and all the lawe that my seruaunte Moses commaunded them. But they herkened not: for Manasses had led them out of the waye, to do more wickedlye then dyd the Paynyms which the Lorde destroyed before the face of the children of Israel.

And the Lorde spake by his seruauntes the Prophetes sayenge: because Manasses kynge of Iuda hathe done suche abominacions, and hath wroughte wyckedly aboue all that the Amorites which were before him dyd: & hathe made Iuda synne also with his Ydoles: therfore thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell.
C * Beholde, I will bringe suche euell vpon Ierusalem and Iuda, that the eares of all ye heare it, shall tyngle at it. And I will stretche ouer Ierusalem the squarynge lyne of Samaria and the plometh of the house of Achab. And I will wype oute Ierusalem, as a man wolde wype a dysshe, and when he hath wyped it turneth it vpsetdowne. And thoughe I leue a remnaunt of myne enheritaunce, yet I will delyuer theym into the handes of theym that hate them, and they shall be robbed and spoyled of all their ennemyes: euen because they haue done wyckedly and haue angred me sythens the tyme their fathers came oute of Egypte vnto this daye. And moreouer Manasses shed innocent bloude excedinge aboundauntly, in so moche that he replenysshed Ierusalem in all corners, besyde his synne wherwith he made Iuda synne and to do euyll in the sight of the Lorde. The rest of the actes of Manasses and all he dyd and his synne that
D he synned, are written in the boke of Chronicles of kynges of Iuda. And Manasses layde him to slepe with his fathers, and was buryed in the garden of his owne house, euen in ye garden of Oza: and Amon his sonne raygned in his steade.

Amon. Amon was. xxii. yeres olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned two yeres in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Mesalemeth the doughter of Haru of Iathbah. And he did that displeased the Lorde as his father Manasses did. He walked in all the way that his father walked in, and serued the Idoles that his father serued, and bowed hym selfe to theym. And he forsoke the Lorde God of his fathers, and walked not in the waye of the Lorde.

And the seruauntes of Amon conspired against hym, and slue him in his owne house. But the people of the lande slue all that conspired agaynst kynge Amon, and made Iosias his sonne kynge in his rowme. The reste of ye actes of Amon whiche he dyd are wrytten in the Chronicle of ye kynges of Iuda And they buryed him in his sepulchre in the garden of Oza, and Iosias his sonne raygned in his steade.

¶ After Iosias herde of the boke of the lawe that was founde in the temple, he sendeth to Oldah the Prophetisse for counsill.

Iosias.

Iosias was. viii. yeres olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned. xxxi. yeres in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Idida ye doughter of Adaiah of Bezecath. ii.Pa.xxxiiii.b And the. xviii. yere of his raygne kynge Iosias sent Saphan the sonne of Azalia, the son of Mesulam the scribe to the house of ye Lord sayenge: go to Helkia the hyghe preaste, and let him summe the siluer that is brought into

Howe be it let no rekenynge be made with them of the mony that is delyuered into their handes, but let theym doo it of their conscience. And Helkia ii.Par.xxxiiii. the hyghe prest sayde to Saphan the scribe. I haue founde the boke of the lawe in the temple of the Lorde, and Helkia gaue the booke to Saphan, and he red it. And then Saphan the scribe went to the kynge and brought him worde agayne. and sayde: thy seruauntes powred out the siluer that was founde in the temple, and haue delyuered it vnto the workemen that haue the ouersight of the house of ye Lord. Furthermore Saphan the scribe shewed the

And the kynge as sone as he had hearde the wordes of the booke of the lawe, he rente his clothes

clothes, and commaunded Helkia the preest & Ahikam the sonne of Saphā and Achobor the sonne of Michaia/and Saphan the scribe,and Asahiah a seruaunte of the kynges, sayinge: goo ye and seke of the Lorde for me and the Jeremy.xl.a people,and for all Juda,concernynge the wor des of this boke that is foude. For it is a great wrathe of the Lorde that is kendled vpon vs that oure fathers haue not harkened vnto the wordes of this boke,to do in all poyntes as it is wrytten therin.

And Helkia the hyghe preeste and Ahikam Achobor, Saphan, Asahia wente vnto Olda the Prophetesse, wyfe of Selum the sonne of Olda. Tekuah, the sonne of Harahams keper of the robes/ whiche Prophetesse dwelte in Jerusalem in the seconde warde,and communed with her. And she sayde to them: Thus sayethe the Lorde God of Israel. Tell the man that sente you to me/thus sayth the Lorde: Beholde I D wyll bringe euyll vpon this place, and on the dwellers therin: euen all the wordes of the boke whiche the kynge of Juda hathe redde/ bycause they haue forsaken me, & haue burnte offeringes vnto other Goddes, to angre me with all the ‡workes of their handes. Ther- ‡That is, with their Ima- ges. fore is my wrathe kendled agaynst this place, and shall not be quenched. But to the kynge of Juda, whiche sente you to enquyre of the Lorde/so shall ye saye: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell/ as touchynge the wordes whiche thou herdest. Bycause thyne herte did melte, and thou mekedest thy selfe before me the Lorde, when thou herdest what I spake agaynste this place, and the inhabitauntes of the same/how that it sholde be destroyed and made a cursed: & tarest thy clothes and weptest before me: of that also I haue herde sayethe the Lorde. And therfore loo, I wyll receyue the vnto thy fathers, and wyll fette the vnto thy graue in peace: thyne eyes shall se none of the euyll whiche I wyll bringe vpon this place. And they brought the kynge worde agayne.

¶ Josias readeth Deuteronomium before the people. He putteth downe the Idolles, after he had killed the preastes therof. He keepeth passouer. He was kylled in Mageda, & his son Jehoaas raigneth in his stede: after he was taken his sonne Jehoakim was made kynge.

CAPI. XXIII.

A IIII.Pa.xxxiiii.c Then the kynge sente and gathered vnto him all the elders of Juda and of Jerusalem, and the kynge wente vp in to the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda and all thinhabitauntes of Jerusalem with him/ and the preestes and the Prophetes and all the people bothe small and great. And he redde in their eares, all the wordes of the boke of the testamente, whiche was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the kynge stode by a pyller, and made a conenaunt before the Lorde, that they sholde walke after the Lord, and kepe his commaundementes and his testemonies, and his ordinaunces with all their hertes, and all their soules/ and make good the wordes of the sayde appoyntment that were wrytten in the foresayd boke. And all the people consented to the appoyntment. Then the kynge commaunded Helkia the hyghe Preest and the lower Preestes and the kepers of the dore, to bringe out of the Lordes temple, all the vesselles made for Baal, and for the grouc and for all the hoste of heauen. And he burnte them without Jerusalem in the feldes of Cedron, and caryed the asshes of them into Bethel. And he put downe the relygyous persones, whiche the kynge of Juda hadde sette to burne offeringes in the hyll aulters in the cytyes of Juda rounde about Jerusalem, and also them that burnt sacrifices vnto Baal, to the sonne and to the moone, and to the planetes/ and to all the hoste of heauen. And he broughte oute the grouc frome the temple of the Lorde without Jerusalem, vnto the brooke Cedron/ and burnte it at the brooke Cedron/ and stampte it to pouldre, and caste the duste therof vpon the graues of the people of the countreye. And he brake downe the hye gerye places that were in the house of the Lord, in whiche the women woue coteyns for the grouc.

And he brought all the preestes out of the cities of Juda, and defaced the hyllaulters where the preestes dyd burne sacrifyce frome Gabaa to Berlabe. And he brake downe the hyllaulters of the Gates, that were in the entrye of the Gate of Josua the gouernour of the cytye, whiche were on the lefte hande of the Gate of the cytye. Neuertheles the preestes of the hyllaulters myght not come at the aulter of the Lorde in Jerusalem, saue only they dyd eate of the swete breed among their brethren.

And he destroyed Topheth also whiche is in the valeye of the children of Hynnom, because no mā wulde offer his son or his daughter in fyre to Moloch: he put downe the horses that the kynges of Israel had gyuen to the sonne at the entryng of the house of the Lord in the chamber of Nathanmelech the chamberlayne which was of Parua'im, and burnt the charettes of the sonne with fyre. And the aulters that were on the toppe of the parlour of Achaz which the kynges of Juda had made, and the aultares which Manasses had made in the two courtes of the house of the Lorde, the kynge brake downe, and ranne thence and caste the duste of them in to the brooke Cedron.

And the hylaulters that were before Jerusalem on the eyght hande of the mount Marhoth, whiche Salomon kyng of Israel hyght to Astaroth the abhominacion of the Zidons and to Chamos the abhominacion of the Moabites and to Melchom the abhominacion of the children of Ammon, the kynge destroyed and brake the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and spilled the places with the bones of men.

Moreouer the aulter that was at Bethel, and the hyl aultar made by Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, whyche made Israell synne: both the aultare and also the hyll he brake downe and D burnt the hyll and stampte it to powder, and burnt the groue. And as Josias tourned hym selfe, he espyed the graues that were in the mounte, and sent and fet the bones oute of the graues and burnt them vpon the aultare and poluted it accordynge to the worde of the Lorde that the man of God had proclaymed, whiche openlye hadde tnounced the same thynges.

Then the kynge sayde: What meaneth yonder graue stone that I se? And the men of the cytie tolde him, it is the Sepulchre of the man of God, which came frome Juda and openlye tnounced the selfe same thynges that thou haste wone to the aultare of Bethel. And he sayde let hym be: se that no man moue his bones. And so his bones escaped, with the bones of a Prophete, that came oute of Samaria.

And therto all the houses of the hylaulters of the cyties of Samaria, whiche the kynges of Israel had made, to angre the Lorde with: Josias put out of the waye, and dyd to them in all poyntes as he dyd in Bethel. And he sacrificed all the preastes of the hylaultars that were there euen vpon the aultares, and burnt mens bones vpon them, and returned to Jerusalem.

And the kynge commaunded all the people sayeng: ✠ kepe the feast of passouer vnto the Lorde your God, as it is wrytten in the boke of this testament. For there was no passouer holden lyke that, frome the dayes of the iudges that iudged Israel, and thorowe oute all the dayes of the kynges of Israell and of Juda. And in the .xviij. yere of kynge Josias, was this passouer holden to the Lorde in Jerusalem.

Moreoure workers with spyrites, sothsayers, Ymages of wytchecrafte, Idoles and all other abhominacions that were espyed in the lande of Juda and in Jerusalem, Josias put out of the waye, to make good the wordes of the lawe, which were wrytten in the booke that Helkia the preaste founde in the house of the Lorde. Lyke vnto him was there no kynge afore him, that turned to the Lorde with all his herte, with all his soule, and all his might, accordinge to all the lawe of Moses, neyther after him arose there any suche.

Notwithstandinge the Lorde tourned not him selfe frome his fearce and great wrathe, wherwith he was angrye against Juda vpon all the prouocatiõs that Manasses prouoked him. But the Lorde sayde: I will put Juda in lyke maner out of my sight, as I haue done Israel, and will cast of, this cytie Jerusalem, which I haue chosen, and the house of which I saue sayde, my name shalbe there.

The rest of the dedes of Josias, and all he dyd, are written in the boke of the Chronicles of kynges of Juda.

✠ In his dayes Pharao Necoa, kynge of Egypte, went against the kynge of Assyria to the ryuer Euphrates. And kynge Josias wente agaynste him, and was slayne of him at Magew when he had sene him. And his seruauntes caryed hym deed from Magew & brought him to Jerusalem, & buryed him in his owne Sepulchre. And the people of the lande toke Joachaz the sonne of Josias, and annoynted hym, and made hym kynge in his fathers rowme.

And Joachaz was thre and twenty yeres olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned three monethes in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamital, the daughter of Jeremia of Lobnah. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde, in all thinges as his fathers had done. And Pharao Necoa put him in bondes at Reblah, in the lande of Hemath, in the tyme of his raygne in Jerusalem, and put the lande to a tribute of an hundred talentes of syluer and a talente of golde. And Pharao Necoa made Eliakim, the sonne of Josias, kynge, in the rowme of Josias his father, and tourned his name to Joakim, and toke Joachaz awaye, Jeremy.xxii. whyche when he came to Egypte/ dyed there.

And Joakim gaue the syluer and the golde to Pharao: howe be it he taxed the lande, to gyue the money at the commaundemente of Pharao, and as euery man was set at, so he requyred the syluer and the golde of the people of the lande, to gyue Pharao Necoa. Joakim was fyue and twenty yeres olde, when he beganne to raygne, and he raygned eleuen yeres in Jerusalem. His mother was named Zebda the daughter of Phadaia of Rama. And he dyd that was euyll in the syghte of the Lorde/ lyke in all thynges as dyd his fathers.

¶ Joakim dyeth, and after him succeadeth Joachin. Jerusalem is besyeged of the Babilonians. Joachin yeldeth him selfe to the kynge of Babilon. And in his rowme came Mathaniah, whiche was called Zedekias.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A IN his dayes came Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon, and Joakim became his seruaunte three yeres, and then tourned and rebelled agaynste hym. And the Lorde sent vpon him men of warre oute of Caldeye, oute of Syria, oute of the Moabites, and frome the children of Ammon: and sente theym into Juda, to destroye it, accordynge to the sayenge of the Lorde whiche he spake by his seruauntes the Prophetes. Only at the bydding of the Lorde happened it so to Juda, to put theym oute of his sight. for the synne of Manasses accordinge to all he dyd: and for the innocent bloude that he shed and spilled Jerusalem with innocent bloude, whiche the Lorde wolde not forgyue. IIII.Re.xxiii.E

The rest of the dedes of Joakim and all he dyd, are wrytten in the Chronicles of kynges of Juda. And Joakim layd him to slepe with his fathers, and Joacin his sonne raygned in his stede. But the Kynge of Egypte, Jere.xxxvi.da B came now no moze oute of his lande: for the kynge of Babilon had taken frome the ryuer Euphrates, all that pertayned to the kynge of Egypte. Joacin was eyghtene yeres olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned in Jerusalem three monethes. His mothers name was Nehustha the doughter of Elnathan of Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde in all poyntes as his father dyd.

And he caryed out thence all the treasure of the house of the Lorde, and the treasure of the kynges house, and brake all the vesselles of golde which Salomon kynge of Israell hadde made, in the temple of the Lorde, as the Lord had sayde. And he caryed awaye all Jerusalē, and all the Lordes and all the men of myght, to the nombre of ten thousande into captiuitie and all craftes men and Joyners, none remayninge saue the poore people of the lande. And

D he caryed awaye Joacin to Babylon, and the kynges mother, and the kynges wyues, and his chambrelaynes, and the myghtye of the lande caryed he awaye frome Jerusalem to Babilon. And all the men of actiuite to the nombre of seuen thousande, and craftesmen & toyners a thousande, all stronge and apte for warre, dyd the kynge of Babilon bring to Babilon to dwell. ✱ And the kynge of Babilon

ii.Par.xxxvi.d Jerem.xxv.a made Mathaniah his fathers brother, kynge in his stede, and chaunged his name and called him Zedekia.

Zedekia was one and twentye yeres olde when he began to raygne, and he raygned eleuen yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Hamital / the doughter of Jeremia, of Lobnah. And he dyd euyll in the sight of the Lorde, in all poyntes lyke to Joakim. For throughe the wrathe of the Lorde it so chaunced to Jerusalem and Juda, vntyll he had cast them out of his sight. And the sayde Zedekia rebelled against the kynge of Babilon.

¶ By the rebellynge of Zedekia is the towne of Jerusalem beseaged of Nabuchodonozor. The towne and the temple are both burnte. The sonnes of Zedekia are slayne before his eyes, and after are his eyes put oute. Juda is brought to Babilon, and after is Joacin exalted.

CAP. XXV.

A Jerem.xxxix.a. and.lii.a WHerefore in the nynthe yere of his raygne, the tenth daye of the tenth moneth came Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon with al his power to Jerusalem: and pitched against the towne and made engynes against it on euery syde. And the cytye continued besyeged vnto the eleuenth yere of kynge Zedekias. And the nynth daye of the fourthe moneth of that yere, there was so great hunger in the cytie, that there was no sustinaunce for the people of the lande.

And the cytie was broken vp: wherfore all the men of Armes fled by night, by a way the

E sewe a gate, betwene two walles harde on the kynges garden: the Caldeys syenge about the cytie.

Then the kynge went streyght towarde the wyldernesse. And the host of the Caldeys followed after him, and toke him in the wyldernesse of Jericho, all his armye beynge scattered awaye frome him. When they had taken him, they brought him to Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon to Reblah, whiche impeched him of treason. And they slewe the sonnes of Zedekias before his eyen, and put out the eyen of Zedekias, and fettered him, and caryed him to Babilon.

In the seuenth daye of the fifthe moneth which was in the nynetenth yere of kyng Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babilon, came Nabusaradan seruaunte of the kynge of Babilon, a chiefe Capitayne vnto Jerusalem: and burnt the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house and all the houses of Jerusalem, and al great houses with fyre. And all the host of the Caldeys that were with the chiefe Capitayne: brake downe the walles of Jerusalem rounde about. And the reste of the people that were lefte in the cytye, and they in that were fledde to the kynge of Babilon, and the reste of the commen people, Nabusaradan the chiefe Capitayne caryed awaye, and lefte of the poore of the lande to dresse the vynes, and to tyll the grounde.

And the pyllers of brasse that were in the houlse of the Lorde and the botomes, and the brasen see that was in the house of the Lorde, the Caldeys brake, and caryed the brasse of them to Babilon. And the lauers, shouelles, dressynge knyues, ladelles, and the mynistring vesselles of brasse, they caryed awaye. And fyrepannes, and basens that were eyther of golde or syluer, toke the chiefe Marshall & waye with the two pyllers & the see of brasse, and the bottomes which Salomon had made in the house of the Lorde, The brasse of all these vessells was without wayght. The heyght of the one pyller, was .xviij. cubytes, and the heed theron was brasse, and thre cubites longe with a wrethe and pommegranates roundabout vpon the heed, all of brasse. And of the same fassion was the seconde pyller & a wreth.

And the chief Capitayne toke Saraiah the chiefe preaste, and Zophoniah the hygheste preast saue one, and thre kepers of the doze. And out of the cytie he toke a certayne chamberlayne that had the ouersight of the men of warre, and fyue men that were euer in the kynges presence, which were founde in the cytye, and Sopher the Capitayne of the hoste caught the people of the lande & seates warre and thre score men of the people of the lande that that were founde in the cytie also. And Nabuzaradā the chiefe Capitayne toke thē & brought them to the kynge of Babylon to Reblah. And the kynge of Babilon smote them & slewe them at Reblah in the lande of Hemath. And so Juda was caryed awaye out of theyr land.

f Iuda And ouer the people that remayned in the lande of Juda, which Nabuchodonozor kynge of Babylon lefte, he set Godoliah the sonne of Ahikam the sonne of Saphan. And when all the capitaynes of the men of warre and the men herde that the kynge of Babylon hadde made Godoliah gouerner: there came to Godoliah to Mazphah: Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah and Johanan the sonne of Kareah & Saraiah the sonne of Thanehumeth the Netophathite and Jezoniah the sonne of Maachati and their men. And Godoliah sware to them, and to their men, and sayde to them: feare not ye the seruauntes of the Caldeyes, but dwel in the lande and serue the kynge of Babilon and ye shalbe in good state.

G But it chaunced the seuenth moneth after, that Ismael the sonne of Nathaniah the son of Elisama of the kynges blaude came, and ten men with him, and smote Godoliah that he dyed: and so dyd he the Jewes & the Caldeyes that were with him at Mazphah. Wherupon all the people both smal and great and the Capitaynes of the mē of warre arose, and went to Egypte: for they were afrayed of the Caldeyes.

Notwithstandinge yet the thirtye and seuenth yere, after Joacin kynge of Juda was caryed awaye, the twenty and seuenth day of the twelfte moneth, dyd Euilmerodach kynge of Babilon lyft vp the heed of Joacin kynge of Juda out of the pryslonne house, and spake kyndly to him, and set his seate aboue the seate of all the kynges that were with him in Babilon, and chaunged his pryslon garmentes.

And he dyd euer eate bred before him all the dayes of his lyfe. And a cōtinual pozcion was alligned him of the kynge, frome daye to daye as longe as he lyued.

Ahi was the sonne of Abdiel the son of Guni, the heed of an auncient houshold among them. And they dwelt in Galaad & in Basa and her townes, and in al the suburbes of Saron / euen vnto the ende of theyr borders.

C And they were all reckened by kynredes in the dayes of Jotham kynge of Juda / and in the dayes of Jeroboam kynge of Israell. The sonnes of Ruben, of Gad, & of halfe the tribe of Manasses, euen of sygh tynge men hable to beare shylde and swerde, and shot with bowe / & taught to make warres, were foure & fourty thousande, seuen hundred, and thre score that went out to battayle. And they fought with the Hagarites, and with Jetur, Naphas and Nodab. And they were holpe agaynst them, & the Hagarites were delyuered in to theyr handes, w al that were wthe Hagarites. For they cryed to God in the battayle, & he herd them / bycause they trusted to him. And they toke of theyr cattell fyftye thousande camelles, and two hundred and fyftye thousande shepe, and two thousande asses / and of the people an hundred thousande: for there fell manye deed bycause the warre was of God. And they dwelt there in their stedes, vntyll the tyme that they were caryed awaye.

And the chyldren of halfe the tribe of Manasses dwelte in the lande, from Basan vnto Baal Harmon and Samir, and vnto mounte Hermon / and they were manye. And these were the heades of the auncient houseboldes of them: Epher, Jesi, Eliel, Azriel, Jeremiah, Hodaiah, Jehadiel, men of great power / men of name / and heades of the auncient houseboldes of them. D Josu.xiii.d

But when they hadde transgressed agaynste the God of their fathers / & had gone a hooring after the goddes of the people of the lande / whiche God destroyed before them / God stered vp the spirite of Phul, kyng of Assiria, and the spirite of Thiglath Phalneser kyng of Assiria / and caryed awaye the Rubenites, the Gaddites, and the halfe tribe of Manasses / & brought them vnto Helah, Habor, Hara, and to the ryuer Gozan / where they remayne vnto this daye. iiii.Reg.xv.b

The porters were Selum, Achub, Talmō, and Ahiman, with theyr brethrē, Selum being the chiefe. For vnto that tyme they had watched at the kynges gate Eastwarde, in the tentes of the childrē of Leui by companyes. And Selum the son of Core, the son of Abiasaph, the son of Core with his brethren the Corithites in the house of theyr fathers had theyr businesse and office to kepe the woze of the tabernacle for theyr fathers in the hoste of the Lorde kepte the entreynge. And Phinehes the sonne of Eleazar was ruler ouer them before the Lorde whiche was with hym. And Zacharias the sonne of Moselamiah kepte the wor of ✠ tabernacle of wytnesse. All these were chosen men to kepe the treeholdes, two hundred and twelue, and were nombred in theyr vyllages.

lages. And them dyd Dauid and Samuel the Sear ordeyn in theyr stedfastnesse. And their childre had the ouerlyghte of the gates of the house of the Lorde, and of the house of the tabernacle to kepe them.

In foure quarters were the kepers: towarde the Este, West, Northe, and Southe/ and theyr brethren that were in the countreye came in theyr wekes as theyr course came aboute with them. For the Leuites were committed to these foure principall porters vpon theyr credence. And they had the ouerlyghte of the bedtres, and treasures of ✠ house of God, and laye all nyghte rounde aboute the house of God: because the keepynge therof pertayned to them, and to open it euerye morynge. And certayne of them hadde the rule of the mistynge vesselles, and broughte them in and oute by tale. And of them were certayne appointed to ouerse the vesselles, and all holye ornamentes, and of the flour, wyne, oyle, frankencense and swete odoures. But certayne of the sonnes of the preestes were sette to make swete sauoures.

And Mathathiah one of the Leuytes/ the eldest sonne of Selum: the Corathite, hadde the ouerlyghte of the thynges that were bakē in the fryenge panne. And other of theyr brethren the sonnes of Cahath hadde the ouerlyghte of the shewebreed, to prepare agaynste all Sabothes. These are the syngers, auncyent heedes amonge the Leuites, diuyded by chambers: for they had to wo bothe daye and nyght. These were the auncient amonge the Leuites in theyr generations. These are the sonnes of Azel.

¶ The battayle of Saul agaynste the Philistines: in whiche he dyeth and his sonnes also.

CAPI. X.

AND the Philistines fought agaynst Israel/ and the men of Israell fledde before the Philistines, and were ouerthowen and slayne in mounte Gelboe. And the Philistines pursued Saul and his sonnes, and slewe Jonathas, Abinadab, and Melchisua the sonnes of Saul. And the battayle wente sore agaynste Saul/ in so moche that the shoters mette hym/ and he was wounded of the shoters. Then sayde Saul to his weapon bearer ✠ drawe thy swerde and thruste me thorowe therwith, that these vncircumcised come not and wo me shame. And his weapon bearer wolde not, but feared exceedyngly. Wherupon Saul caughte a swerde and fell vpon it. And when his harnesbearer sawe that Saul was deed, he fell on a swerde also and dyed.

Jud.ix.g 1.Regū.xxxi.d

C

And thus Saul and his thre sonnes, and all his house dyed togyther. And when all the men that dwelte in the valeyes sawe how they fledde/ and that Saul and his sonnes were deed, they forsoke theyr cityes and ran awaye/ and the Philistines came and dwelte in them.

On the morowe when the Philistines came to stryppe the deed bodyes, they founde Saul and his sonnes ouerthrowen in mounte Gelboe. And when they had strypt hym, they toke his heed and his harnesse and sent theym into the lande of the Philistines rounde aboute to shewe tydynges vnto theyr goddes and to the people. And they put his harnesse in the houses of theyr goddes. But his hed they hanged in the house of Dagon. And when all they of Jabes in Galaad herde all that the Philistines had wone to Saul, all the men of warre arose and fette awaye the bodye of Saul, and the bodyes of his sonnes and broughte them to Jabes, and buryed the bones of them vnder an oke in Jabes, and fasted seuen dayes.

D

Thus Saul dyed for his tresspace that he tresspaced agaynste the Lorde, in that he kepte not the worde of the Lorde, and in that he asked counsell of a woman that wroughte with a spirytе, and asked not of the Lorde. And therfore the Lorde kylled hym, and tourned the kyngdome vnto Dauid the sonne of Isai.

¶ After the deeth of Saul is Dauid annoynted in Hebron. The Iebusites rebell agaynst Dauid, from whiche he taketh the Towre of Sion. His men are nombred.

CAPI. XI.

A ii.Reg.v.b

THen all Israel assembled to Dauid vnto Hebron and sayd: se, we be thy bones and thy flesche. And moreouer in tyme past when Saul was kynge, thou leddest Israel out and in, and the Lorde thy God sayde vnto the: thou shalte leade my people Israel, and shalt be captayne ouer my people Israel. And when all the elders of Israell were come to the kynge of Hebron, Dauid made a couenaunt with them there, before the Lorde. And they annoynted Dauid kynge ouer Israel, according to the worde of the Lord by the hand of Samuel. Dauid also and all Israel went to Jerusalem, whiche is Jebus: for there dwelte the Jebusites the inhabitauntes of the lande. And the inhabitauntes of Jebus sayd to Dauid, thou commest not here. sonne of Siza a Rubenite, and an heed amonge
the Rubenites, and thirty about him: Hanan
the son of Maacah, and Jonaphat a Mathe
nite: Ozeah an Astharothite: Sama & Jaiel
the sonnes of Hothan an Aroerite: Jediael the sonne of Zamri and Joha, his brother The tes: Eliel a Mahumite. And Jeribai and Je soiah the sonnes of Elnaem and Jethmah Moabite. Eliel and Obed, and Jasiel of Me sobaiah.

¶What they were that went with Dauid when he fledde frome Saul.

CAPI. XII.

And these folowynge came to Dauid to Zikeleg whyle he yet kepte hym selfe
close for feare of Saul the son of Cis:
and they were of the men that succoured the battayle, weaponed with bowes, and coulde handle stones, arowes and bowe, as wel with the lefte hande as with the ryght, and were of Saules brethren, euen of the trybe of BenJa min. The chyefest were Abiezer and Joas the sonnes of Samaah a Gabaonite, and Jaziel & Phalite, the sonnes of Azmoth. Baracah and Jehu of Anathoth / & Ismaiah a Gabaonite
as myghty as any of thyrty, and more mighty.
And Jeremiah, Jehaziel, Johanan and Josabad
of Gedor, Eleusai, Jerimoth, Baaliah, Sama
riah and Saphatiah: Haraphites, Elcanah, Jesiah, Azrael, Joezer, Joseboam of Karehim.
And Joelah, and Zabadiah the sonnes of Je
roham of Gedor.
Also certayne of the Gadites fledde vnto
Dauid, when he kepte an holde in the wylder
nesse, men of myght, and men apte for warre
and coulde handle shylde and spere, whose fa ces were lyke the faces of lyons / and they were also as swyfte as the roes of the moun=

taynes: Ezer the first, Obdiah the seconde, E= liab the thyrde, Masmannah the fourth, Jere= miah the fyft, Ethi the sixt, Eliel the seuenth, Johanam the eyght, Elsabad the nynth. Jere miah the tenth, and Macahbanai the eleue͂th.
These were of the sonnes of Gad, and were capitaynes ouer men of warre, the small ouer
an hundred, and the greate ouer a thousande.
These are they that went ouer Jordan in the firste moneth, when he had fylled ouer all his banke / and they put to flyght them of the va=
leye, both of the east syde and also the west.
And there came of the chyldren of BenJa=
C min and Juda, to the holde of Dauid. And Da
uid went out to them, and answered and sayd to them: Yf ye be come peasablye vnto me, to helpe me, myne herte shall be togyther with you. But yf you come to begyle me, and to be myne aduersarye, sythe there is no wycked=
nesse in myne handes, the God of our fathers loke theron and rebuke it. And the spirite came vpon Amasai a capitayne ouer thyrtye / and he sayde / thyne are we Dauid, and on thy syde
thou son of Isai: ✱peax be with the, and peax
with thyne helpers / for thy God helpeth the.
Then Dauid receyued them, & made them hee=
des of companyes of men of warre.
And there fell of Manasses to Dauid when D he went with the Philistines agaynste Saul, to battayle, but holpe them not. For the lordes
of the Philistines toke counsell and sente hym
awaye, sayinge: he wyll fall to his master Saul to the ieopardie of our heedes. And as he went to Zikeleg, there fell to him of Manas=
seh: Ednah, Jozabad, Jediel, Michael of Jo=
zabad, Elihu, and Zalthai, heedes of the thou= sandes of Manasses. And they holpe Dauid agaynst those rouers. For they were all migh= tye men, and capitaynes in warre. And there came one or other to Dauid daye by daye, to helpe him: vntyll it was a greate hoste, lyke
the hoste of God.
And this is the nombre of the heedes prepa red to battayle, that came to Dauid to Hebron
to turne the kyngdome of Saul to him, accor=
dyng to the worde of the Lorde.
The chyldren of Juda that bare shylde and spere, were sixe thousande and eyghte hundred E well furnysshed to warre. Of the chyldren of Simeon, men of mighte to warre, seuen thou= sande, and one hundred. And of the chyldren of Leui, were foure thousande and sixe hundred.
And Joiada was the chyefe of them of Aaron,
and with him thre thousande and seuen hun= dred. And Zadock a yonge man of greate po= wer, had his fathers housholde with capitay= nes two and twentye. And of the chyldren of BenJamin ŷ brethre͂ of Saul, were thre thou= sande. And a great part of them dyd yet folow
the house of Saul.
And of the chyldre͂ of Ephraim, were twen= tye thousande, & eyght hundred, men of might,
and named men in the housholdes of their fa= thers. And of the halfe tribe of Manasses.xviii thousande, which were appoynted by name to go to make Dauid kynge. And of the chyldren of Isacar, which were men that had vndersta͂=
F dyng in the ryght tyme to know what Israel ought to doo. The heedes of them were two hundred, and all theyr brethren at theyr wyl.
And of Zabulon that went out with the host,
and proceded in araye to battayle with all ma
ner of wepons of warre / fyfty thousande that kepte in araye with one accorde. And of Neph= thali a thousande capitaynes / and with them
with shylde and spere seuen and thyrtye thou= sande. And of Dan prepared to battayle, were eyght and twenty thousande and sixe hu͂dred.
And of Asser that wente out with the hoste to make battayle, fourtye thousande. And of the other syde Jordan, of the Rubenites, Gaddi=
tes, and of the halfe tribe of Manasses, with al maner of habilimentes of warre an hundred &
twentye thousande.
G All these beyng men of warre, hable to order
the araye, came to Hebron with pure herte, to make Dauid kynge vpon all Israel. And more ouer, all the rest of Israel was of one accorde to make Dauid kynge. And there they were with Dauid thre dayes eatyng and drynking:
for theyr brethren prepared for them. More=
ouer they that were nye to them: as Isacar, Zabulon and Nephthali, broughte breed on asses, camelles, mules, and oxen, and meate:
floure, fygges, reasynges, wyne, oyle, oxen,
and shepe abundantly. For there was myrthe
in Israel.

¶The Arcke is brought agayne from Kariath Ja=
rim to Jerusalem. Oza dyeth.

CAPI. XIII.

A And Dauid counseyled with the graund capitaynes, and petye capitaynes, and with all the lordes / and sayde vnto all the co͂gregacion of Israel: yf it seme you good and also to be of ŷ Lorde our God, let vs take and sende vnto the remnaunt of our brethren thorowe out all the lande of Israel, and to the preestes and Leuites with them in their cities
and suburbes, and gather them togyther to vs.
and let vs brynge agayne the arcke of God to vs: for we regarded it not in ŷ dayes of Saul.
And all the congregacion was contente so to do / for the thyng semed good in the eyes of al
the people.
B And Dauid gathered all Israel togyther fro͂ ‡Sihor in Egypt vnto Hemath, to brynge the ‡That is Ni arcke of the Lorde frome Kariath Jarim. And lus.
Dauid went vp and all Israel to Baalah, and so to Kariath Jarim that is in Juda, to fet thence the arcke of the God and Lorde that sytteth on the Cherubes, where his name is called on. And they caryed the arcke of God in a newe carte oute of the house of Aminadab.
And Oza and Ahio draue the cart. And Dauid and al Israel played before God with al their myghte, with syngynge, Harpes, Psalteryes, tymbrelles, and trompettes. And when they came on the threshyng floore of Chidon, Oza C put forth his hande to holde the arcke / for the oxen stombled. And the Lord was wroth with Oza and smote him, bicause he put his hande

to the Arcke. And there he dyed before God. And Dauid was heuye / because the Lord had rent in peces Oza, and called the sayde place ᵹ Perez vnto this daye. And Dauid was so a= frayde of God that daye, that he sayde, how shall I bringe the Arcke of God home to me? And so Dauid brought not the Arcke home to him to the cytye of Dauid: But turned it in to the house of Obed Edom a Gethite. And ye Arcke of God was with Obed Edom in his house, thre monethes. And ye Lorde blessed the house of Obed Edom and all that he had.

ᵹ That is, the deuysyon of Oza.

¶ Hiram sendeth woode and workemen to Dauid. Dauid begetteth children, after he had taken hym wyues. He hath two vyctoryes of the Philistines.

CAPI. XIIII.

A 2. Regu. v. b.

Then Hiram kynge of Tyre sent messen= gers to Dauid, and tymbre of Cedar trees with masons and carpenters, to buylde hym an house. Wherby Dauid per= ceyued that the Lorde had prepared him to be kynge vpon Israel, in that his kyngdom was lyfte vp on hygh, because of his people Israel. And Dauid toke yet mo wyues at Jerusalem and begat mo sonnes & daughters. And these are the names of his children whiche he had borne him at Jerusalē: Samua, Sobab, Na= than, and Salomon: Jebhar, Elisua, and E= liphalet: Noga, Nepheg, and Japhiah, Eli= sama, Baliada, and Eliphelet.

B And when it was knowen amonge the Philistines, that Dauid was anoynted kyng vpon all Israel, all the Philistines went vp to seke Dauid. And Dauid herde of it, and went out agaynste them. And the Philistines came & praunsed in the valeye of Raphaim. And Dauid asked God, sayinge: shall I goo agaynst the Philistines? and wylt thou deli= uer them in to myne handes? And the Lorde sayde to him: go, for I will delyuer them in= to thyne handes. And when they were come

C as ferre as ᵹ Baal Pharazim, Dauid bet thē there. And Dauid sayde: God hathe deuyded myne enemyes with myne hande as a man wold deuide water. And therfore they called the name of the sayde place Baal Pharazim. ☞ And they left theyr gods there, which Dauid bad to be burnt with fyre, ᵹ Some rede, the playne of Vally.

And the Philistines came agayne and ran abrode in the valey. Then Dauid asked God: And God sayd to him go not after them, but turne awaye from them, and come vpon them straygth from the pere trees. And when thou hearest a sounde of one ye go in toppes of the pere trees, then goo oute to battayle: for God wyll go out before the to smyte the host of the Philistines. And Dauid did as God cō maunded him. And they smote the host of the Philistines all the waye frome Gabaon to Gazer. and the fame of Dauid went out into all landes, and the Lorde made all nacions feare him.

¶ The Leuites brynge agayne the Arcke of the co= uenaunt of the Lorde. Dauid daunsynge before it is despysed of his wyfe Michol, the daughter of Saul.

CAPI. XV.

And Dauid made him houses in the ci= tye of Dauid, and prepared a place for the Arcke of God, and pitched for it a tent. And then Dauid sayd, the Arcke of God oughte not to be caryed but of the Leuites. For them hath the Lorde chosen to beare the Arcke of the Lorde and to mynyster to him for euer. And therfore Dauid gathered all Israel to Jerusalem, to fetche the Arcke of the Lord vnto the place, whiche he had ordeyned for it. And Dauid brought together the children of Aaron and the Leuites. Of the sonnes of Ca= hath: Uriel the chiefe, and of his brethren an hundred and twentye. And of the children of Merari: Asaiah the chiefe, and of his brethren two hundred and twentye. And of the sonnes of Gerson Joel the chief, and of his brethren an hundred and thertye. And of the children of Elizaphan: Semeiah the chiefe, and of his brethrē two hundred. And of the sonnes of He= bron Eliel the chief, and of his brethren foure score. And of the sonnes of Oziel, Aminadab the chiefe, and of his brethren an hundred and twelue.

b And Dauid called to Zadock and Abia= thar the preastes, and to the Leuites Uriel, Asaiah Joel, Semeiah, Eliel, and Aminadab: and sayde vnto them: ye are the pryncipall heedes of the Leuites, sanctifye therfore your selues and your brethrē, and brynge the Arcke of the Lorde God of Israel vnto the place I haue prepared for it. For because ye were not there at the fyrste tyme, the Lorde our God hathe deuyded vs, for that we soughte hym not as the fashion ought to be. And the preastes and the Leuites sanctifyed themsel= ues, to fet the Arcke of the Lorde God of Is= rael. And the chyldren of the Leuites, bare the Arcke of God vpon theyr shoulders with sta= ues as Moses commaunded, accordynge to the worde of the Lorde, And Dauid spake to the chiefe heedes of the Leuites, that they shulde appoynt of theyr brethren to synge with in= strumentes of musycke Psalteryes, Harpes, and Symbales that sounded, and to synge on hyghe with ioyfulnesse, And the Leuites ap= poynted Heman the sonne of Joel: and of his brethren, Asaph the sonne of Barachiah. And of the sonnes of Merari theyr brethren, Ethan the sonne of Cusaiahu. And with the theyr brethren the seconde degree: Zachari= ah, Ben, Jaaziel, Semiramoth, Jahiel, Uni, Eliab, Banaiah, Maasiah, Matta= thiah, Eliphelehu, Machaniah, Obed Edom, and Jaiel, porters. Heman, Asaph, and Ethan sange with symbales of brasse to make sounde. And Zachariah, Oziel, Semiramoth, Jehiel, Uni, Eliab, Maasaiah, and Banaiah sange with psalteries on an ᵹ Alamoth. And Matha= thiah, Eliphelehu, Makeniah, Obed Edom, Jehi= el, and Ozaziah sange with harpes, and eyght a= boue to courage withall. And Conaniah the chiefe of the Leuites was master of the songe, and taught to synge / for he was a man of vn= derstandynge.

And Barachias and Elcana kepte the dore of the of the Arcke. And Sacaniah, Josaphat, Na= thanael, Amasai, Zachariah, Banaiah, and Eliezer Preestes, were blowers with trom= pettes before the arcke of God. And Obed=

D Edom and Jahiah were kepers of the dore of the arcke. * And Dauid and the elders of Is= raell, and the Capitaynes ouer thousandes wente to fet the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde oute of the house of Obed Edom with gladnesse. And when God had holpe the Leuites that bare the arcke of the appoynt= ment of the Lorde, they offered seuen oxen and seuen rammes. And Dauid hadde on hym an albe of bisse, and so had the Leuites that bare the arcke, and so had the syngers, and Cona= niah the ruler of the songe and of the syngers. And Dauid had moreouer vpō him an Ephod of lynnen. And all Israell broughte the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt with shoutyng and with blowynge of hornes, and with trompet= tes and symbales that sounded, and with psal teries and harpes.

And as the arcke of the appoyntment of the Lorde came in to the citye of Dauid, Mi= chol the doughter of Saul loked oute at a wyndowe: and when she sawe kynge Dauid daunsynge and playinge, she despised hym in her herte.

¶ After the Arcke was brought, Dauid ordeyneth Asaph and his brethren to minister before the Lord. And he prayseth the Lorde God of Israel.

CAPI. XVI.

a When they had brought in ye arcke of God, they set it in the tente, that Dauid hadde pitched for it. And they broughte burnt sacrifyce and peaceofferynges before God. And when Dauid had made an ende of offerynge of burntofferinges and of peaceofferinges, he bles= sed the people with the name of the Lord. And he dealte to all Israel bothe man and woman a cracknell of breed, a pece of fleshe, & a messe of soppes.

And he appoynted certayne of the Leuites to ministre before the Lorde, and to repete, and to thanke and prayse the Lorde God of Israell / that is to wete: Asaph the chief, and nexte to him Zachariah, then Jeiel. Semira= moth, Jehiel, Mathithiah, Eliab, Banaiah, Obed Edom, and Jeiel with psalteryes and harpes. But Asaph with soundynge symbales and Banaiah & Jahaziel Preestes with trom= pettes contynuallye before the arcke of the couenaunt of God. In that tyme Dauid dyd

AND as Dauid dwelte in his house, he sayde to Nathan the Prophete: loo, I dwell in an house of Cedar tree: and the arcke of the Lordes couenaunt dwelleth vnder skynnes. And Nathan sayd to Dauid: w al that is in thyne herte, for God is with the. But the same nyght the worde of God came to Nathan, sayinge: goo and tell Dauid my seruaunt, thus sayth the Lorde: thou shalte not buylde me an house to dwell in. For I haue dwelt in no house sythens I brought out the chyldren of Israell vnto this daye: but I haue gone from tent to tent, and from one tabernacle to an other. Neyther in anye place where so euer I haue walked thorowe out all Israel, spake I euer one worde to anye of the Iudges of Israel which I commaunded to fede my people, sayinge: why buylde ye not me an house of Cedar tree? Now therfore thus saye vnto my seruaunt Dauid: thus sayth ✠ Lorde of hoostes: I toke the out of the pasture where thou keptest shepe, that thou shuldest be cappytayne ouer my people Israel. And I haue ben with the in all that thou tokest in hande, and haue, weded out all thyne ennemyes out of thy syghte, & haue made the a name lyke the name of the greatest men of the earthe. And I wold ordeyne a place for my people Israel, and wyl make it faste, and they shall dwelle vnder it, and shall moue no more. Neyther shall the chyldren of wyckednesse vexe them anye more, as at the begynnynge, and sythens the tyme I commaunded Iuges to be ouer my people Israell, and wyll bringe vnder all thyne ennemyes, (for I tolde the that the Lorde wyll buylde the an house.) But when thy dayes be cōppyzed that thou muste go after thy fathers, I wyll set vp thy seed after the, whiche shall be of thy sonnes, and wyl settle his kyngdome. He shal buylde me an house, & I wyll stablische his seate for euer. I wyll be his father, and he shall be my sonne, and I wyl not put my mercye away from him, as I dyd frome him that was before the. But I wyll set him in myne house, and in my kyngdome for euer, & his seat shall be sure for euer.

C

When Nathan had tolde Dauid according to all these wordes, and to all this vision, kinge Dauid went and sate him before the Lord, and sayd: what am I, O Lorde God, and what is myne household, that thou hast promoted me thus farre. And yet this semed lytle in thyne eyes, O God. But that thou holdest speake of thy seruantes house for a great while to come: and hast loked vpon me as vpon a mā of high degree, O Lorde God. What can Dauid desire more of the, wherin thou woldest make thy seruaunt more glorious? Thou knowest thy seruaunte: And Lorde for thy seruauntes sake, euen accordynge to thyne owne herte, thou hast wone all this magnifycence, to shewe all bounteousnesse Lorde, there is none lyke the, nor anye God saue thou: accordynge to all that we haue herde with oure eares. Moreouer what nacyon on the earthe is lyke thy people Israell? whiche God wente and redemed to be his owne people, and to make the a name of excellencye and terrybleness, with castynge oute nations before thy people for euer, and thou Lorde, arte become their God.

And now (Lorde) the thynge thou hast spoken concerning thy seruaunt and his house, be it true for euer, and do as thou hast sayd. And thy name continue and waxe greate for euermore, that it be sayd: the Lord of hoostes, the God of Israel is God in Israel, and the house of Dauid thy seruaunt be stable before the. For thou Lorde hast tolde thy seruaunt that thou wylt buylde him an house. And therfore thy seruaunt hath founde in his herte to praye before the. And now Lorde, thou arte the very God, and hast promysed this goodnesse vnto thy seruaunt. Now therfore goo to, and bielle the house of thy seruaunt, that it maye continue before the for euer. For what thou bliessest, O Lorde, that is blessed for euer.

¶ The battayles of Dauid agaynst the Philistines.

CAPI. XVIII.

AFter this, Dauid beat the Philistines, and subdued them, and toke Geth and the townes therunto pertenynge, out of the handes of the Philistines. And he beat the Moabytes, and the Moabytes became Dauids seruauntes, and payde him teybute. And Dauid beate Hadadezer kynge of Zobah vnto Hemath, as he wente to bynde his dominion vnto the ryuer Euphrates. And Dauid toke from him a thousande charettes, and seuen thousande horsemen, and twenty thousande fotemen, and brake all the charettes, saue that he reserued of them an hundred. Then came the Syrians of Damasco to helpe Hadadezer kyng of Zobah. And Dauid slewe of the Syrians, two and twentye thousande: and put garisons in Syria Damasco: And the Syrians became Dauids seruauntes, and broughte him teybute. For the Lorde helpe Dauid in all that he wente about. And Dauid toke the shyldes of golde that were on the seruauntes of Hadadezer and broughte them to Jerusalem. And frome Thebahath & Chun, cytyes of Hadadezer, broughte Dauid exceadinge moche brasse, wherwith Salomon afterwarde made the brasen see and the pyllers and the vessellles of brasse.

And when ✠ Thou kynge of Hemath herde how Dauid had beaten all the hoste of Hadadezer kyng of Zobah, he sent Haduram his sonne to kyng Dauid, to aske his peax, and to prayse hym

hym, bycause he had foughte with Hadadezer and beaten him, (for Thou had warre w Hadadezer) and sent all maner of iewels of golde syluer and brasse with him. And kynge Dauid dedicated them also vnto the Lorde with the syluer and golde that he brought from all nacyons, from the Edomites, from the Moabites, from the chyldren of Ammon, from the Philistines, and from the Amalekites. And Abisai ✠ sonne of Zaruiah slewe of the Edomites in the salt valeye. xviij. thousand, and put a garison in Edom. and all Edom became Dauids seruauntes, for the Lorde kept Dauid in all that he toke in hande. And Dauid raygned ouer all Israell, and dyd ryght and equite vnto all his people. And Joab the sonne of Zaruiah was ouer the hoste, and Josaphat the son of Ahilud recorde, and Zadock the son of Achitob, and Abimelech the son of Abiathar were the prestes, and Susa was scrybe, and Banaiah the sonne Joiada was ouer the Cerethites and the Phelethites, and the eldest sonnes of Dauid wayted at the kynges hande.

¶ Hanon kyng of the sonnes of Ammon doth great iniurye to the seruauntes of Dauid.

CAPI. XIX.

AFter this, it chaunsed that Nahas king of the chyldren of Ammon dyed, & his son made kynge in his stede. Then sayd Dauid: I wyll shewe kyndnes vnto Hanon the sonne of Nahas, bycause his father dealt kyndly with me. And therupon Dauid sēt messengers to comforte hym ouer the dethe of his father. And when the seruauntes of Dauid were come in to the land of the childrē of Ammon to Hanon to comforte hym, the lordes of the chyldren of Ammon sayd to Hanon: thinkest thou that Dauid dothe honoure thy father in thy syght, that he hath sent comforters vnto the? Naye, but it is to serche and ouerthrow and to espye out the land, that his seruauntes be come vnto the.

Wherupon Hanon toke Dauids seruāntes and shaued them, & cut of their cotes harde by their buttockes, and sent them awaye. Then they departed, and sent Dauid worde how they were serued and the kynge sent to mete them (for the men were excedyngly ashamed) and sayd: tarye at Jericho vntyll your berdes be growen, and then retourne. And when the chyldren of Ammon perceyued they had wone inmyte vnto Dauid: Hanon and the chyldren of Ammon sente a thousande talentes of syluer to hyre them charettes and horsemen oute of ✠ Mesopotamia and oute of Syria Maacah and oute of Zobah. And they hyred two and thirtye thousande charettes, and the kynge of Maacah and his people, whiche came & pytched before Medeba. And the chyldren of Ammon gathered them selues together from their cytyes, and mercched oute to battayle. And as soone as Dauid herde of it, he sent Joab with all the hoste of stronge men. And the chyldren of Ammon came out and put them in arayr to battayle before the gate of the cirye. And the kynges that were come, kepte them by them selues in the felde.

When Joab saw that the front of the battayle was before hym and after, he chose out of all the youthe of Israell, and put them in araye agaynst the Syrians. And the rest of the people he delyuered vnto Abisai his brother, that they wouldē put them selues in araye agaynst the chyldren of Ammon, and sayde: yf the Syrians be to stronge for me, succoure me/ and yf the chyldren of Ammon be to good for the, I wyll helpe the. Plucke vp thyne herte, and let vs playe the men for our peoples sake, and for the cirye of our God, and the Lorde do what semeth hym beste. And Joab and the people that were with hym drewe nye to the Syrians to fyght, and they fledde before hym. And when the chyldren of Ammon sawe that the Syrians were fledde, they ranne awaye lykewyse frome Abisai his brother, and gat them in to the cirye. And Joab came to Jerusalem. Also when the Syrians sawe that they were put to the worse of Israell, they sente messengers, and let oute the Syrians that are beyonde the ryuer with Sophach the cappytayne of the hoste of Hadadezer before them. Whiche when it was tolde Dauid, he assembled all Israel, and went ouer Jordan, and set vpon them. And Dauid put him selfe in araye agaynste the Syrians, and they foughte with him. But the Syrians fledde before Israel, and Dauid destroyed of the Syrians seuen thousande charettes, and slewe fourtye thousande fotemen, and kylled Sophach capitayne of the hoste. When the seruauntes of Hadadezer sawe that they were put to the worse of Israel, they made peax with Dauid, and serued hym. Neither wolde the Syrians helpe the chyldren of Ammon any more.

IN the yere folowynge about the tyme that kynges go out a warrefare, Joab caryed out the armye of the hoste and destroyed the cōtreye of the children of Ammon, and went and beleged Rabah and destroyed it: But Dauid bode at Jerusalem whyle Joab smote Rabah and destroyed it: ✠ And Dauid toke their kynges crowne from his heed, and founde therin the wayght of a talent of golde, & there were precyous stones in it. And it was set on Dauids heed. He broughte out also the spoyle of the cirye, whiche was exceadyng moche. And he brought forthe the people that were in it, and tamed them with sawes and harowes of yron and with brakes, and so dyd Dauid with all the cityes of the children of Ammon. And then Dauid and all the people came agayn to Jerusalem. ✠ After that, there arose warre at Gazer with the Philistines, at whiche tyme Sobocai the Husathite slew Saphai that was of the chyldren of ✠ Raphaim, and they were subdued. And there was battayle agayn with the Philistines / and Elhanan the sonne of Jair slewe Lahemi the brother of Goliath the Gethite.

thite, whose spere was lyke a beame of a weuer. And there chaunsed yet agayne warre at Geth, where was a mã of a very long stature, with .xxiiij. fyngers & toes, sixe on euery hande, and sixe on euery foote, and was the sonne of Haraphah & defied Israel. And Jonathan the sonne of Samaa Dauids brother, slewe hym. These were borne of Haraphah at Geth, and were ouerthrowen by the hand of Dauid, and of his seruauntes.

¶ The people are punyshed with pestilence, because Dauid caused them to be nombred: so that there dyed thre score and ten thousande men.

CAPI. XXI.

A Nd Satan stode vp agaynst Israel, and perswaded Dauid to nombre Israell.
And Dauid sayd to Joab and the rulers of the people/ go ye and nombre Israell from Beersabe to Dan, & bynge it to me, that I may knowe the nombre of them. And Joab answered: the Lord make thy people an hundred eymes so many moo as they be. But my lorde kynge, are they not all my lordes seruauntes? why then dothe my lorde requyre this thynge? why shoulde my lorde be a cause of trespace to Israel?
Neuertheless the kynges wordes preuayled agaynst Joab. And Joab toke his wape & went thorow out all Israel, and came to Jerusalem and gaue the nombre of the count of ỹ people vnto Dauid. And all Israell were in nombre a thousande thousandes, & an hundred thousande men that drewe swerde: and Juda was foure hundred and thre score and ten thousande men that drewe swerde. But the Leuites and Benjamin he counted not amonge them. For the kynges dede semed abhominable to Joab. And the Lord was displeased with this thyng, and smote Israell. Then sayde Dauid to God: I haue synned exceedyngly in doynge this thyng. Neuertheless yet doo awaye the wyckednesse of thy seruaunt, for I haue done aboue measure folyshly.
And the Lorde spake vnto Gad Dauids sear of vysyons, sayinge: goo and tell Dauid sayinge: Thus saythe the Lorde: I gyue the the choyse of thre thynges: chose the one of them, that I may do vnto the. And Gad came to Dauid, and sayde vnto hym: Thus saythe the Lorde: Chose the, eyther thre yeres famyshement, or thre monethes to be consumed of thyne aduersaries, the swerde of thine ennemies ouertakynge the: or els the swerde of the Lorde thre dayes and pestilence in the lande, the aungell of the Lord destroying thorow out all the costes of Israel. And nowe aduyse thy selfe what worde I shal bryng agayn to hym that sent me. And Dauid said to Gad, I am in exceedynge strayghtes. But let me fall in to the handes of the Lorde / for pasynge greate is his mercye, and let me not fall in to the handes of men.
And the Lorde sente pestilence vpon all Israel, so that there were ouerthrowen of Israel thre score and ten thousande men. And God sente the aungell to Jerusalem to destroye it. And as he was aboute to destroye, the Lorde beheld, and had compassion on the wretchednesse, and sayde to the aungell that destroyed, it is ynoughe, now cease thyne hande. And the aungell of the Lorde stode by the threshynge flooze of Ornan the Jebusite. And Dauid lyft vp his eyes, and sawe the aungell of the Lord stand betwene the erth and heuen with a drawen swerd in his hand, stretched out towarde Jerusalem. Then fel Dauid and the elders of Israel clothed in sacke vpon theyr faces. And Dauid sayd vnto God: Is it not I that commaunded to nombre the people? And I am he that haue synned and done euyll in dede. But what haue these shepe done? let thyne hande therfore, O Lorde God, be on me and on my fathers house, and not on thy people to hurte them.
And the aungell commaunded Gad to saye to Dauid, that Dauid shoulde goo and rere vp an aulter vnto the Lorde in the threshing flooze of Ornan the Jebusyte. And Dauid wente at the sayinge of Gad, whiche spake in the name of the Lorde. And Ornan towned about, and sawe the aungell, and his foure sonnes with him, and hyde them selues: for Ornan was threshynge whete. And Dauid came to Ornan. And when Ornan loked and sawe Dauid, he wente out of the threshynge flooze and bowed hym selfe to Dauid, with his face to the grounde.
And Dauid sayde to Ornan: gyue me the place of the threshynge flooze, that I may buylde an aulter therin vnto the Lorde. Let me haue it for as moche money as it is worth, that the plage maye cease frome the people. And Ornan sayde to Dauid: take it to the/ and let my Lorde kyng do what semeth good in his eyes. Se, I gyue the oxen for a burnt sacrifice, and the threshynge sleades for wode, and whete for meateofferynge: I gyue it all. But kynge Dauid sayde to Ornan: not so/ but I wyll bye it for as moche money as it is worthe. I will not take that whiche is thyne for the Lorde, and offre burntofferynges without coste.
And so Dauid gaue to Ornan for the place syxtes of golde sixe hundred by wayghte. And Dauid buylte there an aulter vnto the Lorde, and offered burntofferynges and peaceofferynges/ and called vnto the Lorde, and he hearde hym frome heauen in fyre vpon the aulter of burntofferynge. And the Lorde commaunded the aungell to put vp his swerde agayne into the sheethe of it. At that tyme whē Dauid sawe that the Lorde had herd him in the threshing flooze of Ornan the Jebusyte, he vsed to offre there. For the tabernacle of the Lorde whiche Moses made in the wyldernesse, and the aulter of burntofferynge, were at that season in the hyll at Gabaon. And Dauid coulde not goo before it to seke God, because he was afferde of the swerde of the aungel of the Lord. And Dauid sayde: This is the house of the Lorde God, and this is the burntofferynge aulter for Israel.

¶ Dauid wylleth his sonne Salomon to buylde the temple of the Lorde: whiche thynge he hym selfe was forbydden to do.

CAPI. XXII.

A Nd Dauid commaunded to gather the straungers that were in the lande of Israell, and set hewers to hewe stone, to buylde the house of God. And Dauid prepared plentye of yron for nayles to the wyes of the gates, and to ioyne with all, and aboundaunce of brasse without wayght, and of Cedar trees without nombre. For the Tiwns & they of Tire brought moche Cedar woode to Dauid. For Dauid thus thought, Salomon my sonne is young and tender, and the house that is to be buylte for the Lorde, muste exceede in greatnesse, that it maye be spoken of and prayse in al landes. I wil therfore make ordinaunce for it. And so Dauid made greate prouision before his death.
And he called Salomon his sonne and charged hym to buylde an house for the Lord God of Israel: And Dauid sayde to Salomon: * my sonne, I hadde in myne hert to buylde an house vnto the name of the Lorde my God. But the worde of the Lorde came to me sayenge: thou hast shed moche bloude, and hast made many battelles. Thou shalt not buylde an house for my name, for as moche as thou hast shed so moche bloude to the earthe in my sight. Beholde a sonne shalbe borne the, whiche shalbe a man of reste, for I will gyue him rest frome all his ennemyes roundabout. And his name shalbe * Salomon: for I will send rest and peax vpon Israell in his dayes. He shall buylde an house for my name, & he shalbe my sonne, and I will be his father, and will stablysshe the seate of his kyngdome vpon Israell for euer. Nowe my sonne, the Lorde be with the, that thou mayst prospere & buylde the house of the Lorde thy God, as he hathe sayde of the. And the Lorde gyue the wysdom and vnderstandinge, and make the gouernor of Israel, and to kepe the lawe of the Lorde thy God. For then thou shalte prospere: If thou shalt be diligent to do the ordinaunces and lawes whiche the Lorde charged Moses with, to delyuer to Israell. Plucke vp thyne hert and be stronge, drede not nor be discouraged. Beholde in myne aduersite I haue prepared for the house of the Lord an hundred thousande talentes of gold, and a thousand thousand talentes of syluer, and as for brasse & yrō it can not be numbred, it is so moche. And I haue prepared tymbre and stone, & thou shalt prouyde more therto. Moreouer thou hast workemen ynoughe and masons and carpenters to worke in stone and tymbre, and al maner of wyse men for whatsoeuer worke it be. And of golde syluer, brasse and yron there is no numbre. Aryse therfore and set vpon it, & the Lorde shalbe with the.
And Dauid commaunded al the Lordes of Israel, to helpe Salomon his sonne sayeng, Is not the Lorde youre God with you? and hath he not gyuen you rest on euery syde? for he hath gyuen thinhabitauntes of the lande into myne hande, and the land is subdued before the Lorde and before his people. Nowe therfore set youre hertes and youre soules, to seke the Lorde your God. And aryse & buylde ye the temple of the Lord God, to bringe the arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde, and the holy vesselles of God into the house so buylte for the name of the Lorde.

¶ Dauid beinge olde ordeyneth Salomon kynge. He causeth the Leuites to be nombred, and assigneth them to their offyces.

CAP. XXIII.

A Nd when Dauid was olde and stryken in yeres, he made Salomon his sonne kynge ouer Israel. And then he gathered togither al the Lordes of Israel with the preastes and the Leuites. And the Leuites were nombred frome .xxx. yere and aboue, and the tale of theym in men polle by polle was .xxxviij. thousand. Of which .xxiiij. thousande were set to further the worke of the house of the Lorde. And sixe thousande were officers & iudges. Foure thousand were porters & foure thousand praysed the Lorde with suche instrumentes as Dauid had made to prayse with. And Dauid put an order amonge the children of Leui: Gerson, Cahath and Merari: Of ỹ Gersonites was Laadan & Semei. The sonnes of Laadan: the chief was Jehiel, & then Zethan and Joel, thre. The sonnes of Semei Salomith, Haziel, and Haran, thre. These were the auncient heddes of Laadan. And the sonnes of Semei were also Jahath, Zinah, Jaus and Bariah: these foure were the sonnes of Semei. And Jahath was the chief, Zinah the seconde. But Jaus and Bariah hadde not many sonnes, and therfore they were reckened for one auncient housholde.
The sonnes of Cahath: Amram, Jsachar, Hebron and Vziel, foure. * The sonnes of Amram: Aaron and Moses. And Aaron was appointed to consecrate in the place most holy with his sonnes for euer: and to burne the offringes before the Lorde, and to minister, and to blesse in his name for euer. And the childre of Moses the man of God, were named with ỹ tribe of Leui. The sonnes of Moses: Gerson and Eliezer. And of the sonnes of Gerson: Sabael was the chiefe. The sonnes of Eliezer: Rohabiah the chiefe. And Eliezer hadde none other sonnes: But the sonnes of Rohabiah were verye many. And of the sonnes of Jsachar: Salomi, the chiefe. The sonnes of Hebron: Jeriahu the first, Amariah the second, Jahaziel the third and Jecmaam the fourth. The sonnes of Vziel: Micah the first and Jesiah the second. The sonnes of Merari: Mahali: and Musi. The sonnes of Mahali: Eleazar and Cis. And Eleazar dyed and had no sonnes, but doughters onely, and their brethren the sonnes of Cis toke them. The sonnes of Musi: Mahali, Oder, and Jeremuth, thre. These are the children of Leui in ỹ house holdes of their fathers the auncient heddes, hewed and nombred by name & polle by polle

from

frome. xx. yere and aboue, to worke in the ser uice of the house of the Lorde. For Dauid sayd the Lorde God of Israel hath gyuen rest vn=
to his people, and they shall dwell in Jerusa= lem for euer.
Moreouer the Leuites shall now no more beare the tabernacle and all the vesselles that D pertayned to the seruice therof. But at the last commaundement of Dauid, the Leuites were nombred frome. xx. yere and aboue, to wayte at the handes of the sonnes of Aaron in the seruice of the house of the Lorde, and to haue the ouersight of the courtes, and of the store houses, and of the purifyenge of all ho ly thinges, and of the worke of the thynges
that serued for the house of God, as the shew bred, the fyne floure, the meatofferinges, the flawnes of swete bred, and of the thinges ba ken in the fryenge pan, or broyled on the gry
dyron, and on all maner measures and syse, &
to wayte euery mornynge to thanke & prayse
the Lorde, and lykewyse at euē. And to wayte on euery offerynge of burntsacrifices vnto the Lorde, the Sabbothes and firste dayes of the monethes, and other feastfull dayes by nom= bre and custome, was their office euer before the Lorde. And that they shulde wayte on the tabernacle of wytnesse and on the holy place,
and on the sonnes of Aaron their brethren, in the seruice of the house of the Lorde.

¶ Dauid assygneth theyr offyce to the sonnes of Aaron.

A The diuision of the sonnes of Aaron: Na=
Leuiti. xvi. a. dab, Abihu, Eleazar and Ithamar. ✶
But Nadab & Abihu dyed before their father and had no children. And Eleazar and Ithamar were the preastes. And Dauid order= red them on this maner: Zadock of the son=
nes of Eleazar and Achimelck of the sonnes of Ithamar to be in office by course. And there were mo myghty heddes founde of the sonnes
of Eleazar then of the sonnes of Ithamar.
And he diuided them into. xvi. heddes of aun cient housholdes of the sonnes of Eleazar, and eight of the sonnes of Ithamar. And he put B them in order by lot, one with an other to be rulers in the sanctuary & Lordes before God

As concernyng the sonnes of Laadan whi=
che were Gersonites: Laadan had auncyente fathers. Laadan the Gersonite hadde Jehieli.
The sonnes of Jehieli: Zetham and Joel his brother, whiche were ouer the treasures of the house of the Lorde. Amonge the Amramites, Izaharites, Hebronites, and Ozielites, was Subuel the sonne of Gerson, the sonne of Mo ses, a ruler ouer the treasure. And of his bre= thren the sonnes of Eliezer, was Rahabiah, whose sonne was Isaiah, and his sonne was Joram, and his sonne Zechri, and his sonne was Selomith, whiche Selomith and his brethren were ouer all the treasures of the dedycate gyftes, whiche Dauid the kynge
and the auncyente heedes of the Capitaynes
ouer thousandes and hundredes, and the capi=
taynes of the hoste had dedicated of the spoyle
wonne in battayle, to mayntayne the house, of the Lorde: and ouer all that. Samuel the Sear, and Saul the sonne of Cis, and Abner D
the sonne of Ner, and Joab the sonne of Zer= uiah hadde dedicated. All that was dedicated, was vnder the hande of Selomith, and of his brethren.
Of the Izaharites, Conaniah and his son=
nes were in businesses, without forth made of= ficers and iudges ouer Israell. And of the He= bronites: Hasabiah and his brethren, men of actiuitie a thousande and seuen hundred were fest amonge the kynredes and fathers of the Hebronites. And in the fourty yere of ÿ raigne of Dauid, they were soughte for. And there were

were founde of them men of prowesse at Jezer in Galaad. And his brethren were in men of prowesse, two thousande and seuen hundred auncient heedes, whiche kynge Dauid made rulers ouer the Rubenites, Gadites, and halfe the tribe of Manasses, in all matters concernynge God buisynesses of the kynge,

¶ Of the prynces and rulers that mynystred vnto the kynge.

CAPI. XXVII.

A TO speake of the chyldren of Israell: in the nombre of them were auncient heedes and capitaynes of thousandes and hundredes, and officers that serued the kynge in all thynge accordynge to the companyes that came in, or wente oute, monethly by moneth thorowe oute all the monethes of the yere. And euery company had four and twenty thousande. Ouer the fyrst companye in the fyrst moneth, was Jasoboam the sonne of Zabdiel. And in his nombre were foure and twenty thousand. And the chyefest of all ꝑ capitaynes in the host of the fyrst moneth was of the children of Pharez. Ouer the companye of the seconde moneth, Dodai and Ahoyite, and in his bande was Makeloth a ruler. And in his company were foure and twenty thousande. The chyefe Capitayne of the thyrde bande in the thyrde moneth, was Banaiah the sonne of Joiada the preest. And in his host foure & twenty thousande. This is the same Banaias that was myghty amonge thyrtye and aboue thyrtye. And in his parte was Amizabad his sonne.

B The fourth capitayne in the fourth moneth was Asael the brother of Joab, and Zabadiah his sonne after him. And in his bande foure and twenty thousande. The fyfte capitayne in the fyfte moneth was Samahut the Jezrahite. And in his host xxiiij. thousande. The sixt capitayne in the sixt moneth was Ira the son of Ikes a Thekonite: and in his host foure and twenty thousande.

The seuenth capitayne in the seuenth moneth was Helez the Phalonite, of the children of Ephraim: and in his bande foure and twenty thousande. The eyght capitayne in ꝑ eyght moneth was Sobocai an Husathite of the kin of Sarah: and in his bande foure and twenty thousande. The nynthe capitayne in the nynth moneth: was Abiezer an Anathothite of the seruaūts of Jemini: and in his bande xxiiij. thousande. The tenthe capitayne in the tenth moneth, was Maharai the Netophathite of ꝑ Zarhites: and in the bande foure and twenty thousande. The eleuenth moneth was Banaiah a Pirathonite of the children of Ephraim: and in his bande foure and twenty thousande. The twelfte capitayne in the twelfte moneth, was Heldai the Netophathite of Othoniel: and in his bande xxiiij. thousande. And ouer the tribes of Israell were these: The ruler ouer the Rubenites, was Eliezer the sonne of Zechri. Ouer the Simeonites, was Saphatiah the sonne of Maacah. Among the Leuites: Hasabiah the son of Kamuel. Amonge the Aaronites: Zadock. In Juda: Elihu of the brethren of Dauid. In Isachar: Amri the sonne of Michael. In Zabulon: Ismaiah the sonne of Abdiah. In Nephthalie: Jerimoth the sonne of Azriel. Amonge the chyldren of Ephraim: Hosea the sonne of Ozias. In the halfe tribe of Manasses: Joel the sonne of Phadaiah. Of the halfe tribe of Manasses in Galaad: Iado the sonne of Zacharias. In Benjamin: Jasiel the sonne of Abner. In Dan: Azariel the sonne of Jeroham: These are the Lordes in the tribes of Israel.

But Dauid toke not the nombre of them vnder twenty yere: for the Lord said he wold encrease Israell lyke vnto the sterres of the skye. And Joab the sonne of Zaruiah began to nombre, & though he fynyshed it not, yet there fell wrathe for that vpon Israel. And therfore the nombre was not put in the Chronicles of kynge Dauid.

Ouer the kynges treasure was Azmoth the sonne of Adiel. And ouer the treasure of the fyldes, in the cytyes, vyllages, and castelles, was Jonathan, the sonne of Oziah. And ouer the workmen in the feldes that tylled the ground was Ezri the sonne of Chelub. And the ouersyght of the vynyardes had Semeiah the Ramathite. Ouer the wynecellers was Sabdi the Saphontite. And ouer the olyue trees and mulbery trees that was in the valeyes, was Baalhanan the Gadarite. And ouer the treasure of oyle was Joas. And ouer the oxen that fed in Saro was Setari the Saronite. And ouer the oxen in the valeyes, was Saphat the sonne of Adlai. And ouer the cameles Obil the Ismaelite. And ouer the asses was Jehat iah the Meronothite. And ouer the sheepe was Jazis the Hagarite. All these were the rulers of the substaunce of kynge Dauid. And Jonathan Dauids brothers sonne, a man of counsell, a man that taught wysdom, & a writer: he and Jehiel the sonne of Hachamoni wayted on the kynges sonnes. And Achitophel was of the kynges counsell. And Husai the Arachite was the kynges companyon. And nexte to Achitophel was Joiada the sonne of Banaiah, and Abiathar. And the capitayne of the kynges warre was Joab.

¶ Because Dauid was forbydden to buylde the Temple, he exhorteth Salomon and the peoples to pertayne it.

CAPI. XXVIII.

AND Dauid gathered togyther all the lordes of Israel: the lordes of the tribes, the lordes of the companyes that ministred to the kynge by course, the lordes ouer the thousandes and ouer the hundredes, and the lordes ouer all the goodes and catell of the kynge and of his sonnes, with the chamberlaynes, warryours, and all valyaunt men vnto Jerusalem. And kynge Dauid stode vpon his fete and sayd,

Heare me my brethren and my people: I had in myne herte to buylde an house of reste for the arche of the couenaūt of the Lorde, and a fote stole for our God, and had made redye to buylde. But God sayde to me: thou shalte not buylde an house for my name / because thou art a man of warre and hast shed bloude. Moreouer the Lorde God of Israel chose me of all the house of my father, to be kyng ouer B Israel for euer: for he chose Juda to be a capitayne: and in the house of Juda the house of my father, & of the sonnes of my father he had a lust to me, to make me kyng ouer all Israel. And of all my sonnes, (for the Lorde hath gyuen me many sonnes) he hath chosen Salomō my sonne, to syt in the seat of the kyngdome of the Lorde ouer Israel. And he sayde vnto me: Salomon thy sonne shall buylde my house and my courtes / for I haue chosen hym to be my sonne, and I wyll be his father, and wyll stablysshe his raygne for euer, yf he wyll harden hym selfe to do my commaundementes / and my lawes, as it goeth this daye. And nowe I saye vnto you before all Israel the congregacion of the Lorde, and in the audience of oure God: kepe & seke for all the commaundementes of the Lorde your God, that ye maye enioye a good lande, and enheryte your chyldren after you for euer. And thou Salomon my son knowe God thy father, and serue him with a pure herte and lust of soule. For the Lord sercheth all hertes, and vnderstandeth all the ymaginacions of thoughtes. Yf thou shalt seke him, he wyll be founde of the: But yf thou forsake hym, he wyl cast the of for euer. Take hede nowe, for the Lorde hathe chosen the to buylde an house of thy sanctuarye. Be stronge and do it.

And Dauid gaue Salomon his son the patterne of the porche and of the houses that belonged therto / and of the store houses, vpper chambers, inner parlioures, and of the house of the mercye seate: and the example of that was in his mynde, bothe in the courtes of the house of the Lord, and of the treasure houses rounde aboute, for the treasures of the house of God, and for the treasure of the dedycate gyftes / and of the companyes of the preestes and Leuytes that wayted vpon course, and of all workemanshyp that shold serue for the house of the Lorde, and for all vesselles that shulde serue in the house of the Lorde. And appoynted him what waygthe of golde shulde serue for chyngres of golde thorowe oute all vessellis, for what so euer vse it serued: And what waygthe of syluer shulde suffyse for all maner vessellis of syluer, for what so euer purpose they serued. And the waygthe of the golden candelsticke, & of theyr lampes of golde, the waight for euery candelsticke, and for their lampes. And for the candelsticke of syluer by waygthe / both for the candelsticke, and also for the lampes, accordynge to the office of euerye D candelsticke. And the waygthe of golde for the tables of shewbreed, table by table: and lykewise syluer for the tables of siluer. And for flesh hokes, basens, and drynkynge pottes of pure golde. And for cuppes of golde by waygthe, cup by cup. And for cuppes of syluer by waight, cup by cuppe. And for the aulter of incense of tryed golde by waygthe. And the similitude of the seate of the Cherubes that stretched out theyr wynges and couered the arche of the couenaūt of the Lorde. All (sayth he) was gyuen me by wrytynge of the hande of the Lorde, whiche made me vnderstande all the workemanshyp of the patterne.

And Dauid sayde to Salomon his sonne: harden thy selfe and be stronge, and do it / feare not, nor lette thyne herte discourage the. For the Lorde God my God is with the, and shall not leaue the nor forsake the, vntyll thou haste fynyshed all the worke that muste serue for the house of the Lorde. Beholde, the Preestes and Leuytes diuyded in companyes, to do all maner seruyce that pertayneth to the house of God / and besyde that, thou haste with the for all maner of workmanshyp, all that are wyllynge and wise for any maner of seruyce. And the lordes and all the people are at thy commaundement in all thynges.

¶ The offerynges of Dauid and of the prynces for the buyldynge of the temple. Dauid dyeth and Salomon his sonne raygneth in his steade.

CAPI. XXIX.

AND Dauid the kynge sayd vnto all the congregacyon: God hathe specyallye chosen Salomon my sonne, whiche is yet ponge and tender, and the worke is great, for the house is not for man, but for the Lord God. Moreouer I haue prepared with all my myghte for the house of God: golde for thyngs of golde, and syluer for thynges of syluer, brasse for thynges of brasse / yron for thynges of yron / and wodde for thynges of wodde: and onykes stones / set stones / and of other gaye stones / and all maner precyous stones / and of marble great abundaunce. And yet bycause I haue lust to the house of my God: I haue seuerall golde and syluer, which I giue to the house of my God aboue all I haue prepared for the holye house: euen three thousande talentes of golde, of Ophir, and seuen thousande talentes of syluer tryed: to syle the walles of the house with golde where it be commeth, and with syluer where syluer is mete, and for all maner of worcke by the handes of artificers. And lette me se who is wyllynge also to fyll his hande for the Lorde this daye.

And the auncient lordes, & the lordes of the tribes of Israell, and the capitaynes of thousandes and hundredes, and the lordes ouer the substaunce of the kynge, were wyllynge / and gaue for the seruyce of the house of God, fyue thousande talentes of golde, and tenne thousande peces of golde coynes / and tenne thousande talentes of syluer, and xviij. thousande talentes of brasse / and an hundred thousande talentes of yron. And they that had precyous stones, gaue them for the treasure of the house of the

of the Lorde, vnto the hande of Jeheliel the Gersonite. And the people reioyced that they were so wyllynge: for with a pure herte they were wyllynge vnto the Lorde, And therto Dauid the kyng reioyced with grete gladnesse. And Dauid blessed the Lorde before all the congregacion and sayde: Blessed arte thou Lorde God of Israel oure father, for euer & euer. Thyne (O Lorde) is greatnesse, power glorye, victorye, and prayse: for all that is in heauen and in erthe is thyne and thyne is the kyngdome (O Lorde) and thou arte lyfte vp an heed aboue all. Ryches and honoure come of the, and thou raygnest ouer all and in thine hande is power and strengthe, and in thyne hande it is to make great & to gyue strengthe vnto all. And Nowe oure God, we thanke the, and prayse thy glorypouse name. For what am I? and what is my people? that we shuld obtayne strengthe to be so wyllynge? But all is of the, and of that we receyued of thyne hande we haue gyuē the. For we be but straūgers before the and tenauntes, as were all oure fathers. Oure dayes on the erthe is but a shadowe, and there is none abydynge. O Lorde oure God, al this heape that we haue prepared to buylde the an house for thy holye name, commeth of thyne hande, and is al thyne.

I wote my God, that thou prouest the herte and hast pleasure in playnesse. And in playnesse of myne herte I haue wyllynglye gyuen all this. And now I se thy people whiche are here in gladnesse to offer wyllyngelye to the. O Lorde God of Abraham / Isaac and of Israel our fathers / kepe this for euer in the ymaginacyon of the thoughtes of the herte of thy people / and prepare theyr hertes vnto the. And gyue vnto Salomon my sonne / a pure herte to kepe my cōmaundementes / thy testimonyes and thyne ordynaunces / and to do all / & to buylde the house which I entended.

And Dauyd sayde to all the congregacyon: blesse the Lorde youre God. And all the congregacyon blessed the Lorde God of theyr fathers / and stowped and bowed them selues vnto the Lorde and to the Kynge. And they offered offerynges vnto the Lord. And on the morowe after the sayd daye / they offered in burntofferynges vnto the Lorde a thousande oxen / a thousande rammes and a thousande lam mes with theyr drynkofferinges. And they slue plenteously thorowoute all Israel, and dyd eate and drynke before the Lorde the same day with great gladnesse. And they made Salomon the sonne of Dauyd kynge the second tyme, and anoynted him vnto the Lord to be ruler, and Sadocke to be the preste. And so Salomō sate on the seate of the Lord and was kynge for Dauyd his father, and prospered, and all Israel obeyed him. And al the Lordes and men of power, and all the sonnes of kynge Dauyd submytted them selues vnder kynge Salomon. And the Lorde magnifyed Salomon on hyghe in the syght of all Israel, and gaue him so glorious a kyngdome as none of all that were kynges before in Israell had. Now Dauyd the sonne of Isai was kynge ouer all Israel. And the space he raygned ouer Israel was fourtie yere: seuen yere in Hebron and .xxxiij. yere in Jerusalem. And he dyed in a good age: olde, ryche and glorious: And Salomon his sonne raigned in his steade. The actes of Dauyd the kyng bothe fyrst and laste, are wryten in the bokes of Samuel the seare and in the boke of Nathan ꝑ prophete, and in the boke of Gad the sear of bisyons, with all his kyngdome and power & tymes that wēt ouer him & ouer al ꝑ kīn gdomes of the erth.

¶ The offerynge of Salomon in the hyllaultee at Gabaon, where he receyueth an aunswere of God what wysdom shulde be gyuen hym with the nombre of his charettes and horsemen.

CAPI. I.

AND Salomon the sonne of Dauid waxed stronge in his kyngdom and the Lorde his God was with him & auaunced him on hyghe. And Salomon comuned w all Israel, the capitaynes ouer thousandes & hundredes the iudges and al other lordes and auncient hedes thorow out all Israel. And so Salomon and all the congregacion with him went to the hillaultee of Gabaon: for there was the tabernacle of the wytnesse of God, *whiche Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde made in the wyldernesse. But the Arcke of God had Dauid brought frome Kariath Jarim, in to the place he hadde prepared for it. Where he had pytched a tent for it euen at Jerusalem. Moreouer the brasen aulter that Bezeleel the sonne of Uri, the sonne of Hur had made, was at Gabaon also, before the tabernacle of the Lorde. And Salomon and the congregacion went to vyset it. And Salomon offred there before the Lorde vpon the brasen aultare that was by the tabernacle of wittnesse, a thousande burntsacrifyces. And the same night God apeared vnto Salomon and sayd to him: aske what shal I gyue the. And Salomon sayde vnto God: thou hast shewed great mercy vnto Dauid my father, and haste made me kynge in his stede *& now Lord God let thy promyse vnto Dauid my father be true for thou haste made me kynge ouer a people lyke the dust of the earth in multitude. Wher fore gyue me wysdome and knowledge howe to behaue my selfe vnto this people: for who is hable to iudge this people that is so great?

Then God sayde to Salomō, because thou haddest this in thine hert, and dydest not aske treasure and rychesse, honoure and the lyues of thyne enemyes, neyther yet longe lyfe: but hast asked wysdome and knowledge, to iudge my people, ouer which I haue made the kyng: wysdome and knowledge shalbe gruen the, & I will gyue the treasure, rychesse, and glorye also, that amonge the kynges before the or after the, none was or shalbe lyke ꝑ. And so Salomon came frome the hyaulter that was at Gabaon to Jerusalem frome the tabernacle of wytnesse and raygned at Jerusalē. And Salomon gathered charettes & horsemen: so that he had a thousande and foure hundred charettes, and twelue thousande horsemen, whiche he bestowed in the charet cyties and aboute ꝑ kynge at Jerusalem. And the kynge made siluer and golde at Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar trees as plentye as the mulberey trees that growe in the valeyes. And the horses which Salomon hadde, were brought him out of Egypte frome Keua. The kynges marchantes fet them out at Keua at a pryce. They came and brought out of Egypte a charet for sixe hundred syeles, and an horse for an hundred and fyfty. And so brought they to all the kynges of the Hethites and to the kynges of Suria thorow the handes of the sayd marchauntes. ii. Regū. i. d.

¶ Salomon sendeth to Hiram the kynge of Tyre for wood and workemen.

CAP. II.

AND Salomon determined to buyld an house for the name of the Lorde, & an house for his kyngdome: and tolde out thre skore and ten thousand men to beare burdens and foure skore thousand to hewe in the mountayne, and thre thousande and sixe hundred to ouerse them.

* And Salomon sente to Hiram kynge of Tire sayenge: As thou dyddest deale with Dauid my father and dyddest sende him Cedar wodde, to buylde him an house to dwell in, euen so deale with me nowe that I may buyld an house for the name of the Lorde my God, to consecrate it to him to burne swete odoures and to set shewbred before him perpetually, & for burntsacrifice mornynge and euenynge, & on the Saboth dayes, and the fyrst daye of euery newe moone, and in the solemne feastes of ꝑ Lorde our God, so to continewe euer in Israel. And the house whiche I buylde is greate: for great is our God aboue all goddes: So that who can be hable to buyld him an house: whe that heauen, neyther heauen aboue all heauens is hable to receyue him, what am I then that I shoulde buylde him an house? naye, but to burne sacrifice before him: sende me nowe therfore a connyng man to worke in golde, siluer, brasse, yron, scarlet, cremosyn, and Jacinct coloure, and that can skyll to graue, to be ꝓ the connynge men that are with me in Juda and Jerusalem, whiche Dauid my father dyd prepare. And sende me also Cedar trees, firre trees and * Algume trees out of Libanon. For I wote well thy seruauntes can skyll to hewe tymbre in Libanon. And loo, my men shalbe with thyne, that they may prepare me tymbre ynough. For the house which I buyld is great and wonderfull. And behalde, I sende for thy seruauntes the cutters and hewers of tymbre twenty thousande quarters of whete, and twentye thousande quarters of barleye, and twentye thousande bathes of wyne, and twenty thousand bathes of oyle. iii. Regū. v. c. * Some rede Coral or Bzel syll.

And Hyram kynge of Tire answered in wry

tynge and sent to Salomon: because the Lorde loueth his people, he hathe made the kynge ouer them. And Hiram sayde moreouer: blessed be the Lorde God of Israell, whiche hath made both heuen and erth, that he hath gyuen Dauid the kynge a wyse sonne ꝑ hath discretion and vnderstandynge, to buylde an house for the Lord, and an other for his kingdome. And nowe I haue sent a wyse man and a man of vnderstandynge called Hiram Abi, D is the sonne of a woman of the daughters of Dan (how be it his father was a Tirian) and he can skylle to worke in golde, syluer, brasse, yron, stone, tymbre, scarlet, Jacinct, blue, and cremosin: and graue all maner of grauinges, and to fynde all maner sotle worke that shalbe set before hym, with thy cunnynge men, ꝑ with the cunnynge men of my Lorde Dauid thy father. And nowe the wheat, barley, oyle and wyne whiche my Lorde hath sayde, lette him sende his seruauntes. And we wyll cutte wood out of Lybane, as moche as thou shalt nede and wyll brynge it to the in shyppes, by see to poyne Jabo: and thence thou mayste carye them to Jerusalem. And Salomon nombred all the straungers that were in the lande of Israel, after the tyme his father Dauid had nombred them. And they were founde an hundred and. liij. thousande and sixe hundred. And he set. lxx. thousande of them to beare burthens, and. lxxx. thousande to hewe in the mountayne, and three thousande and sixe hundred to encourage and to set the people a worcke.

¶ The temple of the Lorde an the porche are buylded with other thinges therto belongynge.

CAPI. III.

A Then Salomon began to buylde ꝑ house of the Lorde, at Jerusalem, in mounte Moriah, which was shewed Dauid his father when he prepared a place in the threshinge floure of Ornan the Jebusite. And he began to buylde the seconde daye of the seconde moneth, the fourthe yere of his raygne. And this is the foundacion of Salomon in buyldinge the house of God. The length was three score cubites after the old cubyte, ꝑ the bredth xx. And the porche at the ende was as large as the house bredth twenty cubytes: ꝑ the height was an hundred and twenty cubytes. And he ouerlayde it on the inner syde with pure gold.

B And the great house he syled with firre tre, and ouerlayde it chefely with good golde, ꝑ grauen therin palmetrees ꝑ cheynes folדינge in with spinckes. And he paued the house with precious marbell goodly. And it was gold of Pharuaim. And he ouerlayde the house: both beames, postes, walles and dres with golde, and grauen Cherubes vpon the walles.

And he made the house moste holye, whose length was twenty cubytes ryse to the bredth of the house, and the bredth thereof was also twenty cubytes. And he ouerlayde it with the best golde, that drue to the somme of sixe hundred talentes, he made also naples of golde, ꝑ the waycht of euery naple of golde weyed fyfty sycles. And he ouerlayde the vpper chābres with golde.

And he made in the house moste holy two ✳ Cherubes of Image worke, and gylded them with golde. And the wynges of the Cherubes were twenty cubytes longe. The one wynge was fyue cubytes and touched the wal of the house, and the other wynge was lykewyse. v. cubytes and touched the wynge of the other Cherub. And the one wynge of the other Cherub was fyue cubytes, and touched the wall of the house, and the other wynge was fyue cubytes also, and reached to the wynge of the other Cherub. So that ꝑ wynges of the sayde Cherubes raught twentye cubitts. And they stode on their fete and loked inwardes. And he made a fore hangynge of Jacynct coloure, of scarlet, cremosyne and bysse: and caused Cherubes to be bourdered theron. And he made before the house two pyllers of. xxxv. cubytes longe. And the hed that was aboue on the top of one of them was. v. cubytes. And he made suche chaynes as was in the quere, ꝑ put them on the heedes of the pyllers, and made an hundred pomegranates, and put them on ꝑ cheynes. And he rered vp the pyllers before the temple: one on the right hande and an other on ꝑ lefte, and called the right Jachin and the lefte Boaz.

¶ The auter of brasse, the see, the vessels to washe with, the candelstyckes, ꝛc.

CAPI. IIII.

And he made an auter of brasse. xx. cubytes longe and. xx. cubytes brode and ten cubytes hyghe ✳ And he cast a brasen see of ten cubytes from brym to brym, and round in compase and fyue cubytes hygh: and a lyne of thirty cubytes might haue copased it rounde about. And the lykenes of oxen dyd compase it roundabout vnder it: that is to wete, two rowes of oxen cast whiche when it was cast dyd compase that see which was ten cubytes wyde, roundeabout. And it stode also vpō. xii. oxen: of which three loked North, three West, three South, and three East, and the see vpon them aboue an hyghe, and the hynder partes of them inward. And the thickest of it was an handebreede, and the brym lyke the brym of a cup, with floures of lylyes. And it receyued ꝑ holde thousand bathes.

And he made ten lauers: and put fyue on ꝑ right hande and fyue on the left, to washe in. And in them they thrust the flesh of the burnt offerynges. But the see was for the preastes to washe in. And he made ten candelstyckes of golde in their facyons, and put them in the temple: fyue on the right hande and fyue on the left. And he made also ten tables, and put them in the temple: fyue on the right syde and fyue on the left. And he made an hundred basens of golde. And he made the courte of the preastes, and the greate courte and dores for the courte, and ouerlayde the doores of them with brasse. And he set the see in the right syde of ꝑ east ende, towarde the south. And Hiram made pottes, shoueles and basens.

And Hiram fynished the worke he made for kynge Salomon vnto the temple of God: The two pyllers with their scalpes of ꝑ two heedes that were on the toppes of the pyllers and the two wreathes to couer the two scalpes of the heedes that were on the toppes of the pyllers: and foure hundred pomegranates for the two wreathes, two rowes of pomegranates for euery wreathe, to couer the two scalpes of the heedes that were on the pyllers. And he made bottomes, and lauers vpon the bottomes: and the see with twelue oxen vnder it. And therto pottes, shoueles, flesshe hokes, and all their vessels dyd Hiram Abi make for kyng Salomon for the house of the Lorde, of bryght brasse. In the playne of Jordan dyd ꝑ kynge cast them, in the thicke earthe, betwene Socoth and Zaredatha. And made of al these vessels so wyghty great aboundance, that the waycht of brasse could not be reckened.

And Salomon made all the vesselles that pertayned to the house of God: the golden auter and the tables with the shewbred vpō thē the candelstyckes with their lampes to burne after the maner before the quere, and that of pure golde, and the floures and the lampes, ꝑ the snoffers were golde, and that perfect golde: and the spedynge knyues, basens, spones and censers of pure golde. And the vnner wyes of the place moste holy, and the wyes of the temple, were golde. And thus was all the worke ꝑ Salomon made for the house of the Lorde fynished.

And when the worcke that Salomon made in the house of the Lorde was fynished: then Salomon brought in the gyftes dedycate by Dauid his father, the syluer and the gold and all the iewels, and put them amonge the treasure of the house of God.

¶ After the store houses and the Arcke were put in the temple, the glorye of the Lord fylled the temple.

CAPI. V.

A Then Salomon gathered the elders of Israel togither and al the heedes of the trybes and auncient Lordes among the childrē of Israel, vnto Jerusalem: to brynge the Arcke of the couenaunt of the Lorde forth of the cyte of Dauid which is Sion. And all the men of Israell resorted vnto the kynge in the feast of the seuenth moneth. And when al the elders of Israell were come, the Leuites toke vp the Arcke, and the preastes and the Leuites brought awaye the Arcke and the tabernacle of wytnesse, and all the holye vesselles B that were in the tabernacle. And kynge Salomon and all the congregacion of Israell that were assembled vnto him before the Arcke, offred shepe and oxen, so many that they could not be told or numbred for multitude. And the preastes brought the Arcke of the apoyntemēt of the Lorde vnto his place in the quere of the temple and place moost holye: euen vnder the wynges of the Cherubes, that the Cherubes stretched oute their wynges ouer the place of the Arcke and couered the arcke and her staues aboue on hyghe. And the staues of the Arcke, were so longe, that they were sene a lytle before the quere, but not farre without. And there it remayneth vnto this daye. Moreouer there was nothinge in the Arcke saue the two tables whiche Moses put therein at Horeb, which the Lorde had wroten to the children of Israel, after their commynge forth frome Egypte. And when the preastes were come oute of the holy place (for all the preastes that were founde there sanctified theym selues and dyd not as yet at that tyme wayte by course) But the Leuites euery one of them that were vnder Asaph, Heman and Jduthun, and amonge their children ꝑ brethren, were arayed in bysse and sange with Symbales, Psalteries ꝑ harpes standinge east frome the auter, and with them an hundred ꝑ twenty preastes blowinge trompettes. And the trompet blowers and the singers so agreed, that it semed but one voyce D in prayslinge and thankynge the Lorde. And as the voyce of the trompettes, symbales and instrumentes of melody arose, ✳ ꝑ as they praysed the Lorde, that he was good and that his mercy lasteth euer, the house of the Lorde was fylled with a cloude: so that the preastes could not endure to minister by reason of the cloud. For the glorye of the Lorde hadde fylled the house of God.

¶ The wordes of Salomon, to the people, and the prayer he made to God.

CAPI. VI.

Then Salomon sayde: The Lorde hathe spoken, that he wyll dwel in darcknesse. A

And I haue buylt an habitation for the and a place to dwell in for euer. And the kyng turned his face and blessed the hole congregacion of Israel, and all the congregacion of Israel stode. And he sayde: blessed be the Lorde God of Israel whiche spake with his mouthe to my father Dauid ꝑ hathe fulfylled it with his handes, for God sayde: sythens the tyme I brought my people oute of the lande of Egypte, I chose no cyte amonge all the trybes of Israel to buylde an house in, that my name myght be there, neyther chose I anye man to be a ruler ouer my people Israell. But nowe I haue chosen Jerusalem to haue my name there, and haue chosen Dauid to be ouer my people Israel.

✳ And it was in the herte of Dauid my father to buylde an house for the name of the Lorde God of Israel: But the Lorde sayd to Dauid my father: for as moche as it was in thyne herte, to buylde an house for my name, thou dydest well that thou haddest it in thyne hert. Notwithstandinge thou shalt not buyld the house, but thy sonne which shall issue out of thy loynes, he shall buylde an house for my name. And the Lorde hathe made good his sayenge that he hathe spoken. For I arose in the rowme of Dauid my father, and sate on the seate of Israell, as the Lorde promysed, & haue buylt an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel. And therin I haue put ꝑ aerke wherin the couenaunt of the Lord made with the childzen of Israel, is. And he stepte forthe before the aulter of the Lorde in the presence of all the congregacion of Israell, and stretched out his handes, for Salomon had made a brasen pulpyt of fyue cubytes longe and. v. cubytes broade, and three of heyght, and had set it in the myddes of the great court, vpon ꝑ he stept and kneled downe vpon his knees before all the congregacion of Israel, and stretched out his handes to heaue and sayd: Lord God of Israel there is no God lyke the ether in heauen or in earthe, which kepest couenaũt

Now Lorde God of Israel kepe with thy seruaunt Dauid my father, that thou promysedest him sayenge: ✳thou shalt not be without one or other in my sight that shall sit vpõ

Lykewyse yf thy people Israel be put to ꝑ worse before their ennemyes, because they haue synned against the: Yet yf they turne & confesse thy name, and make intercession and praye before the in this house: the heare thou from heauen and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy people Israel, and bringe them agayne vnto the land which thou gauest to them and to their fathers.

If heauen be shut vp, ꝑ there be no rayne, & because they haue synned againste the: yet yf they praye at this place and confesse thy name and turne from their synnes at thy scourging: then heare thou from heauen and be mercyfull vnto the synne of thy seruauntes and of thy people Israel, that thou shewe thẽ a good waye to walke in, and sende rayne vpon thy lande which thou hast gyuen vnto thy people for an enheritaunce.

If there chaunce darthe in the lande, pestilence, drought, or myldewe, grashoppers or caterpillers, or that their ennemyes besyege them in the cyties of their owne land, or what so euer plage or sickenesse it be. Then all the supplications and prayers that shall be made of all men amonge all thy people Israel, whiche shall know euery man his owne sore and his owne griefe, and shall stretche out their handes towarde this house: thou shalt heare from heauen thy dwellynge place, and shalt be mercyfull, and gyue euerye man accoꝛdinge vnto all his waye, euen as thou shalt knowe euery mans herte: for thou onely knowest the hertes of the childrẽ of Adam: that they may feare the and walke in thy wayes as longe as they lyue vpon the earthe, which thou gauest to our fathers.

Moreouer a straunger whiche is not of thy people Israell, yf he come from a farre lande for thy great names sake & thy myghty hande and stretched out arme, and so come and praye at this house: thou shalt heare him from heauen thy dwellynge place, and shalt woꝛke accoꝛdinge to all that the straunger calleth to the for: that all the nacyons of the erth may know thy name, and feare the, as doth thy people Israell: and that it maye be knowen that this house which I haue buylt, is called after thy name.

When thy people shall go out to warre against their enemyes ꝑ way ꝑ thou shalt sende them: If they praye to the, the waye towarde this cytie whiche thou hast chosen, and house which I haue buylte for thy name: then heare from heauen, their supplication and prayer, and helpe them in their right.

If they shall synne against the (as there is no man but that he shall synne) and thou be angeye with them and delyuer them to their enemyes, and they leade them awaye captyue vnto a lande ferre or neare, yet yf their hertes come to them agayne in the lande, where they be in captiuite, and turne and praye vnto the in the lande where they be in captiuite, sayeng we haue synned and haue done cupll and wickedly, and turne agayne to the, with all their hertes, & all their soules, in the lande of their captiuite where they be kept in bondage, and so praye towarde their lande which thou gauest vnto their fathers, and cytie whiche thou hast chosen, and to this house whiche I haue buylt for thy name: Then heare from heauen thy dwellinge place, their supplication & prayers, and iudge their cause, and be mercyfull vnto thy people, thoughe they haue synned against the.

Soo now my God let thyne eyes be open and

and thyne eares attent vnto the prayers made in this place. And nowe therfore aryse Lorde God in thy restinge place: bothe thou and the Arche of thy strength, and let thy preastes put on victory and thy sayntes reioyse in goodnes And Lorde God turne not awaye the face of thyne annoynted: But remembre the mercyes promysed to Dauid thy seruaunt.

¶ The fyre consumeth the sacrifyce. The Lorde appeareth to Salomon the seconde tyme.

CAPI. VII.

1 When Salomõ had made an ende of prayenge, there came downe fyre from heauen and consumed the burntoffeing and the sacrifices. And the glory of the Lorde fylled the house: that the preastes coulde not go into the house of the Lorde, because the glory of the Lorde had fylled the house of ꝑ Lord.
☞ And all the childzen of Israel sawe howe the fyre came downe, and the glorye of the Lorde vpon the house, and stouped with their faces to the earthe vpon the pauement and bowed theym selues, and confessed vnto the Lorde, that he was good, and that his mercye lasted
3 euer.
And the kynge and all the people offred offringes before the Lorde, So that kynge Salomon offred. xxij. thousand oxen, and an hundred and twenty thousande shepe. And so the kynge and al the people halowed the house of God. And the preastes waited on their offices and the Leuites with instrumentes of musyke of the Lorde whiche kynge Dauid made to confesse vnto the Lorde that his mercy lasteth euer, when Dauid gaue prayse thorow their handes. And the preastes blewe trompettes fast by them: and all Israel stode. Moreouer Salomon halowed the myddle of the courte that was before the Lorde: for there he offred burntofferinges and the fat of the peaceoffrings, because the brasen aulter which Salomõ had made, was not hable to receyue ꝑ burntoffringes and the meatoffeinges and the fat.
4 And Salomon kept a feast the same season of seuen dayes, and all Israell with him, an exceadinge great congregacion, euen from the myth vnto the ryuer of Egypte. And ꝑ eyght dayes they made a gatheringe. For they kepte the halowynge of the aulter seuen dayes and the feast seuen dayes. And the. xxiij. daye of ꝑ seuenth moneth, he let the people departe into their tentes, glad and merye in hert for the goodnesse that the Lorde had shewed to Dauid, to Salomon and to Israel his people.
5 ✳ And so Salomon synished the house of the Lorde, and the kynges house, and all that came in his herte, to make in the house of the Lorde and in his owne house, and that prosperously.
And the Lorde appeared to Salomon by 7 nyght and sayde to him: I haue herde thy petition and haue chosen this place for my selfe, to be an house of sacrifice. Moreouer yf I shut vp heauen that there be no rayne, or yf I commaunde the grashoppers to deuoure the lande or yf I sende pestilence amonge my people: yet yf my people that are named after my name, shall humble them selues and make intercession and seke my presence, and turne from their wycked wayes, then will I heare from heauen and be mercyfull to their synnes, and wil heale their lãde. Furthermore myne eyes shal be open and myne eares attent vnto the prayers made in this place. And synally I haue chosen & sanctified this house, that my name be there for euer, and myne eyes & myne herte shalbe there perpetually.
And yf thou shalt walke before me as Dauid thy father walked, to do accoꝛdinge to al that I haue commaunded, and shalte kepe myne ordinaunces and my lawes: then I wil stablyshe the seat of thy kyngdome, accoꝛding to the couenaunt I made with Dauid thy father sayenge: ✳ Thou shalt haue euer one or iii.Regũ.ii.d: and.ix.b ii.Para.vi.c other that shall rule in Israel. But yf ye turne awaye and forsake myne ordinaunces and my commaundementes whiche I haue set before you, and shall go and serue other goddes and bowe your selues to them: then wil I plucke them vp by the rootes out of my lande which I haue gyuen them, and will cast this house which I haue sanctifyed for my name oute of my sight, and wil make a prouerbe and a tale of it amonge all nations. And this house that is so hyghe, shall be a wonder to all that passeth therby, that they shall saye: Why hathe the Lorde dealt on this fassion with this land and with this house? And it shall be aunswered them, because they forsoke the Lord God of their fathers whiche brought them out of the lande of Egypte, and clawe to other goddes, and bowed to them and serued them: euen therfore brought he on them all this euyll.

¶ The cities that Salomon buylded after the house of God was synyshed.

CAPI. VIII.

A After twenty yeres when Salomõ had buylte the house of the Lorde. and his owne house: he buylte the cyties that Hiram gaue him, and put certayne of the childzen of Israel in them. And Salomon wente to Hemath Zobah and strengthed it. And he buylte Thadmor in the wyldernesse and all ꝑ store cyties which he buylt in Hemath. And he buylt Bethhoron the vpper and Bethhoron the nether, and made them stroge cyties with walles, gates and barres. And Baalath and all the store cyties that Salomon had, and all the charet cyties and the cyties of horsmen. & all that Salomon had lust to buylde in Ierusalem and Libanon, and thoꝛowoute all the lande of his dominion.
B And all the people that were left of the Hethites, Amorites, Pherezites, Heuites and Iebusites, whiche were not of the childzen of Israel: euen the childzen of them, which were lefte after them in the lande, and were not cõsumed of the childzen of Israel, dyd Salomõ make tributaries vnto this daye. But of the childzen of Israel dyd Salomō make no bōdmen in his wozke: but they were men of war and rulers and greate Lozdes with him, and capitaynes ouer his charettes and hozsemen. And kynge Salomons officers that ouersawe and ruled the people, were two hundzed and fyftye.

And Salomō brought the wughter of Pharao out of the cytie of Dauid vnto the house þ he hadde made foz her. Foz he sayde: my wyfe shall not dwell in the house of Dauid kynge of Israell, foz it is holy, because the Arcke of the Lozde came into it.

And frome thencefozthe Salomon offered burntoffringes vnto the Lozde on the aultare of the Lozde whiche he hadde buylt befoze the porche to offer daye by daye accordinge to the commaundement of Moses, and in the sabbotes and newmones, and the thze solemne feastes of the yere, the feast of swete bzed, þ feast of wekes and the feast of boothes.

And Salomon alligned the preastes euerye man to his office as Dauid his father had ozdred them, and the Leuites vnto their office, foz to prayse and minister befoze the preestes daye by daye, and the porters by course at euery gate. Foz so hadde Dauid the man of God commaundd. And the commaundemente of the kynge vnto the preastes and the Leuites concernynge what so euer cause it was, and concernyng the treasures, was not disobeyed.

And all the wozke of Salomon went well fozwarde euen frome the daye of the foundacion of the house of the Lozde was layde: tyll he had fynyshed it, that the house of the Lozd was perfect. And then went kynge Salomon to Azion Gaber, and to Eloth and to the seeside in the lande of Edom. And Hiram sent him by the hande of his seruauntes, shippes & seruauntes that coulde skill of the see: Whiche went with the seruantes of Salomon to Ophir, and brought thence foure hundzed and fyftye talentes of golde, and brought it to kynge Salomon.

¶ The cōmunicacion of Salomon with the quene of Saba, and the gyftes that the one gaue the other. The deth of Salomon: after whome succedeth Roboam.

CAPI. IX.

1.Regū.x.a Math.xii.d Luc.xi.d

AND the quene of Saba herde of þ fame of Salomon and came to proue him with eyddelles at Jerusalem, with a very greate companye, and with camelles that bare swete odoures and plentye of golde and precioule stone. And when she was come to Salomon, she communed with him of al that was in her herte. And Salomon soyled her al her questions, that there was nothinge hyd frome Salomon, which he tolde her not.

And when the quene of Saba had sene the wysdome of Salomon and the house that he had buylt, and the meat of his table and the sittinge of his seruauntes, and the standinge of his waytets, and their apparell, and his buttelars with their apparel, and his porte out of whiche he went into the house of the Lozde, she was so astonyed that there was no moze hert in her.

And then she sayde to the kynge: the saying whiche I herde in myne owne lande, of thyne acates and of thy wysdome, is truthe. But I beleued not the wozdes of theym, vntyll I came and myne eyes hadde seneit. And lo, the one halfe of thy wysdome was not tolde me: thou excedest the fame that I herde, happy are thy men, and happy are these thy seruauntes which stande befoze the alwaye and heare thy wysdome. Blessed be the Lozde thy God whiche had lust to the, to make the, kynge on his seate, vnto the Lozde thy God. Because thy God loued Israel, to make them continue euer, therfoze made he the kynge ouer them to weight and equite.

And she gaue the kynge an hundzed and.xx. talentes of golde, and of swete odoures muche kynge great abounndaunce with precious stanes, that there was no such swete odoures as the quene of Saba gaue kynge Salomon.

And moreouer the seruauntes of Hiram and the seruauntes of Salomon whiche brought golde frome Ophir, brought also * Algum wood and precyouse stones. And the kynge made of the Algume wood stepares in þ house of the Lozde and in the kynges palace, harpes and psalteries foz singers. And there was no suche wood sene befoze in the lande of Juda. And kynge Salomon gaue to the quene of Saba all her desyre that she asked aboue that she brought vnto the kyng. And so she turned and went awaye to her owne lande with her seruauntes.

The somme of golde that came to Salomon yere by yere, was sixe hundzed. lxvi. talentes of golde, besydes that which chapmen and marchauntes brought, and all the kynges of Arabia, and Dukes of countreyes brought golde and siluer to Salomon. And kynge Salomō made two hundzed bokelars of golde. vj. hundzed sycles of beten golde to a bokelar: and three hundzed shyldes of beten golde, three hundzed sycles of golde to a shylde, and he put them in the house of the forrest of Libanon.

And the kynge made a great seate of yuory and ouerlayde it with pure golde. And there were sixe steppes to the seate with a fotestole of golde fastened to the seate: and pomelles on eche syde of the sittinge place, and twoo lyons standinge by the pomelles. And. xij. lyons stoode on the one syde and on the other, vpon sixe steppes, that there was no such in any kyngdome.

And all the drynkynge vessels of kyng Salomon were golde, and all the vessels of the house of the forrest of Libanō, were pure golde, & as foz siluer, it was coūted nothinge worth in the dayes of Salomō. Foz the kynges shypes went * to Tharsis with the seruantes of Hirā euery thze yere onis. And the shippes of Tharsis brought golde, siluer, the teeth of Elephantes, apes and peacockes.

And kynge Salomon passed al the kynges of the of the earthe in rychesse and wysdome. And all the kynges of the earthe soughte the presence of Salomon, to heare the wysdome that God hadde put in his herte. And they brought euerye man his presente in vesselles of syluer, and vesselles of golde, and rayment, harnesse, swete odoures, hozses and mules, yere by yere.

And Salomon had foure thousande maungers of hozses and charettes foz them, and. xij. thousande hozsemen. And he bestowed them in the charet cityes, and with the kynge at Jerusalem. And he raygned ouer al the kinges from Euphrates, vnto the lande of the Philistines, and so to the bozders of Egypt. * And the king made syluer in Jerusalem as plenteous as stones, and Cedar trees as plenteous as the mulbeye trees that grow in the valeyes. And Salomon had hozses brought him out of Egypt, and out of all landes.

* The rest of the actes of kynge Salomon bothe fyrste and laste, are wrytten in the boke of Nathan the Prophete, and in the prophesye of Ahiah the Silonite, and in the vysyons of Jadi the sear of vysyons agaynste Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. And when Salomon had raygned in Jerusalem vpon all Israell fourtye yeres, he layde hym to reste with his fathers, and was buryed in the citye of Dauid his father, and Roboam his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ The folisshnesse of Roboam, and the deuysion of his realme.

CAPI. X.

AND Roboam wente to Sichem: foz to Sichem were all Israel come to make him kynge. And when Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat beynge in Egypt herde it (foz he was fled foz feare of Salomon the kynge) he retourned out of Egypte. And they sent and called him. And so Jeroboam and all Israell came and communed with Roboam and said. Thy father made vs a greuous yoke: but remyt thou somwhat of the greuous seruyce of thy father, and of his heuye yoke that he put vpon vs, and we wyll serue the. And he sayde to them: come agayne after thze dayes to me. And the people departed.

And kynge Roboam counselled with the elders that stode befoze Salomon his father, whyle he lyued, and sayde: What counsell geue ye me, to aunswere this people agayne? And they tolde him sayinge: yf thou shalte be kynde to this people and please theym / and shalte speake louynge wozdes to them, they wyll be thy seruauntes foz euer. But he lefte the counsell whiche the elders gaue him, and toke counsell with the younge men that were nourled vp with hym, and hadde stande in his presence, and sayde to them: What aduyse geue ye, that I may answere this people whiche haue communed with me, sayinge: Abate somwhat of the yoke whiche thy father dyd put vpon vs.

And the younge men that were nourled vp with him, talked with him, sayinge: thus answere the people that spake to the, sayinge. Thy father made our yoke heuye: But make thou oure yoke somwhat lighter. Thus wyse aunswere them: My lytle synger shall be heuyer then my fathers loynes. * Foz where my father put a heuye yoke vpon you, I wyll put moze therto / & where my father chastised you with whippes, I wyl chastise you with Scozpyons. Nowe when Jeroboam and all Israel were come the thyrde daye, as the kynge had, sayinge: come agayne to me the thyrde daye. The kynge answered them cruelly: foz kyng Roboam lefte the counsell of the aged men, & answered them after the aduyse of the yonge men, sayinge: Yf my father haue made youre yoke greuouse, I wyll adde therto / and where my father chastised you with whippes, I will chastise you with scozpions. And so the kynge harkened not vnto the people / foz the turnyng awaye was of God, that the Lozde myghte make good his sayinge whiche he spake by the hande of Ahiah the Silonite to Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat. And when all Israel saw that the kynge wolde not heare them, the people answered the kynge sayinge: what part haue we with Dauid, oz enheritaunce with the son of Isai? let euery mā of Israel go to his tent. * And nowe Dauid se to thyne owne house. And therupon all Israell gette them to theyr tentes / so that Roboam raygned ouer no mo of the childzen of Israel then dwelte in the cityes of Juda. Then kyng Roboam sent to the Haduram that was ouer the trybute, and the childzen of Israel stoned him with stones that he dyed. But kynge Roboam made spede and gat him vp to his charet to fle to Jerusalem. And so Israel departed from the house of Dauid vnto this daye.

1.Reg.xii.c

¶ Roboam is forbydden to fyghte agaynste Jeroboam. He hathe eyghtene wyues and thze score concubines: and by them eyght and twentye sonnes and thzee score daughteres.

CAPI. XI.

AND when Roboam was come to Jerusalē, he gathered of the house of Dauid and Benjamin to the nombze of nyne score thousande chopse men of warre to fyght with Israell / foz to bzynge the kyngdome agayn to Roboam. But the wozde of the Lozd came to Semeiah the man of God, sayinge: speake vnto Roboam the sonne of Salomon kynge of Juda, and to all Israell that are in Juda, and to Benjamin, and saye: thus sayth the Lozde. Go not noz fight with your brethre: but retourne euerye man to his house / foz this thing is done of me. And they obeyed the wozdes of the Lozde, and retourned from goynge agaynst Jeroboam.

3.Reg.xii.c

And Roboam dwelte in Jerusalem & buylt stronge cityes in Juda: as Bethlehem, Etam, and Thekua: Bethzur, Socho, and Odllam: Geth, Marelah and Ziph: Adurahim, Lachis and Azecah: Zarah, Aialon, & Hebzon. Which were the stronge cityes of Juda, & Benjamin.

And

And when he hadde repayred suche stronge cities, he put capitaynes in them, and store of victayle, and of oyle, and of wyne. And he ordeyned in all cities shyldes and speres, and made them exceadyng stronge. And so Juda and Benjamin store vnder him.

And the preestes and the Leuites that were L in all Israell resorted to him out of all theyr coostes. Ja to moche that the Leuites lefte their suburbes and possessions and came to Juda and Jerusalem: for Jeroboam and his sonnes had cast them oute from ministrynge vnto the Lorde. * And he ordeyned him preestes of xi.Regū.xii.g hyllaulters, bothe to shyde deuylles, and also to the calues whiche he hadde made. And after them there came of al the tribes of Israel (such as their hertes moued them to seke the Lorde God of Israell) to Jerusalem to offre vnto the Lord God of their fathers, & so they stregthed the kyngdom of Juda, and made Roboam the sonne of Salomon myghty thre yere long/ for thre yere they walked in the waye of Dauid and Salomon.

And Roboam toke him Mahalath D ughter of Jerimoth the sonne of Dauid to wife/ And Abihail the doughter of Eliab the sonne of Jsai, whiche bare him chyldren: Jeus, Samariah & Zaham. And after her, he toke Maacah the wughter of Absalom, whiche bare him Abiah, Athai, Ziza and Salumith. But Roboam loued Maacah the doughter of Absalom aboue all his other wyues & concubynes/ for he toke eyghtene his wiues, & thre score concubynes, and begate thre score doughters, and eyght and twenty sonnes. And Roboam made Abiah the sonne of Maacah the chefe ruler amonge his brethren, for to make him kynge. And he played a wyse parte, and scattered of al his chyldren thorow out all the countreyes of Juda and Benjamin in euery stronge city. And he gaue them aboundaunce of vitayle, and asked many wyues.

¶ Sesac kynge of Egypt robbeth the temple of the Lorde. Roboam dyeth, and Abiah his sonne succedeth him.

CAPI. XII.

A AND when Roboam had stablysshed the kyngdome and made it stronge he forsoke the lawe of the Lorde, and all Jsrael with him. * Wherfore the fyfte yere of xi.Reg.xiiii.g kynge Roboam, Sesac the kynge of Egypte came vp agaynste Jerusalem (bicause they had trespassed agaynste the Lorde) with twelue hundred charettes, and thre score thousande horsemen. And the people were without nombre that came with hym forth of Egypte, with them of Libia / and the ♀ Suchites, and the blackemoores. And they toke the stronge cytyes that were in Juda, and came to Jerusalem. ♀ Some rede Troglodites.

Then came Semeiah the Prophete to Roboam, and to the lordes of Juda that were gathered to Jerusalem for feare of Sesac, & sayd to them: thus sayth the Lorde: Ye haue lefte me, and therfore wyll I leaue you also in the

B handes of Sesac. Wherupon the lordes of Jsrael and the kyng humbled them selues & sayde the Lorde is righteous. And when the Lorde sawe they submitted them selues, the worde of the Lorde came to Semeiah, sayinge: they meke them selues, and therfore I wyll not destroye them. But I wil minuer them somwhat, and my wrath shall not fall vpon Jerusalem. Neuertheles they shall be his seruaunnes, to knowe what difference is betwene my seruyce and the seruyce of the kyngdomes of other landes. So Sesac kynge of Egypte came to Jerusalem, & toke away the treasures of the house of the Lorde, and the treasures of the kynges house, and shortly he toke all. And he toke also the shyldes of golde whiche Salomon made. In stede of whiche kyng Roboam made shyldes of brasse, and put them in the keppynge of the capitaynes of his garde, whiche wayted in the gate of the kynges house. And as often as the kynge went to the house of the Lorde, the garde went and fet them, and brought them ageyne vnto the garde chambre. And so bicause he humbled him selfe, the wrathe of the Lorde turned from him, and destroyed not all together. And moreouer there were many good thynges yet in Juda.

So kynge Roboam waxed myghtye in Jerusalem and raigned. And Roboam was one and fourty yeres olde when he was made kyng, and he raigned seuentene yeres in Jerusalem the citye whiche the Lorde had chosen out of all the tribes of Jsrael, to put his name there. His mothers name was Naamah, an Ammonite. * And he dyd euyll, for he prepared not his herte to seke the Lorde. The actes of Roboam first and last, are written in the sayinges of Semeiah the Prophete, and of Abo the seer at of bysyons, so moche as they receyue by genealogye, and the perpetuall warre that was betwene Roboam and Jeroboam in eyther theyr lyfe. And Roboam layd hym to slepe with his fathers, & was buryed in the citye of Dauid, and Abia his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ The vyctorye of Abia agaynste Jeroboam.

CAPI. XIII.

THe eyghteenth yere of kynge Jeroboam began Abia to raygne ouer Juda, and he raigned thre yeres in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Michaiah, the doughter of Uriel of Gabaah. And there was warre betwene Abia and Jeroboam. And Abia made a battayle with an hoste of eyghtynge men of foure hundred thousande chosen men. And Jeroboam put in araye to fyghte agaynste hym, with eyght hundred thousande ryche men and stronge.

And Abia stode vp vpon Zemaraim an hyll in mount Ephraim, and sayd: Heare me thou Jeroboam and all Jsrael. Becommeth it not you to knowe that the Lorde God of Israell gaue the kyngdome of Jsrael to Dauid for euer: euen to hym and to his sonnes, with a ♀ salted couenaūt? But Jeroboam the sonne of Nabat, the seruaunt of Salomon, the sonne of Dauid rebelled agaynste the Lorde. And there gathered to hym lewde men and vnthryftes, and preuayled agaynst Roboam the sonne of Salomon: for Roboam was yonge and tender herted, and not stronge ynoughe for them.

And nowe ye thynke to preuayle agaynste the kyngdome of the Lorde in the hande of the sonnes of Dauid, bicause ye be a greate multitude, and haue with you the golden calues whiche Jeroboam made you for goddes. And haue ye not caste oute the preestes of the Lorde the sonnes of Aaron, and the Leuites/ and haue made you preestes lyke the nacions of other landes: euen who so euer commeth and consecrateth his hande with an oxe, and seuen rammes, the same is made preest to them that are no goddes.

But with vs is the Lorde our God whom L we haue not forsaken / and the preestes of the sonnes of Aaron ministrynge vnto the Lorde/ and the Leuites in office burnynge vnto the Lorde euery morynge and euery euen burntofferynges, & swete incense: and the shewebreed put in order vpon a pure table: and the candel sticke of golde, with the lampes of the same, to be lyght euery euen. For we kepe the watch of the Lorde oure God: But ye haue forsaken him. Moreouer, beholde, God is with vs in the forewarde, and his preestes and the soynge trompettes to crye alarum agaynste you. Je chyldren of Jsrael fyght not with the Lorde God of youre fathers: for it wyll not prosper with you. But for al that, Jeroboam sent men priuily aboute to come behynde vpon them: and so they were before Juda, and the layers in wayte were behynde them. And whe Juda tourned and sawe the battayle behynde and before, they cryed vnto the Lorde, and the preestes blewe the trompettes, and the men of Juda gaue a shoute. And as the men of Juda shouted, God smote Jeroboam and all Jsrael before Abia and Juda. And the chyldren of Jsrael fledde before Juda / and the Lorde deliuered them in to the handes of Juda. And Abia and his people slewe a greate slaughter of them: so that there were stryken downe of Jsrael, fyue hundred thousande chosen men. And so the chyldren of Jsrael were broughte vnder at that tyme/ and the chyldren of Juda preuayled, bycause they leaned vnto the Lord God of their fathers. And Abia folowed after Jeroboam, and wanne certayne cityes from him: Bethel, with townes belongynge therto/ and Jesanah with the townes that longed thereto/ and Ephron with her townes. And Jeroboam recouered not strengthe agayne in the dayes of Abia. At laste the Lorde plaged hym that he dyed.

And Abia waxed myghtye, and toke hym fourtene wyues, and begat two and twentye sonnes, and sixtene doughters. The reste of the actes of Abia, and his wayes and demynges, are wytten in the hystorye of the Prophete Ido. And when Abia was layde to slepe with his fathers, they buryed hym in the citye of Dauid. And Asa his sonne raygned in his stede. In whose dayes the lande was quyet tenne yeres.

¶ Abia dyeth, after whom succedeth Asa.

CAPI. XIIII.

AND Asa dyd that was good and eyghte in the eyes of the Lorde his God, and toke awaye the aulters of straungers, & the hyllaulters, and brake the ymages, and cut downe the groues, and commaunded Juda to seke the Lorde God of their fathers, and to do accordynge to the lawe and commaundement. And he put awaye oute of all the citryes of Juda, the hyllaulters and the ydolles: for the kyngdome was quiet before him. And he built stronge citryes in Juda, bicause the land was in reste, & he had no warre in those yeres. For the Lorde had gyuen him rest. A iii.Regū.xv.b Asa.

And therfore he sayd to Juda: let vs buylde these citryes, and compasse them with walles and towres, gates and barres, whyle we haue the lande quiet. For we haue sought the Lord oure God: and bicause we haue sought him, he hathe giuen vs reste on euerye syde. And so they buylte and prospered. And Asa hadde an armye that bare shylde and spere, oute of Juda thre hundred thousande/ and oute of Benjamin that bare shilde and drewe bowes, two hundred and foure score thousande, and were all stronge men. B

And there came oute agaynste them Zarah C the Morian, with an host of ten hundred thousande, and thre hundred charettes, and came as ferre as Maresa. And Asa wente oute to him, and they put in araye to battayle in the valeye of Zephatah beside Maresa. And Asa cryed vnto the Lord his God, and sayd: Lorde it is all one with the, to helpe them that haue no power, with fewe or with manye: helpe vs O Lorde our God for we trusle to the, and in thyne name we be come agaynste this multytude. Thou arte the Lorde oure God, let not man preuayle against the. And the Lord smote the blacke Moores before Asa and Juda, that they fled. And Asa and the people that was with him, pursued them as farre as Gerar. And the blacke Moores were ouerthrowen, that there remayned none alyue of them, but were destroyed of the Lorde, and of his hoste/ they carried also a mighty great pray. And they smote all the citryes rounde aboute Gerar. For the feare of the Lorde came vpon them. And they robbed all the citryes, for there was exceadynge moche to be robbed in them. Furthermore they smote the tentes of the cattel, and caried awaye plentye of sheep, and camelles, and so returned to Jerusalem. 2.Reg.xiiii.d ¶ Kynge Asa by the monicion of the Prophet Azaria after he had put downe the Idolles, sacrifyseth to the Lorde. He deposyth his mother of her dominion.

CAPI. XV.

And

A ND the spirite of God came on Azaria the sonne of Obed. And he went out a-gaynst Asa, and sayde to hym: heare me ☞ Asa and all Juda and Benjamin. The Lorde is with you whyle ye be with him / and yf ye shall seke him, he wyll be founde of you: but
yf ye shall forsake him, he wyll forsake you.
☞ There wyll come manye dayes in Israell, in whiche there shall be no true God nor preeste that teacheth, nor anye lawe. And in theyr tri-bulacion they shall tourne vnto the Lorde God of Israel, and shall seke him, and he shall be founde of them. And in those dayes there shall be no peax to them that goo oute and in.
But great vexacion on euery syde vpon the in-habitoures of all landes. For one nacion shall destroye an other, and one citye an other: for God wyll vexe them with all aduersitie. But plucke you vp youre hertes, and let not youre handes faynte, for youre workes shall be rewarded.

B When Asa herde those wordes and the Prophesye of Azaria the sonne of Obed the Pro-phete, he toke courage & put awaye the abho-minacions oute of all the lande of Juda and Benjamin, and oute of the cityes whiche
he wanne in mounte Ephraim, and renued
the aulter of the Lorde that was before the porche of the Lorde. And he gathered all Juda and Benjamin, and the straūgers with the out of Ephraim, Manasses, and Simeon. For there fell manye to him oute of Israell, when they sawe that God was with him. And they C assembled at Jerusalem the thyrde moneth of the fyftene yere of the raygne of Asa. And they offered vnto the Lorde the same tyme of the spoyle whiche they had brought, seuen hundred oxen, and seuen thousande shepe. Then they made a couenaunt to seke the Lord God
of theire fathers, with all theyr hertes, and all their soules: so that all that soughte not the Lord God of Israel, sholde dye for it whether he were small or greate, man or woman. And they sware vnto the Lord with a loude voyce
and showtyng, and with trompettes and hor-nes. And al Juda reioysed in the othe, for they had sworne with all theyr hertes, and soughte him with all their lust, and he was founde of them. And the Lorde gaue them rest rounde a-boute. Furthermore kynge Asa put Maacah his mother oute of auctorite, bycause she had made an ydoll in a groue; and brake downe
her ydoll, and stampte it and burnte it by the brooke Cedron. But they put not the hyllauters out of Israel: neuertheles the herte of Asa was pure all his lyfe. And he broughte in to the house of God the sedicate gyftes whi-
che he and his father hadde dedicate, in golde, syluer, and other iewelles. And there was no more warre vnto the fyue and thyrtye yere of the raygne of Asa.

In the fyue and thyrtye yere of the raygne of Asa, came Baasa kynge of Israell agaynst Juda, and buylte Ramah, to the entent he wolde let none that pertayned to Asa kynge
of Juda haue passage in and out. Wherupon Asa fet syluer and golde forth of the treasure
of the house of the Lorde, and of the kynges
house, and sent it to Benhadad kyng of Syria that dwelt at Damasco, and sayd. There is a leage betwene me and the, and so was betwen
my father and thyne, wherfore I haue sent the syluer and golde, that thou goo and breake thyne appoyntment with Baasa kynge of Israel, that he may depart from me. And Ben-hadad graunted vnto kynge Asa, and sent the capitaynes of his armye agaynst the cityes of Israel. And they beat Ijon, Dan, Abelmaim, and all the store cityes of Nephthali. But whē Baasa herde this, he lefte buyldynge of Ramah, and lette his worke cease. And then As the kyng toke al Juda, and caryed away stones
and tymbre of Ramah, wherwith Baasa wa
a buyldynge: and he buylte therwith Gaba and Maspha.

At that same tyme Hanani the sear, came to Asa kynge of Juda, and sayde to hym: because thou trustest in the kynge of Syria, and trustest not in the Lorde thy God, therfore is the hoste of he kynge of Syria escaped oute of thyne hande. Were not the blacke Moxes and they of Libia a greate hoste, with exceedynge manye charettes and horsemen? And yet because thou trustedest in the Lorde, he delyue-red them in to thyne hādes. For the eyes of the Lorde beholde all the earthe, to strengthe the hertes of them that are hole with hym. Wher-in thou haste wone folysshely / and therfore
frome henceforthe thou shalte haue warre.
Wherupon Asa was wrothe with the Sear,
and put him in prysō, for he was displeased with hym bycause of that. Moreouer Asa oppressed certayne of the people the same season.

The dedes of Asa bothe firste and laste, are written in the boke of the kinges of Juda and Israell. And the nyne and thyrtye yere of his raygne, Asa fell sycke of his feete, and that his disease exceded. And besyde this in his sickenesse he asked no counsell of the Lorde, but of physicions. And at the laste Asa fell on slepe with his fathers, and dyed when he hadde raygned one and fourtye yere. And they buryed hym in his owne sepulchre whiche he had made in the citye of Dauid, and layd him in the bed which he hadde fylled with swete odoures of dyuers
kyndes, made by the crafte of the potecaryes.
And they dyd exceadynge great coste aboute the
eryinge of him.

¶ Josaphat succedeth after Asa, whiche caused the feare of the Lorde to be renued among the people.

CAPI. XVII.

AND Josaphat his sonne raygned in his stede, and mightyer then Israell. And he put souldyours in all the strongeste tyes of Juda, & set rulers bothe in the lande of Juda, and also in the cities of Ephraim, which Asa his father had wonne. And the Lorde was with Josaphat, bycause he walked in the olde
wayes of his father Dauid, and soughte not Baals: But soughte the Lorde God of his father, and walked in his commaundemen-tes, and not after the doynges of Israell.
Therfore the Lorde stablyshed the kingdome
in his hande, and all Juda broughte him presentes, that he became exceadynge ryche and glorious. And his herte was courageous in the wayes of the Lorde, and he put downe
yet more of the hyllaulters and groues out of Juda.

In the thyrde yere of his raygne he sente
of his Lordes: Benhail, Abdiah, Zacharias, Nathanael, and Michaag to teache in the cytyes of Juda: and with them Semeiah, Na-thamiah, Zabadiah, Asahel, Semiramoth, Jo nathan, Adoniah, Thobiah, and Thobodoni-ah Leuites: and with them Elisama and Jo-ram prestes. And they taughte in Juda, and had the boke of the law with them, and went aboute thorow out all the cityes of Juda and taught the people.

And the feare of the Lorde fell vpon all the kyngedomes of the landes that were rounde aboute Juda, that they durst not warre with Josaphat. And the Philistines brought Jo-saphat giftes and tribute siluer. And therto Arabians broughte him of hepe, seuen thousande and seuen hundred rammes, and seuen thousande and seuen hundred he gotes. And so Josaphat prospered and grewe vp on hygh.
And he buylte in Juda castelles and store cytyes, and had great substaunce in the cityes of Juda, and hyghtynge men and men of myghte
in Jerusalem.

And this is the order in the houses of theyr fathers of the capitaynes ouer thousandes in Juda: Edna the capitayne, and with him of hyghtynge men, thre hundred thousande. And nexte to him Johanan a capitayne, and with him two hundred and foure score thousande.
And by his syde Amasias the sonne of Zechri wyllynge vnto the Lorde, and with him two hundred thousande mightye men. And of the children of Benjamin, Eliada was a man of myght, and had with him armed with bowes and shyldes, two hundred thousande. And by his syde Josabad, with whom were an hūdred
and foure score thousande furnysshed for war.
These wayted on ỹ king, besydes those which the king had put in stronge cityes thorow out all Juda.

¶ After Ahab had asked counsell of the foure hundred Prophetes, he putteth Micheas in prysō. He dyeth with the shote of an arowe.

CAPI. XVIII.

AND Josaphat became verye ryche & glorious / and ioyned alliaunce with Achab.
And after certayne yeres he wēt downe
to Achab to Samaria. And Achab slewe sheepe and oxen plenteously for him, and for the people that came with him, and intreated him to go vp vnto Ramoth in Galaad. And Achab kyng of Israel sayd to Josaphat kyng of Juda:
wilt thou go with me to Ramoth in Galaad?
And he answered him, I wyll be as thou, & my people shall be as thyne, and we wyll be with the in the warres.

And Josaphat sayde vnto the kynge of Israel: aske I praye the, the worde of the Lord.
And the kynge of Israel gathered together of the prophetes foure hundred men, and sayd vn
to them: shall we goo to Ramoth in Galaad
to fyght, or shall I cease? And they sayde, go:
the Lord shal delyuer it in to the kinges hand.
And Josaphat sayd: Is there yet here neuer a Prophete more of the Lorde, that we myghte aske of him? And the kynge of Israell sayd to Josaphat: there is yet one, to aske the Lorde
by him: But I hate him, for he neuer prophesieth me good, but alwaye euyll, one Micheas
the sonne of Jemla. And Josaphat sayde:
let not the kynge saye so. Then the kynge of Israell called one of his chamberlaynes, and sayde: fetche hyther quyckly Micheas the son of Jemla. And the kynge of Israell, and Jose-phat kyng of Juda, sate eyther of them on his seate in their apparell, in a threshynge flooze
beside the gate of Samaria, and all the Prophetes prophesyinge before them. And one Sedechias the sonne of Chanana made him hor-nes of yron, and sayde, thus sayth the Lorde:
with these thou shalte pushe Syria, vntyll thou haste broughte them to noughte. And all the Prophetes prophesied euen so, sayinge:
goo vp to Ramoth in Galaad and prospere,
for the Lorde shall delyuer it in to the hande
of the kynge. And the messenger that wente
to call Micheas, spake to him, sayinge: behold
the wordes of the Prophetes are pleasaunt to the kynge with one assente, lette thy wordes I pray the, be lyke one of theirs, and speake that whiche is pleasaunt. And Micheas sayde: as truly as the Lord lyueth, euen what my God sayth, that wyll I speake. And when he was come to the kynge, the kynge sayd to him: Mi-cheas, shall we goo to Ramoth in Galaad to fyght, or shall I be in reste? And he answered:
go ye and prospere, for the Lorde shall delyuer
it in to youre handes. But the kynge sayde to him: how often tymes shall I adiure the that thou saye nothyng but truthe to me in ỹ name
of the Lorde.

Then he sayd: I se al Israel scattered in the
mountaynes, as shepe that haue no shepeherd.
And the Lorde sayd: these haue no master, let them returne euerye man to his house in peax.
Then sayde the kynge of Israell to Josaphat:
dyd I not tell the that he wolde not prophesye
good vnto me, but euyll? And he answered:
therfore hearke ye the worde of the Lorde. I sawe the Lorde sytte vpon his seate, and all the companye of heuen standynge on his right
hande and on his lefte. And the Lorde sayde:
who shal disceyue Achab kynge of Israel, that he may go and be ouerthrowen at Ramoth in Galaad. And whyle one sayd thus, & an other that, there came out a spirite and stode before
the

the Lorde and sayd: I wyll discepue him. And the Lord sayd to him, how? And he sayd I wyl go out, and wyll be a lyenge spirite in ỹ mouthes of all the Prophetes. And the Lorde sayd thou shalte discepue him, and shalte preuayle, go out and do euen so. And nowe beholde the Lorde hath put a lying spirite in the mouthes of all these thy Prophetes, and yet the Lorde hath spoken euyll agaynste the. And Sedechias the sonne of Canana went and smote Micheas vpon the cheke, and sayd: by what way wente the spirite of the Lorde frome me, to speake in the? And Micheas sayde: thou shalte se the daye when thou shalte runne from chambre to chambre for to hyde thy selfe. Then sayd the kynge of Israel: take ye Micheas, and deliuer him to Amon the gouernour of the citye, and to Joas the kynges sonne, and saye/ thus sayth the kynge: put this felowe in pryson, & fede him with breed of sorowe, and water of trouble, tyll I come agayne in peax. And Micheas sayd: yf thou come agayne in peax, then hath not the Lorde spoken in me. And Micheas sayd moreouer: harken ye people euery one of you. And so the kynge of Israell and Josaphat the kynge of Juda wente vp to Ramoth in Galaad. Then sayd the kynge of Israel to Josaphat: I wyl chaunge my clothes and get me to battayle, but se thou haue thyne owne apparel vpon the. And the kyng of Israel chaūged him selfe, and they went to battayle. But the kynge of Syria commaunded the capitaynes of his charettes, sayinge: se ye fyghte not agaynst small or great, sauc agaynst the kynge of Israel onely.

And when the capitaynes of the charettes sawe Josaphat, they had thoughte he had ben the kynge of Israell, and therfore compassed him, to fyghte. But Josaphat cryed oute, and the Lorde holpe him, and God tourned them awaye from him. For when the capitaynes of the charettes perceyued that it was not the kynge of Israell, they tourned backe agayne from him. And a certayne man drewe his bow at auenture, and smote the kynge of Israel betwene the ioyntes of his habergyne. And he sayde to the charet man, tourne thyne hande and carye me oute of the hoste, for I am hurte. And the battayle was sore that daye. Howbeit the kyng of Israel contynued standynge in his charet agaynste the Sirians vntyll euen. And about the sonne goynge downe, he dyed.

¶ After Josaphat was rebuked by the Prophete Jehu, he called agayne the people to the honourynge of the Lorde God.

CAPI. XIX.

A Jehu THen Josaphat kynge of Juda retourned to his house safe and sound to Jerusalē. And Jehu the sonne of Hanani the sear, went out agaynst him, and sayd to kynge Josaphat: oughtest thou to helpe the wycked, and to loue them that hate the Lorde? For this cause is the wrath of the Lorde vpon the. Neuertheles there are good thynges founde in the, in that thou hast put awaye the consecrate groues oute of the lande, and hast prepared thyne herte to seke God. And as Josaphat dwelte at Jerusalem, he wente agayne amonge the people frome Berlabe to mount Ephraim, and broughte them agayne vnto the Lorde God of their fathers. And he set Judges in the lande, throwowe oute all the stronge citeyes of Juda, citye by citye/ and sayde to the Judges: take hede what ye do, for ye be not Judges in the lawe of man, but of God, whyche is with you in the wordes of the lawe. Wherfore let the feare of the Lorde be with you, and take hede and do it. For there is no vnryghtousnesse in the Lorde our God, nor regardynge of persones, nor takynge of rewardes.

Moreouer in Jerusalem dyd Josaphat appoynt certayne of the Leuites of the preestes, and of the auncient heades of Israell, ouer the customes of the Lorde, and causes of strife. Whyche wone, they returned to Jerusalem. And he charged them, sayinge: do euen so in the feare of the Lorde, with trouthe and perfyte herte. And what so euer come to you of your brethren that dwelle in their citeyes/ betwene blonde and blonde, lawe, commaundement, ordinaunces and customes: se ye warne them that they trespace not agaynst the Lorde, lest wrathe come vpon you, and on your brethren. Thus do, and ye shall not offende. And beholde here Amarias the Preeste, whiche is heade ouer you in all matters of the Lorde, and Zabadias the sonne of Ismael, a ruler in the house of Juda, he is ouer all causes concernynge the kynge, with officers of the Leuites before you. Take courage to you, and goo vpon it, and the Lorde shall be with the good.

¶ The merueilouse victory that the Lorde gaue Josaphat kynge of Juda agaynst the Moabites, and the chyldren of Ammon, and them of Seir.

CAPI. XX.

AFter this came the chyldren of Moab & the chyldren of Ammon, and with them a companye of the Ammonites agaynst Josaphat to battayle. And there came y^e tydynge to Josaphat, saying: there commeth a great multitude agaynste the from the other syde the see out of Syria. And se, they be in Hasason Thamar, whiche is Engadi. Then Josaphat feared and set him selfe to seke the Lorde, and proclaymed fastynge throwowe out all Juda. And Juda gathered them selues togyther to aske counsell of the Lorde. Furthermore there came out of al ỹ citeyes of Juda to seke the Lord. And Josaphat stode in the assemble of Juda and Jerusalem in the house of the Lorde before the newe courte, and sayd: O Lorde God of oure fathers, arte not thou God in heuen, and raygnest not thou ouer al the kyngdomes of the Paynymes? And in thyne hande is power and myght, so that no man can stand before the? Art not thou our God, whiche dyddest call out thinhabitantes of this lande before thy people Israel, and gaue it to the seed of Abraham thy frend for euer? And they dwelte therin, and haue buylt for the a temple therin vnto thy name, & sayd: when cuyll commeth vpon vs, as the swerde of iudgement, pestilence, or hungre: then ye we stande before this house and before the (for thy name is in this house) and shall crye vnto the in our tribulacion, thou shalt heare and helpe. And nowe beholde, the chyldren of Ammon and Moab, and mount Seir, by whiche thou woldest not let Israell passe, what eyme they came forthe of Egypte: but they departed from them, & destroyed them not. And now marke how they rewarde vs/ they come to cast vs out of thy possession whiche thou hast geuen vs. O ourre God, wylte thou not iudge them? for we haue not so great puyssaūce that we can make resistence agaynst this great company that commeth agaynst vs. Neyther wot we what to do, but our eyes be vnto the. And as all Juda stode before the Lorde with their yonglynges, their wyues and their chyldren: the spirite of the Lord came vpon Jahaziel the sonne of Zacharias, the sonne of Banaia, the sonne of Jeiel, the sonne of Mathaniah a Leuite of the sonnes of Asaph, euen as he was in the myddes of the company. And he said: harken all Juda, and the inhabitours of Jerusalem, and also kyng Josaphat. Thus sayth the Lorde vnto you, be not aferde or dysmayde for this greate multitude. For the warre is not yours, but Gods. And to morow ye shall goo downe to them: se, they come vp at Ziz, and ye shall mete them in the toppe of the brooke of the wyldernesse of Jeruel. For it shall not be you that shall fyghte in this quarell: but stand forth onely, and behold the helpe of the Lorde, whiche is with you: feare not, nor let your hertes faile, O ye of Juda and of Jerusalem. To morow marche forwarde to them: for the Lorde is with you.

And Josaphat bowed him selfe with his face to the citye, and all Juda and the inhabitours of Jerusalem fell before the Lorde, and worshypped him. And the Leuites and the childrē of the Cahathytes and of the Corahites rode vp to prayse the Lorde God of Israell with a loude voyce on hyghe. And so they arose early in the morninge and gat them out vnto ỹ wildernesse of Thekua. And when they went out Josaphat stode and sayd: heare me Juda, and ye inhabitours of Jerusalem. Bileue in ỹ Lord your God, and so shal ye continue: and bileue his Prophetes, and so shal ye prospere. And he gaue the people counsell, and set the singers of the Lorde, and them that praised in holy apparell, to goo oute before the armye, and to saye praise the Lord, for his mercy lasteth euer. And what time they began to laud and prayse, then the Lorde set their enemyes vpon their owne selues as many as were come to fight agaynst Juda, euen the chyldren of Ammon and Moab & mount Seir, for the children of Ammon and Moab arose agaynst the inhabitours of mount Seir, to destroye them vtterlye, and to wype them awaye. And when they had made an ende of the inhabitoures of Seir, then they holpe to destroye eche other.

And when Juda came to Maspha in ỹ wildernesse, they loked to the multitude. And beholde, they were dead carkelles fallen to ỹ erth, and none escaped. And Josaphat and his people went to steype and spoyle the dead, & found amonge them aboundance of goodes and rayment and of pleasaunt iewelles, and caughte from them more then they coulde carye awaye: so that they were thre dayes in gatheryng of ỹ spoyle, it was so moche. And ỹ fourth day they assembled in ỹ valey of blessyng, for there they blessed the Lorde. And therfore they called the name of the said place the valey of blessing vnto this daye. And so al the men of Juda and Jerusalem returned, & Josaphat among the thickest of them, for to go agayne to Jerusalem with gladnesse, for the Lord had made them to reioyse of their enemyes. And they came to Jerusalem with psalteries & harpes and trompettes, euen vnto the house of the Lorde, & the feare of God fel in the kyngdomes of all landes, when they had herde that the Lorde fought agaynst the ennemyes of Israel. And so the realme of Josaphat was in tranquilite: for his God hadde gyuen him rest on euery syde.

So Josaphat raygned vpon Juda, and was xxxv. yeres olde when he began to raygne, and raigned xxv. yere in Jerusalē. And his mothers name was Asuba the doughter of Silhi. And he walked in the waye of Asa his father, and bowed not thence, but did that was pleasaunt in the syghte of the Lorde. Howbeit they put not downe the hylaulters, neither did the people yet prepare their hertes vnto the God of their fathers. The rest of the actes of Josaphat first and last are written in the workes of Jehu the sonne of Hanani, which noted them in the boke of the kynges of Israel.

After this Josaphat kynge of Juda ioyned him selfe with Ochoziah kynge of Israell, whiche was a wycked doar. And he coupled him selfe with him to make shyppes to goo to Tharsis. And they made the shyppes in Azion Gaber. And Eliezer the sonne of Dodanah of Mareša prophecied agaynst Josaphat, saying: because thou hast ioyned thy selfe with Ochoziah, the Lorde hath broken thy workes. And the shyppes were broke that they were not able to go to Tharsis.

¶ Josaphat dyeth & Joram succeadeth him, which putteth to deathe his brethren/ and is oppressed of the Philithines/ and dyeth of the styxe.

CAPI. XXI.

IOsaphat layde him to rest with his fathers, and was buryed with his fathers in the cyte of Dauid, and Joram his sonne raygned in his rowme, which Joram had other brethē sonnes of Josaphat: Azariah, Jehiel, Zacharias, Azariah, Michael, and Sephatiah. All these were the sonnes of Josaphat kynge of Juda. And their father gaue them many great gyftes in syluer, golde, and other precious thinges, & stronge citeyes in Juda: but the kyngdome he gaue to Joram because he was the eldest. Whe Joram was promoted vpon the kyngdome of his father and setled, he slew all his other brethren with the swerde, and diuers of the lordes of Israel also. *Ioram was two and thirtye yere olde when he began to raygne, & raigned eyghte yeres in Ierusalem. (iiij.Re.viij.d) And he walked in

B the wayes of the kynges of Israel, lyke as did the house of Achab (for a doughter of Achab was his wife) and he wrought euil in the eyes of the Lorde. How be it the Lorde wolde not destroye the house of Dauid, bicause of the couenaunt he hadde made with Dauid, and as he promised to gyue a lyght to him and to his sonnes for euer.

In his dayes the Edomites rebelled bicause they wolde not be vnder the hande of Iuda, & made them a kynge. And Ioram wente forthe

C with his lordes and al his charettes with him and rose by nyghte and layde on the Edomytes. Whiche compassed hym in, and the Capitaynes of his charettes. And so Edom departed from the subiection of Iuda vnto this day. That same tyme also dyd Lobnah departe frõ beynge vnder his power, bycause he lefte the Lorde God of his fathers. Moreouer he made hyll aulters in the mountaynes of Iuda, and caused thinhabitauntes of Ierusalem to commyt adulterye, and he thrust Iuda oute of the waye.

The lettres of Elias

And there came a wrytyng to him from Elias the Prophete of this tenoure. Thus sayth the Lorde God of Dauid thy father: bycause thou walkedest not in the wayes of Iosaphat thy father, and in the wayes of Asa kynge of Iuda, but walkedest in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, and hast made Iuda & the dwellers of Ierusalem go a horyng, lyke to the horing of the house of Achab, & hast therto slayne thy brethren that were thy fathers house, whiche were better then thou: Beholde, the Lorde wyll smyte the with a myghtye plage in thy folke, in thy chyldren, in thy wyues, and in thy goodes. And thou shalt haue moche disease thorowe infirmitie in the bowelles, tyll thy bowelles fall oute by reason of thy sycknesse daye by daye.

D And the Lorde stered vp agaynst Ioram the spirite of the Philistines and the Arabiãs that border on the blacke Mores: Whiche came agaynst Iuda and all to tare the lande, and caryed awaye all the substaunce that was found in the kynges house/ and moreouer his sonnes and his wyues, so that there was not one son lefte him, saue Ioachaz his yongest sonne. And after all this, the Lorde smote him in his bowelles with an incurable disease. And in processe of tyme, euen about the ende of two yeres his guttes fell oute by reason of his sycknesse: and so he dyed of euyll diseases. But they made him no bonefyre lyke the bonefyres of his fathers. When he began to raygne, he was .xxxij. yere olde, and raygned in Ierusalẽ eyght yere. And he walked not pleasauntly, and they buryed him in the citye of Dauid: but not in the sepulchre of the kynges.

¶ Ochoziah raygneth i the rowme of Ioram/ Iehu kyng of Israel kylleth Ochoziah. Athaliah putteth to deth all the kynges lynage onely Ioas escapeth.

CAPI. XXII.

AND the inhabitoures of Ierusalem made Ochoziah his yongest sonne king in his stede. (A) For the men of warre that came with the Arabians in the hoste, had slayne all his elder sonnes. And so Ochoziah the son of Ioram kynge of Iuda was made kynge. Two and fourtye yere olde was he, when he began to raygne, and raygned one yere in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Athaliah the (B) doughter of Amri. And he walked also in the wayes of the house of Achab / for his mother was his counsellour for to do euyll. Wherfore he dyd that displeased the Lorde, lyke to the house of Achab, for they were his counsellours after the deth of his father, to his destruction, and he also walked after their counsell. And Ioram sonne of Achab kyng of Israel went to fyght with Hazael kynge of Siria at Ramoth in Galaad/ and they of Ramoth wounded him. Wherfore he returned to be healed in Iezrael (C) of the woundes which were gyuen him at Ramoth, when he foughte with Hazael kynge of Siria. And Ochoziah the son of Ioram king of Iuda, wente downe to se Ioram the son of Achab at Iezrael, bycause he was diseased. For it was comme in to Ochoziah of God to go to Ioram, and that when he was come, he sholde go out with Ioram, agaynst Iehu the sonne of Namsi, whom the Lorde hadde annoynted to destroye the house of Achab.

And as Iehu was executynge iustyce vpon the house of Achab: he founde the lordes of Iuda, and the sonnes of the brethren of Ochoziah, that wayted on Ochoziah, and he slewe them. And he sought Ochoziah, & they caught him where he was hid in Samaria, & brought him to Iehu. And when they hadde slayne him, they buryed him: bicause (sayde they) he was the son of Iosaphat whiche sought the Lorde with all his herte. And there was none of the house of Ochoziah that coulde obtayne to be kynge. (D)

*For Athaliah the mother of Ochoziah, when she sawe her sonne was deed, arose and slewe all the seed of the kyngdom of the house of Iuda. But Iosabeth the doughter of the kynge toke Ioas the sonne of Ochoziah, and stale him from among the kynges sonnes that were slayne, and put him and his nource in a sleppynge chambre. And so Iosabeth the doughter of kynge Ioram and wyfe of Ioiada the Preeste (bycause she was the syster of Ochoziah) hyd him from Athaliah that she slewe him not. And he was with them hydde in the house of God, sixe yere. And Athaliah raygned ouer the lande.

¶ Ioas the sonne of Ochoziah is made kynge/ Athaliah is put to death.

CAPI. XXIII.

IN the seuenth yere Ioiada toke herte, and made a bonde with the capytaynes of hundredes, Azariah the sonne of Ieroham, Ismael the sonne of Iohanan, Azariah the sonne of Obed, Maasiah the sonne of Adaiah, and

Elisa-

Elisaphat the sonne of Zechri. And they wente aboute in Iuda and gathered the Leuites oute of all the cityes of Iuda, and the auncyente headdes of Israell, and came to Ierusalem. And all the congregacyon made a bonde with the kynge in the house of God. And Ioiada sayd to them: Beholde, the kinges sonne muste raygne ouer the chyldren of

B Dauid, as the Lorde hathe sayde. This is it therfore that ye shall do. The thyrde parte of you Preestes and Leuites whiche come in the Saboth daye, shall kepe the dores, and an other thyrde parte shal be in the kynges house, and an other thyrde parte shall be in the gate of the foundacion, and all the people shall be in the *courtes of the house of the Lorde. And there shall none come in to the house of the Lorde, saue the preestes and the Leuites that minister. They shall goo in, for they are holye. and all the people shal kepe the watche of the Lorde. And the Leuites shall compasse yͤ kyng rounde aboute, euerye man his weapon in his hand: and what so euer other man come in to the house of the Lorde, he shall dye for it, and they shal be with the kyng, as he commeth in, as as he goeth out.

C And the Leuites and all Iuda dyd in all thynges as Ioiada the preeste commaunded, and toke euery man his men: both them that came in, and them that went out the Saboth daye: for Ioiada the preest dyd let none of the companyes departe. And Ioiada the preest delyuered to the capitaynes of hundredes speres and shyldes, and bouklers that pertayned to kynge Dauid, and were in the house of God. And he sette all the people and euery man his weapon in his hande, from the ryghte corner of the house to the lefte corner of the house, along by the aulter, and the house round about the kynge. And they broughte out the kynges sonne, and put on him the crowne and the testimonie, and made him kyng. And Ioiada and his sonnes annoynted him and said: God saue the kynge.

When Athaliah herde the noyse of the people runnynge and praysynge the kynge, she went amonge the people into the house of the Lorde. And when she sawe the kynge stande at his pyller in the enterynge, and the lordes and trompettes aboute the kynge, and all the people of the lande reioysynge and blowynge with trompettes, and the syngers with instrumentes of musycke teachynge to prayse: She rente her clothes and cryed: treason treason. And Ioiada the Preeste wente oute with the capitaynes of hundredes that were appoynted to gouerne the hoste, and sayde to them: haue her oute withoute the araye, and who so euer foloweth her, lette hym be slayne with the

D swerde. For the Preeste sayde: slee her not in the house of the Lorde. And they layde handes on her/ and when she was come out to the enterynge of the horsegate in the kynges house, they slew her there. *And Ioiada made a bond bytwene him and all the people and the kyng to be the Lordes people. And all the people wente to the house of Baal and destroyed it, & brake the aulters and ymages, and slewe Mathan the Preeste of Baal afore the aulters. And Ioiada put the offices of the house of the Lorde in the handes of the Preestes, the Leuites whiche Dauid hadde diuided in companyes for the house of the Lorde, to offer burnt offerynges vnto the Lord, as is wrytten in the lawe of Moses, with reioysyng and singing, as it was ordeyned by Dauid. And he set porters vnto the gates of the house of the Lord, yͭ no vncleane person in anye poynte shoulde entre in.

And he toke the capitaynes of hundredes, and the nobles and the gouernours of the people and all the folke of the lande, and brought the kyng downe out of the house of the Lord, and they went thorowe the hyghe gate in the kynges house, and set the kynge vpon the seat of the kyngdome. And all the people of yͤ land reioysed, and the citye was in tranquilitie, but they slewe Athalia with the swerde.

¶ Ioas durynge the lyfe of Ioiada kepeth the lawe, but after his deathe he regardeth it not. He kylleth Zacharias the Prophete. Ioas is kylled of his owne seruauntes, after whome raygneth Amazias.

CAPI. XXIIII.

A IOas was seuen yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned fourtye yeres in Ierusalem. His mothers name was Zebia of Bersabe. (iiij.Regũ.xj.d) And Ioas dyd that pleased the Lorde all the dayes of Ioiada the Preeste. And Ioiada gaue him two wyues, and he begate sonnes and doughters.

It chaunsed after that, that Ioas was minded to mende the house of the Lorde. (B) Wherevpon he gathered togyther the Preestes & the Leuites, and sayd to them: *go out thorowe the cities of Iuda, and gather of all Israel siluer to strength the house of your God, yere by yere, and se ye haste the thynge: how be it the Leuites were slacke. Then the kynge called Ioiada that was the chyefest, and said to him: Why requyrest thou not of the Leuytes to brynge in, oute of Iuda and Ierusalem, the summe appoynted by Moses the seruaunt of the Lorde, and by the congregacion of Israel, for the tabernacle of wytnesse. For wycked Athaliah and her chyldren hadde broken the house of God, and hadde bestowed all the dedicat gyftes of the house of the Lorde, aboute Baals.

Wherfore at the kynges commaundement they made a cofer, and sette it at the gate of the house of the Lorde: and made proclamacyon thorowe Iuda and Ierusalem to brynge in to the Lorde the *taxacion of Moses the (Exod.xxx.b.) seruaunt of God, whiche he set vpon Israel in the wildernesse. And the Lordes and al the people reioysed, and brought in and caste in to the cofer, vntyll it was full. And when the tyme came that the chest sholde be brought in by the handes of the Leuites at thappoyntmente of the kynge. when they sawe that there was mo che moneye: then came the kynges scrybe,

 and

and one appoynted by the chiefe Preeste, and powred out that was in the coffer, and toke it and caryed it to his place agayne, and thus they dyd daye by daye, and gathered moche money.

And the kyng and Iotada gaue it to workemen that wrought vpon the house of ꝑ Lorde, and hyred masons and carpenters to repayre ꝑ house of the Lorde, and artificers in yron and brasse, to repayre the Lordes house. And the workemen wrought, and the worke prospered thorowe their handes: and they made ꝑ house of God as it oughte to be, and strengthed it. And when they had finished it, they brought the rest of the money to the kyng and Iotada, and therwith were made vessels for the house of the Lorde: that is to saye vessels to ministre withall, and to serue for burntofferynges, as ladels and vessels of golde and syluer. And they offered burntofferynges in the house of ꝑ Lorde continually all the dayes of Iotada.

And Iotada waxed olde and full of yeres, and dyed. An hundred and thirtye yere olde was he when he dyed. And they buryed him in the citty of Dauid amonge the kynges, bicause he had wone good in Israell, and on God, and on his house. After the deth of Iotada came the lordes of Juda and made obeysaunce to the king. And then he harkened vnto them. And so they left the house of the Lorde God of their fathers, & serued groues & ymages. And then came there wrath vpon Juda and Jerusalem for this their trespace. Notwithstandynge God sente Prophetes to them, to bringe them agayne vnto the Lorde. And they testifyed vnto them. But they wolde not heare.

Zacharias. And the spirite of God came vpon Zacharias the sonne of Iotada the preeste, and he stepte vp aboue the people, and sayde to them. Thus sayth God: why breake ye the cõmaundementes of the Lorde? ye shall therfore not prospere, but as ye haue forsaken him, so shall he forsake you. * Wherupon they conspyred agaynst him, and stoned him with stones, at commaundement of the king, euen in the court of the house of the Lorde. And Ioas the kynge remembred not the kyndnes which Iotada his father had done to him, but slewe his son. And when he dyed, he sayd: the Lorde se & requyre a reckenynge.

Math. xxiii. d

And when the yere was oute, the hoste of the Syrians came agaynst hym: and they came to Juda and Jerusalem, and destroyed all the lordes of the people, and sente all the spoyle of them vnto the kynge to Damasco. And thoughe the armye of Syria came with a small companye of men, yet the Lorde deliuered a verye great hoste in to their handes, bycause they had forsaken the Lord God of their fathers, and therto they serued Ioas according to his desertes.

And as soone as they were departed frome him, thoughe they lefte him in greate diseases, yet his owne seruauntes conspired agaynst him for the bloude of the chyldren of Iotada the Preeste, and slewe him on his bedde. And when he was deed, they buryed him in the cytye of Dauid, but not in the sepulchres of the kynges. And these are they that conspyred agaynst him: Zabad the sonne of Samaath an Ammonite, and Iosabad the sonne of Simrith a Moabite, and his sonnes. And the summe of the taxe that came to him, and the foundacion of the house of God, are wrytten in the boke of kynges. And Amazias his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ Amazias ouercometh the Edomites. And Ioas kynge of Israel ouercometh and byndeth Amazias.

CAPI. XXV.

AMazias was fiue and twenty yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned nyne and twentye yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Iotadan of Jerusalem. And he dyd that pleased the Lord, but not with the hole herte. And as soone as he was settled in the kyngdome, he slewe them ꝑ killed the kyng his father. But he slewe not their children, accordynge to that is wrytten in the lawe in ꝑ boke of Moses, to whom the Lorde commaunded, sayinge: * the fathers shall not dye for the childrens causes, nor the childre for the fathers, but euery mã shal dye for his owne synne. And Amazias assembled Juda togither and made capitaynes ouer thousandes, & ouer hũdredes in the houses of their fathers throwout all Juda and Benjamin. And he nombred them from twenty yere and aboue, and founde them thre hundred thousande yonge lusty men able to go to battayle, and that could handle spere and shild. And he hyred therto an hundred thousande syghtynge men out of Israel, for an hundred talentes of syluer.

But there came a man of God to him and sayde: Kynge, lette not the armye of Israell goo with the, for the Lorde is not with Israel neyther with anye of the house of Ephraim. Or elles yf thou nedes wylte, then go and worke, and make thy selfe stronge to battayle: and thou shalte se, that God shall make the falle before thyne ennemyes. For God hath power to helpe or to caste downe. And Amazias sayd agayne to the man of God, what shall we do then for the hundred talentes whiche I haue gyuen vnto the hoste of Israel? And the man of God sayde: the Lorde is able to gyue the moche more then that.

Then Amazias seuered the armye that was come to hym oute of Ephraim, to goo home agayne. Wherfore they were exceadynge wrothe with Juda, and returned home in great angre.

And Amazias toke herte, and caryed oute his hoste, and wente to Saltdale. * Where he slewe of the chyldren of Seir ten thousande. And other ten thousande the chyldren of Juda toke alyue, and caryed them vnto the top of a rocke, and cast them downe from the top of the rocke, that they al to burst: but the men of the armye whiche Amazias had turned backe and wolde not let go with his people to battayle, ran vpon the cities of Juda from Samaria vnto Bethhoron, and slewe thre thousande of the and wan moche spoyle.

And

And it chaunced, after that Amazias was come from the slaughter of the Edomites, and had brought the goddes of the children of Seir, he set the vp to be his goddes, and bowed him selfe before them, & burned incense vnto them. Wherfore the Lorde was wrothe with Amazias, and sent to him a Prophete, & said to him: why seketh thou the goddes of the people whiche were not able to deliuer their owne people out of thyne handes? And as the Prophet spake to him, he said to ꝑ Prophete: haue men made the of ꝑ kynges counsel? cease, leest thou be beaten. And the Prophete ceased and sayd: I am sure that God hath taken counsel to destroy the, bicause thou hast done this, and obeyest not my counsell.

Then Amazias kyng of Juda toke aduyse, and sente to Joas the sonne of Joachaz the son of Jehu kynge of Israell, and sayd: come and let vs se eyther other. And Joas kynge of Israell, sente agayne to Amazias kynge of Juda sayinge: a thystell in Libanon sente to a Cedar tree of Libanon, saying: * giue thy daughter to my sonne to wyfe. But there came the wylde beastes of Libanon, and trode downe ꝑ thystel. Thou thynkest: lo, I haue beaten the Edomites, therfore thyne herte aryseth to glorye thy selfe. Now abyde at home: what needeth the to prouoke to cupl, that thou perisshe and Juda with the?

But Amazias rested not: for it came of God, euen to deliuer them in to the handes of their ennemyes, and that bycause they hadde soughte the goddes of the Edomites. And Joas kyng of Israel came vp: and they sawe eyther other, bothe he and Amazias kynge of Juda at Bethshames in Juda. And Juda was put to the worsse before Israel, and fledde euery man to his tente. And Joas kynge of Israel toke Amazias kynge of Juda the sonne of Joas, the sonne of Ohoziah at Bethshames: and broughte him to Jerusalem, and tare the wall of Jerusalem, from the gate of Ephraim, vnto the corner gate, foure hundred cubytes longe. And he toke all the golde and syluer and all the iewelles that were founde in the house of God with Obed Edom, and the treasure of the kynges house and hostages, and returned to Samaria.

And Amazias the sonne of Joas kynge of Juda lyued after the deathe of Joas sonne of Joachaz kynge of Israell fyftene yeres. The rest of the actes of Amazias fyrst and laste, are wrytten in the boke of kynges of Juda and Israel. And after the tyme that Amazias dyd turne awaye frome the Lorde, they conspyred treason agaynst hym in Jerusalem: and he fledde to Lachis, whyther they sente after him and slew him there, and brought him vp with horsses, and buried him with his fathers in the cite of Juda.

¶ After the deathe of Amazias raygneth Oziah whiche is strycken with the lepre, and Joatham raygneth in his rowme.

CAPI. XXVI.

THen all the people of Juda toke Oziah whiche was sixtene yere olde, and made him kynge in the rowme of his father Amazias. And he buylte Eloth and brought it agayne to Juda, after the kynge was layde to reste with his fathers. Sixtene yere olde was Oziah when he began to raygne, and he raygned two and fifty yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jecaliah of Jerusalem. And he dyd that pleased the Lord in all poyntes, as dyd his father Amazias. And he soughte God whyle Zacharias the teacher to fe God lyued: and as long as he sought the Lord, God made him prospere.

And he went to battayle agaynste the Philistines, and brake downe the walles of Geth and the walles of Jabneh, and the walles of Asdod / and buylte cityes aboute Asdod, and amonge the Philistines. And God holpe hym agaynste the Philistines, and agaynste the Arabiens that dwelte in Gurbaal, and agaynst the Meunites. And the Ammonites gaue tribute to Oziah, and his name spred abrode euen to Egypt: for he played the man, and exceded. Moreouer Oziah buylte towres in Jerusalem ouer the corner gate, and ouer the valeye gate, and ouer other corners, and made the stronge. And he buylte towres in the wyldernesse, and dygged manye welles. For he hadde moche cattell, bothe in the valeye, and also in the playne, and plowmen and vyne dressers in the mountaynes and in Charmel, for he loued husbandrye.

And Oziah hadde an hoste of fyghtynge men that wente oute to warre in the armye, and were tolde and nombred by Jeiel the scrybe, & Maaliah an officer, vnder the hande of Hananiah one of the kynges lordes. And the hole nombre of the auncient heades of the men of myght, were two thousande and fyre hundred, and vnder the handes of them was the armye of the hoste, thre hundred and seuen thousande, and fyue hundred that made warre wt myghte and strengthe, to helpe the kynge agaynste his ennemyes. And Oziah prouyded them thorowoute all the hoste, shyldes, speres, helmetes, habergynnes, bowes, and slynges for stones. And he made engynes in Jerusalem by the crafte of artificers, to be on the towres and corners, to shote arowes and greate stones with. And his name spred farre abrode / for he was wonderlye holpe, vntyll he was become myghtye.

And in his greatnesse his herte arose, that he was marred, and transgressed agaynste the Lorde his God. For he wente in to the temple of the Lorde to burne incense vpon the auter of incense. But Azarias the preest wente in after him with foure score preestes of ꝑ Lorde that were bolde men. And they stepte to Oziah the kynge, and sayde to him: it pertayneth not to the Oziah to burne incense vnto the Lorde, but to the preestes the chyldren of Aaron that are consecrate for to burne incense. Come out of the sanctuarye, for thou hast trespaced, and it shall be no worshyp to the before the Lorde God.

And Oziah was wroth & had incense in his hande to offre, and in his indignacion agaynste the Prest, * the leppe sprange in his forehed before the Preestes in the house of the Lorde, euen beside the incense aulter. And Azarias the chyefe Preeste with all the other Preestes loked vpon hym: and beholde, he was a lepre in his forehed, and they draue hym thence. And therto he was fayne to go oute, because the Lorde hadde plaged hym. And Oziah the kynge continued a lepre vnto the daye of his deathe, and dwelt in an house at libertie: how be it he was cast oute of the house of the Lorde. And Joatham his son had the gouernaunce of the kynges house, & iudged the people of the lande.

iiii. Reg. xv. a.

The reste of the actes of Oziah bothe firste and laste, dyd Isaias the Prophete, the sonne of Amos write. And when Oziah was layde to rest with his fathers, they buryed him with his fathers in the felde of the burial of the kinges. For they sayd: he is a lepre. And Joatham his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ Joatham raygneth and ouercōmeth the Ammonites. Achaz his sonne raygneth after him.

CAPI. XXVII.

IOatham was fyue and twentye yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned sixtene yere in Jerusalem. His mothers name was Jeruiah the doughter of Zadoc. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde in all poyntes as dyd his father Oziah: saue, that he came not to the temple of the Lorde, and that the people dyd yet corrupte themselues. He buylte the hye gate of the temple of the Lorde, and on the walle Ophel he buylte moche. Moreouer he buylte cities in the mountaynes of Juda, and in the woodde countrey he buylte castels and towres.

And he foughte with the kynge of the chyldren of Ammon, and preuayled agaynst them. And the chyldren of Ammon gaue him that same yere an hundred talentes of syluer, and tenne thousande quarters of wheate, and as moche barley. So moche also did the chyldren of Ammon gyue him the seconde yere, and the thirde to. And Joatham became myghtye, because he dyrected his waye before the Lorde his God.

The reste of the actes of Joatham and all his warres and his wayes are wrytten in the boke of kynges of Israell and Juda. He was fyue and twentye yere olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned sixtene yere in Jerusalem. And when Joatham was layde to reste with his fathers, they buryed him in the citye of Dauid: and Achaz his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ The wyckednesse of Achaz kynge of Juda. After him raygneth Ezechias.

CAPI. XXVIII.

ACHaz was twentye yere olde whan he began to raygne, and raygned sixtene yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd not that pleased the Lorde, as dyd his father Dauid: but walked in the wayes of the kynges of Israel, and made therto Baals of metall. And he offered incense in the valeye of the chyldren of Hennon, and burnte his chyldren in fyre after the abhominacion of the nacyons whiche the Lorde threwe oute before the chyldren of Israel. And he offered buent incense in hyllers, and on mountaynes, and vnder euery grene tree.

Wherfore the Lorde his God deliuered him in to the hande of the kynge of the Syrians: whiche beat him, and caryed awaye a great multitude of his captiue in to Damascon. And further, he was delyuered in to the hande of the kyng of Israel, which slewe of his a mighty slaughter. For Phaketh the sonne Remaliah slewe in Juda an hundred and twentye thousande in one daye, and all fyghtyng men: and that because they had forsaken the Lorde God of their fathers. And Zechri a mighty man in mount Ephraim slewe Maaliah the kinges sonne, and Ezricam the lorde stewarde of hys house, and Elcanah that was next to the kyng. And the chyldren of Israell toke prysoners of their brethren two hundred thousande wiues, sonnes and doughters, and therto caryed away moche spoyle of them, and brought it to Samaria.

But there was a Prophet of the Lorde named Obed, whiche wente oute to the hoste that came to Samaria, and sayd to them: lo, because the Lorde God of youre fathers was wrothe with Juda, he delyuered them in to youre handes. And ye haue slayne them with cruelte that reacheth vp to heauen. And now ye purpose to kepe vnder the chyldren of Juda and Jerusalem, and to make them bondemen and bondewomen. What other thynge wo ye (ye vnhappye) then offende the Lorde youre God? But nowe heare me, and deliuer the pryseners agayne whiche ye haue taken of youre brethren, for the great wrathe of the Lorde is vpon you.

And certayne of the heades of the chyldren of Ephraim: as Azarias the sonne of Johanan, Barachiah the sonne of Mesumelech, Jezekiah the sonne of Selum, and Amasaie the sonne of Hadalai stode vp agaynste them that came from warre, and sayd vnto them: ye shall not bryng in the captyues hyther. For wherwe haue offended the Lorde alredye, pretende to adde moze to oure synnes and trespace. For oure trespace is greate alredye, and there is fearce wrathe vpon Israel. Wherupon the men of armes lefte the captyues and the spoyle before the lordes and all the congregacion.

And there arose certayne appointed therto by name, and toke the pryseners and clothed all that were naked amonge theym, of the spoyle, and araied them and shod them, and gaue them to eate and to drynke, & annointed them, & caried all that were feble of them vpon asses, and brought them to Jericho the cyte of palme trees fast by theyr brethren: and the returned to Samaria agayne.

And at that same tyme kynge Achaz sent vnto the kynges of Assur to haue helpe. And the Edomites came yet agayne and slue of Juda and caryed awaye some captyues. And the Philistines inuaded the cytyes in the lowe countrey and the south of Juda: And toke Bethsames, Ataion, Gaderoth, and Socoh: with the townes belongynge therto, and Thimna with the townes of the same. And Gimso with her townes, and dwelte therin. For the Lorde brought Juda lowe, because of Achaz kynge of Juda, whiche made Juda naked and transgressed agaynst the Lorde. And Thiglath palneser kynge of Assur came vpon him and besieged him, but preuayled not agaynste him. For Achaz toke awaye out of the house of the Lorde and oute of the kynges house and out of the Lordes houses and gaue vnto the kynge of Assur, though it holpe him not. And therto in the very tyme of his tribulacion dyd kynge Achaz trespace yet moze against the Lorde. For he offered vnto the Gods of them of Damasco which bet him and sayde because the goddes of the Syriens helpe them therfore will I offer to them, that they maye helpe me also. But they were his destruction & the destruction of all Israel. And Achaz gathered togither the vessels of the house of God & brake them, & shut vp the wyes of the house of the Lorde, and made him aultars in all corners of Jerusalem. And in al the cyttes of Juda cytte by cytie he made hyaulters to burne incense vnto other goddes, and angred the Lord God of his fathers. The rest of his actes and all his wayes both first and last are wrytte in the boke of kynges of Juda and Israell. And whē Achaz was layde to rest with his fathers they buryed him in the cytie of Jerusalem: but brought him not vnto the sepulchres of the kynges of Juda. And Ezechias his sonne raigned in his stede.

¶ Ezechias restoreth vnto the temple of the Lorde all the thynges that had not bene regarded of his predecessoures.

CAPI. XXIX.

EZechias began to raygne when he was. xxv. yere olde, and raygned. xxix. yere in Jerusalē. And his mothers name was Abia the doughter of Zachary. And he dyd that was right in the sight of the Lorde in all poyntes, as dyd Dauid his father. He opened the wyes of the house of the Lorde in the fyrste yere and first moneth of his raigne, and repaired them. And he brought in the preastes and the Leuites and gathered theym togyther into the east strete: and sayde vnto them.

Heare me ye Leuites: purifye youre selues and halow the house of the Lorde God of your fathers, and dryng out the fylthynesse out of the holy place. For our fathers haue trespaced and done wyckedly in the eyes of the Lorde our God: and haue forsaken him, and turned awaye their faces from the habitation of the Lorde and turned to their backes. And beside that they haue shut vp the wyes of the porche and quenched the lampes and haue neyther burned incense nor offred burntofferinges in the holy place vnto the God of Israel.

Wherfore the wrathe of the Lorde fell on Juda and Jerusalem: and he scatered theym & made them so thynne that men bille at it, euen as ye se with youre eyes. For lo, our fathers were ouerthrowen with the swerde, and oure sonnes, our doughters and our wyues were caryed awaye pryseners for the same. Now haue I in my herte to stryke a couenaunt with the Lorde God of Israel: that his wrathe maye cease. Now therfore my sonnes be not negligent: for the Lorde hathe chosen you to stande before him, and to ministre and burne offrynges to him.

Then the Leuites arose: Mahath the son of Amasai and Joel the sonne of Asariah beynge of the children of the Cahathites: and the sonnes of Merari, Kis the sonne of Abdi, and Asariah the sonne of Jalaleel: and of the Gersonites, Joah the sonne of Zimma and Eden the sonne of Joah: and of the sonnes of Elizaphan, Simri and Jeiel: and of the sonnes of Asaph, Zachariah and Mathaniah: & of the sonnes of Heman, Jehiel and Semei: & of the sonnes of Jeduthun, Semaiah and Oziel. And they gathered their brethren and purifyed them selues, and then went at commaundement of the kynge by the worde of the Lorde for to clense the house of the Lorde. And the preastes wente into the house of the Lorde to clense it, and brought oute all the vncleannesse they founde in the temple of the Lorde, and in the courte of the house of the Lorde. And the Leuites toke it & caried it oute into the broke Cedron. They began the firste daye of the firste moneth to purifye, and came the eyght day to the porche of the Lorde: so that they had purged the house of the Lorde in eyght dayes and the. xvj. daye of the first moneth they made an ende.

And then they wet in to Ezechias the kyng and sayde: we haue clensed all the house of the Lorde, and the aulter of burntofferinges, with all his vessels, and the shewbreed table with all his apparell: and therto all the vessels whiche kynge Achaz dyd cast a syde when he raygned and transgressed, them we haue repayred and sanctified: and se, they are before the aulter of the Lorde. And Ezechias the kynge rose early and gathered the Lordes of the cyty and went vp to the house of the Lorde. And there were brought seuen oxen, seuen rammes, seuen lambes, and seuen kyddes to be a synneoffring for the kyngdom, for the sanctuary and for Juda. And he commaunded the preastes the sonnes of Aaron to offre them on the altar of the Lorde.

And they slewe the oxen: and the preastes receyued the bloude and sprynkled it on the aultare: and they slew the rammes and sprinkled the bloude vpon the aultare: and they slewe the lambes and sprinkled the bloude vpon the aultare. And then they brought forth the kydes of the synneoffringe before the kynge and the

the congregacion which put their handes vpõ them. And the preastes slew them and offered the bloude of them vpon the aultare, to make F satisfaction for all Israel: for the kynge sayd:
that the burntofferinge and the synneofferinge shulde serue for all Israel. And they set the Le uites in the house of the Lorde with Symba-les, Psalteries and harpes accordynge to the commaundemente of Dauid and of Gad the kynges sear of visions and of Nathan the pro
phete. For so was the commaundement of the Lorde thorow the hande of his prophetes.
And so the Leuites stode with the instrumen-tes of Dauid, and the preastes with trompet-tes. And Ezechias commaunded to offer the burntofferinge vpon the aulter. And when the burntofferinge began, the songe of the Lorde
began, and the trompettes with the instrumé tes of Dauid kynge of Israel. And all the con gregacion bowed theym selues, and the syn-gers sange, and the trompettes blew, and cõtinued vntyll the burntofferinge was fynys-shed.

And when they hadde made an ende of the burntofferinge, the kynge and all that were wt
him kneled downe, and bowed them selues, & gaue prayse and thankes. And Ezechias the kynge & the lordes bade the Leuites to prayse
the Lorde with the wordes of Dauid and of Asaph the Sear of vysions. And the Leuites praysed that they reioysed agayne, and the other stouped and bowed them selues.

And Ezechias aunswered and sayde: nowe
G that ye haue fylled your handes to the Lorde
go to and bringe in the sacrifices and thankof fringes into the house of the Lorde. And the congregacion brought in the sacrifices & thank offeringes, and all that were willing brought burntofferinges. And the nombre of the burnt offringes which the congregacion brought in
was seuenty oxen, and an hundred rammes &
two hundred lambes: and all for burntoffrin-ges to the Lorde. And besyde that they dedicated sixe hundred oxen, and thre thousande shepe.

But the preastes were to fewe, and were not hable to fleye all the burntofferinges.
Wherfore their brethren the Leuites holpe
them tyll the worke was ended, and vntyll yͤ preastes were sanctified. For the Leuites were purer herted to sanctifie them selues then the preastes. And therto the burntofferinges were manye with the fat of the peaxofferinges and the drynkeofferinges that belonged to yͤ burnt offeringes. And so the seruice pertaynynge to yͤ house of the Lorde went forwarde. And Ezechias reioysed, and all the people, that God had made the folke so redy: for the thing was sodenly done.

¶ Ezechias renueth the feast of passeouer.

CAPI. XXX.

A And Ezechias sent to all Israel and Ju da: and therto wrote letters to Ephra im and Manasses, that they shoulde
come to the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem,
to offer passeouer vnto the Lorde God of Israel. And the kynge helde a counsell with his lordes and all the congregacion at Jerusalẽ
to kepe the feast of passeouer in the second mo neth. For they coulde not kepe it at that tyme
for there were not preastes ynough sanctified, neyther was the people gathered togither to Jerusalem. And the thynge pleased the kynge and all the congregacion. And they decreed it shulde be proclaymed thorowe out all Israell frome Bersabe to Dan, that they shuld come and holde the feast of passouer vnto the Lord God of Israell at Jerusalem: for they hadde not often done it, as it is wrytten howe they shulde.

And the messengers went with letters of yͤ
hande of the kynge and of his lordes thorow
out all Israel and Juda, at the commaunde-ment of the kynge which sayd: children of Is raell, tourne agayne vnto the Lorde God of Abraham, Isaac, and Israell, and so will he tourne to the remnaunt of you that are escaped out of the handes of the kynge of Assur.
And be ye not lyke youre fathers and your bre thren whiche trespaced againste the Lorde of your fathers, which therfore gaue them vp yͤ D
they are wasted as ye se. Wherfore be not styf necked lyke vnto your fathers, but yelde your E
selues vnto the Lorde, and come to his holye place whiche he hathe sanctified for euer, and serue the Lorde youre God, that his wrathe
maye turne frome you. For yf ye tourne vnto
the Lorde, youre brethren and youre children shall fynde compassion in the presence of them that holde them captyue, that they may come agayne vnto this lande: for the Lorde youre
God is full of mercye and compassion, & wyll
not turne his face frome you, yf ye tourne a-gayne to him.

And the postes went from cytie to cytie tho
row out the lande of Ephraim and Manasses and euen vnto Zabulon. But they laughed them to scorne and mocked theym. Neuerthelesse yet dyuers of Asser, Manasses and of Za bulon meakened them selues and came to Je rusalem. And therto the hand of God was in Juda, to make them of one accorde to do the commaundment of the kynge and the capitay nes, which was according to the worde of the Lorde. And so there assembled to Jerusalem moche people and a myghtye great congrega-cion, to holde the feast of swete bred in the seconde moneth.

And they arose and put awaye the aultars F
that were in Jerusalem. And all the incense they dyd awaye and cast theym into the broke Cedron. And they slewe passouer the fourtene daye of the seconde moneth. And the preastes and Leuites sanctified them selues for shame,
and broughte in the burntofferinges into the house of the Lorde. And they stode in their or dinge after their maner accordinge to the law of Moses the man of God. And the preastes sprynkled the bloude receyuinge it of the han des of the Leuites. And because there were many in the congregacion that were not san-ctified: and therfore dyd the Leuites sley pas seouer for all that were not cleane to sanctify
them

them to the Lorde.
There was very moch people out of Ephra im, Manasses, Isachar & Zabulon that were not cleane, and therfore dyd eate passeouer otherwyse then wrytinge specifieth. But Ezechias prayed for them and sayd: yͤ good Lorde be mercyful to all that set their hertes to seke
the God that is the Lorde God of their fathers, thoughe they do it not accordinge to the D clennesse of the holy place. And the Lord herd Ezechias and healed the people. And so yͤ chil dren of Israel that were founde at Jerusalem helde the feast of swete bred seuen dayes with great gladnesse, and the Leuites and the prea
stes praysed the Lorde day by day with lowde instrumentes.

And Ezechias spake hertely vnto the Leui
tes that had good vnderstandinge of yͤ Lord.
And they dyd eate that feast seuen dayes long and offred peaxofferinges & thanked the Lorde God of their fathers. And the hole assemble toke counsell to kepe seuen dayes moo: & they helde those seuen dayes with gladnesse. For Ezechias kynge of Juda gaue for heaueoffringes to the congregacion a thousand oxen and seuen thousande shepe. And the Lordes gaue to the congregacion for heaueofferinges a thou sande oxen and ten thousande shepe. And the preastes sanctified them selues, that they were ynoughe.

And all the congregacion of Juda with the preastes and Leuites, and all the congrega-cion that came out of Israell and the straun-gers, both that came out of the lande of Israel and that dwelt in Juda, reioysed: and there was greate ioye in Jerusalem. For frome the tyme of Salomon the sonne of Dauid kynge
of Israel it happened not so in Jerusalem.
And the preastes and the Leuites arose & bles sed the people, and their voyce was herde, and their prayer went vp vnto his holy dwelling place heauen.

¶ After Ezechias had called agayne the people vn-
to the waye of the Lorde he ordeyneth the preastes,
vnto whome he commaundeth to gyue tythes.

CAPI. XXXI.

a And when they had fynisshed all this:
all Israell that were founde in the cy-ties of Juda, went oute and brake the Images and cut downe the groues, and all to brake the hylaultares and the other aultares
thorow out all Juda and Ben Jamin, Ephraim and Manasses, tyl they had made an ende of theym. And afterwarde all the children of Israel returned euery man to his possession in their owne cyties. And Ezechias set the prea-stes and the Leuites in their ordre to wayte
by course, euerye man accordinge to his office
whyther preast or Leuite: for the burntofferinges and peaxofferinges, and to ministre and to thanke & to praye in the gates of the lodge of the Lorde. And the kynge gaue a porcyõ of his substaunce for burntoffringes at morninge
and euen, and for burntoffringes on the Sab
both dayes and new mones, and other solẽne
feastes, accordinge * as it is wrytten in the Nu. xxviii b.
lawe of the Lord. And he bad the people that B dwelte in Jerusalem to gyue the parte of the preastes & Leuites, that they might be mayn-teyned in the lawe of the Lorde. And as sone as the worde came abrode, the children of Israell brought aboundaunce of firste fruites of corne, wyne, oyle, and hony, and of al maner
of frutes of the felde: and the tythes of al mã
ner of thinges brought they in plenteously.
And the children of Israel and Juda yͭ dwelt in the cyties of Juda, they also brought in the tythes of oxen and shepe, and tythes of dedicate thinges which were dedicate to the Lord their God, and put theym on heapes. In the thirde moneth they began to laye the heapes
and fynisshed them the seuenth.

And when Ezechias and the lordes came & sawe the heapes, they blessed the Lorde and his people Israell. And Ezechias questioned with the preastes and the Leuites concerning the heapes. And Azarias the chief prest of the house of Zadoc answered him & sayde: sythens
they began to bringe the heueofferinges into the house of the Lorde, we haue eaten & had ynoughe, and yet lefte aboundaunce, for the Lorde hathe blessed his people and therfore is this heape left. And Ezechias bad dresse vp yͤ C store houses about the house of the Lorde.
And so they dyd, and caryed in the heaueoffe-
ringes and the tythes and the dedicat gyftes,
euen of fydelitie.

Ouer which Chonaniah the Leuite hadde
the rule with Semei his brother next to him.
And Jehiel, Asariah, Nahath, Asael, Jerimoth, Josabad, Eliel, Jesmachiah, Mahath
and Banaiah, were ouersears comitted. by Chonaniah and Semei his brother, at the ap poyntement of Ezechias the kynge, and Azarias the ruler of the house of God. And Chore the sonne of Jemna the Leuite porter of the East dore had the ouersight of the frewilloffrin
ges of God, to gyue heaueofferinges vnto the Lorde, and was ouer thinges most holy. And vnder him were Eden, Miniamin, Jesua, Se meiah, Amariah and Sechaniah in the cyties of the prestes of their fidelite, to gyue to their brethren their porcions, as well to the small
as to the great.

And to the males also that were reckened
from thre yere & aboue amonge all that went D
into the house of the Lorde daye by day, to do
seruice & to wayte by course. And to the prea-stes that were reckened in the housholdes of their fathers from. xx. yere & aboue, to wayte
when their courses came. And to theym that were reckened thorow out al their babes, wy
ues, sonnes & doughters thorow out al the cõ-gregacion. For to the fidelitie of them dyd mẽ committe their sanctified gyftes. And therto amonge the children of Aarõ the preastes were men named by name in the feldes of the suburbes of all their cyties, cytie by cytie, for to gyue porcions to all the males of the preastes
and to all that were reckened amonge the Le uites.

And on this maner dyd Ezechias thorowe
out all Juda, & dyd that was good, ryght &
trueth,

truthe, before the Lorde his God. And in all the workes that he began in the seruice of ẏ house of God, to seke his God after the lawe and commaundement, he dyd with al his hert and prospered.

¶ Sennacherib which shulde haue beseged Jerusalē is stryken of the Aungell. Ezechias dyeth after whom succedeth Manasses.

CAPI. XXXII

A iiij.Re.xviij.c After these dedes and truthe, Sennacherib kynge of Assur came and entred into Juda and pytched agaynst the stróge cytes and thought to drawe them to him. But when Ezechias sawe that Sennacherib was come & that he purposed to fyght against Jerusalem: he toke counsel with his capitaynes and men of might, to stop the water of ẏ fountaynes that were without the cytie: and they were content to helpe him. And so there gathered moche people togither and stopt all the welles and the broke that ran thorow the myddes of the lande, entendinge that the kynges of Assur shoulde not fynde moche water, when they came. And he wente to justely and buylte up the wall where it was broken, and made towres aboue upon, & yet an other wal without, and repayred Melo the cytie of Dauid, and made many dartes and shildes.

B And he set capitaynes of warre ouer ẏ people & gathered theym togither into the large strete of the gate of the cytie and spake gently to them, sayenge. Plucke up your hertes and be stronge: Be not afrayed or in any wyse discouraged for feare of the kynge of Assur, and iiij.Reg.vj.c. of the great multitude that is with him: * for there is one greatter with us then with him. With him is an arme of flesh: but with us is the Lorde our God for to help us and to fight our batayles. And the people were well couraged with the wordes of Ezechias kynge of Juda.

After that, Sennacherib kyng of Assur sent of his seruauntes to Jerusalem (he him selfe lyenge before Lachis and all his kyngdome wt him) unto Ezechias kynge of Juda and unto all Juda that were at Jerusalem, sayenge.

C iiij.Re.xviij.c Thus sayth Sennacherib kynge of Assur: * wherein do ye trust O ye that are beseged in Jerusalem? Ezechias deceyueth you, to delyuer you to death, hongre, and thurst, sayeng: the Lorde oure God shall rydde us out of the hande of the kynge of Assur. Is it not that Ezechias that put downe his hyll aultares and his other aultares, and commaunded Juda & Jerusalem sayenge: before one aulter ye shal bowe your selues and upon that offer also?

Moreouer haue ye not herde what I and my fathers haue done unto the people of all landes? were the gods of the people of other landes hable to saue their landes oute of my hande? which of all the goddes of those nacions that my fathers destroyed was it, that coulde delyuer his people out myne hande, that your God shulde be hable to delyuer you oute of myne hande? Wherfore nowe let not Ezechias deceyue you eyther perswade you on this facion, nor yet beleue him. For as no God amonge so many nacions and kyngdomes, was hable to rydde his people out of myne hande & the handes of my fathers: euen so moche lesse shall your God kepe you out of myne hande. And yet more dyd his seruauntes speke against the Lorde God and against his seruaunt Ezechias. Furthermore he wrote a letter to rayle on the Lorde God of Israel and spake therin sayenge: as the goddes of the nacions of other landes haue not delyuered their people out of myne hande, no more shall the God of Ezechias delyuer his people out of myne hande. And they cryed with a lowde voyce in the Jewes speache unto the people of Jerusalem, ẏ were on the walles, to feare them and to dismaye theym, that they might haue taken the cytie. And they spake against the God of Jerusalem, as against the goddes of the nacions of the earth, which are the workes of the handes of men.

But Ezechias the kynge and the Prophete Isai sonne of Amoz prayed concernynge that thinge and cryed up to heauen. And the Lorde sent an aungell and destroyed all the men of warre and the Lordes and Capitaynes of the host of the kynge of Assur, that he turned his face with shame towarde his owne lande. And when he was come into the house of his God, he was there ouerthrowen wt the swerd euen by them that issued out of his bowels. And so the Lorde saued Ezechias and the inhabiters at Jerusalem oute of the handes of Sennacherib kynge of Assur and of all other, and maynteined them on all sydes, In so moch that many brought presentes unto the Lorde to Jerusalem and preciouse gyftes to Ezechias kynge of Juda: so that he was magnifyed in the sight of all nacions from thence forth. F * In those dayes Ezechias was sicke unto ẏ death and besought the Lorde: which answered him and shewed him a wonderfull myracle: But Ezechias dyd not accordinge to the curtesye shewed him, for his hert arose: therfore came there wrath upon him and upon Juda and Jerusalem. Notwithstanding Ezechias mekened him selfe for the arysing of his hert bothe he and the inhabiters of Jerusalem. Wherfore the wrath of the Lord fel not upō them in the dayes of Ezechias.

And Ezechias had exceding moch rychesse and honour. And he gathered him treasure of siluer, golde, preciouse stones, spices, shildes, and all maner pleasaunt iewelles: and made store houses for the frutes of corne, wyne and oyle: and stables for all maner beastes, & foldes for shepe. G And made him townes because he had catel of shepe & oxen great aboundaūce For God had gyuen him substaunce exceding moche. And the sayde Ezechias stopped ẏ upper waterspringes of Gihon & brought them downe to the West syde of the cytie of Dauid And Ezechias prospered in all his workes. But when the Embassadoures of the lordes of Babylon were sente to him, to enquyre of the wonder that chaunced in the lande, God left him: to tempte hym that all that was in his herte myght be knowen.

The reste of the dedes of Ezechias and his goodnesse are wrytē in the vision of Isai the Prophete the son of Amoz in the boke of the kynges of Juda and Israel. And then Ezechias layde him to rest with his fathers, and they buryed him in the hyghest sepulchre of the sonnes of Dauid: and Juda and the inhabitauntes of Jerusalem dyd him worshyppe at his deathe. And Manasses his sonne raygned in his stede.

¶ Manasses is taken prysoner, and after destroyeth the Idoles. He dyeth after him succeadeth Amō. Amō was kylled of his owne people, and Josiah his sonne raygneth for him.

CAP. XXXIII.

A Manasses was.xij.yere old when he was made kynge, and raigned.lv.yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd wyckedlye in the sight of the Lorde, lyke unto the abominacions of the Haythen which the Lorde cast out before the chyldren of Israel. For he went and buylt agayne the hylaulters which Ezechias his father had broken downe. And he rered up aulters unto Baals, and made groues, & bowed him selfe unto all the host of heauen and serued thē. And he buylt aulters in the house of the Lorde: Of which the Lorde had sayde * in Jerusalem shall my name be for euer. And he made aulters unto all the host of heauen in the two courtes of the house of ẏ Lord And he burnt his chyldren in fyre in the valey of the sonnes of Hennon. And he obserued dismal dayes and occupyed wytchecraft and sorsery, and maynteined workers with spirites & sears of fortunes: and wrought moche euyll in the sight of the Lorde, to angre him with.

B And he put the kerued Image of an Idole which he had made, in the house of God. Of which house God sayde to Dauid and to Salomon his sonne, in this house here in Jerusalem which I haue chosen out of all the trybes, * I wil put my name for euer, & no more brynge the feete of Israell forthe of the lande which I haue ordeyned for your fathers, In case they shalbe dyligent to do all I haue commaunded by Moses in all the lawe ordinaunces and maners. But Manasses made Juda & the inhabiters of Jerusalem to erre, and to do worse then the Heythen which the Lorde destroyed before the chyldren of Israel. And whē the Lorde spake to Manasses and to his people, they attended not to him.

Wherfore the Lorde brought upon them ẏ Capitaynes of the host of the kynge of Assur, which toke Manasses in an holde and bound C him with chaynes and caryed him to Babilon And when he was in tribulacion he besought the Lorde his God, and humbled him self exceadyngly before the God of his fathers, and made intercession to him: and he was entreated of him and herde his prayer and brought him agayne to Jerusalem into his kyngdome. Then Manasses knewe how that the Lorde was the very God. After that, he buylt a wal withoute the cytie of Dauid on the west syde of Gihon in the broke and so forth to fishgate and rounde about Ophel and brought it up of a very greate heyght, and put Capitaynes of warre in all the stronge cyties of Juda. And he toke away straunge goddes and the Idole out of the house of God, and all the aulters that he had buylt in the mont of the house of God and in Jerusalem, and cast them oute of the cytie. And he made an aulter unto ẏ Lord and sacrifised theron peaceofferinges and thank offringes, and charged Juda to serue ẏ Lorde God of Israel. Neuerthelesse the people dyd offer styll in the hyllaulters, howe be it unto the Lorde their God only.

D The reste of the actes of Manasses and his prayer unto his God, and the wordes of the sears of visions that spake to him in ẏ name of the Lorde God of Israell, are wrytten amonge the dedes of the kynges of Israel. And his prayer and how that he was herde, and al his synne and trespace, and the places where he made hyllaulters and set up groues & kerued Images before he was mekened, are wrytten amonge the dedes of the sears of visions. And when Manasses was layde to rest with his fathers, they buryed him in his own house and Amon his sonne raygned in his rowme. Amon. Amon was.xxij.yeres olde, when he began to raygne, and raygned two yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the Lorde lyke unto Manasses his father, for Amon sacrifised to all the kerued Images whiche Manasses his father made, and serued theym, and mekened not him selfe before the Lorde, as Manasses his father had mekened him selfe: But Amon trespassed greatly. Wherfore his owne seruauntes conspired against him and slew him in his owne house. And the people of the lande slew all that had conspired against kynge Amon. And therto the people of the lande made Josias his sonne kynge in his rowme.

¶ Josias destroyeth the Idoles and restoreth the temple in whiche is founde the boke of the lawe. He sendeth to Holdah the prophetisse for counsell.

CAP. XXXIIII.

A Josias. iiii.Re.xxii.a Josias was made kynge when he was.viij. yere olde, and he raygned in Jerusalem.xxxj yeres. And he dyd that pleased the Lorde, & walked in the wayes of Dauid his father bowinge neyther to the ryghthande ne to ẏ left. In so moche that the eyght yere of his raigne, when he was yet a lad, he began to seke after the God of Dauid his father. And in the.xij. yere he began to purge Juda and Jerusalem of hyllaulters, groues, kerued Images, & Images of metall: so that they brake downe ẏ aulters of Baals euen in his presence, and the Idolles that were upon theym, he caused to be destroyed. And the groues, kerued Images, & Images of metall he brake and made dust of them, and strawed it upon the graues of them that had offred to them. B And he burnt the bones of the preastes upon the aultars. And clensed Juda and Jerusalem. And euen so dyd he in the

in the cytties of Manasses, Ephraim, Simeon and of Nepht hali. And in the wyldernesses of them rounde about he plucked a sondre the aultares and the groues and dyd breate them and stampe theym to powdre, and bet wone the ydoles throwout all the lande of Israel: and then returned to Jerusalem.

In the.xviij. yere of his raygne when he had purged the lande and the temple, he sent Saphan the sonne of Azalia, and Maasiah the gouernoure of the cytie, and Joah the sonne of Joachaz the recorder, to repayre the house of the Lorde his God. And when they came to Helkiah the hyghe preaste, men delyuered theym the moneye that was brought into the house of God, which the Leuites that kept ꝑ enterpes had gathered of the handes of Manasses and Ephraim and of all that yet remayned in Israel and of all Juda and Benjamin and of the enhabiters of Jerusalem. And they put it in the handes of the worckmē that had the ouersight of the house of the Lorde, whiche gaue it to the labourers that wrought on the house of the Lorde, to repayre and mende it, and to masons and carpēters to bye hewed stone and tymbre, for to make couples & beames for the houses which the kynges of Juda had destroyed: And the men wrought in ꝑ worke faithfully.

And the ouerseers of them to courage them were Jahath and Obadiah Leuites of ꝑ children of Merari: and Secharia and Mesulam of the children of the Cahathites, and as many other of the Leuites as coulde skill of instrumētes of Musike. And ouer the bearers of burthens and ouer all that wrought, in what so euer workmanship it were, were there scribes, officers and porters of the Leuites.

And as they brought out the moneye that was brought into the house, Helkiah ꝑ preast founde the boke of the lawe of the Lorde gyuen by Moses. And Helkiah aunswered and sayde to Saphan the scribe: I haue founde ꝑ boke of the lawe in the house of the Lorde, & gaue the boke to Saphan. And Saphan caryed the boke to the kynge, and brought ꝑ kynge worde agayne, sayenge: all that was committed to thy seruaunces, that do they. And they haue powred out the money that was founde in the house of the Lorde and haue delyuered into the handes of the ouerseers of the workmen. And then Saphan the scribe shewed the kynge, sayenge: Helkias the preast hath gyuē me a boke, and he red it before the kynge.

And when the kyng had herde the wordes of the lawe, he tare his clothes, and commaunded Helkiah and Ahikam the sonne of Saphā and Abdon the sonne of Micah and the sayd Saphan the scribe and Asaia a seruaunt of the kynges, sayenge: go and enquire of the Lorde for me and for them: that are left in Israel and Juda, concernynge the wordes of the booke ꝑ is founde. For great is the wrath of the Lord that is fallen ꝑō vs, because our fathers kept not the worde of the Lorde, to do after all that is wrytten in this boke. And Helkias with thē that he had appointed to the kynge went to Holdah a prophetisse wyfe of Sallum the son of Thekohath the sonne of Hasarah keper of the wardrope (which prophetisse dwelt in Jerusalem in the seconde warde) and they communed with her. And she sayde vnto them: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israel, tell ye the man that sent you to me: euen thus sayth the Lorde, I will bringe euyll vpon this place and vpon the enhabiters therof, euen all the curses that are wrytten in the boke whiche they haue red before the kynge of Juda, because they haue forsaken me and haue offred vnto other Gods to angre me with all maner workes of their handes, therfore is my wrathe set on fyre agēst this place and shall not be quenched.

The boke of the lawe is founde.

And as for the kynge of Juda whiche sent you to enquire of the Lorde, so shall ye say vnto him: thus sayth the Lorde God of Israell concernyng the wordes which thou hast herd. Because thyne hert dyd melt and thou dyddest meke thy selfe before God, when thou herdest his wordes against this place and against the enhabiters therof: and humbledst thy selfe before me, and tarest thy clothes and wepest before me, that haue I herd also sayth the Lord. Beholde I will take the to thy fathers & thou shalt be put in thy graue in peace, & thyne eyes shall not se all the myschefe that I will bring vpon this place and vpō the inhabiters of the same. And they brought the kynge worde agayne. Then the kynge sent and gathered together all the elders of Juda and Jerusalem. And the kynge went vp into the house of the Lorde, and all the men of Juda and the inhabiters of Jerusalem and the preastes and Leuites and all the people great and small: and red al the wordes of the boke of the couenaūt that was founde in the house of the Lorde. And the kynge stode at his standing and made a couenaunt before the Lorde, to folowe the Lorde and to kepe his commaundmentes, his wytnesses and his statutes with all his herte and with all his soule and to fulfill the wordes of the appoyntement wrytten in the sayde booke.

And he made to come forthe all that were founde in Jerusalem and Ben Jamin, and the inhabiters of Jerusalem promysed to kepe the couenaunt of ꝑ God wyche was the God of their fathers. And Josias put away al maner abhominations out of all landes that pertayned to the children of Israel, and brought all that were founde in Israell to serue the Lorde their God. And they tourned not a syde from the Lorde God of their fathers as longe as he lyued.

¶ Josias holdeth passouer. He fyghteth agayne the kynge of Egypte / and dyeth. The people bewayle hym.

CAPI. XXXV.

And Josias helde the feast of passouer vnto the Lorde in Jerusalem, and they slewe passouer in the.xiiij. daye of the first moneth. And he set the preistes in their offices and ayded thē in the seruyce of the house of the Lorde. And he sayd to the Leuites that taught taught thorow out all Israel and were sanctified vnto the Lorde: put the holy arcke in the house which Salomon the son of David kyng of Israell dyd buylde, ye nede not to beare it vpon your shoulders. Wherfore now serue the Lorde your God and his people Israell. And prepare your selues by your auncient housholdes and companyes, accordinge to the wrytynge of David kynge of Israel, and the wrytinge of Salomon his sonne. And stande in the holy place accordynge to the deuysions of the auncyent housholdes of youre brethren the chyldren of the people, and after the deuyson of the auncyent housholdes of the Leuites, & kyll passouer, sanctifye and prepare your brethren that they maye doo accordynge to the worde of the Lorde by the handē of Moses.

And Josias gaue to the common people in lambes and kydds, for palle ouer offerynges onely, vnto all that were present thirty thousande by tale, and thre thousande oxen, euen of ꝑ kynges substaunce. And his Lordes gaue willyngly both vnto the people and vnto ꝑ preastes and vnto the Leuites. Helkias, Zacharias & Jehiel rulers of the house of God, gaue vnto the preastes for palle ouer offerynges two thousande and syxe hundred lambes and kydds, and thre hundred oxen. And Conania with Semeia and Nathanael his brethren, and Hasabiah and Jaiel and Josabad, Lordes of the Leuites, gaue vnto ꝑ Leuites, fyue thousande palle ouer offerynges, & fyue hundred oxen.

And in the seruyce went forwarde: and ꝑ preastes stode in theyr places, and the Leuites in theyr companyes at the kynges commaundment. And they offred passouer: and the preastes sprynkled the bloude receaupynge it of the Leuites, and the Leuites stroppe the beastes. And they set awaye the burntofferynges, to gyue them vnto the commē people as they were deuyded by auncient houses, for to offer vnto the Lorde, as is wrytten in the boke of Moses. And so dyd they with the oxē. And they dressed the passouer with fyre as the maner was. But the other halowed dedicat beastes they sod in pottes, caudrons and pannes and deled them quickely amonge all the commen people. And afterwarde they made redy for them selues and for the preastes and for the children of Aaron, which were busyed in offeringe burntoffringes and the fat vntyll night. And therfore the Leuites prepared for them selues and for the preastes the sonnes of Aaron. And the singers the children of Asaph stode in their standinge accordinge to the commaundement of David and Asaph, Heman & Jduthun the kynges sear of visions: and the porters wayted at euery gate, and might not departe from their seruice: But their brethis the Leuites prepared for them. And so all the seruice of the Lorde was forwarde the sayde daye, to offeringe passouer of burntofferinges vpon the aultare of the Lorde, accordinge to the commaundement of kynge Josias. And so the children of Israell that coulde be founde, kepte passouer the same tyme and kepte the feast of swete breed. vij. dayes. And there was no passouer lyke to that kept in Israel frome the tyme of Samuel the Prophete: nether dyd any of the kynges of Israel holde suche a passouer feast as dyd Josias and the preastes & Leuites and all Juda, and almoche of Israel as coulde be had, and the inhabiters of Jerusalem. And this passouer was holden in the xviij. yere of the raygne of Josias.

iiij. Re. xxiij. c

After all this, when Josias had fynyshed the temple, Necho kynge of Egypte came vp to fight againste Carcamis vpon Euphrates, and Josias went out against him. And the other sent messengers to him, sayenge: what haue I to do with the thou kynge of Juda? I came not against the now at this tyme, but against an house with whome I haue warre, & God bad me haste. Leaue therfore and medle not with God which is with me, least he destroy the. Neuertheles Josias turned not his face frō him, but made him redy to fight with him, & herkened not vnto the wordes of Necho out of the mouthe of God. And when he was come to fight in the valeye of Magedo, ꝑ shooters shot against the kynge Josias. And ꝑ kynge sayd to his seruauntes: cary me away, for I am sore hurt. And his seruauntes yadde him out of that charet & put him in an other, and brought him to Jerusalem where he dyed and was buryed in ꝑ sepulchre of his fathers. And all Juda and Jerusalem mourned for Josias. And Jeremye lamented Josias, and all singynge men and singynge wemen speake of Josias to this daye, and made it an ordinaūce in Israel: and they be written in lamentacions. The rest of the actes of Josias & his goodnes in folowinge the writinge of the lawe, & his dedes first and last are wrytten in the boke of the kynges of Israel and Juda.

2 Chron. xxxiij. d

¶ After Josias raigned Joachaz, Joakim, Joachin, Sedechias, in whose tyme all the people were caryed away to Babilon and were brought agayne the lxx. yere after, by kynge Cyrus.

CAP. XXXVI.

A Joachaz. iiij. Re. xxiij. f

And the people of the lād toke Joachaz the son of Josias & made him kyng after his father in Jerusalem. And Joachaz was. xxiij. yere olde when he began to raygne, & raygned thre monethes in Jerusalē. For the kynge of Egypt put him downe at Jerusalem & raunsomed the lande in an hundred talentes of syluer & a talent of golde. And the kynge of Egypte made Eliakim his brother kynge vpon Juda & Jerusalem, & turned his name vnto Joakim, but Joachaz his brother Necho toke & caryed him to Egypte. Joakim was. xxv. yere old when he began to raigne, & raygned. xj. yere in Jerusalē: & he dyd ꝑ displeased the Lord his God. Against him came Nabuchodonozor kyng of Babilō & bounde him in fetters to cary him to Babilon. Moreouer the kyng Nabuchodonozor caryed of ꝑ vessels of ꝑ house of the Lorde to Babilon & put them in his temple at Babilon. The rest of the actes of Joakim & his abominacions, & ꝑ was layd to his charge, are wrytten in the bookes of the kynges of Israel: & Joachin his sonne raygned

Eliakim.

B

Joachin.

So in his

in his steade. Joacin was. viij. yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned three monethes and ten dayes in Jerusalem / and dyd þ displeased the Lorde. And when the yere was out, kynge Nabuchodonozor sent and fet him to Babilon with the goodly vessels of þ house of the Lorde, and made Sedekias his brother kynge ouer Juda and Jerusalem.

And Sedekias was. xxj. yere olde when he began to raygne, and raygned a. xj. yere in Jerusalem. And he dyd that displeased the Lord his God, and humbled not him self before Jeremy the Prophete at the mouth of the Lord. And therto he rebelled against Nabuchodonozor which had receyued an othe of him by god and was to styfnecked and to harde hetted to turne vnto the Lord God of Israel. Furthermore all the rulers of the preastes with the people trespaced a pace after all manor of abominations of the Panyms & polluted þ house of the Lorde whiche he had halowed in Jerusalem.

And the Lord God of their fathers sent to them by his messengers, sendynge them by tymes: for he had compassion on his people and on his dwellynge place. But they mocked the messengers of God and despysed their wordes and mysused his Prophetes, vntyll the wrath of the Lorde so arose against his people that it was paste remedy. And so he brought vpon them the kynge of Caldey & slew their young men with the swerde in their holy temple, and neyther spared younge man nor mayden, neyther olde man, neyther so moche as him that stowped for age: But gaue al into his hande.

And all the vessels of þ house of God both great and smal, and the treasures of the house of God, and the treasures of the kynge & his Lordes he caryed to Babilon euery whit. And they burnt the house of God and brake downe the walles of Jerusalem, and burnt all the palaces therof with fyre, with all the goodly stuffe therof, and marred it. And he caryed awaye them that had escaped the swerde, to Babilon, where they were seruauntes to him and his children, vntyll the kyngdome of Persia began to rule, to fulfill the worde of the Lord by the mouthe of Jeremy, vntyl the land had her pleasure of her Sabbothes: for as longe as she laye desolate, she kept Sabboth vntyll she had fulfilled. lxx. yeres. And the first yere of Cyrus kynge of Persia to fynysh the word of the Lorde by the mouth of Jeremy, þ Lord stered vp the spirite of Cyrus kynge of Persia that he made a Proclamation throwow out all his kyngdome, and set it vp in wrytinge, sayenge: Thus sayth Cyrus kynge of Persia, all the kyngdomes of the earth the Lord God of heauen hath gyuen me, whiche hathe charged me to buylde him an house in Jerusalem that is in the lande of Juda. Wherfore who so euer is amonge you of all his people, the Lorde his God be with him, and let him go vp.

¶ The ende of the seconde boke of the Chronycles of the kinges of Juda.

THE FYRST BOKE OF ESDRAS THE PROPHETE.

¶ Cyrus sendeth agayne the people that was in captyuytye, and restoreth them theyr holy vesselles: And commaundeth them to buylde agayne the temple.

CAPI. I.

In the fyrste yere of Cyrus kynge of Persia (that the worde of the Lorde spoken by the mouth of Jeremy myght be fulfilled) the Lorde stered vp the spirite of Cyrus kynge of Persia, that he caused it be proclaymed thorow out all his empyre, yea and by wrytinge also, sayenge: Thus sayth Cyrus the kynge of Persia: The Lorde God of heauen hathe gyuen me all the kyngdomes in the lande and hath commaunded me to buyld him an house at Jerusalem in Juda. Who so euer nowe among you is of his people, the Lord his God be with him, and let him go vp to Jerusalem in Juda, and buylde the house of the Lorde God of Israel. He is the God that is at Jerusalem. And who so euer remaynyth yet in any manor of place (where he is a straunger) let þ men of his place, helpe him with syluer and golde, with good and catel, beside that whiche they willyngly offer, for þ house of God at Jerusalem.

Then gat vp the principall fathers of Juda and Ben Jamin, and the preastes and Leuites, and all they whose spyrete God had raysed to goo vp, and to buylde the house of the Lorde at Jerusalem. And all they that were about them, strengthed their handes with vessels of syluer and golde, with good and catell and Jewels, beside that whiche they gaue of their frewill. And kynge Cyrus brought forth of the vessels of the house of the Lorde, whiche Nabuchodonozor had taken out of Jerusalem, and put in the house of his God. But Cyrus the kynge of Persia brought them forthe by Mithridates the treasuree, and numbred them vnto Sesbazar the prince of Juda. And this is þ numbre of them: thirty basins of gold and a thousand basens of syluer, and nyne and twenty knyues, thirty cuppes of golde, and of other syluer cuppes foure hundred and ten. and of other vessels a thousand. So that all þ vessels both of golde and syluer, were fyue thousand and foure hundred. Sesbazar brought them all vp, with them that came vp oute of the captiuitie of Babilon vnto Jerusalem.

¶ The nombre of them that returned from captyuytye.
